WOMEN FIGHT POWERFUL FOE

Struggle Against Ill Health

MRS. ADOLPH HANSEN
HOLMQUIST, SOUTH DAKOTA

Holmquist, South Dakota.—"I can not begin to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was sick for about four years. I could not sleep, and I was always worrying, so one day we saw your advertisement in a paper, and I made up my mind to try the Vegetable Compound. I bought one bottle and did not see any change, so I got another bottle. At the second bottle I began to feel better and I have used the Vegetable Compound ever since, whenever I feel badly. I recommend it and I will answer any letters asking about it."—Mrs. Adolph Hansen, Holmquist, South Dakota.

Could Work Only Two Hours

Encanto, Calif.—"I bless the day I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was so weak and tired all the time I could not work more than two hours each day, then had to go to bed for the rest of the day. I read so much about the Vegetable Compound and I was so weak that I decided to try it. I now do my own housework—washing, scrubbing, and ironing—and then help my husband with his garden. I do not have that worn-out feeling now. I advise every woman to give your wonderful medicine a trial, and I will answer any letters I receive from women asking about it."—Mrs. Stella Lay, 700 Jamacha Road, Encanto, Calif.

A woman who is fighting for her health and her family's happiness is a valiant soldier. She wages her battle in her own kitchen. She has no thrilling bugles to cheer her on, no waving banners.

POETRY

Ichabod

So fallen! so lost! the light withdrawn
Which once he wore!
The glory from his gray hairs gone
Forevermore!

Revile him not, the Tempter hath
A snare for all;
And pitying tears, not scorn and wrath,
Befit his fall!

Oh, dumb be passion's stormy rage,
When he who might
Have lighted up and led his age,
Falls back in night.

Scorn! would the angels laugh, to mark
A bright soul driven,
Fiend-goaded, down the endless dark,
From hope and heaven!

Let not the land once proud of him
Insult him now,—
Nor brand with deeper shame his dim,
Dishonored brow.

But let its humble sons, instead,
From sea to lake,
A long lament, as for the dead,
In sadness make.

Of all we loved and honored, naught
Save power remains;
A fallen angel's pride of thought,
Still strong in chains.

All else is gone; from those great eyes
The soul has fled;
When faith is lost, when honor dies,
The man is dead!

Then, pay the reverence of old days
To his dead fame;
Walk backward, with averted gaze,
And hide the shame!

—John Greenleaf Whittier.

The Useful Plow

O country life is sweet!
In moderate cold and heat,
To walk in the air how pleasant and how fair!
In every field of wheat,
The fairest of flowers adorning the bowers,
And every meadow's brow;
So that I say, no courtier may
Compare with them who clothe in gray,
And follow the useful plow."

They rise with the morning lark,
And labor till almost dark.
Then, folding their sheep, they hasten to sleep
While every pleasant park
Next morning is ringing with birds that are singing
On each green, tender bough.
With what content and merriment
Their days are spent, whose minds are bent
To follow the useful plow.

—Unknown.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Miss Womtat, do you thing two can love as cheaply as one?

I have never given the matter any thought. When I get married I expect to make the money fly.—Louisville Courier Journal.

Wife—I noticed that you cut an article on How To Live to Be a Hundred out of the magazine. Why did you do that?

Husband—I was afraid your mother might read it.—The Pathfinder.

Ted's a scream. Ever since he's been engaged to the bishop's daughter he's been wearing his collar the wrong way round, and now he's had stained glass windows put in his new car!"—London Ideas.

You used to promise anything that might please the voter's fancy.

Yes, observed Senator Sorghum, I don't dry that any more. Voters are getting so notional you can't even tell what kind of a promise is going to suit their fancy.—Washington Star.

Child—The heathens had a god for everything, didn't they?

The Mother—Yes, dear.

Child—Then who was the god that ruled over the kitchens?

The Mother—I don't remember precisely, but I thing it was the great god Pan.—Philadelphia Evening Ledger.

I hear you've signed up an Indian pitcher.

Yep.

What's his tribe? How's his delivery?

I can tell you in two words. He's a south Pawnee.—Louisville Courier Journal.

Now, his naturalist tells us that we never hear of a quirrel worrying himself to death.

Perhaps not, but I've seen squirrels in revolving cages that seemed to have something on their minds.—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Madame Tussaud's famous waxworks museum in London is to be restored. Last year it was partly destroyed by fire, but a new company now has taken the property over and will make it the same old museum it has been for the last 90 years. The chamber of horrors and other features will be reproduced exactly.

A speedometer for a locomotive has at last been devised. For a long time there have been experiments with belts pulleys and gears on long flexible shafts, but the vibration and swaying of the engine made them inaccurate. The new method uses a magneto-generator driven from one of the engine wheels with an indicator in the cab.

By slow and methodical degrees Scapa Flow is being made to give up the vessels of the sunken German fleet. Most recently salvaged was the destroyer G-104, lifted to the surface by means of floating docks. This is the 25th vessel raised in the last two years. THORPE, NICHOLS, CAMPBELL, REPUBLICAN NOMINEES

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 5.—Featuring the republican town caucus of Westerly for nomination of senator and representative from the first and second districts, held in the town hall here tonight, were addresses by Samuel H. Davis, who nominated Howard E. Thorpe for senator an by Representative George B. Utter, who himself also seeks that office.

John B. Nichols was nominated for representative from the first district and Clifford A. Campbell as representative from the second district, without contest. In supporting Howard E. Thorpe for senator, Mr. Davis said that Mr. Thorpe would pledge himself against the so-called state redistricting plan, sponsored by republicans of Providence and other Rhode Island cities.

Replying, Mr. Utter said he had fulfilled his party pledge in voting for the plan and had done as two-thirds of the members from Washington county had done. He said that he had not been instructed to vote otherwise, but would do as the citizens of Westerly instructed him if he were elected.

At the close of the meeting Mr. Utter suggested that a ballot be included in the republican caucus Friday which would instruct the republican nominee how to vote on the plan. This suggestion was adopted and such a ballot will be included at the caucus.

At a democratic caucus held in the town hall tonight, delegates named to the democratic convention in Providence, Thursday, without opposition, are: First district, Thomas McHale, Joseph Montague. Second district, Thomas V. F. Clancy, B. J. Christy. The democratic caucus for nomination for senator and representative from Westerly is scheduled for Friday evening.

SWALLOWED SAFETY PIN— GANGAN INFANT DIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 5—Irene Gangan, nine months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Urbano Gangan, Groton, died this morning at Lawrence hospital as a result of having swallowed an open safety pin yesterday afternoon. The baby had been left unattended in its cot by its mother while the latter was busy about her household duties. The child in amusing herself succeeded in removing the pin from her clothing and swallowed it. Some time later the mother went to the cot and discovered that the child had removed and swallowed the pin. A physician was summoned, but all efforts to relieve the child failed and she was taken to the hospital. An X-ray picture showed the pin to be in the bowel, which organ had been punctured. The child had grown perceptibly weak, but in an effort to save her life an operation was performed last night. The pin was removed, but the child's weakened condition resulted in her death a few hours after the operation.

ADVICE TO BE FOLLOWED TOWARDS PREVENTING FIRES

Advice for use not only in Fire Prevention week, but all the year round, is given as follows by Chief Howard L. Stanton:

"I want to remind all house-owners to clean out their chimneys. After furnaces have been operated all winter, flues and chimneys are sure to be filled with soot. When furnace fires are lit—as they soon will be—trouble is bound to start if the pipes and the chimney itself are not clean as a whistle. So have them cleaned professionally, or else do the job yourselves Lower a rag-rapped brick attached to a rope down the chimney and take down your smoke pipes and clean them out. There's one cause of fires that certainly can be prevented. A good time to do it is during Fire Prevention week, and thus help us of the fire department to avoid stacks of trouble."

"Watch disposal of matches and of lighted smoking materials; they are responsible for a heavier annual loss than any other known cause. Always keep matches out of the reach of small children.

"Use proper fuses in electrical circuits, the fuse is the safety valve of the system and should not be tampered with.

"Turn off electric flat irons and other electric devices if you have to leave them for even a moment.

"Gasoline and other volatile liquids make dangerous cleaning fluids use the safe compounds on the market, including carbon tetrachloride, which is obtainable at any drug store.

"Defective chimneys and flues caused nearly $23,000,000 destruction last year; keep them clean and in repair

"A gas leak should be hunted with a flashlight, not with an open flame to the 'suspected' part of the pipe apply soap which in bubbling will reveal the leak.

"Walls, ceilings and partitions should be shielded from the heating of stoves, furnaces and connecting pipes.

FIRES CAN OCCUR IN FIRE RESISTIVE BUILDINGS

In connection with the observance of fire prevention week the insurance department of the United States Chamber of Commerce calls attention to the fact that fires sometimes occur in buildings of the latest type of fire resistive construction. Last winter three serious fires occurred within a few weeks in modern skyscrapers located in New York city.

While these fires demonstrated conclusively the value of fire resistive construction in high buildings, it also showed serious fires may occur in them. When fires do start in these buildings they may be compared to fires in stoves. The stove itself will not burn, but the fuel placed in it ignites readily. On a much larger scale, the same principles applies in case of a fire in a fire resistive structure.

Special care should be taken in fire resistive skyscrapers to enclose all stairways and elevator shafts so fire cannot jump from one floor to another Even if these precautions are taken, the flames may spread through the window. After the glass is broken by heat the fire may travel upward on the outside of the structure and reenter the building in an upper store. Wired glass in metal frames is recommended.

1,080 APPLICATIONS FROM MEN AND WOMEN TO BE MADE VOTERS

Applications to be made voters have been received from 1,080 men and women of the town of Norwich by Registrars of Voters Tyler D. Guy and Cornelius J. Downes. The registrars were in session from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m., Tuesday to receive the applications of those who wish to be made voters. This was the last opportunity to file applications to be made voters as no more applications will be received this year. Voters will "be made" Saturday, October 9th and Saturday October 16th from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. each day. The examination of applicants and administering of the electors' oath will take place in the town hall and will be conducted by the board of selectmen and the town clerk. Those who are examined and made voters this Saturday and the following Saturday will be eligible to vote in the state election next month.

Of the 1,080 applications received 547 are from men and 533 from women. Two years ago 1,008 women and 925 men filed applications to be made. Applications as received in each district this year and a comparison of the applications received by districts two years ago follow:

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AIMS FOR 400 MEMBERS

An earnest effort will be made by the chamber of commerce to increase its membership to 400 during the coming week. The reason for this effort is an endeavor to increase the activities of the chamber. Norwich needs a chamber of commerce and the chamber of commerce needs the moral and financial support of every public spirited citizen. The chamber believes that a city worth living in is worth working for. All cities are in effect what the residents of a city wish it to be. Where there are men and women with vision, who can see beyond the every day problems of life, the things that go to make a community a pleasant and a prosperous place in which to live, there one will find a truly progressive town.

The Norwich chamber of commerce is a democratic institution, embracing in its membership all classes of the community life. The manufacturer, the merchant, the professional man, the banker, and the women of Norwich are all represented in the membership of the chamber. It is the one organization in the town, embracing representatives of every phase of community life, whose every effort is an endeavor to promote the reputation, the business and the prosperity of Norwich. It is organized to give every conceivable service to the residents and the stranger coming to visit, or to make a home in the town. It is the clearing house of information for Norwich.

Six teams are organized, the captains for each team being H. B. Cary, John M. Lee, H. M. Lerou, James M Boantree, E. O. Rodier, Abner Schwartz. President James L. Case is the chairman and director for this membership increase effort. The team members are extending an invitation to all public spirited citizens of Norwich to help support the Norwich chamber by becoming members and giving their cooperation to a purely altruistic organization.

MAKING GREAT PLANS FOR ARMISTICE DAY

Robert O. Fletcher post of the American Legion is making arrangements for the biggest celebration of Armistice day ever held in Norwich. Some of the best men in the city are serving on the various committees and that is already an assurance that the 11th of November will be a big day for Norwich and vicinity.

Charles Holt, chairman, received word that the coast guard, the submarine forces and the cadets band will take part in the parade, Senator Hiram Bingham and Representative J. O. Tilson are making arrangements for some nationally prominent speakers for the occasion.

It is hoped that the board of education with its various school organizations will take active part. Likewise many of the other fraternal societies and organizations will be in the line of march. The Polish societies are turning out in a body.

This is to be a double celebration. The Armistice day and the 150th anniversary of America's struggle for independence. It may surprise some to learn that in many of the European countries the sesqui-centennial of our independence was celebrated with a great deal of celebrity. In Poland for instance, great parades, speeches and lectures on America, its progress, its humanitarian work and other accomplishments were delivered to student bodies and the general public.

That should be the more reason, the local committee believes why should make special effort to fittingly commemorate the sacrifices, heroism and devotion to liberty of our forefathers. Nothing could bring this lesson better to the attention of the foreign born citizens and to the school children, than a series of floats commemorating the great events in United States history. The Daughters of the American Revolution and the various national organizations could depict the early struggle and the part that such men as Lafayette, Kosciuszko, Pulaski, Stuben and other great soldiers played in it. The G. A. R., the Elks, Rotarians, Lions, K. of C., all could prepare adequate floats which could be artistic and educational at the same time. The Red Cross, Boy Scouts Camp Fire Girls could likewise bring out many useful lessons to the public through floats.

If all these organizations will put their shoulder to the wheel, the celebration can put Norwich on the map. The city officials are cooperating with the Legion to make the Armistice day a big event. After the parade and after the placing of the war trophy, the Legion is planning a luncheon and an entertainment at the armory. So let's all boost and go over the top big is the attitude which the committee urged the people of Norwich to take.

FLOMONDEL TRIO OPENS MUSIC ASSOCIATION SEASON

An especially enjoyable evening of music was provided Monday by the costume recital by the Flomondel Trio of Boston that furnished the opening programme for the meeting of the Norwich Music association at Slater hall annex. The trio consists of Florence Hale Ginn, soprano, Claramond Thompson, contralto, and Elsie Luker, pianologues and accompanist.

The two singers had voices that were heard to advantage in their duet numbers and their solo appearances were equally pleasing, while in the latter part of the programme their costume numbers were very effectively given. Miss Luker's pianologues added a sprightly touch to the programme that was much appreciated and the audience showed its approval of the musicians by demanding encores for every number.

The programme was given as follows:

Duets
Per Valli — Biangini
Tutti-li-flor (from Mmma Butterfly) — Puccini
Mrs. Ginn and Miss Thompson

Songs
Aria (from the Snow Maiden) — Rimsky-Korsakoff
Dawn — Curran
Mrs. Ginn

Songs
My Thoughts are as the Mighty Hills — Grieg
Trade Winds — Keel
Love Went A-Riding — Bridge
Miss Thompson

Pianologues (Selected)
Miss Luker

Chinese Songs (In costume)
Chinese Folk Song
From the Tomb of an Unknown Woman — Bantock
Chinese Mother Goose Rhymes — Crist
Mrs. Ginn

Folk Songs of the British Isles (In costume)
Come Lassies and Lads — English
Souling Song — English
My Love She's but a Lassie yet — Scotch
Would God I were the tender apple blossom — Irish
Miss Thompson

Pianologues (Selected)
Miss Luker

Duets
Medley of Southern Airs
Starry Night — Densmore
Mrs. Ginn and Miss Thompson

The programme for the November meeting will be by Willard Amison, tenor.

METHODIST SUPERINTENDENTS AT BUZZARDS BAY CONFERENCE

A conference attended by 15 district superintendents of the Methodist Episcopal church, at Buzzards Bay, Mass., where they were guests at the summer home of Bishop William F. Anderson, ended on Tuesday. The conference was called for the consideration of church activities in New England. Among those attending were Rev. Myron E. Center of this city, superintendent in the Norwich district.

The entire delegation attended services Sunday morning at the Methodist church in Bourne. Rev. L. A. Neis of Springfield was the preacher. In the evening Chaplain C. M. Charlton of Vermont was the preacher.

In the afternoon the conference members took an automobile trip to Sandwich and visited the grave of former Bishop William F. Mallalieu in Bay View Cemetery there. Bishop Anderson placed a wreath on the grave and offered prayer. The grave of Joseph Jefferson, famous actor, who made the part of Rip Van Winkle well known on the stage, was also visited.

AMERICAN LEGION OPPOSES GENEVA GAS PROTOCOL

Joseph Bellefleur, adjutant of Fletchar post, No. 4, American Legion, issued a statement Monday night, opposing the Geneva Gas Protocol which is to come before the United States senate, November 10th. The statement, issued by Adjutant Bellefleur, says:

The men and women of the American Legion, out of the fruit of their experience gained during the World war, were the first to demand the adoption of a sound and adequate policy of national defense. The American Legion believes in preparedness as the best insurance to prevent war. The American Legion does not believe in the abandonment of any effective established arm of national defense and calls upon the people of the country to stand with us in vigorously opposing the ratification by the United States senate of the Geneva Gas Protocol. This question will be before the senate when it convenes on November 10, 1926. This protocol should be defeated.

When on April 22, 1915, the German army released the first greenish cloud of chlorine gas at Ypres, they startled the world and they effected the greatest military surprise of modern times. Over 5,000 casualties resulted and the allied cause was in imminent danger. Had this initial attack been backed with adequate reserves, and had these reserves been pushed into the line, the British would have been separated from the French, the channel ports would in all probability have been reached and the war would have been won by Germany and her allies that year. At the Hague convention of 1899, an agreement had been signed by all the great powers, excepting the United States, not to use asphyxiating gas shell. Germany was a party to this agreement. Reliance by the allies in this agreement made possible the great gas attack at Ypres.

The pacifists throughout the country are busy trying to bring back that false sense of security. At Washington in 1921; at Geneva in 1925, and now at Geneva at the preparatory conference being held, the same efforts are being made to make possible another such terrible surprise.

The American Legion, whose membership is better qualified to judge the facts regarding chemical warfare than any other organization, and because it is dedicated to national security, passed the following resolutions at its national convention at Omaha, Nebraska, in 1925: The American Legion expresses its continued interest in the proper development of our chemical warfare service as a necessary and essential part of our national defense programme, and deprecates any movement to interfere with or handicap its present work and usefulness to our country. While no responsible person has advocated the lessening of our chemical preparations, should a treaty become effective, it is clear that there will be a strenuous campaign of propaganda by pacifist organizations against the maintenance by the United States of adequate chemical preparedness in case any agreement banning gas should become effective.

All the principal nations are carrying on some form of chemical preparation as a part of their national defense scheme. This does not indicate any intention on their part to make war any more than does their other military preparation. It merely indicates that they have accepted the advent of chemical warfare as one of the warfare that will be used in the future, its effectiveness having been demonstrated during the World war.

Russia, in particular, has organized a complete chemical warfare arm and is developing it on a larger scale than any other country.

The United States can preserve its peace through development of chemical warfare. This protocol came before the senate last session and through the efforts of the American Legion was not ratified, action having been deferred to the next session. From the time the senate convenes this protocol may be called up. It is the mission of the American Legion to keep these lessons before our people, and to correct false impressions now being spread broadcast by pacifist organizations. If this protocol were ratified by the United States and by another single nation, the United States would be bound by it, as regards the other nation, and the pacifists and radicals would charge our government with lack of good faith. If we were to continue our chemical preparedness, even for defense purposes only. Get in touch with our senators and see that they express your wishes so that our national security will not be endangered if our country should enter into any agreement not to use gas in war.

WOMEN IN POLITICS URGES D. A. R. HEAD

"If the men—and women too—who are ambitious for office knew that they could go in on a good record alone and that they could stay in just so long as they maintained that good record, there would be more statesmen and fewer politicians," declared Mrs. Alfred J. Brosseau, president general of the National society, Daughters of the American Revolution, in her address at the morning session of the thirty-third state meeting of the Connecticut D. A. R. which opened in Hartford Tuesday.

"Were the women of this country," she declared "to attend the primaries and bring to bear upon the issues involved the same intelligence and perspicacity that they now show in all pursuits of life, I firmly believe there would be fewer of the slush fund scandals with which we are now so frequently regaled. For one thing, the candidates would obviously be relieved of so much expense in getting out the vote, the stock excuse that is offered—and probably with truth—for the expenditure of such vast sums of money."

STAFFORD CAR KILLED MAN; INQUEST HELD

Coroner Lowndes A. Smith of Middletown on Monday conducted an inquest into the death of Daniel Crowley, who died from injuries received when he was struck by a car driven by James Pippin, of Stafford, on Sunday evening, September 19th.

Crowley was changing a tire on his car while near Essex. Pippin passed by, striking Crowley, who was removed to the Middlesex hospital, where he died several days later. Pippin was released under $500 bond.

After taking testimony from a number of witnesses, including occupants of the Pippin car and the widow and daughter of Crowley, Coroner Smith continued the hearing until a later date, pending the evidence of a person who arrived immediately after the accident. He probably will render a decision Saturday.

STRIKES SNAG SECURING NEW SCHOOL LAND

The sum of $8,640 has been expended by the town school board in acquiring two tracts of land for the new school building at Norwich Town, $4,120 for the Millie Edmond land and $4,500 for the Mary Geer land, both on West Town street, a short distance west of Sacred Heart church, but a snag has been struck in securing the Carter property which is desired for an approach to the school. The property is about 60 feet square with a dwelling house on it.

A written option on the Carter land has been secured at the price the seller set, but for a month now the Carters have been refusing to carry out the terms of the option and complete the sale to the town. The purchase of the other two pieces of property, it is stated, was made at a figure about $3,000 less than the price asked by the owners.

Town Counsel Henry H. Pettis has been covering the legal side for the town in the controversy and Attorney Thomas M. Shields has appeared for the Carters.

The delay in securing the Carter plot will not interfere with going ahead with the construction of the building as this is not required for the building. Within a short time it is probable that the plans will be ready to be put out to bids and all the construction possible will be done before the winter sets in.

WATERFORD FARMHOUSE IS TOTAL LOSS BY FIRE

A two story frame farmhouse owned an occupied by Mrs. Mary Dandona and family on the Bloomingdale road, Waterford, was destroyed by fire of unknown origin early Monday evening. Insurance on the house had lapsed a month ago and seven tons of coal just put in for the winter was lost. A few of the house furnishings and an early supply of winter preserves were saved.

The fire broke out under the roof. Carpenters had been working on the roof during the day and it is thought that a cigarette or pipe may have been responsible for the blaze. Mrs. Dandona, who had been confined to the house by illness for some time, heard the crackling of the flames and notified her husband. The Waterford fire apparatus was called out, but the fire had gained such headway that the house could not be saved. Mrs. Dandona was carried from the house and became panic stricken as she watched the building being consumed. A barn less than 50 feet away escaped the flames.

PUTNAM PHALANX FOR ARMISTICE DAY PARADE

Owing to the number of meetings and activities the Putnam Phalanx of Hartford voted at a meeting Monday evening against parading in the Columbus day celebration next Tuesday. It will have a part in the celebration in the Armistice day exercises in Norwich, November 11. An invitation to attend this was declined by the First company, Governor's Foot Guard Monday evening.

HAINES PITCHES AND BATS CARDS TO VICTORY IN THIRD SERIES GAME

Veteran Hurler Blanks Yankees With Five Hits and Then Hits Home Run With One Man on Base—Yankees Use Three Pitchers in Effort to Silence Cardinal Siege Guns—Largest Crowd in St. Louis Baseball History Sees Game and Town is Baseball Mad—Game Was Played Under Lowering Skies and Marred by Showers—Play Halted for Half an Hour Because of Heavy Downpour—Wagering Swings Over to the Cardinals to Win the Series.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5—(AP)—Jesse Joseph Haines today celebrated the home coming of the Cardinals with a dramatic victory over the Yankees in the greatest diamond spectacle St. Louis has ever witnessed.

Before the feverish cheers of a record-breaking crowd, Haines not only blanked the American league champions with five scattered hits but hammered out a home run that capped the climax of the Cardinal's decisive batting attack in the fourth inning.

Close to 38,000 spectators, the largest and most enthusiastic crowd that ever jammed Sportsman's park, saw Haines subdue the Yankees with a 4-0 triumph in the third game of the intersectional battle. It was a stirring victory, the climax of a 24-hour outburst of unprecedented home-town spirit, and put the Cardinals in the lead, two games to one, in the struggle for premier baseball honors.

While Haines was turning in a masterpiece, fit companion feat to Alexander's triumph on Sunday over the Yankees. The Cardinals outplayed the Yankees in every way. They had the punch when hits meant runs and they fielded with a sparkling snap that cut off the few threats made by the invaders.

Dutch Ruether, veteran southpaw, tried to check the onward surge of the Cardinals with his cross-fire, but he lasted less than five innings, yielding the mound to Bob Shawkey after being shelled for seven hits and four runs.

It was an occasion built for victory by Rogers Hornsby and his rampant Red Birds.

The big crowd, though dwarfed by the throngs that witnessed the first two games in New York, yielded to no rivals in spirit. It came to cheer a Cardinal triumph after an all night celebration of the home team's return from the east.

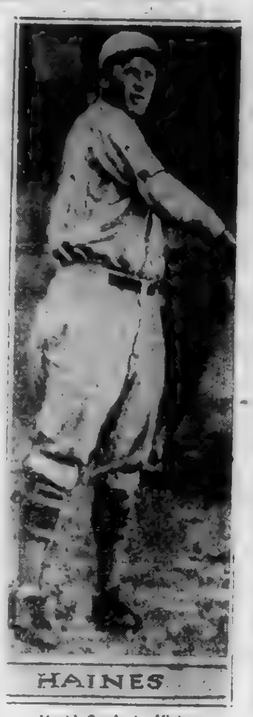
If anything, the National league champions outdid themselves, spurred on as they were by this astonishing demonstration of support. They had every incentive to win and they did it with such decisiveness that there isn't a St. Louis fan tonight who isn't already making preparations for a final flourish that will celebrate the winning of the world's championship.

Two victories more will clinch the title for the Cardinals and the form they have displayed in the last two games, contrasting sharply with the almost listless performance of their opponents, has greatly strengthened their prospects for final triumph. In three games the American league champions supposedly one of the hardest hitting outfits in the game, have produced only seven hits and four runs. Not one of their blows has been of extra base variety while the Cardinals have been walloping the ball to all corners of the lot.

For a time today, the intermittent showers of rain threatened to mar the setting for the triumph of Hornsby's men. The game was delayed for 32 minutes at the start of the fourth inning by a sudden shower but heroic efforts got the field busy into playable condition, mostly through it was. It was a fortunate "break" for the Cardinals came back after the interval to check a budding Yankee rally and then score the runs that clinched the game.

There was another and contributing "break" in the decisive inning for the slippery condition of the ball was at least partly to blame for a wild throw by Mark Koenig, Yankee shortstop, who had a double play in sight that would have closed off the Cardinals without a run.

Lester Bell opened the fourth with a single and went to second on Haines's sacrifice bunt. O'Farrell walked and then Thevenow ripped a hard grounder to Lazzeri who scooped it up and tossed to Koenig in force on O'Farrell. The Yankee shortstop threw widely past Gehrig, however, and Bell raced home with the first run. This set the stage for Haines and the husky pitcher pounded a tumultuous outburst to biting ops of Ruether's curves high into the right field stands.



Hurld Cards to Victory

It was a towering blow, worthy of a Ruth or a Southworth, and Haines trotted around the bases to the accompaniment of a hedlam of cheering, the ringing of bells and the honking of horns.

To all intents and purposes, this settled the game as it turned out, but the Cards added another for good measure in the sixth. Southworth scoring on his smashed another one base blow by Hornsby and an infield out by Mottomley which marked the retirement of Ruether.

With this margin to work on, Haines toiled the rest of the game with invincible skill. In no inning were the Yankees able to get more than one safe hit and in none of them did a base runner get beyond the keystone bag.

Twice, sharpe double plays checked the Yanks, once in the sixth after Combs had led off with a single and again in the ninth as a finishing gesture, when Gehrig smoked with one out.

Joe Dugan started the third with a smash and was sacrificed to second by Severeid but got no farther. In the fourth, just before the downpour came, Ruth was on the middle bag by virtue of his one base hit to center and Meusel's infield out.

Gehrig in the seventh, and Paschal, a pinch hitter who walked in the eighth, also got as far as second base but they were likewise stranded as the Yankee bats were silenced.

The Cardinals concentrated their scattering efforts in the fourth and fifth frames although they had constantly threatened Ruether up to the time he was shelled from the hill. After the fifth, however, Shawkey toiled effectively for two innings while young Miles Thomas, making his season debut, checked the Cardinals in the eighth with the aid of a double play started by Koenig.

CARDS ARE NOW 2 TO 1 FAVORITES TO WIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Following the Cardinals' victory over the Yankees in the third game of the series today, St. Louis was installed as favorite for the world championship by 2 to 1 in odds quoted by Wall street wagering firms. One bet of $10,000 against $5,000 was placed on the Cardinals. The National league club was an 11 to 10 choice to win the fourth contest tomorrow, with many backers of the Yankees holding out for 13 to 10.

A freak wager of 11 to 5 was placed that the St. Louis club does not win the next two consecutive games.

HAGEN SAYS PYLE IS DOING A LOT FOR TENNIS

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 5.—(AP)—"C. C. Pyle is doing a lot to help not only tennis, but sports in general," said Walter Hagen, distinguished for keeping his professional gold title in a year notoriously bad for amateurs, here today.

"A good class of professionals," he continued, "will be of immeasurable benefit to tennis. It is a game that everybody wants to learn, but so far they have had inadequate opportunity to do so because professionals were rare and the cream of the field was in the amateur division.

"Why amateurs, and especially those who are college graduates, should be criticised for turning professional is a thing I don't understand. A college boy works just as hard at his sports as he does at his studies. If a 'Red' Grange, for example, shows that his real talent lies in playing football, why should people find fault with him for making football his career, any more than they should find fault with a boy who becomes a lawyer if he finds that he is especially fitted for the study of law?"

Mr. Hagen expressed his opinion that an open tennis tournament for professionals and amateurs alike would make the game of more interest to a larger class of people than ever before.

"HAIR-GROOM"

Keeps Hair Combed, Glossy

Well-Groomed all Day

"Hair-Groom" is a dainty hair combing cream which costs only a few cents a jar at any drug-store. Millions use it because it gives that natural gloss and well-groomed effect to the hair—that final touch to good dress both in business and on social occasions. Even stubborn, unruly or shampooed hair stays combed all day in any style you like. "Hair-Groom" is greaseless; also helps grow thick, heavy, lustrous hair.

SUZANNE WILL MAKE $250,000 IN AMERICA

NEW YORK, Oct. 5—(AP)—The promised disclosure of another raid upon amateur tennis ranks by Charles C. Pyle, failed to develop today, and the promoter indicated that he might proceed on plans for his opening exhibition at Madison Square Garden Saturday night without new player additions.

Pyle had other triumps to reveal, however, on the basis of contracts he completed today, under which Suzanne Lenglen's name will be commercialized, the French queen of the courts will reap a quarter of a million from her American tour as professional, he forecast.

The Lenglen name will be used, he said, in connection with the sale of articles ranging from tennis balls and racquets to dolls and millinery. Vincent Richards also will share in guarantees and royalties from contracts signed by the promoter.

Oct. 12, Toronto; 14, Baltimore; 16, Boston; 19, Philadelphia; 23, Montreal; 26, Buffalo; 28, Cleveland; 30, Columbus.

Negotiations also are in progress for matches in the far west, with Pyle holding forth hope that he will be able to close the tour in a series of matches between Lenglen and Helen Wills.

NUTMEGS MAY PLAY NEW LONDON TEAM SUNDAY

The Nutmegs held a snappy practice session Tuesday evening at which time signals were rehearsed and the various formations gone through.

A game with a New London team is in the offing for Sunday to be played at New London and final arrangements are expected to be completed by Wednesday evening. The local managements expects to obtain the J. B. Martin field at Taftville later in the season and the pick of grid-iron outfits in this section will be brought here and the Nutmegs expects the support of local fandom.

A few new faces are expected to be seen in the Nutmegs' lineup for the next contest, particularly on the line, which was the weak spot in last Sunday's game which the Jewett City Speedboys won by the score of 13 to 6.

The Nutmegs' new uniforms have arrived and handed out to the squad. The blue and white jerseys with numbers add much to the appearance of the squad.

THREE YALE GUARDS ARE ON INJURED LIST

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Yale's football squad now has three injured guards on its list. Mike Flaherty, substitute, dislocated his elbow today. Sturges clipped his knee in the Boston university game Saturday, and Bill Webster, the injured veteran, has been out for several days.

Bruce Caldwell, of Ashton, R. I., was shifted to fullback on the varsity eleven today. With the return of Larry Noble to his position at left halfback, after a week's absence as the result of injuries, Caldwell's all-around performance behind the line in Saturday's game has warranted the coaches keeping him on the regular team as a possible strengthening factor for the Blue attack.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Blame for the defeat of the Yanks in the third game of the world's series today was hung on the old, old story by Manager Miller Huggins—the fact that the Yanks were not hitting. Huggins believes the tide will turn tomorrow, that the Yanks will come crashing through in a storm of base hits that will even up the series.

The Yanks were an angry, white-lipped group of baseball players when they reached their dressing room. Babe Ruth, mumbled to himself while searching under benches for his shoes. Then the Babe blurted out:

"I can't see the Cardinals as a ball club no matter if they did lick us today. There are at least two better clubs in the National league—Pittsburgh and Cincinnati. The Cardinals have been lucky, that's all, by getting a lot of flukey hits. We are not licked yet. Tomorrow is another day. When we start hitting, it will be a different story."

"It's the old story, but I've got to say it—we're not hitting," Huggins declared. "We've only made 15 hits in three games. Hits make a lot of difference in many ways. They inspire the players and keep us in the fight. We have not been ourselves in hitting for a long time but we are going to get started tomorrow. We have faced three of the best pitchers on the St. Louis staff. We are bound to hit better from now on. The Cardinal staff cannot hold up the standard of pitching set by Alexander, Sherdel and Haines.

Huggins offered no criticism of Koenig's wild throw in the fourth inning that started the scoring. He merely regarded it as one of the breaks in the game, declaring that the ball was slippery and wet and that Koenig apparently got a poor grip on it.

"It was just one of those things—a poor throwin likely to occur in any game," Huggins added.

The diminutive Yankee leader intends to start Waite Hoyt against the Cardinals tomorrow while Flint Rhem probably will be Manager Hornsby's pitching selection.

Hornsby and his players were in high spirits, glowing with smiles as they stripped off their rain-soaked uniforms in their club house. They swarmed around Big Jesse Haines, their victorious pitcher, slapping him on the back in showing their appreciation of his achievement in smacking out the home run in the fourth that scored Thevenow ahead of him.

The 39 year old pilot of the Cardinals praised the fighting spirit of his team. He was highly pleased with the fact that the Cardinals have been connecting with the ball.

"It looks like we'll win the series now for sure," Hornsby said. "If we lose tomorrow, we will fight all the harder but I don't think we will lose. I intend to pitch Rhem. He's ready. But I may switch my pitching and send Sherdel back at them. Or I may decide on Reinhart. The Yanks apparently do not like left hand pitching. If we can keep them from hitting, that's all that will be necessary to make us champions, for I'm confident there is nothing that can stop the batting of the Cardinals."

Fair Weather for Today's Game

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Fair weather is in sight for the fourth game of the world's series between the Yankees and Cardinals tomorrow with clear skies and warmer temperatures by Thursday.

WORLD'S SERIES SIDELIGHTS

Southworth, home run hero of the second game, received a terrific ovation when he stepped to the plate in the first inning. He obliged by rapping Ruether's first offering on a line to center for a single, but was stranded by Hornsby and Bottomley.

When Lazzeri struck out to close the Yankee half of the second inning, he was the 27th New Yorker to go out in order. Alexander had retired 21 in a row in the last seven innings of the second game and Haines added the spell with a single to start off the third inning.

Ruth had a strange experience, even for hostile territority, when he walloped a hit to center in the fourth amid a silence that was dense and thick.

The game was the third in which one team made one error and the other played perfectly. St. Louis was charged with a miscue in each of the games in New York. The Cards shunned the error column today while the Yankees were making their first all day. It will be played tomorrow at White Sox field, with that club having an opportunity to clinch the Chicago title. The count now stands, White Sox 3, Cubs 2.

"BIG THREE" TO MEET TO DISCUSS ATHLETIC RELATIONS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 5—(AP)—Athletic authorities of Harvard, Yale and Princeton will meet in New Haven tomorrow to discuss matters of importance regarding athletic relations among the three colleges, it became known here tonight. No announcement was made concerning the specific questions to be considered at the conference.

William J. Bingham, director of athletics and chairman of the committee on th eregulation of athletic sports at Harvard will represent the Crimson at the New Haven meeting. Professors Nettleton and Kennedy, directors of athletics at Yale and Princeton, respectively, will ispeak for those two colleges.

While the Harvard Athletic association in announcing Mr. Bingham's participation in the conference, declined to give any information on the subject matter of the meeting, it was believed here that the athletic heads would discuss recent reports that Harvard planned next year to substitute Michigan for Princeton on the Crimson football schedule.

These reports, which have been in circulation for several months, never have been denied outright by Harvard athletic authorities. Director Bingham, when they were brought to his attention, said the Harvard 1927 schedule had not yet been completed.

Another matter which may come before the conference is the recently announced agreement between the head coaches of Yale and Princeton to abolish "scouting" before the annual Yale-Princeton football games.

NO SCOUTING WILL BRING FOOTBALL TO HEALTHY BASIS

PRINCTON, N. J., Oct. 5—(AP)—The discontinuance of college football scouting presages a day when the game of football will be returned to its normal and healthy basis, the Daily Princetonian, Princeton's undergraduate newspaper, will say in an editorial tomorrow.

"Such agreements," the editorial will suggest, "should be incorporated in the Princeton contracts of the future and that no team be scheduled that is not willing to forego this relic of the football middle ages."

The editorial was high in its praise of the coaches, pointing out that Roper and Jones, most seriously handicapped by the abolition of scouting, waived their own interests in favor of a principle.

MRS. STETSON AND GLENNA ADVANCE TO 2ND ROUND

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Most of the favorites, including Mrs. G. Henry Stetson, new national champion, and Miss Glenna Collett, former titleholder, today advanced to the second rounds of the golf tournament for the Berthellyn cup at the Huntingdon Valley Country club.

Among the survivors were Miss Virginia Wilson, 19 year old Chicago girl, who dethroned Miss Collett in the quarter-finals of the national event, and Miss Edith Quier, of Reading, Pa., holder of the Berthilyn trophy.

Mrs. Stetson breezed through her match with Mrs. E. H. Varé, of Philadelphia, to win by 4 and 2.

Miss Collett was given a keen tussle by Miss Bernice Wall of Ashkosh, Wis., but took the lead at the long twelfth and was never pushed, winning by 2 and 1.

CURTIS WINS WILLIMANTIC CLUB GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 5—Don H. Curtis copped the Class A championship of the Willimantic Country club in the final play on the local links today by defeating his youthful opponent, Dow Ahern, eight up and six to play. Mr. Curtis had led six up at the conclusion of the first 18 holes played in the morning and clinched the match at the 30th green in the afternoon round.

Ernest Bottomley is the Class B champion having defeated Max Cox and Eugene Curran in his last two matches respectively one up in 20 holes and 3 up and 7 to play.

The Class C champion is Joseph St. Onge. A caddies tournament is to start in the near future and promises to be one of much interest for the ball scouters.

MRS. BAKER LEADS FIELD IN INTERSTATE GOLF

HARTFORD, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Mrs. E. H. Baker, of Boston, turned in the low gross score, an 86, in the first of the two day inter-state golf tournament between the women of the Connecticut Golf association and the Central Massachusetts association at the Hartford Golf club today.

Allen Resigns from Rowing Committee

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 5—(AP)—Frederick W. Allen has resigned as chairman of the graduate rowing committee at Yale and has been succeeded by Frederick Sheffield, '24, son of James R. Sheffield, '87, United States Ambassador to Mexico. This was announced tonight by Professor George H. Nettleton, chairman of the board of control of the Yale Athletic association.

As has been customary for many years the play by play returns of the World's Series games at New York and St. Louis will be announced at the Bulletin office by megaphone. The Associated Press service direct from the Yankee Stadium and the National league park at St. Louis will be more complete this year than ever before.

The games are scheduled to start at 2:30 p. m. daily and the play by play account will cover every ball pitched and every playing incident and will be supplemented by a description of the high spots during the game.

CONN. AGGIES PICKED TO WIN OVER MASSACHUSETTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 4—Massachusetts Aggies cannot expect to defeat Connecticut Aggies in football next Saturday according to press reports released from the camp of the Bay State Agrarians, all of which is regarded by Coach Dole of Connecticut as the usual "hard luck" wail to be expected from Amherst at this time of year. The Connecticut mentor went on to say that practice would be held as usual this week at Storrs, and that work would be directed towards correcting the defects in play that cropped out in the opening game with Wesleyan at Middletown Saturday.

The Aggies showed enough in their initial contest against the Red and Black to indicate that Sumner Dole has a strong team in the making at the State College, one that bids fair to rival the Aggies' famous 1924 eleven. Yet there were certain defects apparent to sideline critics, and these will have to be ironed out before Connecticut meets some of the more powerful elevens on their schedule. Probably the most glaring defect in Connecticut's play was the weakness in covering punts, Wesleyan's safety man getting away for substantial runbacks on several occasions. The Aggie ends were skirted for gains several times also, and it is apparent that Dole will have to bolster his defense at the wings in this week's practice sessions.

The aerial attack display by Coach Dole's charges pleased Connecticut followers though there were three fumbles of what should have been easy catches for substantial gains. Eddy's long heave to Callahan, which led to the first Storrs score was perfectly executed, and the ease with which Callahan took the ball indicates that Dole has found a star receiver in the sophomore who was playing his first varsity contest.

The Aggies running attack was sassily the best seen in the last five seasons for a state college eleven, and it should give Massachusetts no end of trouble next Saturday. In Eddy, Schofield, Noonan and Williams the Aggies have an able quartet of ball carriers.

No practice was held for the Aggies today, Coach Dole giving the team its customary Monday holiday. Tomorrow, however, work will begin again in earnest.

YALE OPENED ITS FALL ROWING SEASON TUESDAY

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 5—(AP)—Yale started its fall rowing today when Coach Ed Leader put four shells into the water at the Bob Cook boat house on the Housatonic at Derby. A big crew rally was held tonight to formally open its season and was addressed by Coach Leader, Mike Murphy, the Freshman coach, and Don Grant, coach of the 150-pound crew.

The nucleus for the Yale eight this year is said by the coaches to be excellent, only two men being lost from last year's championship eight. The men who graduated are Captain H. T. Kingsbury, and A. H. Peterson. Both were members of the Yale Olympic crew in 1924.

The fall training period will continue for three weeks after which the men will be given a short rest and then will begin the long period of winter rowing in the indoor tank.

NORWICH TOWN

The first fall meeting of the Missionary society, of the First Congregational church is to be held Friday afternoon from three to five-thirty, at the home of the president, Mrs. Herbert L. Terrington. This meeting is open to all women of the parish and friends. It is expected at this time to call in the small bags distributed among members of the society and others, the early part of the summer, by the secretary, Mrs. Sarah W. Chapin. These containers were for the express purpose of receiving loose change to be contributed for missionary purposes.

"Crowns" was the theme of the pastor at the Congregational church Sunday morning, when Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey chose for his text Revelations, 3:11. Behold, I come quickly; hold that fast which thou hast, that no man take thy crown.

Ralph H. Marsh was in charge of the Young People's Christian Endeavor service Sunday evening. The topic was: What Is Education? How Get It? How Use It? This was a consecration meeting with Scripture references Romans 12:1-2, 1 Timothy 2:15.

The Y. P. S. C. E. voted to omit its meeting Sunday evening, October 17, to unite in The Girls' Rally at the Central Baptist church, Norwich.

As the Good Citizenship committee of the Norwich Town society, of which George F. Hyde is the chairman, had arranged to have Principal Henry A. Tirrell speak on "The Constitution of the United States," in the evening in question, Mr. Tirrell's appointment was postponed to Sunday evening, October 31st.

Rev. Albert E. Whitten conducted service in commemoration of the Lord's supper, at the Norwich Town Methodist church, Sunday morning. Miss Alice Bishop of Bozrah, was the leader of the Young People's Christian Endeavor service. What Is Education? How Get It? How Use It? was the topic. Because of the session of the New London County Sunday School association Friday evening, at Trinity Methodist church, the meeting scheduled for that evening at the Norwich Town M. E. church has been postponed.

A second anniversary requiem high mass for the repose of the soul of Mrs. Albert L. Reynolds (Alice Kilroy) was celebrated at the Sacred Heart church by the pastor Rev. Charles W. Brennan Monday morning at 7.30 o'clock. The choir sang under direction of the organist, Mrs. William A. Murphy. At the offertory Miss Mary Buckley sang De Profundis, and at the conclusion of the mass she sang, Abide With Me. The attendance included relatives and family friends, many being present from Norwich as well as Norwich Town.

Hiding purchased the former Gallup home, No. 5 Town street, Norwich Town, Miss Charlotte Frink has moved from Freeman avenue to her new home. Mr. and Mrs. John Booth Leonard (Hilder May Estes), who were married Saturday last, are to occupy the upper apartment in the Frink home, with Mrs. Leonard's mother, Mrs. Bertha R. Greenhalgh, formerly of Cliff street.

Miss Jessie E. Hyde of Washington street, was in Hartford Monday evening to attend the State Union Executive meeting of Christian Endeavor. She was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Muttart, of Preston City. Mr. Muttart is chairman of the finance committee of Norwich Christian Endeavor Union, and Mrs. Muttart is its secretary.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Donald Brigham, (Marion Latham Bailey) returned Sunday evening from a wedding trip of two weeks, spent in Paris, Me., and at Swampscott, Mass.

Miss Louise Hoping returned Monday to her home in Madison, N. J., following a visit of two weeks at the home of the Misses Hyde of Washington street.

While visiting her aunt Miss M. Jennie Case, of Washington street, for the past two weeks, Miss Bessie Fuller of Wichita, Kansas, was the guest for a day of her cousins, the Misses Hyde and their brother, George F. Hyde, of Washington street. Miss Fuller is a former Norwich Town young woman, is to leave for her home in the west Thursday, stopping en route to attend a convention at Asbtantic City. While here she also visited among other relatives.

National politics was thrust into the American Federation of Labor convention in Detroit by the introduction of a resolution by representatives of the New York State Federation of Labor, proposing the endorsement of Governor Alfred E. Smith for the democratic presidential nomination in 192[illegible].

MYSTIC WOMAN'S LEG BROKEN IN AUTO COLLISION

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 5—As a result of a collision, this morning, about 8 o'clock at Cord Wood corners, on the Noose Neck Hill road, Miss Annie Wilcox of Mystic, sustained a broken leg. At the Westerly hospital she was attended by Dr. J. Gordon Anderson. The accident was thought, according to Hopkinton Deputy Chief of Police William L. Kay of Hope Valley, to have occurred when smoke made by a repair crew on the state board of public roads obscured the vision of the automobile drivers. The machines in the collision were those of Harry O. Williams of Westerly, of which Miss Wilcox was an occupant, on the back seat, and the automobile of Elisha R. Bigood of Hope Valley, secretary of the Kingston Fair association. Mr. Bigood, who was the only occupant of his automobile, escaped with a severe jolting.

At the last meeting of Narragansett lodge No. 7, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, the officers were installed by the district officers, including Deputy Grand Master Benjamin A. Kinnecome; Grand Marshal Sumner Myers; Grand Warder William J. Kane; Recording Secretary Arthur Congdon; Financial Secretary William Rogers; Grand Treasurer Earl Tefft; Grand Chaplain James E. Gurdie and Grand Guardian A. Kinnecome.

Following the installation refreshments were served.

Mary E. Scott of Providence, grand chief, and board of ten grand officers paid a visit Monday evening to Wilcox temple, No. 11, Pythian Sisters, of Westerly. More than a hundred members and guests were present in the lodge rooms in Mechanics hall, on Bond street. Mary Thorp, excellent chief of Wilcox temple, welcomed the grand officers and the visitors present from New London Mystic, representatives from practically every temple in Rhode Island, from Fall River, Mass., and from the state of Maine. Mrs. Charles F. Berry, of Wilcox temple, presented two large bouquets to visiting grand officers. Refreshments and a social time rounded out the evening.

The death of Mrs. Hannah Doty Burdick, widow of Solomon C. Burdick, occurred at 10:15 o'clock Monday night at her home, 9 Dixon street, following an illness since the preceding Tuesday evening, when she suffered a shock.

Mrs. Burdick was born in Stonington borough Feb. 6, 1851, the daughter of Orrin and Hannah Hancox Doty. Feb. 6, 1951, she was united in marriage with Solomon C. Burdick, they having three children, Mary L. Carl E., and Ruth C. Burdick, who reside at 9 Dixon street. She is also survived by a sister, Agnes, Mrs. H. J. Kelsey, of Amherst, Mass., and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Sarah J. Doty, of Westerly. The death of her older sister, Miss Charlotte A. Doty, who made her home with her, occurred July 17th last.

The funeral service for Mrs. George U. Blake, was held Tuesday afternoon at her home, 17 Tower street, at 2 o'clock. The officiating clergyman was Rev. Charles G. Johnson, of South Coventry, Conn. Burial was in River Bend cemetery, the bearers being C. Raymond Blake, Alexander M. Blake, Albert Smith, Francis Kenyon, Llewelyn Storrs and Joseph Fraser.

The bowling league season at the Lorraine Mills Community house, Pawcatuck, was begun October 4th by the men's bowling league and October 5th by the women's bowling league. The bowling commission of the Westerly branch of the Lofraine Manufacturing company consists of Harry C. Crandall, W. Harry Anderson, William J. Brennan, S. D. Fisher and Alexander M. Blake. The officers of the men's league are: League president, Alphonse Debuc; secretary and collector John Jones and treasurer, Alexander M. Blake. The men's teams with captains are No. 1, main office, Alexander Greig; No. 2 machine shop, Joseph Jones; No. 3 quilling room, Howard Buckley; No. 4 spinning room, Thomas Clements; No. 5, slasher room, John Kenyon; No. 6 card room, R. Brennan; No. 7, loom fixers, John Jones and No. 8, weave room, John Stefanski. The women's teams with captains are No. 1, Fire flies, Alice Reynolds; No. 2, Good sports, Grace P. Smith; No. 3 Sunbeams, Helen Walsh; No. 4 Jolly Six, Rita Schackner; No. 5 Bowwee Gees, Annie Jones; No. 6 Blue Birds, Levina Fortin; No. 7 Regulars, Martha Johnson; No. 8 Everreadies, Katharine L. Smith; No. 9 Invincibles, Edith Jones. The officers are league president Alphonse Debuc, secretary and collector, Mary H. Damarel and treasurer, Alexander M. Blake.

October 2, Richard J. Butler to Natale Manfredi and wife, two parcels of land on the south side of the Westerly-Branford road.

Allen A. Bill and husband to Stuart Cruickshank, Jr., land near Weekapaug, between a proposed street, running westerly to Shore road, on the south side thereof, and extending to a cove of Weekapaug pond.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Danny Hears a Familiar Voice

The sound of a familiar voice .... Will often make the heart rejoice.

—Danny Meadow Mouse.

Danny Meadow Mouse had stopped at a safe distance from the boat in which he had just had a great adventure. He needed to stop. He needed to dry off. Fortunately the sun was shining and Danny was getting pretty well dried out. He was making a very careful toilet when he heard a sound that made him prick up his little ears as much as little round ears could prick up. Then Danny grinned. "Blacky the Crow," said he to himself. "By the missing hair on my little short tail that is Blacky the Crow. My, my, my, I must be getting home. After hearing nothing but the screaming of gulls and the squawking of herons, the whistling of yellowlegs and plover, and the peeping of sandpipers, it certainly does seem good to hear a familiar voice. My, my, my, I never heard a sweeter sound in all my life!"

Wouldn't Blacky the Crow have felt flattered if he could have heard that? The cawing was coming nearer. Danny was becoming quite excited. He felt that if he could just see Blacky flying over, that would help some. He hadn't known how homesick he was until he heard that harsh crow voice. But harsh as it was, it really had sounded sweet to Danny. Nearer he came, and nearer, and Danny began to get quite excited. Presently above the tops of the grass he saw a black form coming. There was an old stake which had been driven in the mud of the marsh a short distance from where Danny was sitting. Straight to this that black form flew and alighted on it.

Danny forgot all about his toilet. He had just one thought in his mind, and that was to get over there reasonably near that stake. He wouldn't take a chance of getting too near, because he had heard a dreadful rumor that Blacky the Crow was like some other people—rather fond of Meadow Mice sometimes. But he just had to get the news from the Green Meadows.

When Danny thought the was near enough to make his squeaky voice heard, he called his loudest, "Hello, Blacky!" he cried.

The crow on the stake turned his head in Danny's direction. "Who's calling me Blacky?" he demanded in a harsh voice.

"It's me, Danny Meadow Mouse," cried Danny. "I just want to know how things are up on the Green Meadows."

"Meadow Mouse," said the big black bird, and snapped his bill twice. "Meadow Mouse. Are you sweet and fat?"

A terrible suspicion took possession of Danny. There was something about this big black bird that wasn't quite familiar. "Aren't you Blacky the Crow who lives up in the Green Forest on the edge of the Green Meadows?" he asked in a voice that trembled in spite of himself.

"No, I'm not Blacky the Crow, and I don't want to be called Blacky," was the prompt response. "I don't know anything about your Green Meadow or your Green Forest, and I don't want to. I'm Jim Crow the Fish Crow, if you want to know; and I had just as soon eat a fat Meadow Mouse as a fish."

He suddenly spread his black wings and flew toward Danny. With a squeak of fright Danny darted into the tall grass which happened to be growing near. And there for half an hour he played hide and seek with that Fish Crow. So it was that Danny learned that Blacky the Crow, whom you all know, has a cousin called the Fish Crow.

PROPOSES INCREAE IN CHILDREN'S SCHOOL AGE

An increase in the age at which children should be allowed to leave school, improvements in working conditions for women and a declaration for the open shop were the outstanding features of the Consumers' League of Connecticut, announced last week.

Charging that women are treated unfairly by the average employer in the question of wages, the committee contends that men and women should be paid by the same wage scale for the same work. In many cases women employes are not paid a living wage, the committee declares, because they do not insist on higher wages.

In its investigation the committee finds that working women give more of their earnings to the upkeep of the home than do men. The men reserve a certain amount of their wages for pleasure while the unmarried men living at home in most cases keep practically all of their earnings, it is said.

The committee recommends that the age at which a child may leave school to go to work be increased to 16 years. Stating that the heritage of every child is a certain amount of education the committee claims that with the increase in age, practically every child would have a grammar school education and in many cases a year or two of high school or vocational school work. The period from 12 to 16 is the most critical one in the life of a child, excepting the period of early infancy, according to the report, and the recommended change would strike a severe blow at vice by keeping girls in school until they are 16.

The report advocates the open shop, charging that the closed shop is undemocratic and un-American. "The open shop is democratic and American if employment is free to both organizer and unorganized labor," the report declares. "If the open shop refuses to employ members of labor unions solely because they belong to such organizations it is acting on the same principle as the closed shop. It becomes itself a closed shop. Every employer should be accorded the right to discharge any employe who is unsatisfactory to him."

REGISTRATIONS FOR 1927 BEGIN ON AUTOMOBILES

The business of registering motor vehicles for the year 1927 was started Friday at the state motor vehicle department. Application blanks were mailed by the department to 270,000 persons registrants, and the department is prepared to send out the new marker plates at once as of January 1st. They have a maroon background with white figures for pleasures and a white background with maroon figures for commercial cars.

The experience of the department has been that 62 per cent of all registrations are applied for and issued by mail and that 20 per cent of these mail applications are defective and must be returned to the applicant at least once, and frequently oftener for corrections. Thirty-eight per cent of the registrations are issued to persons who go to the capitol at Hartford or any of the various branch offices in person to get the numbers.

Of the 270,000 application blanks sent out Friday 144,000 went from the office at the capitol, 20,000 from the Bridgeport branch, 35,000 from the New Haven branch, 15,000 from the New London branch, 17,000 from the Waterbury branch and 10,000 from the Stamford branch. However, no mail orders, except for reservations of particular numbers, will be filled at the branch offices.

The new application blanks have been simplified. Three of the questions previously required to be answered have been withdrawn and two others have been combined into a single question. The applicant is no longer required to indicate by what kind of motive power his car is propelled nor to give the bore and stroke. In the place of the two questions formerly asked, as to the color of the car body and the color of its running gear, single question asking the color of the car appears.

"The department will endeavor to reserve for any applicant the number assigned to him in 1926, either for January 1, 1927 or April 1, 1927, provided a complete 1927 application, accompanied by the necessary fee and a written request for that particular number is received at the Hartford office or any of the branch offices on or before November 15, 1926," says a notice enclosed with each of the application blanks.

Those who receive their new plates in advance are cautioned, by the notice, not to display them on their cars until the last week day of December, 1926. Remittances are required to be made by check, money order or express order. There is no charge for postage on number plates.

Home From Vacation

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Carney and son Goodwin have returned to their home on Church street, having spent Mr. Carney's vacation of two weeks in a motor trip to Philadelphia and Atlantic City. After attending the Sesqui-centennial they visited Mr. Carney's relatives in western Pennsylvania.

TUNNEY WAS GRATEFUL FOR LEGION'S GREETING

Fletcher Post, No. 4, American legion, has recived from Gene Tunney, world's heavyweight champion, an acknowledgment of the post's greetings and best wishes, with beer or ale, sent to Tunney just previous to his fight with Dempsey last month. It is possible that Tunney may visit Norwich November 11th, in connection with the Armistice day celebration. At least he is to be extended an invitation to do so.

MRS. LUCY B. MOORE DIES AT WILLIMANTIC

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 6—Lucy Barrett Moore, 55, died about 8 o'clock Monday night at her home on High street following a long illness. She was the widow of Frank H. Moore. She was born in Lisbon Jan. 5, 1871, the daughter of Smith and Lucy Hills Barrett. Surviving are two sons, Mrs. Mary Lucy of Putnam, and her step-mother-in-law, Mrs. Arthur Barrett of Providence.

What They Get

You may wonder why Lucky Strike smokers are so completely satisfied.

You may think it's just a matter of habit.

Far from it!

Lucky Strike smokers are getting an extra enjoyment which they have never found before. They are getting the world's choicest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, properly aged and perfectly blended—and something more.

They get extra goodness because of an added process—toasting—an added expense in manufacture.

Lucky Strikes offer you:

1. Finer Flavor. Toasting for 45 minutes develops the hidden flavors of the world's finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos.
2. Smoothness. Toasting for 45 minutes removes all "bite" and harshness, hence never any throat irritation.
3. Freshness. Then the tobacco is suddenly chilled. This seals the flavor in and insures constant freshness.

Thus the toasting process is an addition. It adds a unique and distinct improvement to a cigarette that has already been made from the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos. It is the reason millions prefer Lucky Strikes.

MISS BETSY WIGHTMAN, NEW LONDON, BECOMES BRIDE OF ALFRED A. YOUNG

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 5—This afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Second Congregational church Miss Betsy Wightman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Reynolds Wightman of 373 Williams street, was united in marriage with Alfred Avery Young, Jr., son of Mrs. Alfred A. Young of Jewett City. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends. The church was decorated with autumn leaves and smilax, the choir and pulpit being banked with palms and gladioli.

The bride, whose father gave her in marriage, wore a gown of white satin embroidered with pearls lengthened with flounces of silk tulle caught with duchess lace. Her French veil of lace-bordered tulle orange blossoms, extended to the end of a court train of satin embroidered with pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses with lace streamers entwining lily-of-the-valleys.

Miss Hesper Wightman, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore an attractive gown of moire silver metal cloth blouse over a skirt of brilliant green velvet. She wore a picture hat of green velvet and carried purple gladioli. The bridesmaids were Miss Frances Tuller of New York and Miss Elizabeth Marshall daughter of President and Mrs. Benjamin T. Marshall of Connecticut college, who wore afternoon gowns of deep coral georgette with blouses of silver metal cloth embroidered with coral sequins. Their picture hats were of coral velvet with lace streamers and chin strap of silver cloth and their bouquets were of gladioli to match the gowns. The other attendants were Miss Jean Geddes of Kingston, R. I., classmate of the bride at the Scudder school in New York, and Miss Virginia Wemple of this city. Their costumes were of the same model carried out in tones of yellow and deep amber. Their bouquets were also gladioli. Each of the attendants wore a necklace of pearls and brilliants gifts from the bride.

The best man was Charles Acors Boss, brother-in-law of the bridegroom. The ushers were Edward A. Faust, Jr., of Jewett City; Arthur F. Ward of Hackensack, N. J.; Fred C. Rice of White Plains, N. Y., and Maj. Clarence B. Mercer, cousin of the bride, of Woodstock, N. B.

The ceremony was followed by a reception and supper at Lighthouse Inn, which was beautifully decorated with flowers and autumn leaves. The bride's table was in green and white. The bridal party and guests remained for dancing this evening.

Miss Wightman is a graduate of Williams Memorial institute, class of 1924, and of the Scudder school in New York city last June. Mr. Young was graduated from the New York Military Academy at Cromwell-on-the-Hudson. He is the treasurer of the Jewett City water works. Upon their return from a two weeks' motor trip Mr. and Mrs. Young will reside in Jewett City.

Last night members of the bridal party were entertained at a dinner at the Mohican hotel given by Mrs. Alfred A. Young mother of the bridegroom, and today Mrs. Benjamin T. Marshall gave a breakfast for them at her home in Mohegan avenue.

Drunks and brawlers furnished most of the business for the police court today, but that is an oft-told tale. Some half dozen fellows who had a session with John Barleycorn repented today when they were in court. One of the accused was a man well along in years who told the same story he related months ago when arrested for intoxication and which was to the effect that his mother, was 90 years of age and that she resided in Niantic, to which point he was bound to assist her. He was released today, but he was informed with a good deal of emphasis by Judge Prince that if he appeared in court again he would not see his aged mother for a considerable period.

Two women and a man, all colored, were charged with a breach of peace, the women starting the trouble and the man butting in when the Amazonians were arrested. The man David Goodman representing himself to be an employe of the Hartford club and a golf club in that city, sought to gain the freedom of the women after they had been taken to the police station after a quarrel about the possession of a dollar at a dance. He expressed repentance, but that was not sufficient reason for allowing him to go unpunished when he became abusive to officers engaged in the performance of their duties. He was fined $5 and the women were fined $5 each.

Andrew Jacobs, who said he was employed in the Pequot mills, Montville, was the stupidest fellow in the more than half a score arraigned this morning. He admitted that he was drunk, but did not do that with good grace. He was told to get to Montville as soon as he could, if he desired to escape a term in jail.

A couple of men who sought to ride on freight trains of the New Haven railroad were prosecuted. They are of the class that assumes that if they can secrete themselves they can get through from one town to another. One of the accused today represented that he was formerly a railroad employe, while the other admitted that he was just an ordinary beat, on his way from Saybrook. Judge Prince did not want to interfere with their good luck in escaping from their perilous position on the trains, so he allowed them to get out of town over the highway.

Harold Staplins, when presented in court, admitted that he stole a flashlight that was valued at $1.25 from a hardware store. There seemed to be no reason why he should steal what he did, for he had no use for it other than to possess it. Staplins has a record as a criminal so he was turned over to the probation officer with the understanding that he would return the flashlight and get upon the straight pathway that leads away from thieving.

Three young women, frequented of public dances, were charged with leading improper lives and they were arrested after they had had a fight with words, in a public dance hall. They admitted that they had been the consorts of sailors, but there the end of their folly came. The three were turned over to the custody of the policewoman and will be assisted to get away from this city. One of the trio resides here and she will be watched by the police department as to her future conduct.

Antonio Basci, operator of a little grocery store on Ocean avenue, was charged by his wife and daughter with a breach of the peace, in having struck them. The daughter assists her father in the store, but he is unappreciative of the service rendered. This morning when the daughter did not appear at the store at 7:30 after she had worked until 11 last night Tony struck her and when the mother sought to prevent that sort of treatment, Tony struck her, too. She carried the evidence of his abuse on her face. Tony's idea that he was not doing much business and was not financially fixed that he could hire a clerk, was regarded as evidence that he deserved punishment for his acts. "Remember that you are not now in the old country," said the judge in handing out a penalty to the accused man. "You cannot expect a girl who works in a store till 11 o'clock at night to be at her employment at 7:30 in the morning. This is especially true of a girl who does not appear to be very rugged. You change your course in dealing with your family." was the advice. Then Tony was sentenced to jail, but the execution of the judgment was suspended.

Leon Chapman, of Poquonoc, who reported to the New London police Sunday night that an automobile owned by John Ackley, also of Poquonoc and which Chapman was using, had been stolen from its parking place on Bank street, today notified the police that the automobile had not been stolen, but was driven away by Ackley.

The Italian Ladies' Aid society recently held a meeting at Temperance hall with a nearly 100 per cent attendance. Plans were completed for the fourth annual banquet, Tuesday, Oct. 19, in the Mohican hall room. The members have been asked to invite guests. Dancing, for which the Benvenuti orchestra will play, will follow the banquet. Rev. Alexander C. Wollschlager, formerly of St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, now at the Sacred Heart church in East Potchester, N. Y., and Mr. and Mrs. S. Z. Poli of New Haven are to be guests of honor. An interesting program has been arranged by the committee in charge. A degree team composed of the following is being drilled: Captain, Mrs. J. Tudesco; Adeline Zucardy, Rose Caruso, Emilio Zucardy, Mary Buonano, Grace Farina, Virginia Yaulia, Mrs. Lawrence Sachetello, Mary Pirovano, Annarella Pirovano, Rose Zucardy, Rose Frank, Mary Barca and Eleanor Zulliana, who is pianist. The committee in charge of the regular meeting for next month is Mrs. Mae Sanders, chairman; Mrs. Louise Penella, Rose De Biase, Adeline Zuccardy, Emilia Zuccardy, Mrs. Louis Zuliani, Mrs. Carolina Mariano, Miss Rose Frank, Mrs. Theresa Sachetello. After the last meeting a social hour was enjoyed. Miss Gertrude Gly gave several pleasing vocal solos and a chorus of girls sang. In the chorus were Mary Barca, Virginia Yadila, Helen Zulliana, Adeline Zuliani, Adeline Zuccardy, Marietta Almetti and Ella Buonano.

Two boys gave the police a chase this evening and managed to make their escape. Had they been arrested they undoubtedly would have been dealt with severely in the police court. The boys are old enough to know better. They had a shot gun and going to Broad street amused themselves by using electric illuminating bulbs as targets. The boys were good shots for they peppered all of the lights on Broad street near Raymond street, smashing them, and then went to Raymond street where they continued their pastime. William Hill, 18 Raymond street, saw the boys and communicated with police headquarters. Patrolman Edward to round up the boys, but as the auto to roun dup the boys, but as the auto approached the boys spotted it and started on a run, with Patrolman Riordan hot after them. The boys knew the back yards and country in that location better than did the officer and managed to escape.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the right to drive of Hyman Pine, 28 Ocean avenue, returned to Pine.

Joseph Resupero and Salvatore Rotondo were arrested at the Union station this afternoon by Captain Edward Kelley, New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad police, and Sergeant Martin Kane. The men were detected stealing a ride on a freight.

Vincent Struzynsky, 13, of 192 North Bank street, went to the police station at 5 o'clock this afternoon and requested assistance of the police in locating Struzynsky's sister, Frances, 3, who is missing from home. The boy stated that his sister's whereabouts had not been known to members of the family since 1 o'clock. When the child disappeared she wore an orange colored hat and white dress. Although a search was made for the girl she was not located.

Alexander C. Roath, ticket agent in the employ of the New York, New & Hartford railroad, this city, has started for San Diego, Cal., to attend the national convention of ticket agents next week.

Chester Jackson, colored, of 129 Main street formerly of New Haven, was arrested this afternoon by Patrolmen George McCaskey, Braxton Hill and Edward Riordan charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. He participated in a fight with his employer, Nicholas Haddad, also of 129 Main street, and the latter, also, was arrested on a charge of breach of the peace. Jackson went to his place of employment shortly after 5 o'clock and was ugly from imbibing too freely of liquor. He soon became involved in a quarel with Haddad. In a few seconds they came to blows, Jackson saying he was going "to eat" Haddad alive, and he partly carried out his threat. While the battle was raging Haddad, who was not faring well, seized an implement from a table and wielded it upon Jackson's head, opening the scalp several inches. Jackson then started to do his eating stunt, for he fastened his teeth in Haddad's side and opened the flesh. The fight caused a crowd to collect and some one informed the police. Officers were rushed to the store and found Jackson and Haddad much the worse for the encounter. At the police station Jackson's head was in such a condition that City Physician George P. Cheney was summoned and after observing the nature of the wounds, ordered Jackson transferred to Lawrence hospital where several stitches were required to close the wound.

Charles A. Chester, 75, died this morning at his home, 40 Bilnman street, after a lingering illness. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Chester is the last of a family of six brothers and sisters. He was a toolmaker, for many years employed by the Babcock Printing Press Manufacturing company. Several years ago his health started to decline and he abandoned active work. Several months ago Mr. Chester's condition became critical as the result of a general breaking down. He was born in Stonington, moved to New London when a young man and was employed for many years by the former Brown Cotton Gin company.

The condition of Edgar T. Thomas, head of the Thomas Transfer company, who has been ill a fortnight at his apartment, Hotel Mohican, continues serious.

Mrs. E. Roland Hill, Montauk avenue, is a patient at Home Memorial hospital where she underwent an operation for appendicitis a few days ago.

Monthly Health Examinations.

Once a month is not too often for every pre-school child to be thoroughly looked over by a physician. Children of this age growing so rapidly that they need special care. They should be weighed regularly, and this monthly examination includes weighing and measuring. People all over the state are now beginning to realize the value of such monthly examinations, and health centers are springing up not only in the cities but in the small rural towns.

Moosup is fortunate in having one of these well child conferences. The next conference will be held on Thursday afternoon, October 14th in Franco-American hall, from 2 to 4 o'clock.

BAER DISCOVERS MALARIA SPECIFIC

Cable dispatches from the Bayer company of Leverkusen, Germany, famous discoverers of Aspirin, announces that a new synthetic remedy for malaria has been discovered by their scientific research workers at Leverkusen, Germany. The discovery was made public at a convention of natural scientists held at Dusseldorf last week. This follows the epoch-making discovery of "Bayer 205" or "Germanin" for sleeping sickness, announced a few years ago.

This newest discovery has been named Plasmochin; is ten times stronger than quinine; is tasteless and quickly destroys the micro-organisms that cause malarial infection.

Professor Dr. Nocht, director of the Hamburg Institute for Ship and Tropical Diseases, and a member of the Malaria commission of the League of Nations, has participated in the extensive research work on Plasmochin, as has also Professor Dr. Muehlens, the well-known tropical hygienist, of Hamburg.

Thus a century-old search is at an end. Extensive experiments in the Balkans, Italy, Spain, Macedonia, Serbia, Greece and other malaria areas preceded the announcement.

Complete data covering these experiments is now being prepared for distribution to the medical societies of the world.

Enthusiastic felicitations were bestowed on the Bayer company for the tremendous results of this discovery, the full significance of which cannot be estimated in its effects on the field of tropical medicine throughout the world.

Broadway Theatre

The World war glorified the prune. Georgia feminine pulchritude glorified the peach. Ireland glorified the cabbage, and a famous song glorified the banana. And now Charles, Roy, beloved delineator of the American country boy, has glorified the pumpkin in his latest screen offering "Some Punkins," which is being released by Chadwick Pictures Corporation and will be presented at the Broadway theatre Thursday, Friday, Saturday. "Some Pun'kins," is the first of a series of Charles Ray productions for Chadwick release which will mark the return of this popular star to the type of characterization that first won for him the great following that is his. The locale of the story is laid in the sleepy village of Mosville, where Lem Blossom, Ray as chief of the fire department and saves his city from financial embarrassment due to a corner in pumpkins.

A splendid cast supports the star, including Duane Thompson as the girl; George Fawcett, as Pa Blossom; Fanny Midgley, as Ma Blossom; Bert Woodruff, as Josh Griggs, the girl's father; Haslam Cooley as the heavy; William Courtright, Ida Lewis and others. It was directed by Jerome Storm, under the supervision of Joseph de Grasse.

There will be five new Keith-Albee acts on the same program which should make this program very attractive to all.

Motor Coach Service to Hartford

Through the acquisition of the Hartford-Willimantic Jitney line the New England Transportation company, motor coach subsidiary of the New Haven railroad acquires a through route between New London and Hartford via Norwich and Willimantic and to serve the public interest direct motor coach service will be operated commencing September 21th.

In the operation of this route the latest type Deluxe parlor car coaches will be used, manned by carefully trained and competent operators.

The coaches will leave New London railroad station at 7:00 a. m., 1:00 p. m. and 4:05 p. m., leaving the Norwich station northbound 40 minutes later. In the opposite direction coaches will leave the Hotel Bondmore coach terminal at 8:30 a. m., 1:00 p. m. and 4:00 p. m.

The through fare from New London to Hartford will be $2.10 and from Norwich to Hartford $1.75. One way railroad tickets will be honored on the motor coaches thus affording passengers privilege of checking baggage to Hartford or to points north and west thereof.

Perrine Radio Batteries

In order to meet the increasing demand for a more positive and reliable source of "A" power, the Perrine Quality Products corporation of Boston has developed a most interesting line of power "A" units.

The complete line consists of a combination charger and battery, a large capacity 6-volt storage battery, and a smaller 6-volt battery known as the "trickletat."

The combination charger and battery is termed the power "A" unit and is a fine adjunct to any broadcast receiver. The 6-volt battery and trickle charger comprising this unit are constructed to form one unit and to be particularly adapted to the conditions encountered in broadcast work. In order to allow the operator to see the level of the electrolyte at a glance a small window is provided in the end wall through which the surface of the electrolyte may be observed. In addition to this useful feature a switch is provided on the battery for pleasing the trickle charged in and out of the circuit. A cord is also provided for connection to the light circuit. Adding to the external appearance of the unit is the fact that it is enclosed in a mahogany finished hard rubber container. There are no moving parts to wear out on this outfit and it is quiet in operation.

Palace Theater

For the last times this afternoon and evening the big midweek double feature bill will be shown including Monte Blue in Across the Pacific an outstanding drama filled with action, love and romance and providing this popular star with one of the best roles he has had in a long time and Dorothy Devore in The Gilded Highway, a drama of a middle class family who inherit millions and are plunged into the glitter and sparkle of wealth but who somehow fail to "fit" in the golden circle, a deeply human story of hearts and dollars. A new comedy will provide plenty of fun in contrast to the serious dramatic offerings and Walter Lang and his Palace concert orchestra will be heard in tuneful melodies in all an exceptionally fine entertainment. Thursday comes Milton Sills in the long awaited sensational screen success Men of Steel a tremendous photoplay in which the star is supported by Doris Kenyon, George Fawcett, Mae Allison, Frank Currier and a large cast of popular favorites, not just because it took a whole year to make, not because the entire company went into one of the nations greatest mills and suffered hardships and privation to get this great story to you, not because it stands out as the most daring undertaking in cinema achievement but because beneath the heat and turmoil of its tremendous story you realize the most touching drama of love and courage ever written. Men of steel is too big for words to describe you must see it to appreciate it. Friday night will be semi-professional night with an all new program of acts by future stars of the stage as added attractions to an already overflowing program of fine entertainment.

How To Care For Varicose or Swollen Veins

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way.

If you or any relative or friend is worried because of varicose veins, or bunches, the best advice that anyone in this world can give you is to ask your druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. So penetrating and powerful is Emerald Oil that even Piles are quickly absorbed. Lee & Osgood sells lots of it.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Family Welfare Department Work

As the time draws near for the usual house to house solicitation for subscriptions for the United Workers, the family welfare department desires briefly to set forth an outline of its work and its urgent need of funds with which to carry on its activities. Our department has charge of all out door relief, assisting those in temporary distress arising from unemployment, sickness and the infirmities of old age. When misfortune comes to our people we try to help them in their difficulties and assist and encourage them to make a fresh start. We have many problems with which to deal. These include cases of desertion, the care of children whose parents are ill or otherwise unable for the time being to care for them, and also the unmarried mothers.

Although certain worthy cases we retain as a permanent charge, we wish to emphasize that for the most part, we give only temporary help. If after patient effort our clients fail to respond to our endeavors to help them to regain self support, we turn such cases over to the town. It is our constant aim, to spend the money at our disposal judiciously and in way to do the greatest possible good. The district visitor will call on you soon and we hope you will remember our work generously, for our department has had few bequests and we, therefore, have almost no funds of our own.

Russian Choir Members Sole Singers

The Russian Symphonic choir, which will make its local appearance at Slater Memorial hall on Wednesday, October 20th, is a unique organization in the high quality of the voices which compose its membership. In the usual sort of choirs which are built along traditional lines, attention is given to the quality of entire sections. Thus, we discuss the soprano section and the tenor section of a choir. But the Russian choir is a compact body of no more than 25 members and each voice has an important part to play in the interpretation of each number. Therefore, Mr. Kibalchich selects his individual members with as much care as a conductor of a symphony orchestra selects each member of his orchestra. Particular care is given by Mr. Kibalchich to the timber of each voice, to the range, to the quality of the voice and finally to the solo abilities of each singer. As a result, the Russian choir is really a body of solo singers joined together under the able leadership of a master musician in order to produce an organization which has been called by many cities a "human orchestra."

Local music lovers are assured a real treat in the appearance of this newest of Russian companies to appear here.

Mail notice of number of tickets resired to Mr. H. A. Tirrell, principal, or, enter your subscription upon list now at Cranston's store. Advance subscribers will have prior choice in selection of seats.

Tickets, including reserved seats, will be $2.00 each.

Broadway Theater

Good news! Douglas Fairbanks opens at the Broadway theater on Sunday in The Black Pirate at popular prices.

This picture, a new Fairbanks superproduction, is said in that part of the southern seas known in the 17th century as the Pirate's Main, where Morgan and his blood-thirsty rovers had their secret island on which they hid the tribute exacted at guns' points from traders and travelers.

It is said that Fairbanks has never before had such a fitting vehicle for his blithe sort of adventuring.

The star's leading lady is the beautiful Billie Dove, she and Tempt Pigott as a duenna make up the entire feminine contingent. Donald Crisp, famous as an actor and director, has an interesting Scottish character part. Sab de Grasse, Anders Randolf, Charles Belcher, Roy Stevens complete a cast that in type and ability are well fitted for their picturesque roles. The film was directed by Albert Parker, to whom much credit is given for the handling of the many gripping situations of Fairbanks' most pretentious picture, which has been hailed by tremendous patronage during its New York and London premier engagements where the prices ranged as high as two dollars a seat.

Breed Theatre.

Mare Nostrum which has been drawing capacity houses since it began its local engagement at the Breed theatre last Sunday night will be held over until Thursday night, showing twice daily at 2.15 and 8.

Rex Ingram is the producer and director of "Mare Nostrum." The young genius who already has to his credit such successes as "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," "The Prisoner of Zenda," and other pictures which have marked advancing strides in the progres of the industry, filmed "Mare Nostrum" on the original locations in Europe described by Blasco Ibanes in his famous story.

"Mare Nostrum" is one of Blasco Ibanes's most widely read stories. In transferring it to the film Ingram has lost none of the powerful drama. It is a production which reflects great credit to Ingram and to all those associated with it.

The role of the spy in "Mare Nostrum" is the greatest part Miss Terry has had to date. Antonio Moreno enacts the leading male role in the famous Blasco Ibanes story which Willie Goldbeck adapted for the screen.

Try Magnesia for Stomach Trouble

To Neutralize Acidity and Fermentation. Prevents Indigestion, Sour Gassy Stomach.

People who suffer from indigestion usually have tried pepsin, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and know these things will not cure their trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up to chronic dyspepsia, just try the effect of a little Bisurated Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate or milk, but pure Bisurated Magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powder or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or four compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat. You can eat your meals without a fear of indigestion.

REPUBLICAN CAUCUS

The Republican Electors of the Town of Montville are requested to meet in caucus at the Town Hall in said town on Monday, October 11th, 1926, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, for the purpose of nominating a Representative to represent the Town of Montville at the next session of the General Assembly of the State of Connecticut, a candidate for Judge of Probate for the District of Montville, and candidates for the office of Justices of the Peace.

By order of the Republican Town Committee

DAN D. HOME, Chairman.

Dated at Montville, Conn., this 5th day of October, 1926.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Norwich within and for the District of Norwich, on the 5th day of Oct., A. D. 1926.

Present, NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

Estate of Mary E. Williams, late of Norwich, in said District, deceased.

The Administratrix appeared in Court and filed a written application alleging that said estate is now in settlement in said Court and praying for an order to mortgage certain real estate belonging to said estate, fully described in said application.

Whereupon, It is Ordered, That said application be heard and determined at the Probate Court Room in the City of Norwich, in said District, on the 11th day of Oct., A. D. 1926, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and that notice of the pendency of said application, and of said hearing thereon, be given by the publication of this order once in some newspaper having a circulation in said District at least three days prior to the date of said hearing, and that return be made to the Court.

NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

The above and foregoing is a true copy of record.

Attest, HELEN M. DRESCHER, Clerk.

BREAK IN STOCK PRICES

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Heavy liquidation of stocks for both accounts caused another sharp break in today's stock market, which emerged on the downside from the narrow trading area within which it has been floundering for the past six weeks. The decline, which ran from 2 to nearly 9 points in scores of issues, took place in the face of a lowering of call money rates, final quotations being around the lowest of the day.

There was nothing in the business situation to account for the selling movement. Chairman Gary of the United States Steel corporation, in a statement issued after the market closed, described business conditions as "very satisfactory" and predicted an increase in the September unfilled orders for the corporation, which will be made public in a few days. William C. Durant, prominent market operator, also gave out a bullish interview and the directors of the American Smelting company increased the annual dividend from $7 to $8.

While admitting that the action of the market in the past two days indicated a top-heavy speculative position, many traders were frankly puzzled at its sudden weakness. In some quarters there was a tendency to associate it with the recent sharp decline in cotton on the theory that the latter might seriously affect the purchasing power of certain sections of the country. Some fears also were expressed at the increase of over $50,000,000 in brokers' loans last week, particularly in view of the fact that the gain was not accompanied by any appreciable advance in prices.

Spasmodic rallies took place throughout the session, some of the recoveries running as much as 9 points, but they failed to attract any outside buying, and were in variably followed by increased selling pressure. General Motors was the most active individual feature, dropping from 168 to 163 1-4 and then rallying to 164 7-8, off 1 point net, on total transactions of over 3,000,000 shares, or about one-sixth of the day's entire volume of business. U. S. Steel common closed nearly 3 points lower at 145 3-8 on total sales of about 175,000 shares. Mack Trucks fell over 3 points to a new low for the year, but Moon Motors appeared to have disappointed the bull f.om $5 to $1.50 in the annual dividend.

Among the many issues to show net losses of 3 points or more were Adams Express, American Brake, Baldwin Locomotive Works, Brooklyn Edison, Case Threshing Machine, Continental Baking A, Dupont, Manhattan Electrical Supply, National Lead, National Tea and Remington Typewriter.

Rails were also hard hit, the average of 20 leading issues showing a heavier loss than the average of 20 leading industrials. Atlantic Coast Line broke nearly 10 points to 198 as against the years high of 262 1-2, "Nickel Plate" common dropped 7 points, Norfolk & Western 4 1-2, New York Central 3 1-2 and most of the others a point or two. The first preferred was bid up to a new high at 104 1-4 on reports that the stock would receive a $4 guarantee under the new "Nickel Plate" merger plan.

Call money renewed at 5 per cent and then dropped to 4 1-2, closing at the low figure. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Commodities were mixed. The decline in cotton was checked, at least temporarily, and prices rallied 35 to 42 points. Active wheat futures yielded fractionally, raw sugar was unchanged and coffee dropped 11 to 22 points.

Demand sterling eased slightly to $4.84 1-16 but most of the other European rates held steady. French francs were again quoted above 2.90 cents and Italian lire around 3.75 cents.

TAFTVILLE

The regular monthly business meeting of the Taftville Social and Football club was held Monday evening in the clubrooms at the Ponemah house with the president Allan Bogle in the chair. A number of important business items came up for consideration and several bills were ordered paid. One new application for membership was received.

As the next meeting is to be the annual meeting for election of officers, a committee to take charge of the refreshments and entertainment was appointed by President Bogle. Those appointed were Fred Ince, George Kinder and Edward L. Sigrist. Archibald D. Torrance, Jr., was appointed to fill out the term as secretary of Walter L. Barritt who recently moved to Norwich.

A number of the club members are to make up a bus party to attend a football match in Fall River Mass. on Saturday to watch the clash between the strong Bethlehem and Fall River teams. David Murphy is chairman of the committee arranging for the outing.

Henry Fluette of the Ponemah house has resigned his position with the No. 4 weaving department of the local mills, and with Mrs. Fluette, has left town.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Michaud of Hartford have moved to the village and are to reside on South B street. Mr. Michaud was a former Taftville resident but for some time has been employed by the Hartford Rubber works. He has accepted a position with the mule spinning department of the Ponemah company and is returning here.

LYNCH-KEENAN LICENSE TO MARRY IN NEW YORK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Patrick J. Lynch, 48, of 121 Washington street, and Mrs. Margaret S. Keenan, 36, of Baffinfield avenue, both of Norwich, Conn., obtained a license to wed here today. Wedding plans were not announced.

Mr. Lynch was born in Norwich and is the son of Michael and Mary Fenton Lynch. He is a widower, his first wife having died in 1915. Mrs. Keenan was born in this city and is the daughter of Daniel and Mary Keefe Daley. She is a widow, her first husband having died in 1918.

TO DISCUSS EIGHTH GRADE FOR BISHOP SCHOOL

Supt. Edward J. Graham of the Norwich public schools has called a meeting of the parents of the school children of the Bishop school in East Norwich for this (Wednesday) evening at the school building. The meeting will open at 7:30 o'clock, and is being held for the purpose of discussing the petition recently sent to the town school board asking that an eighth grade be established at the school. The matter was referred by the board to Mr. Graham.

Evening Schools Open Monday

The evening schools which are conducted by the town school board are to open next Monday evening at 7 o'clock. As usual they will be held at Broadway school and at Greeneville school.

WILL PROCEED TO BUILD STORRS COMMUNITY CHURCH

HARTFORD, Oct. 5—(AP)—The immediate construction of the new Storrs community church, was assured this afternoon when the executive committee of the Storrs church and Community house campaign approved the acceptance of a bid for its erection.

Meeting at the Hotel Bond, the committee, of which the Rev. Dr. L. H. Dorchester, pastor of the First Methodist church, of Hartford, is chairman, ratified the action of the church trustees in awarding the contract to the Peck McWilliams company, of Norwich.

The church will replace the old edifice which had stood at the same site in Storrs since 1847, the site itself having a church history dating from the early part of the 18th century. The old church was recently razed. Preparations for the active erection of the building are to start at once and it is expected that the new church will be ready for public worship about the time of the opening of the new term at the Connecticut Agricultural college, next year.

Since the old church was dismantled and until the new church is ready for use, divine services for the college community will be held in the new community house, which, like the proposed new community church, was built with funds raised by the Connecticut Federation of Churches.

The church is inter-denominational, the pastor being Rev. Morris E. Alling, secretary of the Connecticut Federation of Churches.

More than half the sum required to build the new church is already available and the other half will, it is expected, be raised in the next few months. A campaign to complete the fund is under way.

POTATO DIGGING AT PRESTON PLAINS PLOT

The digging of the potato seed source trial will take place on the farm of Clifton Dawley, Preston Plains, Friday, Oct. 8, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

This has become an annual event of much interest to potato growers and general farmers in this and adjoining counties, it being the fifth year that such an affair has taken place.

The trial this year is located on the same field used in 1922. Since then the field has been cropped to clover and grass and was plowed in the fall of 1925. At planting time this spring 1200 pounds of 6-8-6 fertilizer was broadcasted and an equal amount in the row distributed by the planter.

The trial this year shows a comparison of seed treatment by the use of corrosive sublimate and uspulun for scab, also non-treated.

The seed used in the trial contains samples from Maine, Vermont and New York and also some not certified.

If the appointed day should be stormy, the digging will take place on the next fair day.

SINGHAM TO SPEAK AT REPUBLICAN RALLY HERE

HARTFORD, Oct. 5—(AP)—The speakers' bureau of the republican state central committee today, announced that arrangements had been completed for rallies in Norwich and Newtown. The Norwich rally, details of which are being handled by George Charbonneau, recently elected chairman of the town committee there, will be held October 18, with Senator Bingham as the speaker. The Newtown rally will be held October 23 with Governor Trumbull, Mrs. John Russ, national committee woman, Judge Robert L. Munger, of Ansonia and Charles E. Wheeler, of Stratford, candidate for state senator, as the speakers.

DEFENDANT GETS JUDGMENT IN AUTOMOBILE SUIT

Judgment for the defendant was handed down by Judge Newell Jennings in the superior court in the case of Santo Samataro against the Howard Street Coal and Grain Co., of New London. The plaintiff sought $300 damages for injuries to his sedan when it figured in a collision with the truck of the coal and grain company at the intersection of Moore avenue and Shaw street, New London.

Forestry Protection Needs $50,000

At a meeting of the Connecticut Forestry Association Saturday, A. F. Hawes, state forester, declared, that, unless the appropriations made by the state for protecting its forests from fire were trippled, it would be impossible to protect them adequately except in the years when rainfall was great enough to keep them damp. He said that the greatly increased human use of the forests for recreation had increased the fire hazard greatly over years ago, before the automobile took thousands of people into the wodos.

The state now spends $15,000 per year on this work and this, he said should be increased to $50,000. The greatest needs, he declared, were for more fire-lookout towers, more motor cycle patrolmen and more gasoline pumps.

REPORTS SHOW WORK OF SCHOOL NURSING DEPARTMENT

Reports on the school nursing department are given from the supervisor, Miss Rose K. Durr, R. N., from the advisory committee of which Mrs. Ada R. Chase is secretary, and from Dr. Harrison Gray, town health officer, and are printed in the annual town reports.

Miss Durr, the supervisor, gives the following report:

The personnel of the department is practically the same as in 1925 Three school nurses, one dental hygienist, a part time dental assistant, one part time clerk and the supervisor of the nurses.

The aim of the school health program is to protect the physical health of the child, to detect early symptoms or physical defects and to encourage their correction, to prevent and lessen communicable diseases and to give preventive instruction for healthy and hygienic living. The nurses assisted the physicians examining the children in the first, third, and eighth grades for heart and lung conditions, and all children for eye, ear, nose and throat defects.

They also assisted with the toxin-antitoxin treatment which is the preventive measure for diphtheria given to 384 children. Two hundred and ninety-nine children absent from school for five days or more were inspected and re-admitted by the school nurses.

Home cooperation is most essential to obtain correction of physical defects and treatment of chronic diseases and deformities and in the observance of quarantine. Home visits made 1688. One hundred and fifty-six children had their tonsils and adenoids removed at our clinic held a No. 9 Washington street, through the courtesy of the United Workers.

Two of the greatest problems which had to be dealt with in former years were pediculosis and impetigo. These conditions have greatly improved and the number of such cases has been reduced to a minimum.

It is gratifying to note with each succeeding year the better condition of the health of the school children. This is due to the teaching of health education to the parents and better cooperation with teachers and principals.

School visited 2,058, class inspection 3,859, pupils inspected (general) 136,189, pupils inspected (contagion) 4,886, excluded for illness 104, excluded for uncleanliness 62, visits to homes 1,688, parents notified 611, pupils weighed and measured (4 times during year) first aid 1,384, class talks 441, pupils accompanied 17, cultures taken 42, referred to family physician 502.

Advisory Committee

The advisory committee consists of Dr. Harrison Gray, town health officer, chairman, Mrs. Witter K. Tingley, vice chairman, Mrs. Albert H. Chase, secretary, Dr. Edward J. Brophy, Edward J. Graham, Dr. Albert C. Freeman, William S. Murray, Dr. Edward Kirby.

Mrs. Chase gives her report as follows: Mr. Murray and Dr. Kirby joined the committee during the year and helped appreciably through their experience and knowledge of conditions. The other members remained the same. Miss Marie Gadie joined the nursing staff in place of Miss Enright, resigned.

It is felt that each year an improvement in the general condition of the school children has been made. Certain problems are fast disappearing and through careful inspections for contagious diseases the attendance at school is improved. Great satisfaction was felt over the report of Dr. Oleson of the U. S. Public Health Service who inspected the mouths of about 500 children of the seventh and eighth grades and the junior grade of the Academy to determine the extent of thyroid trouble in adolescense and who found the mouths of these Norwich children in the best condition of any ground examined in Connecticut. This seemed to prove the value of previous years of thorough work by the school nurses and dental hygienist.

Financial assistance has been received from the Taftville Red Cross and the Junior Red Cross, also the Rock Nook Home committee of the United Workers, the welfare committee of the Elks, the Lions club and the tuberculosis seal committee which is gratefully acknowledged. Such contributions have enabled the committee to attempt experimental work which if successful is incorporated in the regular program. Free milk for underweight children was one of such experiments and the results justify our asking this year for an additional appropriation so that milk may be distributed to all the underweight children.

Miss Helen Christ who has filled the place of dental hygienist very acceptably for the last four years has resigned and a successor is yet to be found.

New equipment was bought and an educational program carried out by means of lectures to the children, an exhibit in the Plaut-Cadden Co.'s windows and by a film at the Palace theatre. Nearly one thousand children secured a card from a dentist saying their mouths were in perfect condition which entitled them to be excused early from school one day as a reward. All the children in the first and second grades had their teeth cleaned and had an opportunity to have them filled by a dentist at reduced prices. A part time worker gave assistance to the dentist and dental hygienist.

During the winter the nurses enjoyed a lecture course given at the Backus hospital arranged by the state department of health, and attended other health conferences as often as possible.

Financial Report

The financial report for 1925-1926 is as follows:

TRYING FORECLOSURE SUIT ON STONINGTON PROPERTY

Trial in the foreclosure action brought by Frances Dunlop of Concord, Mass., against A. A. Greene, of Providence, purchaser of The Braided Thread Corp., property at Stonington, was begun before Judge Newell Jennings in the superior court in New London Tuesday. Attorney Arthur T. Keefe represented the plaintiff and Attorney C. Hadlai Hull the defendant.

According to the complaint it is alleged that on Oct. 31, 1923, The Braided Thread Corp., a Delaware corporation, owed the plaintiff $22,500 as evidenced by its promissory note, dated Oct. 31, 1923, which thereafter became due and payable with interest at the rate of six per cent.

It is also alleged that on the same day, by mortgage deed, the Braided Thread Corp., to secure said note, mortgaged to the plaintiff lots of land, together with buildings and personal property in the buildings, situated in Stonington. It is alleged that the note is still due and there is due an unpaid balance of $22,500.

It is further alleged that on April 20, 1926 Benjamin H. Hewitt, receiver of the Braided Thread Corp., sold the property above described to A. A. Greene.

The plaintiff claims a foreclosure of mortgage in strict foreclosure or by decree of sale. In case of strict foreclosure, the plaintiff asks that when foreclosure becomes absolute, the title to said premises shall be vested in the plaintiff with immediate possession.

In case of a judgment for any balance that may be found due to plaintiff, over and above the appraised value of the land or the price realized by sale thereof, the plaintiff specifically desires the delivery and execution of the instrument in writing referred to. The defendants deny a number of paragraphs and claim that G. E. Still, president of the thread company, received the following agreement signed by Frances Dunlop:

"In consideration of payment on your mortgage received this date, I agree that I will not demand any further payment on the principal of mortgage held by me on your property for a period of two years from date thereof, provided the Braided Thread Corp. pays the interest each quarter when due, said interest having been paid up to July 15th, 1925."

This agreement would not have called for payment on the principal until Aug. 31, 1927, it is claimed. Among the witnesses on Tuesday was Mr. Still.

V. F. W. STATE COUNCIL HEARS CONVENTION REPORT

Commander Leo L. Jacques of R. E. Hourigan post, No. 594, V. F. W., attended a special meeting of the council of administration, department of Connecticut, of Veterans of Foreign Wars, which was held at Lieut. Caldwell-Colt-Robinson post rooms, 420 Main street, Hartford, on Sunday, Oct. 3.

State Commander Captain Charles Blanchard of Bristol, was chairman of the meeting. Captain Elyin Byers of Pawcatuck, was elected to fill the vacancy in the council caused by the death of a beloved comrade, James D. McKenna. Connecticut commander of the disabled American veterans, who died at Mt. Sinai hospital on July 27.

Captain Blanchard and Commander Daley and Adjutant Wederlin all gave interesting descriptions of the national convention of the V. F. W. at El Paso, Texas, from which they just returned Saturday.

One interesting report, which will please all New England veterans, is that the national convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars for 1927 will be held in Providence, R. I.

ITALIANS PLANNING BIG COLUMBUS DAY CELEBRATION

The Italian colony of Norwich, under the auspices of the United Italian societies will on October 12 celebrate the anniversary of the discovery of this country by one of the greatest explorers the whrid has ever known, Christopher Columbus. The Italians of the city are planning on a celebration which it is expected will be by far bigger and better than any they have ever held on Columbus day.

In announcing the planned celebration the committee in charge which consists of Frank Ciccolini, Rocco Barbetta, Tony Longo, Frank Pasqualini, Antonio Grovannini, Frank Ferri and Cesidio Leone ask for the co-operation of any organization in Norwich who might wish to help make the celebration a fitting one.

The parade which will be led by the Italian-American band will start from in front of the Majestic building at 7 p. m. proceed to Thames square, swing back through Main street to Burnham square, countermarch to Franklin square and up Franklin street to the little park.

Following the parade, the Italian band led by Prof. Pasquale Puca will render a concert at Union square, which will be decorated and illuminated for the occasion.

Following the concert the days activities will wind up with a dance at Roseland hall located on Market street.

SUIT AGAINST CITY FOR ERECTION OF WIRES

Suit against the city of Norwich for $2,000 damages has been brought by Howell S. Bailey of New York, which is returnable in November. The claim is made that the city gas and electric department entered upon property of the plaintiff at 367-375 Main street, erecting over and on top of the roof six guy wires from poles in Main street to poles in the rear of the building.

Mr. Bailey asks for an injunction to compel the city to remove the guy wires were placed there without his consent, that they prevent him from extending the height of and improving his property, and that $500 damage was done by making holes and leaks in the roof. It is also claimed that by erecting a pole next to and adjoining a steel pole in front of the premises and blocking the entrance, the rental value of the property has been greatly depreciated.

EXPLAINS THE PAYMENT OF $441,000 TO JOHN T. KING

William Rand, Counsel for Miller, in Denying That Daugherty and Miller Conspired Against the Government for Bribes, Declared that the Payment of $441,000 to King Was Optional With Merton, the German Steel Magnate, and That King, Having Failed to Secure the $7,000,000 Claim Award at the Specified Time, Had No Reason to Expect Any More Than a Retainer Fee of $50,000.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7—(AP)—Harry M. Daugherty and Thomas W. Miller did not conspire against the government [illegible] September, 1921, for bribes promised them from a fee of John T. King, William Rand told the jury in federal court today in summation for Miller today.

The conspiracy case, in which Daugherty and Miller are charged with withholding their best services in permitting release of $7,000,000 impounded assets of the American Metal company, reached the summation stage shortly before noon when the government unexpectedly rested its case [illegible] spoke to the jury in defense [illegible] from 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. Rand had not concluded when Judge Mack adjourned court until tomorrow. He will be followed by Max D. Steuer, summing up for Daugherty, and by United States Attorney Buckner for the government. The case is expected tomorrow and Judge Mack will then charge the jury in the case.

Miller's counsel reached its climax of [illegible] dissertation just before noon today when, up to that time his argument had been largely of a technical nature dealing with the transfer of stock between German and Swiss institutions.

"[illegible] was a conspiracy," he declared when at last he came to the point of discussing his client's actions, "it fell through because the claim went through Daugherty's and Miller's office eight days too late to earn a penny."

Rand continued to the jury an arrangement between King and Richard Merton, German copper magnate, who [illegible] here to arrange release of the assets whereby King was to receive [illegible] five per cent of the $7,000,000 if the claim was awarded by one year, two and one half per cent. If it was not allowed until a specified [illegible] date, and nothing at all beyond a year if $50,000 given him when the arrangement was made, if the claim did not go through before a specified date.

The government has claimed that of the $441,000 promised King for successful completion of his work, some $150,000 was used as bribes to gain the defendants' approval.

As the claim did not go through until after the last date specified by Merton in his arrangement with King, the latter had no expectation, Rand said, of receiving a penny more than his retainer. Merton did, as a matter of fact, Rand acknowledged, pay King the full fee of $441,000 but that was purely a matter that he decided to do of his own accord and was not an action that King could reasonably either have demanded or expected.

Rand pointed out that in the letter forwarding the Merton claim to the attorney general's office from Miller, no actual recommendation of approval was made. The letter merely turned the claims over for approval, "if the facts stated in them are found to be true."

"Miller had no voice whatsoever," he asserted, "in deciding whether the claims were good or bad. That was a responsibility that rested solely with the attorney general. By that I do not mean to give the impression I am passing the buck to Daugherty. There has been no evidence in this whole trial to show that he ever so much as heard of the Merton claim."

Rand prefaced his summation with a caution to the jury to keep in mind what he said was the common bias of prosecutors against all defendants.

As soon as a man becomes a prosecutor," he said, the theories conceived that all defendants are guilty, his mind is permanently twisted. If he is shown a perfectly white fact he looks at it through the smoked goggles of his professional bias and sees it as the darkest colored of deepest sense. Of this bias I accuse Emory R. Buckner, the prosecutor in this trial."

Daugherty was absent this afternoon, leaving at the noon recess to receive attention to one eye, badly inflamed and almost closed by a cold from which he has been suffering throughout the trial. His brother, Mr. S. Daugherty, and newspapermen that the inflammation was particularly bothersome to the former attorney general because it rendered him practically blind. One of Harry Daugherty's eyes, he said, has been almost sightless since birth.

DRY LAW VIOLATOR HAS FORFEITED $15,000 BONDS

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 6—(AP)—A five thousand dollar security bond given by Mike Cimino, of New Haven, charged with violation of the liquor law, was ordered forfeited by Judge John W. Banks in the criminal superior court today at a session of the court. There was no response to the call.

Mike Cimino, with three others was arrested while attempting to spirit away some barrels of alcohol stored in a garage in Fairfield September 26 1925. The alcohol had been seized by the police in its transfer through that town and put in the garage for storage. It is assumed that the men were interested in the transportation was defeated in its attempt to remove it [illegible] following its capture.

Mike Cimino gave a bond of $5,000 for his appearance in court but failed to appear and the bond was declared forfeited and has been collected by the state. Anthony Pascucci and Pietro Signilo, engaged in the attempted theft, were given state prison sentences. After the disposition of the case in the court, Mike Cimino was found and arrested at his home in New Haven on the old charge. He gave a bond the second time of $5,000. As the second bond had been declared forfeited it makes $15,000 in bonds forfeited on him.

GUILTY OF ATTEMPTING TO MURDER BY POISON.

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 6—(AP)—Tessie [illegible] of Long Hill, was found guilty in the prison farm court of an assault to murder by poison, when she was tried before Judge John W. Banks this morning. The special pleaded guilty to the charge of attempting to murder Mrs. [illegible] on the 24th of last April, during which she was employed as a [illegible] in the New Haven road and was living under John J. McGinn, [illegible] Evidence showed that Mrs. [illegible] secured a considerable quantity of rat poison powder in Monroe and, to do this he had concealed the tool house and put the powder into a thermos bottle.

Mrs. [illegible] gave the liquid and [illegible] it in coffee and was taken [illegible] There was enough poison [illegible] before Mrs. McGinn threw off [illegible] and perhaps all of the poisoned coffee, and as State's Attorney W. H. Comley explained, Drake put so much poison into the coffee that he defeated his purpose of killing [illegible] against whom he had a grudge.

MRS. WARD IGNORANT OF WHEREABOUTS OF WALTER

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Oct. 6—(AP)—Mrs. Chester S. Ward tonight declared she was "not the slightest idea" as to the whereabouts of her husband, son of the millionaire baker. Ward, who was acquitted of the slaying of Clarence Peck several years ago, disappeared [illegible] when his automobile, with the [illegible] smashed, was found at the Tuckahoe, N. Y., railroad station.

"I have not seen or heard from Mr. Ward since May 1," said Mrs. Ward. "The report he has been here is ridiculous. I haven't the slightest idea where he is.

In developing his method, through which the various sounds in the chest may be charted for interpretation with greater accuracy than heretofore has been possible, Professor Muller personifying science as called art to his aid in the person of Adolf Hess, [illegible] painter, [illegible] subject [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

THE JURY FAILS TO AGREE IN ARPIN-BRETON CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 6—The jury failed to agree on a verdict, after two hours and 42 minutes deliberation, on the case of George Breton of Plainfield charged with assault, carnally knowing and abuse of a female child, Flora Arpin, 14, also of Plainfield, which case was tried in the Windham County Superior court today. After receiving the charge from Judge John R. Booth, the jury retired at 4.48 o'clock. Sheriffs and others in the court-room were of the opinion that the deliberating would be brief, but their hopes were dashed after half an hour of waiting, when one of the jurymen requested that his wife be notified that he had no idea when he would be home.

At 6.30 o'clock the jury returned and informed the court that they could not agree. Seeking to break the agreement to disagree, Judge Booth requested further deliberation, but at 7:30 o'clock a final notice of disagreement was returned. The jury was then discharged for the term by Judge Booth who notified Sheriff Charles A. Gates to adjourn court without delay.

The Breton case in all probability will again come up for trial, at the January session of the court.

The jurors selected to hear the case were Edwin F. Cross, Windham; Albert L. Mills, Hampton; Charles F. Brenn, Scotland; Frank B. Stanton, Putnam; William B. Potter, Brooklyn; Roy Latham, Eastford; Matthew T. Dartt, Thompson; Wayland Gage, Woodstock, William E. Clark, Windham; Henry N. Amidon, Ashford; Thomas Gorman, Brooklyn; Frank A. Boore, Brooklyn.

The defendant was represented by Attorneys Henry Back of Danielson and Joseph E. Smith of Moosup. State Attorney Howard C. Bradford, prosecuted.

Flora Arpin, the plaintiff, was the first witness. She testified that she was a sister-in-law of the accused and that she reached her fourteenth year August 25 last. She told of the assaults taking place on or about December 15, 1925, when she was thirteen years of age. The first time was when she went into Breton's home to take care of the baby while Mrs. Breton was out for the afternoon. Breton fondled her and then picked her up bodily and carried her to a bed where the act took place. After that Breton would drive to the school where she was a pupil and at dismissal time he would take her riding into the country for the purpose of having intercourse with her. On August 17th she gave birth to a child which weighed but two pounds. She had told no one except Breton of her condition until the child was about to be born. She testified that he had given her pills to take but she feared they would be harmful and she threw them away. Breton, she stated, had told her to say that some man had gotten her into an automobile and forced to give herself to him. She said the accused gave her a pocketbook, silk garters and a vanity case, in addition to candy presents.

Mrs. Amanda Arpin, mother of the girl, testified that there were eight other children in her family. Her testimony was given through S. A. Bourdeau as interpreter. She said that she had not known of the impending childbirth until three hours before it happened. The presents from Breton to her young daughter were shown to her afterwards. She stated that Flora told her that Breton was the father of the child.

Joseph Arpin, father of Flora, and father-in-law of Breton, said that when told of Flora's trouble he talked to Breton and attempted to arrange things so that there would be no stain on the family name, also to avoid trouble for Breton's wife. Flora's sister. He suggested that Breton pay two-thirds of the cost for the care of the child. Breton, he said, expressed sorrow for the affair, and had agreed to support the child, if it was his.

Henry H. Loughlin of Moosup, a taxi-driver, said that he had often seen Breton and Flora Arpin riding on the back road to Moosup Pond pumping station. Upon cross-examination by Attorney Back he was somewhat vague on the dates when he had seen the couple.

Court recessed at 12:45 o'clock for luncheon following which Loughlin was again briefly questioned. Then the state rested its case.

Dr. Stanislaus A. Bourviere, of Moosup, who attended the Arpin girl at childbirth testified briefly as to what he believed could be the time of conception.

George Breton, the defendant, then took the stand. He said he was 26 years old and is now employed in a Central Village mill. He at one time conducted a confectionery store in Moosup. Breton made a full denial of ever being alone with the Arpin girl. He denied doing any wrong and said he had known nothing of the child born to the plaintiff until after it had arrived. He admitted having been sent for by Mr. Arpin and asked if he would help to support the child. Breton said that he was not accused of being the father. He had said at the time that he would do what he could to help in finding a place to have the child taken care of, or adopted. Through the alleged freezing of the radiator on Breton's car in December which put the machine out of commission until April of 1926, the defense sought to falsify the dates of wrong-doing established by the state through the testimony of the girl and of Loughlin.

Joseph Breton father of the accused, Mrs. Rose Arpin Breton, aged 20, wife of George Breton, Mrs. Delia Breton, his mother, were the principal witnesses for the defense. They testified in the main that Breton did not use his car during the dates when he was supposed to have taken Flora out riding and that Flora had never taken care of Breton's baby. Alphonso Bellevance and his youngest daughter Mathilda Bellevance testified that Breton and his wife had lived in the Bellevance block during the winter months.

Judge George F. Torrey of the Plainfield town court where the Breton case was first taken up, was the last witness. Arguments by the attorneys began at 4 o'clock. At 4:52 o'clock Judge Booth gave his charge to the jury.

CORONOR BILL'S INQUEST ON EDGAR BRETON'S DEATH

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 6.—An inquest was held at police headquarters here this morning on the death of Edgar Breton, who died Tuesday morning in St. Joseph's hospital from burns sustained Thursday of last week, when gasoline being put into the tank of his motorcycle overflowed on the hot motor and burst into flames. The accident happened at a Standard Oil company filling station on lower Main street and the manager of the station, Leroy Roberts, is held on a charge of violating the law which prohibits supplying gasoline in motor vehicles while the motor is running.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson, who conducted the inquest, first viewed the body at local undertaking rooms, then interviewed the five witnesses. Leroy Roberts, William Knight, Harvey Rock Hegy Graff and Pat. Lee Officer, girl. Coroner Bill announced that he would reserve decision.

Advise Women

to adopt new hygienic method and retain freshness this way; true protection; discards like tissue

LARGELY on medical advice, women are abandoning the old-time "sanitary pad" for a new way that supplants uncertainty with positive protection.

Sheer frocks and ill-timed social engagements no longer remain as worries. Lost days are fewer, and health better.

It is called "KOTEX." Ends the insecurity of the old-time sanitary pad. Five times as absorbent! And deodorizes—ends ALL fear of offending.

As easily disposed of as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

You get it at any drug or department store simply by saying "KOTEX." You ask for it without hesitancy.

Costs only a few cents. Eight in 10 better-class women employ it. Proves the risk of old ways.

FATHER AND DAUGHTER TO BE BURIED IN WESTFIELD

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 6—Following services in Hartford Thursday evening, the bodies of Brooks K. Parker and his 16-year old daughter, Helena, will be brought to Danielson for burial Friday in Westfield cemetery. The tragic deaths of Mr. Parker and his daughter and the serious illness of Mrs. Parker, from some mysterious cause, has shocked this and surrounding communities with sympathy.

WAGES OF $60 AND BOARD DO NOT TEMPT FARM HELP

(Special to The Bulletin).

DANIELSON, Oct. 6—What has become of all the farm labor? That is a question that remains unanswered by those needing competent help and who are willing to pay as high wages as ever were paid for this sort of employment even during the hectic years of the World war with its record prices for almost everything. Farmers say it is an exceedingly difficult proposition to get good farm hands, even when the wage offered is $60 a month and board. Many a job after which many seek in the territory does not net $60 a month, and the farm attracts none of these workers.

Realtives and friends filled the home Main street, Wednesday afternoon, when funeral services for Mrs. Mary C. Danielson, widow of Simeon Danielson were conducted by Rev. Theodore W. Gaylord, pastor of the Congregational church.

The floral tributes were very beautiful. Among the floral remembrances were some that came with the body from California, where Mrs. Danielson died the past week at Leland Stamford university, where she had gone but a few days before her death to remain for the winter with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Davis. Her son-in-law, Mr. Davis, accompanied the body east.

The bearers were George, Willard S. Bradford and James Danielson, George B. Guild and John W. Gallup. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Wednesday afternoon the funeral of Mrs. Geneva Moran, wife of James H. Moran, was held from the home, with services at the Methodist Episcopal church at 2 o'clock. Rev. Roger C. Stimson, the pastor, conducted the service, assisted by Rev. A. E. Gallup of the Nazarene church. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were Patrick John, James, Thomas, Bernard and Edward Moran. The prayer service at the grave was conducted by Rev. Mr. Stimson and Rev. Mr. Gallup. Thomas E. Louis Thibeault, resident on Frank-lin street, was being held at the police station here during Wednesday to answer to an allegation of indecent exposure. This suit was arrested by Special Officer Ross W. Urquhart upon the complaint of a resident of Broad street that the man had been acting in an improper manner and arousing indignation by his alleged acts. At an afternoon session of the court he was sentenced by Judge Woodward to serve 90 days in jail.

In the political party caucuses sched-uled to be held in Killingly the coming week each party will nominated two candidates for representatives, a candidate each for judge of probate and ten candidates on each ticket for justices of the peace. The lists of these nominees will appear on the state ballot.

Dr. W. H. Judson, in his annual re-port as health officer of the town of Killingly, cites that the town experienced two epidemics during the year covered by the report. There were 85 cases of measles and 24 cases of scarlet fever. All of these were mild cases and there were no deaths. Of impetigo, a contagious disease of the skin, the health officer remarks in his report that there were fewer cases the past year than in the previous year, but still too many. The cases were confined to children of the poorer classes who neglects dto have a physician and had to be treated in the schools by a school physician, and as there is no such officer in Killingly, the work devolved upon the health department of the town.

Supt. W. E. Parker of Killingly's schools has in mind the holding of a night session of the high school some time this winter, after the enlarged building is fully completed, that citizens may visit the school, inspect it, see the students at work and get a comprehensive impression of how the institution functions. The inspection period likely will be followed by formal exercises in the fine new auditorium at the school.

Danielson's fire alarm sirens went on another rampage, Tuesday evening, starting up a tremendous booing and blaring shortly before six o'clock and continuing at intervals during the evening. Technical difficulties accounted for the spree on which the sirens went and this, it is understood, will be safeguarded against by changing certain wiring that is in proximity to electric light circuits.

The Killingly Woman's club with the co-operation of other organizations in town, has planned an Americanization exhibit to be staged in the town hall on the 9th, 10th and 11th of November. This exhibit is certain to hold an appeal to persons in every walk of life. More details pertaining to it are to be made public in the near future.

DEATH OF MRS. ROBT. SCHMOLL CAUSES DEEP SORROW

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 6—Mrs. Marjory Schmoll, 24, died yesterday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marcus A. Covell in North Grosvenordale. Her illness was of but ten days' duration. Her death will arouse sincere sympathy for her parents, her husband and other relatives. To the parents it is a severe blow. In 1909 May Covell, their oldest child died, in her 24th year; in 1913 Lois Covell the second daughter died just before her 24th birthday and thirteen years later at almost the same age a third daughter died.

She married Robert Schmoll two years ago, an automobile mechanic employed at Southbridge. For a while the young couple made their home in Southbridge but for the past few months they had lived with the wife's parents. She was well known in Putnam as well as in North Grosvenordale. Possessing unusual musical ability, her services were always at the command of her friends or of church and societies to which she belonged. Besides her husband and parents, one sister survives, Mrs. Ray Hurlburt of Woodstock avenue Putnam and a brother, Earl Covell of North Grosvenordale.

Charles D. Tatem of Eastford will leave for North Carolina in a few days to perfect the organization of the North Carolina Hickory Mfg. Company. It is a subsidiary to the J. M. Tatem and Sons corporation of Eastford and is being organized for the purpose of facilitating the shipment of raw material to the concern at Eastford, to be made into the finished product.

Funeral services for Mrs. Denerie Coderre Duval, a widely known resident of the community were held on Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church, North Grosvenordale with a solemn requiem mass. Delegates from St. Ann's sodality attended the funeral services in a body. Mrs. Duvall is survived by nine children, Mrs. Alfred Gaddon, Mrs. Ray Hassan, Armand Duval, Jeanette Duval and Cecile Duval, all of North Grosvenordale; Mrs. Joseph Burton, Danielson, Wilfred Duval, Goodyear Henry Duval and Leo Duval of Southbridge. There are also five brothers, Ubald Coderre of Norwich, Archine of New Bedford, Phillippe and Napoleon Coderre of North Grosvenordale; also two sisters, Mrs. Alphonse Vaudry of North Grosvenordale and Mrs. Herve Berthiaume of Central Village. She leaves seven grandchildren. The bearers were her five brothers and a brother-in-law. Burial was at St. Joseph's cemetery. She was born in Milton, P. Q., but came to the United States when a small child and has lived in this vicinity ever since.

GETTING UP NIGHTS

For Bladder Relief Is Nature's Danger Signal. Columbus Minister's Wife Relates Experience

Rev. W. H. Marshall, 921 So. Park St. Columbus, Ohio, says: "My wife was troubled seriously with bladder irritation at night; we used Hillsdale buchu leaves and it never fails to relieve her in two to three hours each night. Will send you her letter."

Improved Buchu leaves relieve the bladder irritation at once by its diuretic influence on the kidneys. Drives off broken matter and decreases excessive acidity, thereby relieving irritation. The leaves cost 50 cents at all drug stores. Hazlet Laboratory, Manufacturing Ohio. Locally at Gee Bee Tea Store.

ARGUMENTS NEXT WEEK IN BRAIDED THREAD SUIT

Arguments are to be made next Tuesday before Judge Superior Court in New London in the case of Frances Dunlop of Walpole, Mass., against A. C. Gross of Providence on account of the Braided Thread Corp. of Stonington, in which the evidence was completed Tuesday the suit to have an agreement made by Samuel Still and Mary Kane set aside and Attorney C. Holden Hall for the defendant.

The plaintiff seeks to recover on a promissory note secured by a mortgage on the property and on which it is claimed there is an unpaid balance of $2,500. The note was given by The Braided Thread Corp. and was payable for $2,500.

C. D. Still was president of the Braided Thread Corp. at the time and according to the allegations set up by the defense he resigned from the position as agreed, whereupon the latter would not call for the more money on the principal until Aug. 31, 1927, for which the defendant alleges the company paid Dunlop $500.

The defendant alleges that in August, Mr. Still gave the plaintiff a check for $2,333.33, $1.67 of which went on account and that was in interest and that was in consideration of the latter's promise to pay the principal for some stated period of time. It was brought out also that in 1924 The Braided Thread Corp paid to Dunlop $1,000 in consideration of a $2,500 payment to be delayed for a time.

Attorney Hall asked Mr. Still if he had ever consented Leverett Boardwell of New York city in the concern and selected some of his money. The witness said that he had and that Mr. Boardwell was made treasurer. After repeated questioning, Mr. Still said that he did not think that he ever told Mr Boardwell that the check of $2,333 went for. It is the claim of the defense that nothing further is due on the principal until Aug. 31, 1927.

WEDDINGS

Crandall-Miller

The marriage of Miss Marguerite Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Palmer Miller of Brown street, Springfield, to Maurice Hilliard Crandall of Rochelle street, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B Crandall of Stonington, took place late Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. John H. Nolan, pastor of St. Peter's Episcopal church, performed the ceremony, using the single ring service. Miss Miller was attended by her sister, Mrs. Clinton Hedley Tutahll, as matron of honor, and Paul Noyes Hillard of Albany, cousin of the bridegroom, was best man.

The bride was gowned in cocoa velvet brocaded georgette and carried Columbia roses. Mrs. Tutahll wore chanel peal georgette and carried Columbia roses.

The bride was graduated from the High School of Commerce and has been employed in the office of the Indian Motorcycle Co., Springfield. Mr. Crandall was born in Stonington and received his education in the Stonington and New London schools. He is employed at the Indian Motorcycle Co.

Jones-Brown

At St. Mary's Memorial church, Wednesday morning, Miss Anna Marie Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Brown of No. 64 Routh street, became the bride of Marvin W. Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Jones of this city. Rev. William A. Keefe, pastor of the church solemnized the marriage in the presence of many relatives and friends of the couple from New London, New York, Providence, New Haven and Boston. Mrs. B. J. Farrell presided at the organ and played the wedding march.

The best man was Joseph Patrick Brown, brother of the bride, and the bridesmaid was Miss Helen Teresa Hollander. The bride was charming in a white satin gown and wore a veil of tulle. She carried white gladioli and asters. The bridesmaid wore robin egg blue georgette, trimmed with silver and hat to match and carried carnations and gladioli. At the home of the brides' parents there was a wedding breakfast and reception.

The groom's gift to his best man was a pair of gold cuff links and a stick pin and the bride presented her bridesmaid a beaded mesh bag. The bride received many beautiful and useful wedding gifts.

Mr and Mrs. Jones left for a wedding tour to New York and Philadelphia and on their return will reside at No. 64 Routh street. They have the best wishes of a host of friends for a happy married life.

Gaffney-Garity

Miss Margaret Ann Garity, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Garity of Main street, Stonington, and James Bernard Gaffney, Jr., of San Francisco, Cal., were married at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning at St. Mary's church, Stonington. Rev. James E. O'Brien solemnized the marriage and celebrated the nuptial high mass.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Honor C. Garity. Arthur J. McNamara of Norwich was best man. The ushers were Paul and Philip McNamara, of Norwich, William Bryer and John Bryer of Stonington.

The bride wore a gown of orchid chiffon with picture hat to match and carried lavender chrysanthemums. The bridesmaid was dressed in peach chiffon with picture hat to correspond and carried yellow chrysanthemums.

A large number of relatives and friends were present, including former pupils of Miss Garity from the Stonington high school, where she had been an instructor in the commercial department during the past few years. Because of the wedding Stonington high school classes did not assemble until 10:30 Wednesday morning.

A breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents and a reception followed. About 35 were at the breakfast.

Mr. and Mrs. Gaffney will make their home in San Francisco. The groom's father, Bernard Baffney, was a former resident of Norwich.

It is folly to marry for beauty, because beauty will not last—and neither will money.

CHIEF STANTON GIVES ADVICE ON FIRST AID IN CHECKING FIRES

First aid is usually associated with the idea of emergency treatment in cases of personal injury, but there is such a thing as first aid in fires which applies to the equipment that can be kept on hand to meet incipient fires.

In connection with the observance of Fire Prevention Week, Chief Howard L. Stanton of the Norwich fire department spoke Wednesday as follows on the subject of First Aid Equipment.

First aid equipment is a very broad subject, and could be made an address of very great length and then not cover all phases of the subject. What would be considered first aid in a home might not be considered first aid in a store or certain types of industries. Yet taken in time the same method employed would result equally as well in one as the other.

Naturally I would say, call the fire department in every instance prior to attempting to extinguish a fire with first aid equipment. Yet under certain conditions where a fire alarm box is located a great distance from the fire, and a telephone is not available, some attempt should be made to extinguish the fire with the expectation that some one would call the fire department.

Any person who reads the causes of fires for twelve months in any city of the country can readily see that not less than 80 per cent of the fires result from carelessness and are preventable. But the fire having occurred first aid must be applied. The careless handling of matches in the home is responsible for many fires and in many cases the loss of life to children is from that cause. I believe that first aid in this case as in most preventable fires is to remove the cause, and if the householders of this country would provide a proper receptacle to hold matches, similar to a small butter crock and keep it on the shelf of kitchen ranges, matches would at least be safe from children as they would not climb on a hot stove to get at them. We read of the safety match, also strike-on-box type of match. The safety of a match occurs after the match is extinguished without damage to life and property.

The people of this country must have matches, but will they ever get to the point of being more careful in the handling of matches. All the carelessness is not from children but from the thoughtless smoker and the indifferent public.

Notwithstanding all the publicity given the public on what to do in case of fire and what to do to avoid fire the loss by fire continues to mount. Last year it was upwards of $550,000,000 with a toll of upwards of 17,000 lives, with as many more injured by fire. In addition to the enormous property loss from fire must be added the cost of maintaining fire departments including the amount of invested in property, equipment and interest which will amount to $500,000,000 more.

It is safe to assume that most industries have first aid equipment, also hotels, hospitals, theatres and many of the larger types of buildings where large number of people are congregated or employed. In the above mentioned types of buildings it is also safe to assume that many are equipped with automatic sprinklers and stand pipes in addition to fire extinguishers of various types and sizes.

First aid equipment in an industry should consist of fire pails, fire extinguishers, either or all of the three types known as 2 1-2 gallon soda and acid type, fire foam and carbon tetrachloride type, backed up with automatic sprinklers and stand pipes with fire hose attached.

In the home, fire extinguishers of an approved type are considered an effective fire aid, and in homes with water under pressure, 50 feet of garden hose has been found very effective in holding a good sized fire until the arrival of the fire department. A number of garden hose attached to a faucet in cellars has been the means of extinguishing many fires around heating systems when discovered by the owners before the arrival of the fire department.

Just so long as the people of this country continue to be indifferent and careless about fire and the causes leading to fires and in some cases actual conflagrations just so long will the fire loss increase and the loss to the increase also.

In the case of forest fires which appear to have been on the increase the past few years, brought about largely by the careless use of matches and dropping of lighted cigarettes, the ones and at these fires is usually first and only aid. Ordinary house brooms, stable brooms, fire extinguishers and five gallon water tanks with single acting pump have been used to good effect where there was no fire department to respond. Fire wardens, assisted by Boy Scouts, have used the above mentioned equipment with success in ordinary forest fires. Fighting forest fires is most unsatisfactory to fire departments on account of lack of water, and I know of no harder work for any person than to put out forest fires with the few available first aid tools and equipment ordinarily used to fight brush and forest fires.

First aid equipment in cities in which the fourth day of July is celebrated in the old-fashioned way by firing crackers, rockets, candles, etc., can consider first aid during the celebration of the Fourth or July or any similar celebration by closing all cellar windows, areaways, etc., where crackers, sparklers, rockets, etc., may be thrown or lodge in a place to start a fire. Or all days in the year owners and occupants of property should be on the alert on the fourth day of July and have all first aid equipment, such as garden hose attached to faucets, fire extinguishers in proper condition, and above all, know the location of the nearest fire alarm box and learn how to send in an alarm. Also do not forget to have the telephone number of the nearest fire station to your property on a card near your telephone at all times.

This address on first aid equipment is largely for the benefit of the householder, small shop keeper, and those interested in certain types of industries not considered extra hazardous. In these days of automatic sprinklers, automatic alarms, stand pipes, fire extinguishers and even to mention fire pails it would appear to most people that the owner would see the value of providing every known safety device to protect life and property from fire in all large buildings of the type already mentioned.

We have lost, to some extent, the old hazard of gasoline stoves, and lace curtains in gas flames, also the dropping of lamps and the explosion of oil heaters and kerosene lamps. All of the above have been largely displaced by electric light and gas cooking ranges which are considered safe if properly installed. With fires caused from lamps dropping and similar fires the old first aid of a rug thrown on the blaze has been the means used to extinguish many fires. I do not know of anything more effectual for first aid for these fires than to smother them with a rug.

The hazard of the electric flat caused by not turning off the current when through using is still with us, as well as dropping matches in dark closets while searching for clothes. Fires from these causes are preventable by householders by exercising a little care and attention.

Many fires might be called seasonable fires for the want of a better name all of which can be extinguished with first aid equipment and I quote a few. Fire officials look for certain types of fires according to the calendar and if a little attention is paid to the following you will not be called upon to use first aid or other aid.

It is now October, so do not burn papers and rubbish on windy days.

During November do not neglect your heater pipes, make them safe.

During May do not hang towels over gas or other ranges.

All of these causes of fires with many others are preventable by a little care and attention. As fires are bound to occur even with all the attention given to prevent them I recommend that the fire department be notified instantly as the first line of defense. Always remember there is a short interval of seconds and perhaps three minutes before the arrival of the fire department in which you may, perhaps, extinguish the fire with any first aid equipment you may possess before the arrival of the fire department.

DIED SUDDENLY AT HIS BROTHER'S HOME

John Dwight Griswold, 56, of Pine Grove, Niantic who until he became almost totally blind four years ago was bookkeeper for the Harvard club, Boston, dropped dead Tuesday afternoon about 1 o'clock at his home. He had been sitting on a front door step when he was stricken by a heart attack and died almost instantly. His body fell to the ground where relatives found him some time later after noting his prolonged absence.

Mr. Griswold was born in East Lyme, No. 2, 1869, and was the son of Sarah J. and the late George F. Griswold. He had been a resident of East Lyme until young manhood when he removed to Boston. He served as bookkeeper for the Harvard club for many years and was compelled to give up his work four years ago when his eyesight failed him. Although practically blind, he made daily trips to Niantic from his home in Pine Grove, and had been suffering only from mild attacks of heart trouble recently.

He is survived by his mother and a brother, George Griswold, also of Pine Grove, with whom he made his home. His wife, Mrs. Annie C. Griswold, died in 1920. A son, Arthur J. Griswold, died 16 years ago.

STATE OFFICERS ATTEND FAITH TRUMBULL MEETING

Two state officers, Mrs. Charles H. Bissell of Southington, state regent, and Miss Katherine Nettleton, of Derby, state vice regent, were guests of Faith Trumbull chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, when it held its first meeting for the season Wednesday afternoon at the Wauregan hotel.

After the regular business of the meeting had been transacted, both the state officers spoke in an especially interesting way. Mrs. Bissell brought much of the spirit and inspiration from the state meeting of the day before in Hartford. This was a notable meeting from the number of distinguished guests, all of whom stressed the same idea, beginning with Governor Trumbull who gave a fine address on the duty of citizenship and the responsibility resting upon each one of us to maintain the ideals and historic traditions which are the foundation of our government. He emphasized the fact that voting is a duty instead of a privilege. Other speakers also led up to the afternoon address by Rev. Mr. Archibald, who showed that true patriotism must be founded upon real Christian character.

Mrs. Bissell emphasized the importance of the constitution of these United States. No one can be a really intelligent voter without knowing what the constitution says. It is the heart and life of our nation. It is no small thing to be a voter in the world's greatest republic. Each person has her individual part to play in the government and here each one is on an equal footing and responsibility. We all pledge allegiance to our flag and by casting our vote we give our support to that flag and to the republic for which it stands. By failing to vote, we are false to our pledge.

But we cannot play the game of government unless we know the rules. The constitution teaches us the rules. It is our only safeguard and insidious forces are at work trying to undermine it. Especially is it the duty of an organization with the D. A. R.'s heritage to be awake to the perils of peace and to preserve this country today as well as their ancestors did in the days of long ago.

Miss Katherine Nettleton, state vice regent, spoke briefly concerning the second chairs in Constitution hall in Washington. In order to raise further funds the national board has decided upon a new plan by selling the 4,000 seats, one more to every local chapter each to be suitably inscribed with the name of the purchaser. Miss Nettleton, as the Connecticut state chairman of finances, said she hoped Faith Trumbull chapter would come to the front again and purchase one or more chairs in the name of the chapter.

Before the regular meeting of Faith Trumbull chapter there was a luncheon and a reception in the hotel ballroom for the chapter members and their two guests. The company was seated at small tables, except for the board of management, who, with their guests, occupied a long table at the head of the room. The luncheon arrangements were in charge of Mrs. Dorcas M. Lester.

The chapter regent, Mrs. William H. Hayden, called the business meeting to order at 3 o'clock and the usual reports were made by the officers.

For the programme committee, Mrs. H. W. Gallup presented the year's programme in printed form—the Chapter Year-Book—and a vote of thanks to the committee was passed for its work in preparing the book.

In making her report for the museum committee, Mrs. W. Tyler Browne spoke of gifts received for the museum and the great need for room to display the collection adequately. The museum has been kept open an hour during the summer, two afternoons a week.

Miss Helen P. Browning's report for the ways and means committee showed about $175 earned from a number of bridge parties given during the year.

Mrs. Frank I. Reed, for the patriotic education committee, called attention to the exhibit of the manual for immigrants printed in 15 languages with an explanatory poster. This had been placed in a window at the Lee & Osgood Co. store for a few days and then in the Otis library for a time.

Mrs. Harry E. Higgins presented some figures in her report for the membership committee. Mrs. Arthur H. Lathrop reported for the flag committee. Mrs. Ella Belle Kelly for the magazine committee. Mrs. E. Allen Bliss for the Revolutionary soldiers' committee and Mrs. Daniel M. Lester for the committee on conservation.

For Choice of membership in the National society D. A. R. were presented the three new members, Mrs. Hildreth Graham, Mrs. Robert Montgomery and Miss Clara M. Armitage.

Mrs. Graham, chairman of the program committee, called attention to the exhibit of old silver and pewter, arranged by the chapter members, a most interesting display.

Mrs. Frank L. Reed, vice chairman of the year's committee, spoke of the annual get-together meeting, and urged all members of the chapter to vote.

During the afternoon Mrs. Charles Reed Bond, for whom Miss Annie E. Young was accompanist, sang most charmingly the following four songs, two of them being encore numbers: Open Door to Kew, Carl Dels; Colors, Edgar P. Newcomb; At Dawning, Charles W. Cadman; Until You Came, John W. Metcalf.

SIGNED CHECKS, PAPERS WITHOUT KNOWING WHY

She signed on the dotted line—checks, notes, bills of sale and contracts—but she did not know what for, or why and was only the dummy under which the Manchester Auto Supply company conducted its business. This was the case of Edna C. Marsh, who with her husband, Walter D. Marsh, and her brother, Andrew Edward Crawford of Manchester, is defendant in a suit brought by the State Finance company of New London and heard in the court of common pleas Wednesday at Hartford by Judge Thomas J. Molloy.

The State Finance company is trying to recover about $1,500 it claims it has paid out in a financing deal with the Manchester Auto Supply company, which was or was not some sort of a partnership between the Marshs and Crawford—a question for the court to decide.

Testimony in court was that the money taken in by the Manchester Auto Supply company was deposited in the bank in Mrs. Marsh's name, and all the checks drawn were signed by her, as an individual. She signed whatever her husband told to to, and she could not tell the purpose of a $200 check for her brother.

Louise and Isabel Ayers were of one mind that Mrs. Marsh was only a dummy in the deals but she was left in as a defendant because it was she and she alone, who had made the misrepresentations by her signature as proprietor of the business.

TONS OF COAL LOST. ON FISHERS ISLAND WHARF

A section of the wharf owned by the Fishers Island Farms, Fishers Island, on which a coal pocket was located, collapsed Tuesday night, causing the loss of approximately 100 tons of anthracite and 100 tons of bituminous coal. F. G. C. Hine, superintendent of the farms said that the piling under the pocket was weak and that the weight of the coal caused the collapse. It had been the intention to remove the pocket after the coal contained in it had been used, and repairs were to have been made to the section of the wharf which collapsed Tuesday night.

BISHOP OF LONDON TO VISIT CONNECTICUT

Right Reverend Arthur F. Winnington Ingram, lord bishop of London, who will visit selected American colleges and universities during October and November, will be in New England from Oct. 15 to 21. During that time his itinerary will be in charge of President Remsen B. Ogilby of Trinity college. During his tour, Bishop Ingram will make formal addresses at each college he visits, but will spend most of his time in informal contact with undergraduates, both individually and in groups. He is now in British Columbia and will begin his tour on the Pacific coast.

His New England schedule calls for his arrival in Boston Friday, Oct. 15, where he will remain as the guest of Bishop LAwrence of Massachusetts until Monday, Oct. 18. He will spend most of his time in Boston at Harvard university but will also visit other colleges and universities in and around Boston.

On Monday Bishop Ingram will go to Providence and spend that night at Brown university, leaving there Tuesday morning, Oct. 19, for Hartford and Trinity college, where he will be the guest of President Ogilby until Thursday, Oct. 21.

Trinity has advanced the date of its historic matriculation day exercises, which are usually held on the first Monday in November, to Wednesday, Oct. 20, and Bishop Ingram will be the speaker, Thursday, Oct. 21, the bishop will motor to New Haven for a day at Yale university, following which he will return to New York.

The bishop is an enthusiastic golfer and tennis player and during his longer stops, at Harvard and Trinity, will be entertained at various golf and country clubs, according to present plans.

PRIMARY COUNCIL NAMES HOSTESSES FOR SEASON

The Primary council held the first meeting of the school year at Broadway school Tuesday evening. Supper was served under the direction of the president, Miss Jennie Congdon, assisted by the other officers. At the business meeting following the supper hostesses were chosen for the remaining suppers, and suggestions given for the meetings. Notice was given of a meeting of the Eastern Connecticut Kindergarten Primary association to be held in New London Thursday, October 7, at which Marcus White of the New Britain Normal school will speak on "The Old and the New." A lecture by Angelo Patri, to be held under the auspices of the Norwich Teachers league early in December was also announced.

The programme of the evening consisted of a talk by Miss Bessie Grant who gave a very interesting account of a trip to the Sesqui-Centennial exposition.

GHOST BRIDGE, GOSHEN, READY FOR OPENING

The Bulletin's Goshen correspondent writes:

It is expected that the new concrete bridge, formerly known as Ghost bridge, will be opened for traffic both ways Saturday. This new bridge has a width of 30 feet and a 60-foot span over the Tantic river. It is a handsome and substantial piece of engineering skill and workmanship.

The finishing of the new bridge brings to mind a paragraph in The Norwich Bulletin of local news that James M. Peckham of this place was the first one with his team to cross the new iron bridge just built, nearly 50 years ago.

A bungalow on Bushnell road in Potter Manor, with two extra lots, has been sold by Annie R. Waddington to Herbert and Jane E. Rennard. They will occupy it for their residence.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Bad Cold? Take "Cascarets" for Bowels Tonight

No headache, constipation, bad cold or sour stomach by morning

Get a 10-cent box.

Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, head and nose clogged up with a cold—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months.

RUTH LEADS YANKEES TO SMASHING VICTORY OVER CARDS TO EVEN SERIES

World's Champion Long Distance Slugger Smashes Seven Series Records With His Three Home Runs—Hornsby Uses Five Pitchers in Vain Effort to Check Yankee Onslaught—Both Teams Get 14 Hits, But Cards Are Unable to Make Them Count—Another Record Crowd Sees One of the Most Weird Games in Series History.

(By Alan J. Gould)

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6—(AP)—Babe Ruth led the Yankees out of the Missouri woods today with the greatest exhibition of home run hitting any world's series has ever seen.

Three battering-ram blows from the Babe's mighty bludgeon cleared all barriers and set fire to a Yankee attack that crushed the Cardinals by a score of 10 to 5 in the fourth game of the world's championship baseball battle. As a result the series is deadlocked again at two victories apiece, with the fifth game here tomorrow.

Today was a field day for Ruth, the greatest he has ever had in world's series competition and one of the most spectacular of his career. His three terrific homers not only lifted the Yankees out of their slump but figured in the shattering of seven world's series records.

Another record crowd, a jam that numbered 39,825, came in the expectation of seeing the Cardinals continue their winning streak. Instead, they saw Ruth lead an onslaught that started in the first inning and continued unabated through a hectic fray in which five Cardinal pitchers paraded to the mound. They saw Babe at the peak of his glory.

At the finish, the Cardinal rooters had become so aroused that they yelled for Ruth to make a fourth homer when he came to the bat in the eighth and booed Hallahan, St. Louis pitcher, when the latter walked the Yankee slugger.

Nothing like the Babe's clouting has ever been seen in baseball's classic. His first two circuit clouts came in the first and third innings, each time off the first ball pitched by Flint Rhem. The young Cardinal right hander tried a fast curve in the opening frame and the Babe lofted it high over the upper deck of the right field grandstand. In the third inning, Rhem shifted to a slow ball of the variety that had been poison to Ruth previously in the series but the Babe nailed it and drove it on a line far out over the roof of the right field bleachers.

No one was on base to benefit from either of these clouts but Earl Combs was on first when Ruth slammed out his third homer off Bell in the sixth inning. The count was three and two this time as Bell worked cautiously on the Yankee star, but the Cardinal twirler made the mistake of trying to slip a fast one over the plate. Ruth took a toe hold and smashed the ball on a line and high into the spectators in the center field bleachers. It was the most resounding whack of the three and established a long distance record for Sportsman park.

There were other factors in the Yankee victory and the Cardinal downfall beside Ruth's hitting but the Babe so dominated the conflict that little else remained conspicuous.

Waite Hoyt, twirling for the Yankees, was also hit hard, yielding as many blows as did five Cardinal flingers—fourteen—but he was at his best in the pinches.

Hoyt might have escaped with less damage but for an error in the fourth inning by Mark Koenig, erratic Yankee shortstop, who fumbled O'Farrell's grounder with an easy double play in sight that would have ended the inning. Taking advantage of this "break" the Cardinals rallied to score three runs on doubles by Thevenow and Douthit and a single by Southworth, wiping out the lead which the Yankees had gained through Ruth's first two home runs.

Flint Rhem, who had been pounded for four innings, yielded to a pinch hitter in the Cardinal's big rally but his successor, Arthur Reinhart, immediately tossed away his team's advantage with a wild brand of southpaw slinging.

Reinhart walked four Yankees, including Ruth in the fifth, and permitted a double by Koenig before passing out of the picture. Two runs had crossed the plate and no one was out when Hornsby summoned Herman Bell, who issued another pass and contributed a balk while two more runs rushed over.

After that Hoyt twirled brilliantly, holding the Cardinals easily in check until the ninth when they manufactured their final run on singles by Hornsby and Lester Bell, mixed with Bottomley's infield out. The Yankee pitching star struck out eight men of the Red Birds, including Hornsby twice.

Bell lasted through the sixth, in which Ruth's third homer, following Combs' single produced two more runs. Bill Hallahan, another southpaw, was touched for the final run in the seventh. Severeid crossing the plate on his single. Hoyt's sacrifice and Combs' double. Vic Keen, fifth Cardinal pitcher, held the New Yorkers scoreless in the ninth.

In the fourth inning Douthit and Hafey, Cardinal outfielders, collided while on full chase after Dugan's short fly. Both players were stretched out cold after the impact but they revived quickly and seemed none the worse for their mishap afterward.

WORLD'S SERIES SIDELIGHTS

Rhem started off like a house afire in the first inning. He was touched up himself by the first batter he faced, Combs, and then Koenig, the Cardinals' pet Bunk hunter, tripled. Meusel, Gehrig, followed with a single and "Lanky Bab" caught at the plate for the third out.

Urban Shocker was rushed out to greeted Hoyt with three successive singles in the first inning but Waite settled down after one run had clattered across. He struck out Hafey with runners on second and third.

Rabbit's first homer and Lazzeri's two bagger in the bleacher wall in far left center and was within a few feet of being a home run.

The Yankee coaching program was in full flush in the 8th inning when four runs were scored on one hit, Reinhart and Herman Bell, the two Cardinal pitchers in the box in this session issued five passes and Bell contributed a balk. Three of the Yankee team came to bat and the scorers were busy.

When Lazzeri and Hafey collided going after Dugan's fly in the fourth inning both took the count. Apparently they were the victims of the wooden bowler's toe Douthit came right back to work out a homer at the plate in the next play, while Hafey capped the climax of his turmoil by being forgotten later.

"BIG THREE" CONFERENCE NOT FOR PUBLIC

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 6—(AP)—Behind closed doors the athletic representatives of Yale Harvard and Princeton met here to smooth over football differences of the "big three" conference.

The conference was attended by Professor C. H. Nettleton, chairman of the board in control of the Yale athletic association; Paul J. Kennedy, director of athletics at Princeton and William J. Bingham, director of athletics and chairman of the committee on athletic sports at Harvard.

The "big three" meeting was held at the home of Prof. Nettleton and all the questions discussed and decided on were reported to be of a closely guarded secret.

Yale, according to officials at the university had no troubles to settle with the other members of the "big three," and it was said that the conference, principally of interest to Harvard and Princeton, was held here merely because it was a central point and regarded as neutral territory. Yale's biggest interest in the meeting it was said, was a desire to prevent a break, if possible in the relations that have bound together the three large colleges of the east.

It was expected here that the principal topic of discussion at the conference tonight would concern the report never confirmed as Harvard officials, that the Crimson 1927 football schedule would show that Princeton had been dropped and the University of Michigan substituted. Harvard a year ago broke off relations with Princeton so far as freshman athletic contests are concerned.

It was expected also that the recent agreement reached between Yale and Princeton which puts an end to all scouting before the Yale-Princeton game would be taken up at the conference.

TWO DROPPED FROM YALE FOOTBALL SQUAD

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 6—(AP)—Two of the most prominent candidates for the Yale varsity football are out of the game for the balance of the season because of scholastic disqualifications, it became known today.

They are Rip Ordway of Winchester, Mass., and Max Eddy of Middlebury, Vt.

Ordway was the star halfback on the freshman team two years ago and dropped back to the freshman class last year where he was ineligible for either freshman or varsity athletics. He is just under the mark required to make him eligible for varsity football this fall.

Eddy was looked upon as one of the best tackles on this years squad. He was regular tackle on the freshman team a year ago.

LOCAL BASEBALL INTEREST IN TAFTVILLE-ALL-STARS GAME

Local interest in baseball centers on the Taftville A. A.—Faber's All-Stars at the Providence street grounds on Saturday afternoon. Taftville has been playing brilliant baseball all season and Manager Troland is not letting down in the least for this game with Joe Faber's team. From all indications Faber has a fast team having beaten Henry L. Ushram's Moosup club which is no small feat. Faber for Saturday's game will in all probability put his teammate of the York Fa... club, Johnny Tillman, on the mound.

Who Troland will use on the mound is not certain but it can be depended upon that he will have a pitcher who is the equal of Tillman. The management of the Taftville team will endeavor to have radio returns of the world's series game at New York at the field.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6—(AP)—(By Charles W. Dunkley)—There were no moans and groans seeping under the door of the Yankees' dressing room after today's victory. Instead, there was much hilarity and back-slapping, with Babe Ruth hugely enjoying the whacks on his shoulders.

Miller Huggins, the Yankees' leader, broke down and confessed he made a perfectly sensible prediction yesterday to the effect that when the Yanks started hitting, things would be different.

As the Yanks collected 14 hits today, within one of the total they managed to collect in the three previous games, Huggins considered his prediction was absolutely right.

Furthermore he feels the lacing the Cardinals assumed today has broken their spirit and that the Yanks will breeze into the championship. The edge, he believes, now belongs to the Yanks.

Pennock for the Yankees

"My statement that when our club started to hit word start to win seems to have come true" Huggins said. "I look to see the boys keep the hitting up in the next two or three games. If they do, we can't miss winning the championship. I shall send Herb Pennock at them tomorrow. He is right after a good rest since beating the Cardinals n. New York last Saturday. He held them to three hits in that game. I look for him to repeat tomorrow."

Ruth worked to snatch from "By-By Rhem" a well coming trip to three others. The other players scampered to their stations. The Bambino was on base when he came up. He was prompt to the plate, and on the first pitch came across with a feat never before equaled in world's series.

Some one called attention to the ball homer saying that it travelled a record breaking distance of nearly 600 feet.

"Boy, that was a darling." Ruth proudly exclaimed. His face broke into a huge grin.

The Babe was so busy autographing the three balls he hit for homers and other balls shoved at him that he was unable to get one farther in dressing than pulling on his underwear. Ruth wrote his signature on the three balls shooting them number 1, number 2 and number 3 in the order in which they were hit.

Hornsby Has No Alibi

The Cardinal dressing room was like a tomb. The players dressed in silence. Rogers Hornsby, the Cardinal manager, sat on a corner bench, head in hand and handled out.

Hornsby was the only man to offer excuses for the Cardinals' defeat. He said both pitchers were right. He was referring to Reinhart who went in at the start of the game, passed and walked four and was replaced by a two-bagger before he was canned.

"The only thing I can say is to admit that we were badly pitched game. Herman Bell and Reinhart usually are good," said Hornsby. "Reinhart usually has good control. Something was wrong with him in there today. He couldn't put a game over.

"The Cardinals played good ball otherwise. We were on even terms with the Yanks in batting in fielding we were stronger. It was a tough break for Douthit and Hafey to come together. Looks like a rib injury for both of them were not seriously hurt.

"That's the way it goes sometimes. We are going to defeats and a victory and get the league leadership right out of the league leadership right at the end of the season and I don't see why we can't."

"Well, well come back tomorrow.

Alexander or Sherdel.

"I expect to pitch Alexander, Sherdel or Haines," Hornsby said. "Alexander pitched well last Sunday. He also put us back in the race after Cincinnati stopped us—and beat the Reds after resting only three days."

LOCAL FANS RECALL WHEN CARDINALS PLAYED HERE

On May 22, 1921 the St. Louis Cardinals played at the Norwich Fair grounds against the local Knights of Columbus and during the present series local fans having been recalling that game. In that game only three players now with the National league champions were on the diamond. They were Hornsby, Haines, Hornsby and Toporcer all of whom played Hornsby playing second and short while Haines played three innings in the outfield and Toporcer three innings at short.

The players who participated in the game were Doak, Mann, Janvrin, Fournier, Schup, Stock, Hornsby, Haines, Schultz, McHenry, Toporcer, Lavan, Clemens, Dillhoefer, North and Revere.

WINNING PLAYERS TO RECEIVE $6,254.65 EACH

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6—(AP)—As world series records were broken right and left today, the players of the St. Louis Cardinals and New York Yankees were assured that another record will be broken when they receive their reward.

If the players' portion of the world series pool is divided into 25 parts, the winning players will get $6,254.65 while on the same basis the losers will receive $4,129.76. The players themselves fix the division of their spoils. There may be more than 25 shares.

The players share of the receipts, limited to the first four games, amounts to $372,300.51. Seventy per cent. of this goes to the world's series contenders divided on a 60-40 basis, with the other 20 per cent split among players on clubs finishing second, third and fourth in the rival pennant races, of the world's series teams share, $156,366.21 goes to the winning team and $104,244.14 to the loser.

The largest individual player shares before the record breaking 1926 series was in 1923 when the first four games of the series between the Yankees and Giants drew $366,733.04 and a winning Yankee getting $6,142.49 and each losing Giant $4,112.89.

With the series deadlocked, the players still have a considerable financial interest in the games despite the fact that they are not playing for future receipts. The difference between the winners' and losers' end will be more than $2,200.

YESTERDAY'S GAME HOLDS INTEREST OF LOCAL FANS

The Yankee victory of Wednesday came as something of a surprise to a large number of Cardinal supporters and as the same time revived the hopes of the local Yankee supporters. The crowds that have been listening to the world's series this year have been smaller than in years previous. This not attributed to any falling off in interest in baseball but here as in many parts of the country it is credited to the increase in the number of radios that are privately owned.

Even in New York, the home town of the Yankees, there has been hardly any interest taken in the player leagues and other announcing devices. The crowd that assembled in front of the Bulletin office on Wednesday was dismayed a St. Louis crowd during the first part of the game, but as the tide of battle swung toward the Yanks the local crowd swung with it. On the other days the crowd has been mostly of a Cardinal flavor. It was a weird game but it held the interest as closely as any game of the series. However, today is another day, and the series is deadlocked at 2-all.

SKINNER SUBSTITUTE FOR MURPHY AGAINST MUNN

NEW YORK, Oct. 6—(AP)—Archie Skinner of Boston today was signed to take the place of Jimmy Murphy, veteran heavyweight, as an opponent for Mont Munn in a six round bout at Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Change in the card was required by the New York state athletic commission, which held that Murphy was overmatched.

The Munn-Skinner bout will be preliminary to three ten-round heavyweight contests putting the German champion, Franz Diener, against Jessie Hansen; Alex Bell, South American titleholder, against Jimmy Delaney of St. Paul, and Jack Delaney of New York against Young Bob Fitzsimmons of Nutley N. J.

NEW CHAMPION IS BEATEN IN SECOND MATCH

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6—(AP)—Mrs. G. Henry Stetson, recently crowned women's national golf champion, was defeated in the second round of the Bethlehem Cup tournament at the Huntingdon Valley Country club here today by Miss Edith Cummer, defender of the trophy, 3 and 2. Both are members of the Huntingdon Valley club.

Mrs. Stetson's remarkable putting and chipping, which were largely responsible for her winning the national last week and the medal in the present tournament, fell off somewhat today and she could not withstand the steady stream of pars by Miss Cummer, who was one stroke under women's par for the 16-holes of the match.

Miss Cummer, who is the second player with a work [illegible] reigning golf champion, was twice champion of the Central Pennsylvania association, and won the cup last year.

In the other matches, favorites advanced without extreme effort, Miss Glenna Collett, Providence, former national champion, winning over Mrs. Roland H. Barlow, veteran Philadelphian, 3 and 2, and Miss Virginia Wilson, of Chicago, who beat Miss Colbert in the national last week, defeated Mrs. Thomas Cochran, Philadelphia, 4 and 3. In the other second round match Miss Helen Meehen, Philadelphia, defeated Mrs. Raymond Slotter, also of Philadelphia, 5 and 4.

WORTH MAKES HOLE-IN-ONE AT NORWICH GOLF CLUB

Joseph C. Worth has joined that select and much envied organization, the hole-in-one club. Mr. Worth qualified for membership in this most exclusive club on last Sunday when he drove off the 11th tee and his ball soared out into space and came to rest in the cup on the 11th green.

Those who have played over the Norwich course know that the 11th hole is a blind hole near the edge of a brook and 185 yards from the tee. The tee is located on the hill far enough back from the brow so that it is impossible to see the green. The wind club is an iron but on Sunday Mr. Worth drove with a wood driver.

CUBS EVEN SERIES WITH THE WHITE SOX

CHICAGO, Oct. 6—(AP)—The Cubs won today's game of the Chicago City series from the White Sox 4 to 1, making necessary a seventh game which will be played tomorrow at Cubs park, to decide the title.

The White Sox sent their hurling ace Ted Lyons to the mound, but the Cubs took kindly to his offerings and scored four runs before Thomas relieved him.

Perce Lee Jones the National league's left handed star was master of the situation throughout. Although in the eighth inning he walked Steely White Sox slugging first baseman, and scored in the American league team's only run.

RUTH M. CHENEAULT KEEPS UP HER FAST PACE

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 6—(AP)—Ruth M. Cheneault, ... season's leading two year old filly, kept her state record for the year still by her season by winning the Kentucky May day stakes, straight heats. This was her tenth straight victory and brought her winnings to $8,500 in round figures. She was owned and is trained by C. E. Shaffer of Lexington, and Chicago.

A bad spill occurred in the second heat of the Ashland stake in which Sande Welsh, jockey on Cly fell near the quarter and Poppa, driven by Ben White, went over them. Both drivers were taken to a hospital.

SEVEN HITTING RECORDS BROKEN BY BABE RUTH

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6—(AP)—Seven new world's series records were put on the books tonight by sluggers who helped the Yankees to their victory over the Cardinals today.

1—Most homers for one game, 3, breaking former mark of 2 held jointly by Harry Hooper of Red Sox, Benny Kauff of Giants and Ruth.

2—Most homers, total series, 7, breaking old record of six, set by Goose Goslin in 1924 and 1925. Ruth hit one homer in 1921 and three in 1926.

3—Most total bases in one game, 12, breaking mark of 9 set up by Hooper in 1915.

4—Most extra bases, one game, 9, breaking former record of six, held jointly by Ruth, Kauff and Hooper.

5—Most runs, one game, four, breaking record first made by Mike Donlin with Giants in 1905 and equalled by many others.

The seventh and final record for one club's total bases in a single game was set by the Yankees, whose 34 hits totalled for 28 bases, eclipsing the mark of 27 made by the Giants in 1921.

WORLD'S SERIES RETURNS AT BULLETIN CO. OFFICE

As has been customary for many years the play by play returns of the World's Series games at New York and St. Louis will be announced at the Bulletin office by megaphone. The Associated Press service direct from the Yankee Stadium and the National league park at St. Louis will be more complete this year than ever before.

The games are scheduled to start at 2:30 p. m. daily and the play by play account will cover every ball pitched and every playing incident and will be supplemented by a description of the high spots during the game.

ATTENTION, BOWLERS!

Members of the I. O. O. F., No. 17, from Mystic went to New London Tuesday evening and several members of the encampment here joined the Odd Fellows at the waiting room. The trip was made by automobile.

Mrs. Horace Sheldon of Hope Valley is visiting local relatives.

Mrs. Mary Luce is visiting relatives in New York.

Benjamin Fish and men are engaged in painting the Methodist church.

Mrs. Duncan Chelson is visiting her brother, Benjamin Fish of Prospect Hill.

Game Warden Chris Culver of Groton, was in the village Tuesday.

The Pioneer club held a meeting at the club room on East Main street. After the meeting a smoker, wrestling matches and boxing were put on.

Cigars were distributed and hot dogs, cake and coffee were furnished by Steward Neil Morrison.

While the ice man was unloading ice at Noank packing house, A. Morrison was nearby when a cake weighing 200 pounds slipped from the man and went about 10 feet. It broke Mr. Morrison's cane which saved him from getting hurt. It was the largest cake of ice taken into the village this summer, the size used for the fishing boats where the men are out for two or three days.

Neil Robertson has returned after a visit in Occum with relatives.

William Franklin has left for a few weeks visit in Baltimore, with relatives.

The Crushers Football team cleared $30 dollars on their whist and dance held recently. The committee was Hubert Ellis, George Deveau and Jack Steele. Next week another whist and dance will be held in D. of V. hall by the football team.

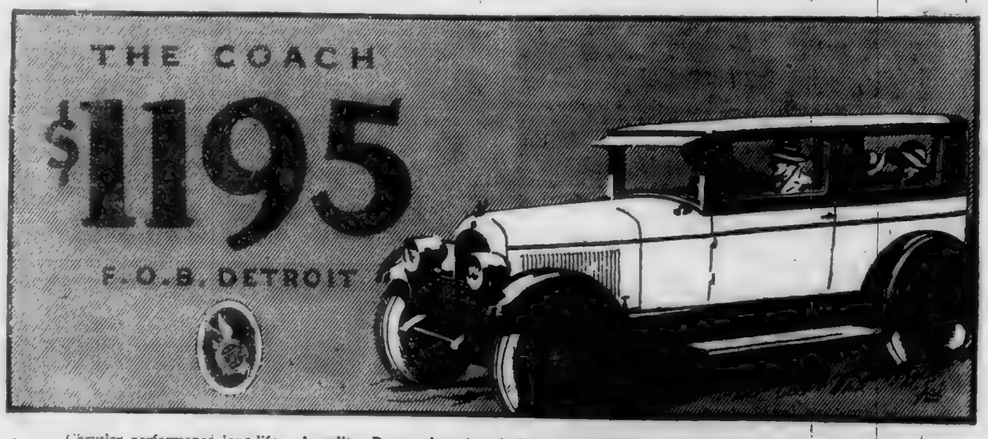
TRYING to compare the Chrysler "60" with an ordinary type of Six is like trying to compare two totally different things.

There can be no comparative measure of value, for instance, between the Chrysler "60", with its sixty-mile-and-more-per-hour capacity, and another car offering much less.

Just as sharply defined is the difference in the comfort of these sixty Chrysler-miles and the lesser speed and the less easeful speed of the other.

The vital factor which makes greater value in Chrysler "60" has its source in the-one-thing-which-cannot-be-copied—Chrysler creative engineering and precision manufacturing as expressed in the plan of Standardized Quality.

In the Chrysler "60" it expresses itself especially in qualities which stand out so sharply that you cannot mistake them—the most beautiful riding and handling qualities you have ever experienced, a most amazing agility, and a gushing wealth of power that never halts or hesitates for a single second.



Chrysler performance, long life and quality. Roomy, luxurious bodies with beautiful Mohair upholstery in enclosed models. Attractive new color harmonies. Sixty miles, and more, per hour. THE WORLD'S FAVORITE SMOKE-WORDS "HAVE A CAMEL"

Did you ever notice that experienced smokers will offer or ask for a Camel—not just a cigarette? A little observation will reveal the overwhelming preference for Camels—a popularity that has never been equaled in all the history of smoking.

More smokers demand Camels, because Camel is unlike any other cigarette made.

Camel is as different as the rare quality of goodness. This difference costs millions to maintain. The choicest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos grown . . . the most skilful blending—that is Camels. More cannot be had at any price. When you light a Camel, you may be sure you are smoking the best.

When invited to have the world's favorite cigarette, accept with pleasure. It will be your personal introduction to the mildest, mellowest blend of choice tobaccos ever produced. "Have a Camel!"

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Danny Watches a Fisherman

Patience is a virtue fine.
Alas, I wish that it were mine.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

When Danny Meadow Mouse escaped from Jim the Fish Crow he felt that he had learned a lesson. "It doesn't do to take too much for granted," said he. "No sir, it doesn't do to take too much for granted. I certainly thought that was Blacky the Crow, but when I had a chance to really use my eyes I could see the difference. That fellow isn't quite so big as Blacky. And when I think it over, his voice isn't quite the same. My, I must watch out, or I'll be getting into trouble one of these days. Now supposing that fellow had caught me." Danny shivered at the thought.

By and by he came to a low place on the bank of the creek. He saw Peep the Least Sandpiper and a lot of his friends running around. Danny stopped to watch them a few minutes. Just beyond him there was an old stick standing in the water. At least Danny took it for a stick. He nearly lost his balance and fell in the mud when that stick suddenly came to life.

"Oh, my eye!" exclaimed Danny under his breath. "It's Longlegs the Great Blue Heron. I've seen him at the Smiling Pool and I know. He's caught Slippery Slim the Eel. Well, Slipper Slim will slip down that long neck a good deal easier than I would."

Danny was right. It was Longlegs the Great Blue Heron and he had caught a small eel. It disappeared head first down that long neck of his.

and then Longlegs resumed his fishing.

Now the secret of success in fishing is to be patient. Every fisherman knows this. You can't go after fish; you have got to wait for the fish to come to you. Longlegs learned this as soon as he was big enough to wet his toes in the water. So he settled himself with his head drawn back between his shoulders until he didn't look like a bird at all. At a distance he looked like one of the weather-gray stakes which were driven in the mud here and there along the creek. Danny settled himself to watch. "I'm going to sit here until he catches another fish, if it takes the rest of the afternoon," said Danny to himself.

The Sandpipers ran this way and that all around Longlegs. He didn't pay any attention to them. No, sir, he didn't. You never would have guessed he was alive. He simply stood there on those long legs of his, as if there were no such thing as fish, or birds, or anything else.

"He's asleep," said Danny. "He's asleep. I could run right under his bill and he never would see me. It's a funny place to go to sleep, right out there in the open. Oh!"

Longlegs had suddenly darted that long neck of his forward to its full length. His great bill had smashed down into the water. It was done so quickly that Danny rubbed his eyes to see if it really had been done. It had! Up came that head, and a silvery fish was tossed in the air. As it turned it came down head first and disappeared down Longlegs' long throat. Then Longlegs, stretched to his full height, looked this way, looked that way, and spread his great wings, said "Quawk" tucked his head and neck back on his shoulders until he looked as if he hadn't any head at all, and away he flew with his long legs trailing out behind him. So Danny learned how patience is rewarded.

UNCASVILLE

A union service held at the Methodist church Sunday evening opened with singing of hymns by the choir and congregation and Scripture reading by Miss Daniels, pastor of Mohegan church. A solo was sung by Miss Jane Nield, followed by a trio by Miss Doris Johnson, Mrs. Aston and Hubert Dart. An interesting sermon was preached by Rev. Mr. Barnes of the Montville Center Congregational church. The church was beautifully decorated with dahlias from Waterman F. Brown's dahlia farm. The fourth in these union services will be held in the Montville Center Congregational church November 14.

Miss Caroline Parker entertained the Social Union at her home recently. The regular meeting was held and sewing was done, after which a dainty lunch was served by Miss Parker, assisted by her niece, Mrs. Edward Beard. Thirteen were present.

A clam chowder supper was served September 30 at the Montville Center Congregational church. The entire supper was in charge of the men of the church.

The Woman's Board of Missions of the Congregational church is to hold a meeting at the Mohegan church October 7, in the morning at 11.30 and in the afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Trouble has been experienced by lot holders in Comstock cemetery on account of someone making a practice of tearing up plants and carrying off flower pots which have been placed in the lots. There are several boys in the village who are getting control of the younger boys, egging them on to stealing and other mischief and it is hoped that steps will be taken to stop their leadership before they do more serious damage.

Officers and members of Owenoco chapter Number 104 Order of the Eastern Star of Montville went to Wallingford, Sept. 25 to attend Grand Master's day. The trip was made by bus. The Masonic home was visited during the afternoon also the new hospital connected with it. Those in the party were, Mrs. Huber Dart, Worthy Matron, Huber Dart, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hope, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dolbeare, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ramage, Mr. and Mrs Benjamin Lamparen, Mr. and Mrs Truman Keyes, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Johnson, Mrs. Fred Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Bolles, Mrs. Cowan, Mrs. John Home, Mrs. Minnie Johnson, Mrs. J. Y. Miller, Miss Alice Ramage, Mrs. Everett Chapman, Mrs. William Brown, Frank Richard, Mrs. Anna Dart.

Albert Jerome of Plainfield was a town Sunday.

Everett L. Starr and daughter Barbara of Providence were guests of Mrs. Mary E. Starr over the week-end.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c and 60c.

THE NEW HOUR AND A HALF

STATION-TO-STATION toll telephone rates now start to decrease at 7 o'clock instead of 8:30 in the evening. During the new hour and a half from 7:00 P. M. to 8:30 P. M. a decrease of 25% of the day rate is in effect. A second decrease at 8:30 P. M. makes the rate from 8:30 P. M. to 4:30 A. M. about 50% of the day rate. These discounts apply where the day Station-to-Station rate is 40 cents or more, with a minimum reduced rate of 35 cents.

These two decreases, one at 7 P. M. and the other at 8:30 P. M., give an excellent opportunity for the wide-awake toll user to save money. Toll telephone service carries your voice quickly, naturally, and accurately over the wire.

Whether for business, social, or family conversation, let the telephone bridge the gap.

BACKUS HOSPITAL AUXILIARY

The Backus hospital closed its year on September 30th, so October first sees the beginning of a new year. The year has been an unusually busy one and it has seen the beginning of a greater and more perfect instrument of health for Norwich. The new residence for nurses, opened in November was the beginning of the enlargement of the plant. Now, "Isolation" has been put in first class condition and the new maternity wing which is being remodeled from the old nurses' home, is progressing in its reconstruction. The hospital may look forward with confidence to greater service during the coming year. Surely, enthusiasm and a desire to help this splendid work is growing among the friends of the institution and a renewed interest is seen throughout the community.

At present there are 60 patients at the Backus hospital, and the entering class of nurses is the largest for many years. During the summer the girls have had the use of two bath houses at Ocean Beach, provided by the nurses recreation committee of the Women's auxiliary, and now, through the same agency a tennis court is in process of construction on the grounds and a golf club is being formed among the nurses.

The Women's auxiliary has not been able during the summer months. Food, linen, flowers, magazines, books and many other gifts have found their way to the hospital through these channels. While the management is grateful for these gifts, they wish to stress the need of a constant supply of these articles and hope that the house cleaning and preserving season may remind housekeepers of the needs of their great family. The cupboard shelves are empty and must be filled with old linen and cotton. This demand is constant and anyone who can give soft old cloth to the hospital is making a real contribution. If Mrs. J. Edward Dobson, telephone 57, is called up, she will see that the articles are carried to the hospital's store rooms. Jelly, jams, fruits are all asked for, and the magazine committee wishes to add to their books and current magazines. Pictured magazines, light stories and flowers keep many a weary hour and are gratefully received by the patients. Mrs. Charles Stewart will be glad to gather magazines and carry them to the hospital, if notified and Mrs. Joseph Cunningham, chairman of the flower committee which has provided garden flowers all summer, will be ready to see that flowers find their way to wards or private floors.

Those who during the summer have given flowers, magazines, records and linen are listed as follows: The Palace theatre, Mr. Pettis, Mr. Harrison and Mr. Cross of Hanover, Mrs. Albert Comstock, Mrs. Amy Frink, Mrs. C. H. Osgood, Mrs. Z. R. Robbins, Stanley Gladioli farm, Mrs. Richard Gresson, Mrs. G. L. Randall. The young people of Christ church, Miss Trumbull, Dr. J. J. Donohue, Mr. Rogers, Mrs. George E. Hall, Miss Johnson of Franklin, Mrs. Edmund Perkins, Miss Eastman, Tyler Rogers, Mrs. Eastwood, Mrs. Hastings, Harold Robinson, Mr. Arnold, Mrs. Albert Chase, Mrs. Miner, Miss Jane Bill, the Misses Blackman, Mrs. L. H. Smith.

The Connecticut Council of Catholic Women have provided communion sets for the wards and private floors. A Bible was given to the Jewett City room. Ice cream, jelly, fruit and other food have been given by the auxiliary at Lisbon, B'nai Brith, Connecticut Council of Catholic Women, the Women's auxiliary of the hospital, H. F. Wawley, L. G. Andrews, On Labor day the ice cream was provided by the United Congregational church.

A gift that fills many needs and is a practical labor saving device for the kitchen has just been installed. It is a Hobart mixer and is the gift of the Women's auxiliary. It is a wonderful machine which can make ten gallons of ice cream, make mayonnaise, whip cream, mash potatoes, slice fruit and vegetables and do many other things. As a kitchen helper its value in the saving of time and labor can hardly be over-estimated. This machine has proved its value in many great institutions throughout the country. At the annual meeting of the Women's auxiliary which will be held sometime this month at the nurses' residence, this machine may be inspected by all who attend the meeting, as an opportunity to see the changes and improvements will be given on that afternoon.

The production committee has resumed its work after a summer vacation. A large committee meets once a week in the nurses' residence to make surgical dressings. They are glad to give out work which may be done by societies of women or individuals. The last month 30 towels were hemmed by the ladies of the Central Baptist church.

All summer, work for the Bazaar of Nations has been done. About 300 Norwich women are actively engaged in making this fair the most beautiful and enjoyable that the city has ever seen. It will be held in the armory on two afternoons and evenings in November. Mrs. Edmund Perkins, Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Jr., and Mrs. John Hall are the committee in charge and they report that enthusiasm is in full swing and that many unique and interesting features are being planned. All the money that is earned during those days will go to the hospital and will provide many needs.

Badly Inflamed Varicose Veins

Relieved and Reduced by Simple Home Treatment That Must Give Relief or Money Back

No sensible person will continue to suffer from dangerous swollen veins or bunches when the new powerful yet harmless germicide called Emerald Oil can readily be obtained at any well stocked drug store.

DECLINE IN EGG PRODUCTION AT STORRS

A decline in egg production was registered in the Storrs egg laying contest during the 47th week of competition, when the 1400 pullets laid 3716 eggs, or approximately 38 per cent. This is 239 eggs less than the production for last week, but 182 eggs more than the day for the corresponding week a year ago. Up to last Saturday night, the contest flock had laid a grand average of 215.123 eggs. This is an average of 154 eggs per bird.

Hanson's Leghorn farm entry from Corvallis, Ore., repeated its performance of last week by outlaying all other pens to take first place on the honor roll. The score was 54 eggs, one more than the total for last week. Two more entries of the same breed tie for second place with a score of 48 eggs each. They are the entries of George B. Ferris from Grand Rapids, Mich., and Adam Glass from Mobile, Ala. This is the second consecutive week that the Ferris entry has stood second on the honor roll, and for the four preceding weeks, has secured pullets headed the honor roll.

The Toivonen Farm leghorns from Girard, Pa., at present high pen among all entries, made the third best score of the week with a production of 47 eggs. Fourth place was taken by the Barred Rock entry of the Ramblers farm from Monsey, N. Y., with a score of 44 eggs.

There was only one change among the leading pens in each of the principal varieties. In the white wyandotte class, the entry of Thomas H. Matteson from Davisville, R. I., went up into second position, displacing the entry of Winlay white wyandottes from Mystic, Conn. The white leghorn entry of Adam Glass passed the 2000-egg mark during the week, being the sixth among the 140 pens in the contest to attain and pass that goal.

The Toivonen farm leghorns have a score of 2206 eggs for the first 47 weeks, and with only four more weeks to go, shape up as a probable winner. The next best pen, also leghorns, and owned by R. W. Colman from Medina, N. Y., is 30 eggs behind the Pennsylvania birds, and at the present time they are not laying as well. All of which seems to give the Toivonen birds the advantage as the race draws to an end.

Norwich Produce Market

Farm produce was offered in moderate quantities this morning but in most cases met with a slow demand. The season for peaches is practically past, only limited quantities of late varieties, may be expected from now on. There are a very few Sheldon and Seckel pears but the Bartletts are gone. Apples are plenty and offerings of native grapes are increasing. Cranberries are a little easier but oranges continue high.

Beets and carrots are plenty but sell slowly. String beans, shell beans and limas are offered less freely but find a poor demand, while sweet corn and tomatoes are selling at slightly higher prices. Moderate supplies of peppers 75c-$2 per 14 qt. basket for green and $1.50-$1.60 for ripe. A few parsnips $2.25 per bu., turnips $1.25 and Hubbard squash 3½c-5c per lb.

Broilers and small fowls continue easy, roasters and heavy fowls steady with eggs and butter firm.

Dressed meats and grains also continue steady.

BACK TAXES DUE CITY OF NEW LONDON REACH UP IN THE MILLION TOTAL

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 6—Now that the fiscal year is ended in New London it is understood that an effort will be made to secure the payment of back taxes as far as possible. Of course the city is not losing anything by the failure of property owners to pay their taxes, as interest at the rate of nine per cent is charged on unsettled debts of this sort. When the city can borrow money at a rate under five per cent. the back taxes become a source of revenue rather than expense. Personal taxes it is declared, have never been collected as they should have been. There is now a considerable sum outstanding on account of personal taxes. Back taxes since 1902 total $1,-154,269.88, with interest of $34,025.08 a total of $1,188,294.96. There is a release of 669 liens amounting to $324.50, leaving the amount due the town $1,-188,629.46.

Since 1917 the personal taxes due amount to $9,524.66, interest being $127.80, the total amount due now is $9,652.80, as tabulated by Alan C. Richards, tax collector.

SCRAP ON LUMBER STEAMER LEADS TO DISCLOSURES

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 6—Arthur Green, steward on the steamer Circus, lumber-laden, the cargo of which is being unloaded at the state pier, was arrested this noon by Sergeant John Cavanaugh charged with breach of the peace. Wilbur Rider, mess attendant aboard the steamer being the complainant. Green was released upon furnishing a cash bond of $25 for appearance in the police court tomorrow morning.

The arrest of Green was the result of Rider going to police headquarters and making complaint against Green stating that Green had attacked and beaten him aboard the steamer. When Green was arrested he related a story that may result in Rider being in a serious predicament. Green said that recently Rider was discharged in New York because of the latter's habits but because of Green having known Rider a long time and upon his promise to reform, Green obtained further employment for Rider Lately, Green said, Rider had dissipated much and had even resorted to the use of drugs and last night, Green said, Rider caused annoyance to members of the crew by his hallucinations imagining he saw objects and pursuing them about the deck causing the crew to be awakened. Green finally sought to induce Rider to go to his berth and then Green struck Rider, but not, he says, until he was attacked by Rider and was forced to defend himself. Rider made a counter-charge of breach of the peace against Green and the latter being unable to provide a surety on his bond, was made a prisoner to await trial. Rider's home is in Ohio. He is but 19, but Green states that he has a bad record. He stated that Rider is a fugitive from justice, having escaped from an Ohio penitentiary several months ago.

Anthony Bruno, 15 Tilley street, made complaint to the police this morning that a lodger at his home, Henry Smith, had robbed Bruno of much of the latter's clothing and had disappeared. Bruno stated that Smith, who claimed to reside in New Haven, had been a lodger at the Tilley street house but a comparatively short time. This morning when Bruno arose and went about the house he discovered that a suit of clothes, pair of shoes and other wearing apparel belonging to him was missing. He then went to Smith's room and finding it unoccupied entered and there found a dilapidated suit of clothes, a pair of shoes, much the worse for wear and a shirt, which he believed to Smith and which he discarded in favor of the practically new clothes of Bruno.

A Lyceum taxicab, driven by Harold Sargent, 2 Terrace avenue, collided with an automobile driven by I. J. Lipchinsky, 225 Howard street, on that street this morning. Both automobiles were damaged. The taxicab was being driven in a westerly direction and was about to pass the driveway leading to the New London Iron & Metal company, when Lipchinsky's auto was about to be driven to the highway. Before Sargent could reduce the speed of the taxicab, it crashed against Lipchinsky's auto, damaging a fender and mudguard.

A meeting of teachers of the public schools was held this evening at Nameaug school and during the session a crowd of youths assembled outside the building and created such a disturbance that the teachers were greatly annoyed, finally making a complaint to the police. An officer was sent to the school, dispersing the annoyers.

Mr. and Mrs. George Parker have re-turned to their home here after having visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Smith at Newport, Vt.

Funeral services for Irene Gangan, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Urbano Gangan, 20 Allen street, Groton, who died at Lawrence hospital Monday night as a result of swallowing an open safety pin, were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of the child's parents. Rev. William J. Lyx, rector of Sacred Heart church, Groton, read the service. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Italians are interested in the coming marriage of Miss Rose Bordini and Andrew Trione, a ceremony that is to take place in St. Mary's church next Monday morning. Miss Bordini is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gennaro Bordini of Bank street. Mr. Trione is in the confectionery and bakery business on Bank street. He is very popular with his countrymen and has a host of local friends. A reception at Odd Fellows hall will follow the marriage.

A coincidence is noted in the fact that the registration plates of the automobiles of Walter Lewis bear the same figures as do the signs designating the date of the foundation of the Lewis business—1860. Whether the similarity of figures is intentional or whether they happen to be so is not announced.

Mrs. Rosalia Seira, 48, wife of Santo Seira, died last night at her home, 313 Shaw street, death ending an illness of many weeks.

The police of this city mean to en-force the law regarding hindrance of fire apparatus on the way to answer a'arms. Of late there have been a couple of instances in which fire apparatus has been retarded when they were responding to calls for services of the department. The ordinance covering the matter provides a penalty for anyone found guilty of "intentionally retarding the progress of fire apparatus and the wilful feature of the hindrance must be proven to get a conviction. The police claim that in some cases the wilfulness is apparent and they say that cases brought will be proven to be of the wilful sort.

Mrs. Annie Phillips, 76, widow of Morris Phillips, died yesterday afternoon at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Sol Ockoneff, Tiley street. Besides Mrs. Ockoneff, Mrs. Phillips is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Max Rassoh, this city, and Mrs. Albert Shinko, of Providence and several grandchildren. Funeral services were held this afternoon at 1 o'clock at the family home and were conducted by Rabbi Wolfe Roggin. Burial was in Ahavat Chesed cemetery, Jordan. Mrs. Phillips was stricken suddenly last Saturday night and soon lapsed into a state of coma, in which condition she remained until the end. She was born in Nachel, Russia, but had resided in New London about 56 years. Mr. Phillips died about 25 years ago.

Joseph Rescupero and Joseph Ro-tunda, youths arrested here yesterday by Captain Edward Kelley and Sergeant Martin, Kane, New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad police, when the young men were found stealing a ride on a freight train, are still prisoners at the police station for since this morning when they were turned over to the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield it has been discovered that the boys recently escaped from the Lyman School for Boys, an institution located at Middleboro, Mass. When arrested the boys declared that they resided in New Haven. An officer from the Middleboro school will come to New London tomorrow and escort the fugitives back to the institution.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the right to drive of Joseph Turcott, 21 Tenth street and Edward A. Himel, United States Coast Guard, state pier, restored. The licenses of Turcotte and Hinel were suspended three weeks ago for violations of the motor vehicle law.

Roy Penney, youthful resident of 328 Summer street, Somerville, Mass., is critically ill tonight at Lawrence hospital. In fact Penney's condition is such that the police, at the request of the hospital authorities have notified the Somerville police of the young man's condition and requested that the boy's mother, Mrs. Edna Perry be acquainted with the seriousness of her son's case. The young man has been a patient at the hospital but a few days.

Interest in the world serie sbaseball games is at its height here now, for the evening up of the contests today has quickened the appetite of the local fans. The New York team seems to be the favorites in this city and vicinity where a large su mof money is at stake in wagers.

Next Sunday's game in New York will attract more from this section than has ever been drawn to a game in the world series.

New London lodge of Elks is to ini-tiate candidates tomorow evening. It is possible that there will be a report of the committee to which was referred the matter of construction of a new home. That subject has attracted great interest among the members of the lodge.

Thomas Rowe, one of the oldest res-idents of New London, died this morning at a local hospital where he had been a patient several weeks. He had resided in New London over 75 years. Mr Rowe is survived by a daughter, Miss Mary Rowe, 7 Colt street, with whom he resided; a son, Thomas F. Rowe, of Long Island; three sisters, Mrs. Bridget Keefe, Mrs. Michael Cleary and Mrs. Mary Newman, all of New London and by a grand-daughter, Anite E. Saraka, of New York Mr. Rowe was employed many years by the city's highway department. Several years ago he was struck by an automobile, sustaining injuries which impaired his health and caused him to abandon active employment.

"I'd hate to say what would have happened to Nick Haddad if I had him where I wanted him," said Chester Jackson in the police court this morning, when he was on the witness stand telling of an encounter he had with Haddad, his employer at a tailor shop at 129 Main street. Haddad is a somewhat corpulent man and Jackson, a negro of the Jack Johnson type, bit him last evening when the men became involved in trouble at the Haddad shop. Jackson was heavily fined and sent to jail some months ago as a booze seller. There he interested his colored friends in his case and they raised money to pay his fine. Haddad was solicited to pay the balance the negroes needed after they had collected all they could. Haddad came to the rescue and paid $73.70 with the understanding that Jackson would work for him till the debt had been settled at a payment of $10 a week. Jackson had paid up $40, but yesterday he started on a spree, staying away from his work till evening when he appeared and proposed to turn the Haddad establishment upside down. The air was blue with profanity and other language not to be found in the dictionary. Haddad objected, so fisticuffs followed. The negro was arrested. Today he was fined $25, a penalty that took him back to jail Jackson's head was decorated with bandages when he appeared in court for be resisted arrest to a degree that it became necessary for the police to subdue him.

At the annual meeting of the board of directors of the New London Community Chest, Inc., this week in the community house of the Connecticut Power Co., suggestions were made for the fall campaign, which is to be held the latter part of November. The report of the treasurer as of Oct. 1 was presented and showed 90 percent of the total pledges collected. The report of the nominating committee was presented. Walter S. Garde refused to serve again as president, giving as his reasons added business interests and ill health and the board went on record as showing its appreciation to Mr Garde for his efforts in helping to bring the community chest here and in aiding in helping it to a successful conclusion for the year. Following are the officers elected: President, Waldo E. Clarke, vice-presidents, Walter S. Garde, E. A. Armstrong, George S. Palmer, John P. Geary, S. A. Goldstein, Ernest E. Rogers, Lucius E. Welton, Mrs. F. S. Newcomb, chairman of council of social agencies, Mrs. A. H. Perkins, secretary, William L. Apley, treasurer, F. V. Chappell. The budget committee was re-elected as follows: William L. Apley, Mrs. Rosemary O. Anderson, Mrs. A. B. Calkins, Frank V. Chappell, Walter S. Garde, Walter Lewis, Ludwig Mann, William T. May, Waldo E. Clarke and W. Z. White, secretary. A report of the work accomplished by the committee was read and approved. Campaign matters were discussed and upon the recommendation of the executive committee, George Whittlesey was elected campaign chairman. There was a general discussion with suggestions regarding methods of publicity, length of campaign teams, and similar matters. Walter S. Garde, chairman, presided. Others present were: Waldo E. Clarke, Mrs. Horace C. Learned, Graham Hislop, Charles E. White, Henry S. Dorsey, William L. Apley, Walter Lewis F. V. Chappell, William T. ANNOUNCEMENTS

New Ideas in Choral Singing

Choral singing is, perhaps, the earliest musical expression of the human race. It is only natural to assume that, when humanity began to gather in groups for better results in its various activities, that music-making also became a mass-action.

Eventually, music found its kindest patron in the church. The choir was best suited to express the deep religious feelings of the praying masses. Most of the early music, before the days of virtuosos, instruments and orchestras, was written for four voices. There developed two distinct schools of choral singing, the Italian and German. But the foundation of both was still church music.

The first signs of departure from these established schools or choral singing, came from the gypsies, those nomadic tribes, which, a bound in southern Russia. Basile Kibalchich, conductor of the Russian Symphonic choir, which will appear here at Slater Memorial hall on Wednesday, October 20th, began to conceive a choir as a human orchestra, wherein each voice is given the same value as an instrument in a symphony orchestra, and for which music is written as it is for a symphony orchestra. The result is best described in the words of the New York Herald-Tribune, that "Each member of the choir seems as much under the conductor's direction as instrumental players of a well drilled orchestra."

Mail notice of number of tickets desired to Mr. H. A. Terrell, principal, or enter your subscription upon the floor at Cranston's store. Advance subscribers will have prior choice in selection of seats.

Tickets, including reserved seats, will be $2.00 each.

Rock Nook Children's Home

Happy children are a joy in the world and the Rock Nook Children's Home, a branch of the United Workers, provides a happy home for between 30 and 40 children. These children range in age from infants to boys and girls of 11 or 12 years of age. The work for the babies as a most important branch of the department for the Rock Nook Children's Home is the only home in the county where children under four years of age can be admitted. Every visitor to the sunny nursery who sees the tiny tots playing in the pleasant room, or on the wide piazza, appreciates the good work done in giving them a real home. The care of babies is much more expensive than that of older children and so the budget of the Rock Nook Children's Home has to be larger than that of a home which does not provide for such little ones. The generosity of friends has made this work possible in the past.

Not only are the necessities of the between 30 and 40 children in the home supplied, but also their need of play is not neglected. In the house there is a cheery playroom, which has had a fresh coat of paint this year and outside there is a roomy playground, where a sandbox delights the younger members of the family. Their holidays are days of joy, long remembered and talked over.

The work of the department spreads outside the Home. Aid has been given to some mothers, who have very small incomes, to enable them to keep their children with them in their homes.

Another branch of the United Workers, which is assisted by the Rock Nook funds, is the Rock Nook free clinic for children held at 9 Washington street on Wednesday afternoons.

Broadway Theater

An extraordinary two and a half hour program of vaudeville and pictures opens at the Broadway theater today.

There are five Keith - Albee acts featured, every one of which has made a name in the variety, there something real good can be expected.

Charles Ray, that immortal essayer of American boy roles, is hailed as the latest great lover of the screen in his Chadwick production of Some Punkins which comes to the Broadway theater today.

In this story of a small town life Ray is said to submit an entirely new phase of his histrionism. Heretofore he has been known for the bashful, adolescent boys of The O' Swimmin' Hole, Scrap Iron, The Girl I Loved, and The Courtship of Miles Standish, but in Some Punkins he emerges a passionate, earnest, romantic lover worthy of classification alongside the great lover roles of screen and stage history.

Some Punkins is Ray's first production under the Chadwick banner and is the star's return to the direction of Jerome Storm who was responsible for his earliest screen hits. His cast has been carefully selected and includes George Fawcett, Duane Thompson, Bert Woodruff, Fanny Midgley, Hallam Cooley, William Courtright and others. The story is from the pen of Bert Woodruff and Charles E. Banks.

Although the rolling stone gathers no moss the big roller scatters a lot of it.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Lyceum Theatre, New London

On Saturday night, October 9th, the patrons of the Lyceum theater are to see Channing Pollock's great success, The Enemy almost direct from its long run on Broadway. For months the play has been the source of more discussion and controversy than anything presented in New York since the same author's The Fool. It has been condemned and praised, as have the author and his intentions and purposes. This always argues a play's success, and The Enemy is no exception to the rule.

Laid in Vienna, in those incredible days and months and years of 1914-1919, The Enemy cannot be classified as a war play in the strict sense of the word. There are no battlefields, none of the action or paraphenalia associated with such a type of play. Rather, The Enemy shows the reaction of war on a small group of people in Vienna, a reaction that would have been the same on any group anywhere. Professor Arndt's daughter Paula loves and is loved by Carl Behrend. The latter's father is a business man with no sympathy for or understanding of his son. Bruce Gordon is an English student; taking a post-graduate course under Professor Arndt. Fritz Winckelman is a Vienna journalist married to Mizzi, by whom he has had a young boy, Kurt. These are the principal characters whose story is told. How the professor is impoverished by the same economic conditions that enrich the profiteering Behrend, Carl's marriage to Paula, his death on the eve of his return home to see the new born to him after his departure to the front; Fritz and a servant Jan, suffering from shell-shock and the horrors they have gone through; and the silent, but more devastating mental anguish experienced by the two girls, Paula and Mizzi. A simple tear-compelling story admirably told by an excellent cast. Manager Crosby Gaige, collaborating with Dramatist Channing Pollock, has gotten together a company that for individual performances and team work cannot be beaten. It includes names like Russ Whytal, Charles Dalton, Olive May, Florence Rathbone, Leslie Barrie and Donald Hughes.

Mail orders are being filled as received.

Palace Theater

Starting today the Palace will present one of the greatest motion pictures in screen history. Milton Sills in the long awaited sensational screen success, Men of Steel a tremendous photoplay in which the star is supported by Doris Kenyon, George Fawcett, Mae Allison, Frank Currier and a large cast of popular favorites, not just because it took a whole year to make, nor because the entire company went into one of the nations greatest mills and suffered hardships and privation to get the great story to you, not because it stands out as the most daring undertaking in cinema achievement; but because beneath the heat and turmoil of its tremendous story you realize the most touching drama of love and courage ever written. Men of steel is too big for words to describe you must see it to appreciate it.

Manager C. A Meade in giving Men of Steel a personal endorsement over his signature states that this is something he has rarely done due to the fact there is usually such a wide difference of opinion as to the merit of even the greatest screen successes but in the case of Men of Steel he feels that unanimous opinion will be that he has fully justified in what he has said about this wonderful production. In addition to Men of Steel will be presented Mary Carr in her latest success Somebody's mother a charming photoplay with this beloved star at her best.

Friday night will be semi-professional night with an all new program of acts by future stars of the stage as added attractions to an already overflowing program of fine entertainment. And last but not least Gene Tunney in the fifth chapter of The Fighting Marine.

Broadway Theater

With the news that Douglas Fairbanks' latest screen offering, The Black Pirate, will be the feature attraction at the Broadway theater staring Sunday comes he added word that this picture is entirely in color and ranks as one of the most elaborate cinema spectacles of the year.

Fairbanks is as usual the romantic adventurer achieving no end of thrills through his hazardous, always inimitable, and frequently amusing "stunts". His ingenuity and athletic prowess are big factors in his struggle to win a captured damsel from a shipload of blood-thirsty pirates. This situation form the drama of the play as well as the backbone of the story.

As was the case with the highly popular Robin Hood and The Thief of Bagdad, the story of The Black Pirate is an original from the pen of Elton Thomas. It was adapted to the screen by Jack Cunningham, scenarist for Don Q, The Covered Wagon and many other noteworthy pictures. Direction is by Albert Parker, who has directed several Fairbanks' features.

The Black Pirate comes heralded as presenting everything for general audience entertainment—high adventure, appealing romance, gripping melodrama and mystifying intrigue.

The original musical score as used for six months in New York city will be used here also with an augumented orchestra.

The success of the American people, in the opinion of President Coolidge, "Has not been turned to greed, avarice, or selfishness, but has been productive of generosity, benevolence and charity."

NEW YORK, Oct. 6—(AP)—The stock market experienced another sharp reaction today after a feeble attempt had been made to bolster it up on the strength of easier money rates and optimistic business forecasts by industrial leaders. Extreme declines of 3 to 10 points were recorded by scores of issues. But the heavy buying of a selected group of motor stocks brought about a partial recovery just before the close. Total sales were again well above two million shares.

Wall street traders revived all the unfavorable market factors of the last two months in an endeavor to "explain" the recent selling movement, but in banking circles the reaction was described as a natural correction of an over-bought speculative position. Selling pressure was most acute against specialties which had been bid up to extravagant heights on "prospects" of large future earnings rather than for current profits.

Seldom in recent months has there been such disregard of a large quota of ordinarily bullish market factors. These included a further drop in call money rates. The statement of Chairman Gary of the U. S. Steel corporation that business conditions were "very satisfactory," the announcement that pig iron production last month was the largest of any September since 1923, weekly freight car loadings again above the 1,000,000 mark and increased chain store sales. Off-setting these were a further decline in silver prices and an increase in crude oil production last week.

Tidy, Curly Hair in Summer

By Edna Wallace Hopper

I use a hair dress which every girl and woman would delight to know, especially in summer. It keeps my hair wavy, fluffy, glossy, tidy. I never go to a hairdresser, never have a Marcel wave. I get all that curl and glow by using this dressing twice a week in my room.

Great experts made this dressing especially for me. It is not sticky or greasy. It quickly does to perfection all my hair needs to be beautiful, wavy and tidy.

Now all toilet counters supply the same dressing under the name Edna Wallace Hopper's Wave and Sheen. The price is 75c. My guarantee comes with each bottle, so you risk nothing by a test. Go try it. You will find it just what you want. It is one of the best helps I ever found to keep women looking nice.

SUPT. GRAHAM ADVISES AGAINST EIGHTH GRADE AT BISHOP SCHOOL

Just what will be the outcome of the meeting of East Side residents held at the Bishop school Wednesday evening at the invitation of Supt. E. J. Graham, to discuss the petition of the people living in that section for the establishment of an eighth grade at the school, is hard to tell. While there was no out and out vote taken on the matter, the consensus seemed to be unfavorable to the establishment of the eighth grade. But on the other hand there were a number, including at least one woman who signed the petition, against the establishment of the eighth grade. Those who want the eighth grade are considering the distance the children have to walk to attend the eighth grade in the Broadway school, while those who are against the establishment of the extra grade at the Bishop school are considering the better advantages offered by the eighth grade at Broadway. As a whole, sentiment either way seemed to be lukewarm. In spite of the fact that about 200 signed the petition there were only a half hundred present at the meeting. Following an explanation of the town school board's plan of education for the town given by Supt. Graham there was some discussion from the floor, questions being asked and answered by Mr. Graham.

In opening the meeting Mr. Graham spoke of the intermediate school idea, speaking along three particular lines: the school committee's plan of four intermediate centers in the town; what the intermediate school is and the advantages of the intermediate school.

The intermediate school, he said, is not to be thought of as a high school but rather as intermediate in all respects between the high school and the elementary school. It is intermediate in organization, in methods of discipline and control, in subject matter of instruction and in methods of teaching.

The buildings themselves, in cost, architectural features, in labor of rooms, amount of space devoted to different departments, partake of the nature of both elementary and high schols. Because it is believed that the intermediate schools ought to make the transition from the elementary school to the high school easier, the buildings contain a certain number of rooms of the ordinary elementary school type where the pupils become adjusted gradually to the specialized departmental organization of the high school.

Primarily the new schools represent an attempt to solve the problem of the education of children of the early adolescent age. It is planned, first, to hold the children in school by making the schools as interesting and attractive to them as possible. Then to recognize that nature has not made them all alike, to offer, not the same education, but equal education opportunities to all of them; to develop and train whatever abilities they have; to discover powers, tastes and aptitudes [illegible] school as many of them as possible prepared to choose intelligently and follow profitably the lines of work in which they are the most apt to succeed.

Mr. Graham said that if the eighth grade were added to the Bishop school the 14 pupils from the East Side district now attending the Broadway school would be deprived of the advantages which they now have. You cannot accomplish as much with small numbers, 10 or 12, as you can with large numbers, Mr. Graham said. I wouldn't want my boy to go here (the Bishop school)to an eighth grade, if it were established, he said. The only advantage I can see in establishing an eighth grade here is taking away the distance, the walk to the Broadway school. I wouldn't take an eighth grade if I were you, Mr. Graham said that in addition to losing the advantages now offered at Broadway school, it would cost about $2,000 to establish and maintain an eighth grade at Bishop school. Mr. Graham said that if the Bishop school has an eighth grade he couldn't see why Laurel Hill school, Broad street school, the Falls school and other schools where there are but six grades shouldn't have eighth grades.

Miss Rita Foley, principal in the Bishop school, an N. F. A. graduate and a former Broadway school teacher, spoke briefly on the advantages of the eighth grade at Broadway school over an eighth grade at Bishop school.

During the course of the discussion that followed Mr. Graham's talk, he took occasion to compliment the people of the East Side in establishing the Dunell athletic field. He said he hoped that the people there will retain the athletic field and expressed the opinion that if necessary the town should come to their aid in purchasing the field. Mr. Graham said that the securing of the athletic field is one of the finest things the East Side community has done.

At the close of the meeting Mr. Graham said he would carry back to the school board the sentiment of the meeting on the eighth grade question. The meeting came to a close about 9 o'clock.

Everyone will be most welcome and if dear ones are miles away the invitation is to come and be with the others to prove after all, we are one great family in the household of the Christian church in the fatherhood of God.

GILBERT D. LAMB ESTATE BEAUTIFUL IN OCTOBER

While of course the roses which are the glory of the place have gone by, Beech Spring farm, the 125-acre country estate at Franklin of Gilbert Dimock Lamb, prominent New York lawyer, looks particularly beautiful this fall.

The abundant harvest, vegetables, fruits and in great variety the masses of blooming flowers, vines heavy with ripe-red grapes, the long arbor walk over which trails white clematis, ivy, rose vines and the like, foliage reddening or turning golden a thousand and one attractions combine to make this highly cultivated place a bit of Paradise.

During this week, the caretaker George W. Hilton, has been engaged with a lawn mower cropping the long wide turf as rich and velvety and as green as it was three months ago.

The farm's great apple orchards and half acre are devoted to the vegetable needs. The city owner of the magnificent estate motors up with his wife and son and their guests nearly every week end; and there ample supplies on the table raised by Caretaker Tolton and his helpers. Fine cows and chickens of choice breed are kept on the place.

Driving up to Franklin from Norwich the caretakers cottage comes into view first. Just above is the master's house—the home of Mr. Lamb's parents and under this roof were born the seven children of the family. Of these five remain—Mrs. F. Herbert Brown, of Laura Hill avenue, Norwich, Miss Eva Lamb, now a resident of Los Angeles, Cal., Gilbert Lamb, of New York, Mrs. Fred A. Parker, of New London, Ira Lamb, owner of a ranch in Beresford, Nebraska and Archie Lamb, whose home is in Franklin, opposite the old homestead.

While modernizing the home of his boyhood Mr. Lamb has retained all the good features of a substantially built, snug and sightly Connecticut farm-house, so that there is harmony between the original dwelling and the additional improvements and conveniences. One of the charming vistas is gained from the modern side porch, along a garden path ending at a recently erected high rustic gate with a quaint bird-house on either post. This gate divides one of the finest possible high walls constructed entirely of flat field stones, put together with great regularity, in an artistic sense which is noticeable in every detail of the farm development. The owner has laid out a large sum on beautifying and improving the old place—but always there is evident this purpose to combine beauty with fitness, so that the impression is ever that of restfulness, harmony and discriminating good taste.

One of the beauty spots is the field which the high wall borders, where there is a graceful pergola entwined with a variety of vines and blooming roses in their season. In the small lily pond here pink and pale blue lilies are blossoming this week—the second week in October. A quaint sun dial near by tells the hours.

The fascinating arbor walk leads to another open walk and this to a summer-house of masonry which is really the spring-house, since it shelters the famous beech spring which gives the farm its name. On one of the ivy-grown ledges here is a figure of Pan with a verse which visitors read with interest.

Across a graceful rustic bridge, another walk leads to a skillfully built log cabin, constructed from the lumber cut on the place. This is not far from a great hedge of rhododendrons, cultivated with great care.

Hydrangeas, cosmos, dahlias, phlox, calendula, tall zinnias, old-fashioned purple verbenas, garden mow, wavers, gladioli. Mr. Lamb's gardeners have grown for him a wonderful display of fall flowers, stocky and showy.

The hundreds of motorists who speed past, day after day, and glimpse merely the attractive roadside grounds of the estate have no idea of the hidden beauties of Beech Spring Farm, one of the loveliest country homes in New England.

TO REVIVE FALCONRY ON FISHERS ISLAND

American sportsmen are about to learn "falconry, the "pastime of the emperors," writes Arthur F. Jones, Jr., in the New York Times magazine. This ancient practice of flying trained falcons to pursue other birds is to make its American debut this month on Fishers Island, when the English Springer Spaniel Field Trials association holds its week of sport. On that stretch of private gameland just off New London harbor but in New York state, there will be held one of the most unusual spotring events ever attempted in this country.

America knows nothing about falconry or hawking. American game laws do not authorize it and there are no home-trained falcons in the United States. That is why the coming event at Fishers Island is creating so much interest among wealthy persons who are interested in hunting and in bird dogs. With no native trained falcons, it has been necessary for the English Springer Spaniel Field Trials association, an organization of amateur sportsmen just elected to membership in the American Kennel club, to import birds for its coming meet.

These birds are to be lent by William Humphrey of Wallup Hall, Shrewsbury, England, owner of the Horsford Stud of Springer spaniels and game hawks. Mr. Humphrey is here to demonstrate up-many intricacies of a pastime which was popularized in Europe in the 15th century. [illegible] has had much to say, some time Humphrey has been putting on display Americans what can be done with a peregrine or a goshawk, for these two birds are the ones which are the substance of his collection.

The falconry meet at Fishers Island will follow the field trials and the dog's show of the association. It will seem simple itself when shown, for the sport of unmounted hawking. The beck of the hawk, shall Humphrey and the other employees will take their dogs and send them quartering in the brush. The men will follow with their falcons on their wrists, the birds being held to their masters by leashes attached to the soft leather jesses which are attached to the legs of a trained hawk.

The falcons will not be hooded, the usage being used only during training and while traveling. As the dogs spring the quarry, the falconers will release the birds. When released, these birds of prey will fly according to their species. If they are peregrines, long pointed-winged birds, they will fly immediately to the kill. There will be a few swift cries, a flutter of wings and a duck or a pheasant will drop to earth.

The falconers must have been catching wild ducks in many different parts of the country in order to train them as the wild ducks are other living creature—for food. But as time went on, man found the pleasure of making these fine natural creatures work and help him in his hunting. At first this had no name. But later it came to be known as falconry or more anciently as hawking.

DRIVER GETS COMPENSATION FOR MONOXIDE POISONING

Finding that the death of Edward A. Farrell, of 27 Walker street, Pawcatuck, was caused by poison from the exhaust of a motor truck which Farrell was driving for the Lorraine Manufacturing Co., Pawcatuck, on Jan. 25, 1926, in which he sustained carbon monoxide poisoning, resulting in his death on July 29, 1926, Compensation Commissioner J. J. Donohue has handed down a decision awarding to Mrs. Beatrice Farrell, widow of the deceased, compensation in the amount of $18 a week for a period not to exceed 313 weeks.

Farrell became poisoned from carbon monoxide gas while employed as a truck driver for the Lorraine Manufacturing Co., on the day in question when he was driving in a closed cab. All reasonable medical, surgical and hospital bills incurred by reason of said injuries are to be paid by the respondent company, as well as the compensation awarded, besides $100 towards funeral expenses.

Commissioner Donohue finds that the wife of the deceased with whom he was living and supported regularly was solely and totally dependent upon the deceased. There are no children.

WILL HAVE CONTEST FOR POTATO PICKERS

Announcement was made Wednesday evening by County Agent Walter T. Clark that a "picking" contest will be held in connection with the digging of the potato seed source trial at the farm of Clifton Dawley, Preston Plains, Friday. The digging of the potatoes will start at one o'clock. Professional and amateur pickers from any section of New London county may enter the picking contest, as the contest is open to all whether members of the farm bureau or not.

Prizes are offered as follows: Professional, first, barrel of certified seed potatoes; second, bag of potato fertilizer. Amateur, first, five dollars; second, two dollars.

CONNECTICUT INCREASES USE OF ELECTRIC POWER

Connecticut's public utility plants produced 16 per cent more electric power last August than they did in August a year ago, according to a statement made public Wednesday by the geologic survey at Washington. This is double the increase of the plants last July over that month a year.

Public utility power plants of the state produced a total of [illegible] in July, and 77,107,000 in June of this year, according to the report in August. 8,638,000 kilowatt hours were generated by water power and 9,000,000 by fuels; in July, 4,438,000 water power and 75,947,000 by fuels; and in June 8,154,000 by water power and 68,953,000 by fuels.

Fuels used in Connecticut were coal and fuel oils. Coal consumed in plants in August amounted to 76,595 short tons; in July, 71,674; and in June, 63,973. In August 23 barrels of fuel oil were used; in July, 39; and in June, 69.

Only one New England state produced more electricity than did Connecticut, and that state, Massachusetts, produced nearly twice as much. The increase in Connecticut last August over August a year ago was 8 per cent higher than the increase in New England as a whole for the same period.

OPENING OF HUNTING SEASON COMES FRIDAY

The open season for the shooting of woodcock, partridge and male pheasants will start Friday morning, it has been pointed out at the office of the state board of fisheries and game. The season will last for six weeks, it not being permissible to shoot the birds on or after Nov. 24. No person may kill more than two pheasants, five woodcock or three ruffed grouse in a day and the limit which may be taken [illegible] during the season is 15 pheasants, 30 woodcock or 21 ruffed grouse. Female pheasants may not legally be killed at any time.

The open season for the killing of gray squirrels also opens Friday and continues for the same period. No more than five gray squirrels may be [illegible] in any one day. [illegible] is made in the cases of owners of crops of property being damaged [illegible] permission being given for the shooting of such squirrels at any time or in any number.

Hunters have been having good luck in finding wild ducks, according to reports which have reached the office of state board of fisheries and game. Few infractions of the game laws concerning the shooting of ducks have been reported. The season opened Friday, and will continue through Jan. 15.

Thieves stole a quantity of copper wire from the tracks at Central Village the other night. The wire was connected to the bell, at the railroad crossing.

SAYS THAT DAUGHERTY BURNED BANK RECORDS IN MOMENT OF MADNESS

Counsel Pictures Former Attorney General as Being Followed by "Yelpers" Who Wanted to Peek at the Records of the Political Fund He Had Raised and Managed—Asserted That Daugherty, Harassed Beyond Endurance, Did an Indescribably Foolish Thing in Burning the Records—Had No Thought of the American Metal Case When He Threw the Papers in the Fire

NEW YORK, Oct 7.—(AP)—It was "in a moment of madness" that Harry M. Daugherty burned bank records which the government believes would prove him a conspirator against the nation he served and his purpose was not to destroy records of the Harding campaign fund but not to wipe out any indication that he had been bribed in the American Metal case, his counsel told a jury in United States district court today.

Daugherty, who was attorney general in the Harding cabinet, and Thomas W. Miller, alien property custodian at the same time, are on trial for conspiracy to defraud the government of their best services in permitting release through their offices of $7,000,000 impounded assets of the metal company. William Rand, counsel for Miller, completed his summation this morning and Max D. Steuer, Daugherty's counsel, then summed up for five and a half hours, court being kept in session until 6.30 in order to permit him to complete today.

Steuer reviewed testimony of Mal S. Daugherty, Harry's brother, that Harry had admitted burning ledger sheets recording bank accounts in Malta bank of the brothers and of Jess W. Smith, the former attorney general's political handy man.

"The burning of those records," Steuer told the jury, "was a foolish thing, an indescribably foolish thing. But consider the conditions under which it was done. Here was Harry Daugherty who but yesterday had been sought after by the world. Today he was hounded and pursued. He was gone with these papers and he burned them in a moment of madness. You remember the quotation: 'Whom the Gods would destroy they must first make mad.' And Harry Daugherty was mad at that moment.

"You may ask what it was that drove him to this state of mind. This pitiable broken old man was followed by barking dogs, the yelpers, who wanted to peek at the records of the political fund he had raised and managed. He wanted to flout them and with no though in his mind of the American Metal case he threw the papers in the fire."

In summing up for Miller in the morning, Rand touched for a moment on $50,000 worth of Liberty bonds which formed part of the fee the late John T. King, republican national committeeman from Connecticut, received from Richard Merton, German copper magnate, for putting the claim through, and which later appeared in Miller's brokerage accounts.

"It would be reasonable for you to ask," he said, "and I take it for granted that you have wondered, why the defendant Miller has not taken the stand to explain how he got those bonds. Will tell you about that.

"The government has charged that these bonds came from King to Miller as a bribe, but they had not shown that they came to Miller from King at all. Liberty bonds are negotiable. At that time they were circulating freely through all the regular courses of commerce. They ask you to infer that Miller got them direct from King, but they have offered no proof.

"For this reason Miller is not obliged to take the stand and explain how he got them. I tell you, and the learned judge will tell you, that no man is obliged to do so. If proof of his guilt had been offered it would be a different matter. But there is no such proof and so this defendant has not taken the stand."

Through all Steuer's summation of the case for Daugherty, the prosecution idea was predominant. He told the jury that his client was not in court at all because he was guilty, but because he was the victim of his own insistence on honesty.

He described the seizing of the enemy owned shares of the American Metal company and the part A. Mitchell Palmer, a predecessor of Daugherty's as attorney general, had in their sale. He spoke of an original agreement for sale of these shares which was superseded on government orders which he said resulted in their sale to the same purchaser for $1,500,000 more than had been originally decided on. He spoke of papers concerning all this which had been kept in Mr. Palmer's personal file and never sent to the files of the alien property custodian.

When Daugherty came into office he started an investigation of these sales, Steuer said, and so brought upon himself party enmity. As soon as he was out of office, the lawyer asserted, the cry went out: 'Crush Crush Daugherty. He must be broken.' And the angel of peace now hovers over Pennsylvania where the instigator of that cry now lives."

DESERT TRACKER TESTIFIES IN THE M'PHERSON CASE

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Alonzo Murchison, brawney desert tracker and police officer of Douglas, Arizona, testified here today that he did not believe Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, could have made the Mexican desert hike she described on her re-appearance at Douglas last June.

The testimony was the high light of today's session of Mrs. McPherson's preliminary hearing on charges of criminal conspiracy.

The latter part of the hearing was filled with pictures of shacks which the defense produced and submitted to Murchison. The witness said he had been unable to find a shack in the Mexican desert, south of Douglas, to correspond with that described by the evangelist as the place where she was held by abductors. According to Mrs. McPherson, she trudged 30 miles over the desert to Agua Prieta Mexico, opposite Douglas, after escaping from the Mexican hut in which she declares she was held captive.

W. I. Gilbert, defense attorney, handed to Murchison the dress worn by the evangelist when she re-appeared at Douglas and asked what evidence Murchison found to indicate it had not been worn on a 20-mile desert trip. The witness pointed out what he said was the absence of perspiration marks, any soiled spots or tears in the garment.

MAY LYING ON TRACKS KILLED BY TROLLEY CAR

WATERBURY, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Adam Warenjuk, 66, of South Main street, Naugatuck, was almost instantly killed, when hit and run over by a trolley car in Beacon Falls at 7.40 o'clock tonight. The man was dragged approximately 200 feet before the trolley came to a stop. His body was badly mangled.

William Salmon, of 152 East Main street, Waterbury, motorman of the trolley stated that the man's body was lying on the tracks. Mr. Salmon said he did not see it in time to stop. Coroner T. E. Conway superintended the testing of the brakes on the trolley and pronounced them in good conditions.

Officer M. J. Gruce, of Beacon Falls, stated that he had picked Warenjuk up from the tracks at the same spot about two weeks ago. At that time and tonight, the man had fallen on the tracks while walking over the sharp steel points of a cattle guard.

Warenjuk has two sons, one of whom lives in Waterbury, and one married daughter, living in Meriden.

BEARDSTOWN, ILL., USING BOATS IN THE STREETS

BEARDSTOWN, Ills., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Isolated for 30 hours by the flood waters of Illinois river and Lost Creek, Beardstown ate uncooked food today, used a ferry to get up and down the main streets and went by boat to establish contact with the outside world by trains which were halted two miles from the island city.

The flood, after reaching a crest of 23.5 feet today, had receded fourtents of a foot tonight, but with the slight wane of the waters came an increasing swiftness of the current, which carried the jam against windows of residences and business blocks and broke panes not barricaded, admitting water to interiors previously kept dry.

Furnaces are flooded and the only heat is provided by improvised stoves. The dampness has added to the suffering from cold, and many of the inhabitants were without dry clothes.

A Beardstown newspaper abandoned publication today for the duration of the flood when its mechanical department was submerged. Automobiles are marooned in the streets, many with only their tops visible.

FINDS WOMEN CAPABLE AS MEN IN INDUSTRY

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Women in industry are, in many respects, as capable, successful and confident as men, Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation told the Women's Bureau of the National Association of Manufacturers today. "In morals, persistent endeavor, honesty and determination, women have always been better than men," he said.

Speaking earlier at a "preparedness luncheon," which closed the association's convention, Mr. Gary told the manufacturers that industrial preparedness is the backbone which assures continuous peace and prosperity to the nation.

In his address before the women's bureau, Mr. Gary declared women have come into their own in industry.

Declaring himself in favor of the open shop in industry, Mr. Gary asserted "no country will prosper unless men and women are allowed to work wherever and whenever they please, provided there is an agreement between the employer and employe."

STOLE TO KEEP UP PRETENSE TO GIRL HE WAS WEALTHY

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Over $2,000 worth of clothing, six automobiles and about $1,000 worth of jewelry, was stolen recently in this city by Howard C. Newton, 18, of New Britain, according to a confession which detectives say the young man made to them today.

Newton was arrested last night after he fell into one of many traps set by the police, when he was attempting to sell an overcoat at a second-hand store. The case was continued in city court today until Oct. 14, and bond was set at $5,000.

Newton is said to have laid his downfall to the necessity for acquiring money to maintain his pretense to a Fair Haven girl that he was wealthy, and had come to New Haven to enter Yale this fall.

IRONWORKERS' BUSINESS AGENT UNDER ARREST

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 7.—(AP)—One hour after receipt of a request from Buffalo authorities for the arrest of John Anson, 30, local detectives had the man under detention. Anson is wanted in Buffalo for alleged embezzlement of $1,400 from the treasury of the Ironworkers' Union, of which he was business agent, according to word received here. He is being held under $5,000 bonds as a fugitive, pending arrival of a warrant from Buffalo.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Lady Stanley, widow of the African explorer, Sir Henry M. Stanley, died in London at the age of 71.

PARIS, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Queen Marie's costumes are attracting more attention among Parisiennes than any other feature of the preparations for her American voyage.

LONDON, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The countess of Kimnouil, the 22 year old daughter of the late Mrs. Hamilton Fellowes of Tankley Park, has inherited more than $5,000,000 under the will of her mother, who died in August, leaving an estate valued at nearly $10,000,000.

LENINGRAD, Russia, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Prof. Peter Kozloff, famous Russian explorer, returned from an expedition to the dead city of Kharakhoto, which he discovered in Thibet in 1913. He brought back a great quantity of hitherto unknown geographical and anthropological data relating to Thibet, as well as valuable archaeological specimens.

CONVENTION OF N. Y. SYNOD OF THE LUTHERAN CHURCH

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The convention of the New York synod of the Lutheran church was thrown into an uproar this afternoon when the Rev. Paul M. Young, president of the southern conference of the synod charged that certain pastors and congregations have diverted funds belonging to the United Lutheran church, and termed them "no more than thieves."

"Some of the congregations," the Rev. Young said, "are diverting funds for the use of current expenses over the heads of their pastors or with their pastors' consent. If they did that in business, they would go to Sing Sing. Such men should be notified as to their status according to the laws of man and God. They are no more than thieves."

The matter came up when a memorial from the southern conference was read asking that the synod be "secure the names" of pastors and members of church councils who are diverting the funds belonging to the United Lutheran church and synod into their church treasuries and that the secretary of the synod be instructed to inform them that such action is a mis-appropriation of trust funds." A resolution referring the matter to the executive committee was carried after a heated debate.

COMPLETES FIRST LEG COUTRY-WIDE FLIGHT

MITCHEL FIELD, N. Y., Oct. 7.—(AP)—The powerful Fokker airplane in which Commander Richard E. Byrd flew over the north pole, today completed the first leg of its scheduled country-wide tour to promote public interest in commercial aviation.

Carrying eleven persons, including officials of the navy, army and commerce departments, the plane known as the Josephine Ford, flew from Washington to Mitchel field in two hours and 36 minutes. It is due to hop off at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning for Albany, on the second leg of its journey, with five passengers aboard. On Saturday it will fly from Albany to Syracuse. Thirty-four other cities, in all parts of the country, are included in its itineracy, which will take it a distance of 7,000 miles.

Commander Byrd piloted the plane from Washington to Mitchell Field. Floyd Bennett, mechanic on the north pole flight, will pilot the craft on the rest of its tour. He was a passenger on today's flight.

PARKER DEATHS CAUSED BY GAS FROM HEATERS

HARTFORD, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The persistent mystery surrounding the deaths of Brooks K. Parker, of 256 Mather street and his 5-year-old daughter, Helena, and the illness of his wife, was cleared up tonight with the official report of Dr. Arthur J. Wolff and Medical Examiner Henry N. Costello that the deaths were due to carbon dioxide gas poisoning produced from gas heaters in the kitchen. The finding shows that a gas water heater did not have a flue connection with the chimney but poured gas into the room.

The reports were accepted by State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn and Coroner J. Gilbert Calhoun as clearing up the mystery and was supplemented by them with statements that there was nothing in the mystery to indicate anything of a homicidal nature calling for criminal prosecution. The reports were released by Drs. Wolff and Costello with the permission of Mr. Alcorn and Coroner Calhoun.

A $30,000,000 CREDIT TO COOPERATIVE MARKETING

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.— (AP) —The federal farm loan board has extended a $30,000,000 credit to cooperative marketing.

Chairman Williams of the board, in announcing this action today, said cooperatives already had applied for $7,000,000 credit and it was anticipated that additional credit would be required.

The money will be made available through the intermediate credit banks and will be used in the marketing of this year's cotton crop.

In making the funds available for this purpose, Mr. William assured all cooperatives that the intermediate banks were prepared to assist in any way possible in disposition of the crop "through soundly organized and properly managed cooperative marketing associations."

ONE TO THREE YEARS FOR ROBBERY OF PERSON

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 7.—(AP)—From one to three years in state prison was the sentence given to Charles Glover, 30, alias Walter Johnson in criminal superior court here, today. He was charged with robbery of a person and was found guilty by a jury. It was alleged that Glover took Abraham M. Hassan, of Waterbury, out in his automobile while Hassan was intoxicated, and took from Hassan $700 in cash and $100 in jewelry.

OBITUARY.

William F. Peck.

FAIRFIELD, Oct. 7.—(AP)—One of the best known of Bridgeport's Civil war veterans, passed through his last last campaign tonight, when William F. Peck, of Roselle street, in Stratfield district, died at his home after a short illness. He was 84 years old. He held the distinction of having been a soldier and a sailor in the struggle between north and south. He was born in 1842 in Brooklyn, N. Y., and at the age of 20 enlisted in the navy. He gained fame as an expert sharpshooter and gunner. He was in the battle of the Congress and the Merrimac.

Finds Quebec Liquor System a Failure

Statement Made by the Board of Temperance of the Methodist Episcopal Church

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.— (AP) —Describing the system of government control of liquor in Canada as a failure, the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist church asserts in a statement made public today that even "the half chance prohibition in the United States has produced far better results."

Because of the recurring suggestions that the so-called Quebec system of government liquor control be substituted for prohibition in this country, the board undertook a survey of conditions in Canada through Ernest A. Grant, its assistant research secretary.

Conclusions set out in the board's statement have been based, it was explained, upon this survey and upon government documents, newspaper articles and "facts and figures of undoubted authenticity." From these the board concludes that:

Government control in Canada has meant increased consumption of liquor; greatly increased loss of liquor by young people and women; increased crime, a corruption bitherto unknown, an illicit trade as great as that under any prohibition law, a swollen liquor bill and a great economic loss.

Reviewing conditions in Quebec, British Columbia, Manitoba, and other provinces where there is government control, the board holds that there exists "a reign of terror of the illicit traffic in the United States, plus the evils of government-protected traffic as vicious in principle and practice as was the saloon system in the United States."

The brewers come in for a general broadside from the board which asserts:

"The brewers who are asking a monopoly of the intoxicating liquor trade in the United States and who advertise their wares vigorously in Quebec, are as troublesome there and elsewhere as they are in the United States."

Declaring that "corruption has run riot since the government control system has been in operation," the board points to the recent customs scandal in Canada.

"This customs scandal," he report adds, "is nothing less than the child of the unholy relation between a government-protected liquor traffic in Canada and a lawless, criminal traffic in the United States."

"Another unfortunate result of the Canadian system has been the undoubted handicap upon prosperity," the statement continues.

"Prohibition at its worst in the United States, half-chance prohibition, has yielded billions in profits to the pinch-penny. Business has been booming and development has been rapid. In Canada in recent years, development has been slow, and painful, business has lagged, wages are comparatively low and the dominion is being drained of skilled labor by the lure of high wages and prosperity across the boarder."

LOS ANGELES MAY MAKE OVERLAND FLIGHT TO DETROIT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The Los Angeles, the navy's remaining dirigible, was authorized today to make an overland flight to Detroit, one of the objectives of the Shenandoah when she was destroyed by a storm over Ohio a little more than a year ago with the loss of 14 officers and men.

The voyage of the Los Angeles, a German built craft, will be started next Monday or later, depending upon weather conditions. The big ship will depart either from her hangar at Lakehurst, N. J., or from the tender Patoke at Newport, R. I., as her commanding officers may determine.

This will be the Los Angeles' first overland flight since the Shenandoah disaster. She will be commanded by Lieut. Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, senior surviving officer of the Shenandoah, and in her crew will be many officers of those who escaped death when the navy's first dirigible crashed.

Under orders issued today by the navy department Commander Rosendahl is to have complete liberty of action in beginning and carrying out the flight, which it is officially announced, is for the purpose of training officers and men; for testing commercial air routes and for testing the Ford mooring mast at Dearborn, Mich.

BAD CHECK ARTIST AT WORK IN BRIDGEPORT

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Two more merchants have fallen victims of the bad check artist that has been operating in this city during the past week, police were informed today. The total number of complaints received during the past week of activities of the check passer is six.

It was reported today that a man entered Hayes fish market and ordered groceries to the amount of $18 and gave in payment a check of $35.20 made out on the United States Trust company, of Boston. He received the balance of the amount in currency and asked that the purchased articles be sent to the barge Waltham, docked at the foot of Henry street. No such barge could be found which led to an investigation relative to the check.

It is believed that the same man entered Mayor Behrens' market, and purchased a like amount of articles and tendered a check similar to the one in the fish market. The boods in the mayor's market were also to be sent to the barge which was not there.

5-YEAR-OLD BOY STRUCK BY AUTOMOBILE IN BRISTOL

BRISTOL, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Elanor Konopuskay, five, was struck and seriously hurt, possibly fatally this noon by the automobiel of George Gramhall, of Stafford avenue. Ashley Bishop had driven to the curb in Farmington avenue to let out of his car several school children when the girl ran down a bank and behind his car. Bramhall was passing at the time. Bishop said that Bramhall could not avoid the child.

Tinney showed marked improvement today and was conscious for the first time in four days.

Cantonese Armies Besiege Wuchang

Half a Million Chinese People Face Death by Starvation, Cold and Gunfire.

HANKOW, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Penned up more than a month by the Red Cantonese armies besieging the city, a half million Chinese people face death by starvation, cold and gunfire in Wuchang. Large numbers of dead lie in the streets. Those remaining have eaten dogs, cats and rats and are dropping in public places or dying miserably in shelters into which they have crawled.

The northern troops of Marshal Wu Pei-Fu, garrisoning the city, having been refused terms of surrender are holding on desperately, hoping for armies of their ally, Sun Chuan-Fang, to break through the Cantonese cordon.

Meanwhile, the relentless and well fed Cantonese outside the walls rest patiently on their arms, having blockaded all exits from the city and await the time when they shall enter. What will happen then is not known.

The Cantonese have notified the defenders that next Sunday they will loose a general bombardment upon the city of misery, firing from Hanyang arsenal across the Yangtze river and pouring shells from Pagoda hill and elsewhere in the iron ring upon the suffering people.

A vestige of mercy has been shown. Beginning last Sunday, women and children of the impoverished classes have been permitted to pass through the gates to the river, seeking passage across to Kankow. Thirty eight thousand have been rescued by boats bearing the emblem of the Red Cross and taken to Hankow to be cared for.

Scenes of horror are witnessed each trip of the boats. In the fight for places on the boats, several hundred have been trampled to death as the maddened hordes struggled for rescue. Many, thrown into the river, are drowned. Next Sunday, if they have not escaped, the rain of fire will pour upon them, for the gates will be closed.

20,000 CASUALTIES IN THE CANTONESE ARMY

LONDON, Oct. 8.—(AP)—The Shanghai correspondent of the Daily Mail estimated that there have been 20,000 casualties in the Cantonese army and forces of Sun Chuan-Fang as a consequence of the "fiercest fighting of the whole war" near Kiu-Kiang and around Foyang Lakes.

No decisive result was achieved by this fighting, according to the correspondent, who adds that the British gunboat has been ordered to Kiukiang, where there is panic due to fear that the Cantonese will break through Sun's line and capture the city. Such a possibility as the Cantonese breaking through, however, he says, appears to be remote.

SALVATION ARMY OUT OF COMMUNITY DRIVE

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 7.— (AP) —The community chest has literally forced the Salvation army out of the community drive here, according to Staff Captain James Asher of the Salvation army headquarters in Boston. Captain Asher said the statement attributed to Clarence Blakeslee, president of the community chest, that the Salvation Army spent only $1,800 for relief work in New Haven "was preposterous".

The captain is in New Haven looking over the ground for a Salvation army drive, following the withdrawal of that organization from the community chest on the grounds that since 1922 the allotment for that organization had been continually and that this year an increase over the $6,801 accepted last year under protest, had been refused.

In reply to the statement of Mr. Blakeslee that a considerable part of the amount raised in New Haven is not used locally, Captain Asher says that "the only part of the $6,801 which goes outside of New Haven, is the $500 for the national body, 10 per cent for the state overhead, and a very small item for foreign mission work."

PLATFORM FOR CAMPAIGN AGAINST TUBERCULOSIS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—(AP)—A platform for the coming campaign against tuberculosis by more than 1,400 affiliated subodrinate organizations was adopted at the concluding session of the 22nd convention of the National Tuberculosis association today.

This program lists the following as important factors in the cure of active tuberculosis:

Competent medical supervision, complete rest under favorable conditions, carefully balanced and adequate nourishment suited to the individual, abundance of open air and, if possible, sunshine and relief from other infections and physical or mental strains and handicaps.

It also placed the organization on record as declaring that no specific cure for tuberculosis, such as antitoxin for diphtheria, nor any specific preventive, like vaccination for smallpox, has been found. The disease, however, was declared to be curable in its earlier stages, and general education of the public to recognize this fact was held to be of the greatest importance.

FORMER REPRESENTATIVE NOMINATED FOR CONGRESS

NEW HAVEN Oct. 7.—(AP)—Burton D. Potter, of Hamden, former representative in the general assembly from that town, was nominated for senator from the 12th district at the democratic convention held in town hall in East Haven tonight. Delegates were present from the towns of the district which include East Haven, Hamden, Branford, Guilford, Wallingford, Madison, North Branford and North Haven.

Addresses were made by Charles G. Morris, democratic nominee for governor, and by John E. Doughan, nominee for congress from the third district.

GIRL OF 19 ASPHYXIATED BY ILLUMINATING GAS

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Mrs. Earl Northrupt, 19 was asphyxiated by illuminating gas this afternoon in the home of her mother, Mrs. Richard Robb, 1497 Boston avenue, where she lived. Death was probably accidental, according to Medical Examiner Peters and the police, there being no reason for suicide.

The girl had been working night in the Western Union telegraph office but resigned when her health became impaired.

GAINER DEM. NOMINEE FOR GOVERNOR RHODE ISLAND

To Run on a Platform Unquivocally Declaring for Modification of the Volstead Act—Platform Assails Republican Leaders for Their Part in Merger of Public Utility Corporations—Former State Senator Quinn of West Warwick Was Nominated for Attorney General.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Joseph H. Gainer, for 14 years mayor of Providence, was selected as the democratic nominee for governor of Rhode Island at the state convention here today, to run on a platform unequivocally declaring for modification of the Volstead act and bitterly assailing republican leaders for their part in the attempt to combine the Narragansett Lighting Company and the United Electric Railways Company under the Rhode Island Public Service Company as a holding concern.

The united democratic attack on the utility merger plan was simultaneous with the announcement of the public service company that it has acquired more than 50 per cent. of the lighting company stock.

"We demand such modification of the Volstead act," states the platform, "as will obtain for it the support of all right-minded people and make it capable of enforcement. The democratic party is utterly opposed to the return of the saloon, but it is also opposed to the present reign of lawlessness which is the natural outgrowth of the Volstead act and which creates disrespect for all law."

In regard to public utilities the platform states:

"The shameless attempt to increase the amount of securities of two public utilities from $45,000,000 to $60,000,000 and to have issued $15,000,000 in new securities without any new money being paid for them upon which the consuming public must pay interest and dividends is an outrage upon every street car rider and user of electricity in this state.

"We believe it is the purpose of the republican boss and his unknown associates to sell the control of the electric lighting company and the street railway to interests outside of Rhode Island. The state of Rhode Island suffered when the management of the telephone facilities of this state was transferred to foreign influences, and we want no more outside domination of public utilities.

LABOR MEN TO MAKE ADDRESSES IN DETROIT

DETROIT, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Delegates to the American Federation of Labor ended their business session today with cordial applause for an address by Sherwood Eddy, introduced by President William Green as secretary for Asia for the international Y. M. C. A.

Mr. Eddy received courtesy of the convention floor to report on an unofficial industrial survey of Europe during the last summer.

He said he spoke only as a private citizen and not as a representative of the International Y. M. C. A. He did not allude to the action of the Detroit Y. M. C. A. yesterday in withdrawing its invitation to President Green to speak in the Y auditorium next Sunday. He recommended consideration of the problems of Russia as elements of far reaching significance in international affairs.

"For good or evil, from the point of view of shaping history, Russia is perhaps the most significant country in the world today, together with our own."

The convention resumed routine business today after an interruption of two days devoted to protest against a move to close Detroit pulpits to labor speaker.

William Green, president of the federation, will attend a mass meeting Sunday under the auspices of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ of America, at the First Congregational church of Detroit.

Although he will not formally address the assemblage he will respond extemporaneously to an introduction by the presiding clergymen.

Frank Morrison, secretary of the federation, will speak Sunday at a church yet to be named.

John P. Frey, president of the Ohio State Federation of Labor, will speak at a meeting of Detroit Ministerial association Monday.

Following the recommendation of President Green, the convention ended its discussion of the withdrawal of invitations to labor speakers by representatives of various churches and the Detroit Y. M. C. A., without recording formal expression of the action of the churchmen.

Lynn Harold Hough, pastor of the Central Methodist church of Detroit, will preside at the Sunday meeting at the First Congregational church.

The convention adjourned at 5:30 o'clock. After the morning session tomorrow, the delegates will visit the Ford Motor plant in a body. There will be no afternoon session.

BRIDGEPORT'S "PHANTOM STABBER" AGAIN AT WORK

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The "phantom stabber" who has wounded nearly a score of young girls reappeared tonight, and stabbed Camelia Chararalla, 19, of 55 High street, as she was leaving St. Augustine's church. A wound nearly an inch deep was inflicted, which was the deepest and most severe of any yet made by the stabber.

This was the first appearance of the stabber since last August 13, when he stabbed three girls in one night. The girl tonight was stabbed as she entered the vestibule of the church and as she held the door open for the man to pass through on his way out of the church. He passed a companion of the girl as he was blessing himself and struck at his victim as she held the door open. She was treated at the office of Dr. J. Rowe, 431 Washington avenue, for a deep wound in her left side.

The two girls gave the police descriptions of the "phantom" who had already disappeared when the girl became aware that she had been stabbed. In a moment, he had been completely swallowed up by the darkness and a search of the church, the church grounds, and entire vicinity within less than five minutes after the stabbing, failed to reveal any trace of the fiend.

461 AUTO ACCIDENTS IN THE STATE LAST WEEK

HARTFORD, Oct. 7.—(AP)—With 69 accidents reported during the week of September 26, October 2, Hartford once again held a wid elead over remaining Connecticut cities in the number of automobile accidents reported to the motor vehicle department. New Haven, in second place, reported 51 accidents over the same period.

The number of accidents reported in the state during the week was 461, of which number 270 took place in the state's fourteen cities. There were five fatal accidents, with six fatalities. During the corresponding week last year, the state total was 427 and the city total 275. Seven fatal accidents resulted in seven deaths.

Totals in Connecticut cities from September 26 to October 2, aside from Hartford and New Haven, follow:

Bridgeport, 38; Waterbury, 29; New Britain, 20; Meriden, 11; Stamford, 11; Greenwich, 9; Norwich, 9; New London, 8; Norwalk, 6; Danbury, 5; Middletown, 3; Winsted, 3.

CASES BEFORE THE STATE SUPREME COURT OF ERRORS

HARTFORD, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Compensation, mechanics, insurance and probate questions engaged the attention of the supreme court of errors at its session in the state library building today. Judge Earnest C. Simpson of the superior court substituted in the absence of Justice Frank B. Haines, who is ill. Late in the afternoon Judge Leonard J. Nickerson, suspending business in the superior court, substituted for Judge Simpson in a case in which the latter was disqualified.

Whether a woman who has an office at her employer's and her home is entitled to compensation when she is injured in going to and fro, is the interesting question before the court in the appeal of the Hazard Lead works, of Hozardville, and its insurer, the Travelers Ingurance company, from the decision of Judge Wolfe giving Mrs. Amy I. Whitney, of 60 Enfield street, Enfield, compensation for injuries received while going from her house to her work February 15, 1922.

After a night of work at her home in the interest of the company, of which she was secretary-treasurer and general manager, Mrs. Whitney slipped as she was about to board a car at Matheson's corner, fracturing her hip. Judge Wolfe, holding that her injury arose out of her employment, awarded her compensation after Compensation Comissioner George B Chandler had decided against her Frederick A. Scott and Pierce and Pierce represented Mrs. Whitney. Allan E. Brockmith and Waren H. Cornell appeared for the Travelers, which is contesting the award.

Is a motorist approaching an intersection of streets bound to look to the left or the opposite direction in which he has the right of way?

This question was submitted on the appeal of Lydia Lose, of New Britain, from the decision of Judge Thomas J. Molloy, of the common pleas court setting aside a verdict of $250 in her favor against Joseph Fitzgerald, of the same city.

She was injured when her automobile collided with Fitzgerald's car.

FRENCH RATIFICATION OF DEBT NOW ASSURED

PARIS, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Prospects of ratification of the Washington debt settlement have so increased during the past few days that talk in the lobbies of the chamber of deputies is now turning on its probable majority.

The strength of the French franc in the past two days is attributed to a change in attitude toward the Mellon-Berenger agreement, and parliamentary prophets now figure $50 votes in the chamber for ratification with reservations in the preamble. This would give a clear majority approaching 100 in favor of the agreement.

The socialists will present a motion to send the accord back to the government with instructions to reopen negotiations with the United States, but it is thought that this motion will not be able to muster more than 150 to 200 votes.

According to the present government program, the reservations which will be incorporated in the preamble will cover two points: (1) A guarantee against payments in excess of French capacity and (2) suspension of payments if they should become impossible without upsetting French exchange.

LIQUOR SEIZED ON DOLLAR LINE STEAMER IN BROOKLYN

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Customs officers seized 179 bottles alleged to contain assorted wines and liquors on the Dollar liner President Hayes after it docked in Brooklyn today from a world cruise.

It was on the President Hayes that Robert Dollar, of San Francisco, millionaire head of the Dollar line, returned to this country today from his fourth trip around the world.

Customs officials said the 179 bottles of alleged liquor were hidden in sealed paint cans.

One customs inspector also seized eighteen cases of 100 gallons each of alleged alcohol, worth $75,000, said to have been discharged from the United Fruit liner Lmon today. The seizure was made following the capture of a motor truck loaded with old cases marked "Olive Oil," as the truck was leaving the pier. One case, which was to have been consigned to the public stores for appraisal contained Olive Oil, officials said.

TO SING "SWINE SONG" AT LEGION CONVENTION

MADISON, Neb., Oct. 7.—(AP)—This state's famous "Swine Song," shouted and sung by Fred Patsels, world's champion hog caller, will be heard at the national American Legion convention at Philadelphia this month. The Iowa delegation will escort Patsels, who has never been more than 200 miles from home.

GUNS HALT APPLE THIEVES IN SOUTH COVENTRY CELLAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 7—Armed with shotguns, Caretaker Charles Grant and his assistant, Fred Granice of the Phineas Talcott farm, South Coventry, held three apple burglars who had penetrated the cellar of the farm, until state police officers arrived from Stafford Springs. The three men, Peter Stenock of 84 Miller street, Edward Konecka, 497 Northrup street and Jack Askro, 55 Lyman street, all of New Britain, were taken at once before the Coventry town court and bound over to the next criminal term of the Tolland county superior court under bonds of $1,000 each. A series of raids had been made on apple orchards in North Coventry including those on the Talcott farm. Mr. Talcott conducts a store in Rockville and wholesale apples from the farm, which is unoccupied, but the cellar of which has been used for storage of the fruit. Caretaker Grant became suspicious when he noticed men riding past the farm several times during the past few days. He and his assistant were awaiting just such an act when a Ford autotruck drove to the house about two o'clock in the morning and three of the men entered the cellar. Bags were being filled with apples when the caretakers appeared with their guns. State police officers, Clifford Willis and Fred E. Taylor responded to a telephone call. The three instruders were charged with breaking and entering in the night time and attempt at theft. They admitted their guilt. A search is now being made for the driver of the truck, who drove off in a hurry when he sensed that something had gone wrong. The truck is believed to be owned by a Hartford man.

THORRNHILL-WHYTE WEDDING AT WINDHAM

(Special to the Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 7—Miss Florence Amelia Whyte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Whyte of Windham, became the bride of William H. Thornhill, son of Representative and Mrs. John S. Thornhill of Brookfield Center, at the home of her parents at two o'clock, yesterday afternoon. Fall flowers adorned the rooms and the ceremony was performed in front of an improvised altar of autumn leaves and pink and white dahlias. The bride was attired in white crepe, trimmed with lace. She wore a tulle veil caught up with orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of Killarney roses. Attending her was her sister, Miss Annie Whyte who wore cathedral blue crepe de chine and carried gladiola. John S. Thornhill, Jr., brother of the groom, was best man. Rev. Oliver H. Munroe of Phillips, Me., performed the ceremony, the double ring service being used. Miss Helene Boynton of West Hartford, cousin of the bride, played the wedding march. Mrs. Thornhill is a graduate of Windham High and Yale Summer Normal school. She has been a teacher in the Mansfield school for the past four years. The groom is a graduate of the Danbury High school and attended Middlebury Academy. He is now employed by the F. H. Lee company of Danbury.

Members of the two families were guests at a reception, at the close of which the bride and groom left on a wedding trip. For traveling the bride wore Chanel red crepe, with hat to match. She received many gifts, including gold, silver, pyrex, china, cut glass, furniture and checks.

McKERNAN CASE NOLLED— HIS TRUCK KILLED BLAIS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 7—For lack of witnesses or evidence to prove the case, Prosecuting Attorney Harry S. Gaucher asked in the police court that the case against John McKernan of Hartford, charged with manslaughter, be nolled. The defendant was not put to plea. Coroner Arthur G. Bill, in his inquest finding had held that the death of Henry Blais, killed when he fell from a truck driven by McKernan, being crushed beneath the right rear wheel, on the night of September 14th, was due to criminal carelessness on the part of the accused. Judge Foss discharged McKernan, who was represented by Attorney W. J. Mulligan of Thompsonville. The accident in question occurred on West Main street. Blais died while he was being taken into St. Joseph's hospital.

From her home at 30 Windham St., the funeral of Mrs. Eugenie Cyr were held Thursday morning. Requiem high mass in St. Mary's church at nine o'clock was attended by a large gathering of relatives and friends. There were beautiful floral tributes. Rev. H. C. Belec sang the mass. Escorting the body from the entrance to the sanctuary rail were delegations from Conseil St. Cecile, No. 113, L'Union St. Jean Baptiste d'Amerique, the Ste. Anne Chilr sang under direction of Mrs. Delphis G. Boucher, with Mrs. Joseph F. Gaudreau at the organ. The bearer bearers were Mrs. Gedeon Cote, Mrs. Victoria Demers and Mrs. Michael Denault. The canopy bearers were Mrs. Antoine Dion, Mrs. Frank Caisse, Mrs. Pierre Cote, and Mrs. Frank Gelinas. The body was escorted by the organizations to St. Joseph's cemetery where burial took place, the officers of the various parish societies joining in the final prayers. Rev. Fathers Belec read the committal service. The bearers were, Alexis Caisse, Pierre Cote, Pierre Roy, Louis Grvais, Thomas Tennant and Louis Cote.

Joseph Kelley, 46, colored, pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy, in Coventry town court Thursday morning. Justice of the Peace Albert M. Gilman imposed a sentence of thirty days in Tolland county jail. Kelley was nosing around the cottages at the north end of Lake Wangumbaug, South Coventry, late Wednesday night and he secured a lunch from Julius Beville. After sleeping in a wagon-shed overnight, Kelley went back to Beville in the hope of getting his breakfast also. The Stafford Springs state police barracks were notified and Officer Henry Heinold came and placed Kelley under arrest. Grand Juror Robert G. Brooke prosecuted the case.

The funeral of Edgar Breton was held from his home, 252 Main street, Thursday morning. High mass of requiem at St. Mary's church at 10.00 o'clock was sung by Rev. E. A. Mathieu. The bearers were Donat Boutin, Joseph Morin, Philomon Metivier, Joseph Therrien, Leonat Chandonet and Rogers Despres. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery, where Rev. Father Mathieu conducted the committal service.

The world wide contribution of the radio to the development of sports has been manifest in this city during the opening of the world baseball series. At various stores where the game is received over the ethereal highways crowds of enthusiasts have gathered daily to overflow into the streets, where special traffic management has had to be resorted to at times.

Archibald W. Buchanan, of Mansfield, agent for the state board of education, held his Thursday morning session at the town building here to meet children between 14 and 16 seeking employment certificates. Six applicants called.

Francis S. Long, Woman's Relief corps, No. 28, held its meeting and inspection with President Lena Tripp in charge, at the G. A. R. rooms Wednesday evening. Mrs. Alice Kingston of Rockville was inspector, also delivered an address. Department Counselor Mrs. Maud Deming also praised the corps on its excellent work. Mrs. Kingston was presented a gift by President Lena Tripp, in behalf of the corps.

Funeral services for Mrs. Lucy B. More were held at her home, 100 High street at 2.30 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock officiated. The bearers were Benjamin Hills, Laurence King, Bert F. More and Edward Burt. Burial was in the Willimantic cemetery. Arrangements were in charge of Avery and VanZandt.

The women members of Willimantic Country club entertained at auction at the club house in the afternoon this week with twelve tables in play. Miss Myrtle Jordan won first prize and Mrs. Arthur S. Wheelock took second. Miss Jordan was chairman of the arrangements assisted by Mrs. John Hargreaves, Mrs. R. Bullock Jones, Mrs. Marjorie B. Church and Mrs. George F. Taylor was hostess.

William Reed, 69, and Patrick Smith, 73, cotton mill workers hailing from parts unknown were charged with intoxication when in police court Thursday morning and each pleaded guilty. Judge Foss imposed a fine of $15 and costs, amounting to $23.40 in each case. Being without funds the men were taken to the county jail at Brooklyn.

The store clerks in the city remained at work Thursday afternoon for the first time this season, having had a half-holiday on that day since spring.

NOANK

The fishing boat Betty C, Capt. Chris Christina came in from a trip of a few days with a large catch of mackerel, 32 barrels. They were packed and forwarded to New York by truck. Capt. Chris said the mackerel are running in large schools and bring a good price in Fulton market. He put aboard gasoline and supplies and left for for the fishing ground outside Block Island, about 50 miles. The trip will take from four to six days.

Rose cottage on Elm street is having improvements and repairs including reshingling.

The lobster season is about over. Many of the lobstermen are bringing in their pots and gear but some will leave the pots out all winter. The season has been fair and many large catches were made, but lots of gear was lost. This summer was better than last year. Many new boats entered the list and tried their luck.

Baseball fans were listening in on the world series at St. Louis Wednesday afternoon at Lyle Chesebro's home. When Babe Ruth got his first home run Walter Willis put his elbow through the window. He was some glad to see the Babe come through and when he hit the next one that broke the window some one asked will Ruth have to pay for the glass and everybody had a great laugh.

Keith Ebbett has a cat named Snow Ball and where the owner goes Snow Ball goes. One day this week Mr. Ebbett got on the 7.45 trolley car and when the car got down to High street the cat was in his lap so he had to take the cat back home. Puss does tricks. When the key is turned in the lock for the night, he is ready to go out; and when the whistle blows at the shipyard Snow Ball will start for the yard to meet Keith's father. A stranger cannot pick him up, for he will run away every time.

THOUGHT LAST MOMENT HAD COME

But Kellogg's ALL-BRAN conquered constipation, the cause of her trouble

Now she's healthier and happier than ever!

"I awoke with a most disagreeable sensation around my heart and, together with fear, thought my last moment had come. After that I began to be troubled greatly with indigestion. This I treated diligently with supposed cures, but never found anything that completely relieved me except ALL-BRAN."

Edith M. Mason. (Address on request.)

Constipation is the hideous bugbear of health. It fastens its ravaging hold on young and old. Sallow complexion, pimples, headaches—are all symptoms! Cleanse your system of its poisons for good.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation permanently if eaten regularly. It is 100 per cent bran. That's why doctors recommend it!

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek, Michigan. A ready-to-serve cereal, delicious with milk or fruit. Used in cooking too. Served everywhere. Sold by all grocers on a money-back guarantee.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

For Head Colds

THERE are many ways to treat a cold in the head, but only one DIRECT way, and that is with vapors that can be inhaled.

The easiest and most satisfying way to get these vapors is to snuff a little Vicks VapoRub well up the nose, or melt a little in a spoon or tin cup and inhale.

The medicated vapors reach immediately into every corner of the air passages, soothing and healing with every breath.

For other forms of cold troubles just rub Vicks over the throat and chest at bedtime. It is then the body heat which releases these vapors.

THROWING LIGHT —on a Business you should Understand!

You are entitled to know all the facts about any business so vitally important in modern life as ours.

Seven years ago the type of man that dominated this money-lending field was the grasping and unscrupulous "loan shark."

That type is dead. The "loan shark" has passed.

A Declaration of Principles of the American Industrial Lenders Association, the National Body with which the Connecticut Industrial Lenders Association is affiliated—

RESOLVED, That the American Association desires to uplift and dignify the Industrial Loan Business and assist State Organizations in securing legislation, fixing terms fair to the borrower, and rates that will yield a fair return to the lender, considering amount of loans and risk of principal, so that the lender will obtain a FAIR return on the capital invested.

Fulfilling a Need

It is not fair to you or to us to permit the honset business of lending money, to labor under the shadow of another's misdeeds.

The Loan business today is conducted by BUSINESS men, who realize that the life of any business is assured only as the business answers fairly the needs of the public.

The State of Connecticut has passed laws that specify a maximum rate of interest to be charged in lending money. Industrial Lenders are responsible legally to the State Banking Department, and morally to the public at large, and are recognized by great men and great institutions in both business and public life as faithful and friendly servants to the man of moderate means.

In this series of messages we hope to shed light on the true methods of operation followed by legalized loan companies.

DANIELSON

DEATH OF PERCY E. WALLER— SON-IN-LAW OF F. A. JACOBS

(Special to the Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 7—A telegram received here Thursday morning brought information of the death during that period of Percy E. Waller, 41, son-in-la of Frederick A. Jacobs, at his home in Skaneateles, N. Y. Mr. Waller and Miss Marjorie Jacobs were married at the Westfield Congregational church here in 1913. The event is well remembered by a great majority of Danielson's citizens as an outstanding society affair of that summer season.

The announcement of Mr. Waller's death came as a surprise. Knowledge of his illness here served to indicate that his ailment was not of a serious nature. He was a graduate of Princeton university, a member of the class of 1910, and had gained fame at his alma mater as a member of the varsity football team.

Mr. Waller leaves his wife and three children, Marjorie Jay Waller, Barbara Waller and John Waller.

Mr. Jacobs and Miss Laura Jacobs will leave Friday morning for Skaneateles to attend the funeral services.

ST. ALBAN'S CHURCH LEFT $1,000 BY MISS ANNIE DAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 7—The income from a gift of $1,000 goes to St. Alban's church of Danielson, through a provision in the will of Miss Annie Day, who died the past month and who was well known for many years as a school teacher in the town of Brooklyn and Killingly. Miss Day's will provides that the sum of $1,000 be given to the trustee of bequests and charities of the Episcopal diocese of Connecticut, the income therefrom to be paid each year to St. Alban's parish, Danielson.

Miss Day's will also provides a gift of $1,000 to the Westcott and Wilcox Old People's Home of Danielson.

These are the only public bequests in the will, which disposes of a very considerable estate. Other bequests are to relatives and include money and personal property.

One of the few automobile accidents that have occurred in Danielson recently involved two cars in what proved to be an inconsequential affair, at the junction of Main and Water streets Thursday. A machine driven by Edward Porter of Fall River, proceeding down Main street, was in collision with a car driven by Henry Benan of Killingly, who had just come across the bridge over the Assawaga river. There was some, but not serious damage, to both machines. Chief John McFarland of the Danielson police checked up the accident.

Killingly keeps the cost of maintaining its indigent poor on approximately as low a level as does the state of Connecticut. And that's a fine mark to shoot at. In the past year, at the town farm, the expense, net, of maintaining those who are there in the care of the town has been on an as low a basis as $2.05 a week. That is a splendid record. This will be particularly impressed upon any individual, man or woman, who takes time to account for the cost of his or her keep during the course of a year. Few people live as comfortably and as well fed and as well cared for for $2.05 a week as the inmates of Killingly's town farm. If there is such, they might contribute a favor or humanity by telling the world how it is done.

The secret of the low net cost per individual upon the town farm appears to be in the revenue the farm is made to produce through the aid of the people who find themselves there in the care of Killingly. They do a very considerable amount of work under Superintendent Bissell and the matron, Mrs. Bissell. The past year the total income of the farm was $2,704.60, this reducing the net cost of the farm, exclusive of interest on the plant investment, to $2,407.55.

Farm income is derived from various sources. To mention a few average items of the town farm it was credited for work of the town teams the past year brought in $667.24; cattle, $488, some from the sale of milk and cream from the town dairy, and from the poultry yard profits of another $442.14. Sale of pigs boosted the revenue another $211.13. Out of the farm gardens came profits that added $241.15 to the town farm income sheet. Junk ordinarily a revenue item, added $225.07 more. Interest upon moneys of people at the farm, refunds or bounds contributed $264.57. Any income of the farm that came under other items to make up the total revenue.

There is a good record relative to attendance, but there is one fact a considerable consideration in the mind of the average person. Good management and sound judgment are back of it all. Bissell came to the annual town meeting the occasion on which this record is based. It's something of a reason for being proud forth for the general consideration of the people of the town of Killingly. A man now rated as competent once wrote that "many of those so born to high esteem", or something to the general effect without suspecting that these are days when a good record may be accounted of obscurity for the world to pause and ponder, as they may this day in considering how well the town farm of Killingly is managed.

Thursday evening the body of Mrs. Eva Boiselle Martin, who died at a hospital in Fall River, was brought to Danielson in charge of Undertaker Martin T. Burns. Mrs. Martin was a resident here prior to her marriage.

Wednesday afternoon Supt. Robert T. Hurley of the state police department came here to address members of the Killingly Woman's club at their meeting at the Methodist Episcopal church on the subject of finger prints.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles White have gone to Augusta, Ga., to remain for the winter season.

New de luxe coaches to be used on the through motor coach line between Providence and Hartford via Danielson have arrived here.

William A. Mason of Bridgeport was a visitor with friends in Danielson Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett C. Pellett have returned from their wedding trip and are occupying their new home here.

Killingly assessors plan to get at their work at once. All lists of taxable property must be filed with them by November 1, if one would escape the 10 per cent penalty for failing to file within the time specified by law.

The radio fans were on hand again Thursday afternoon to hear the broadcast of the fifth game of the World's Serie sheing played in St. Louis.

There was a threat at nightfall Thursday of a killing frost, something not experienced in Danielson as yet this season.

It is understood that the spring of next year will see the state highway department asking for bids for construction of another section of the concrete highway between Danielson and Putnam. Only about three miles of this route remains to be concreted. A section was built last year, but no extension made in 1926.

Because of this week's visit of the Danielson Rotary club to Willimantic, there was no meeting of the club Thursday evening, the regular meeting night.

Harvesting of the potato crop is under way in this section. It promises to be bountiful and of good quality.

Leo J. L'Homme is considering arrangements for the observance of Armistice day. Part of the indefinite expense of the observance will be met by the town's appropriation of $175 for that purpose.

Dogs in Killingly did damage to the amount of $213 during the past fiscal year, it is shown by the annual report, this damage being largely in killing sheep.

As has been customary for many years, an annual All Saints' day service is to be held in early November at Old Quinebaug church in Brooklyn, the oldest Episcopal church in the United States. This is the only regularly scheduled service at this historic edifice each year, although an occasional funeral service is held there.

Transportation of school children from outlying sections of the town of Killingly to schools in more central districts has been extended, so that it now involves taking of children from the Sparks and Tucker districts to East Killingly, from the Muskegonuck Horse Hill and Warren districts to Danielson from the Dark Lantern district to South Killingly, from Ballouville and Brooklynck district to Attawaugan and from South Killingly to Danielson.

Woolen and worsted manufacturers from this vicinity were at the Putnam Country club Thursday afternoon for their annual outing.

Mrs. Ida Owens has been a visitor from Danielson with Mrs. G. F. Pierce of North Sterling.

Another two months will be required to complete the work on the new auditorium interior in the south wing of the enlarged high school.

Killingly high school's football team is getting practice for games that it has scheduled for late October and November dates, Coach Boudoire of the high school fourth has the squad in charge.

This is the first day of the open season for hunting game birds that appeared in the calendar this year. There is a great exodus of hunters planned for Killingly today.

No great number of political rallies will be held in Danielson prior to the state election on November 2, but there may be one or two.

Abel Bernier was one of a party from Danielson attending the big fair at Brockton.

No special public observance of Columbus day next Tuesday has been planned for Danielson, though some dances and whist parties have been arranged.

Do not forget the food sale by the W. R. C. this afternoon at D. and P. Gas and Electric Co. office.—Adv.

So mild has been the late September and early October weather that blueberries are to be picked in outlying sections of the town of Killingly, farmers of the fields have found.

Game wardens will be out in force today (Friday) to check up on hunters who go afield. They will see that bag limits of other regulations are observed.

Gertrude Mercier is now in charge of the manicure department of the Main and Water streets.

Tyler Andrews, who has been at the Putnam country club overseeing as professional, has entered in business here at the close of the present golfing season.

Accidents of collecting in this territory that now indicate that not all of the accidents are going into pits or stored away for winter use.

George Ide is recovering from an injury he received last week. Mr. Ide was unloading a truck when he received painful injuries.

PUTNAM

STARTED FOR CALIFORNIA— LOCAL BOYS INJURED

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 7.—William Aldrich, the 19 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Aldrich of Chapman street is in a hospital at Bloomington, Ill., dangerously injured as the result of an automobile accident.

With Emil Brenick of this city, Aldrich left here on Labor day in a second hand Ford car for a trip across the continent, to end at San Diego, Cal., where an uncle of young Aldrich lives. They planned to make the trip by easy stages and to work their way, stopping at cities along the route. Leters received by the families of the boys told that they were well and happy and enjoying their trip immensely, the last message being from Detroit, which they expected to leave a few days ago.

Only meagre details are available, the first word coming from Emil Brenick who wired Mr. Aldrich that that they had been in an accident and that William was seriously hurt and that he himself was slightly injured. Further information brought the word that both boys were in St. Joseph's hospital at Bloomington and that young Aldrich was still unconscious.

Telegrams received from the surgeons at the hospital this morning by the parents of the boys state that while Brenick is not badly hurt, Aldrich has suffered concussion of the brain, but that his condition is slightly improved.

JOHN M. HOGAN ADVANCED TO ASSISTANT MANAGER

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 7.—John M. Hogan of this city is the new assistant manager of the Bradley and Victory theatres of this city, replacing Sam Garfinkel who has resigned to [illegible] a Providence theatre. Jacob [illegible] manager of the S-A Amusement company, which owns five theatres located in Putnam, Danielson and [illegible]ville, is compelled to be out of [illegible] a considerable part of the time during his absence, Mr Hogan [illegible] in charge. He has lived here all his life, knows and is well known to the people of Putnam and especially the theatre-going public and is well equipped for his new responsibilities.

HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER FAVORS WOODSTOCK ROAD

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 7.—By popular vote it is decided that there is to be a continuous state road from Woodstock through to the Eastford line. This means that there is to be a modern highway from Putnam through to Willimantic by the way of Woodstock and Eastford.

At the town meeting in Woodstock, the article in the warrant to continue the State Aid road from West Woodstock through Woodstock valley was adopted. The selectmen have already been in conference with State Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald and the favorable vote at the town meeting was the result of an understanding with him. The cost will not exceed $50,000 of which sum the state will bear three-fourths and the town one-fourth.

The new highway is of great importance to Putnam as it will provide a good highway from here to Woodstock and Eastford, all the year.

Alberta and J. H. Hale peaches 50 cents to $1 on 14-qt. basket at orchard. A. M. Paine, E. Killingly.—adv.

The meeting of Romfret League of Women Voters has been postponed and will be held at the home of Miss Katherine Nott Wednesday, Oct. 13. Attorney Elsie H. Johnson is to be the speaker and will talk on the "Legal Status of Women."

At Thompson town meeting the proposal to build a new school-house in North Grosvenordale was voted down. It was estimated that the proposed building would cost about $50,000.

A rummage sale held in the Stoumts block for the benefit of the Men's class of the Second Congregational church proved a great success and netted the club $148.

The Putnam Evening school has opened in the high school building with 162 pupils, 26 of them being in the Americanization department, principally adults of foreign birth, and 76 in the commercial department. The enrollment shows a material increase over that of last year. While it has never been the policy of the school to admit students of the public day schools, this year all students who are attending the public schools in the day time are barred. The commercial course includes stenography, typewriting and bookkeeping. The teaching staff is composed of Lewis F. Bailey, principal, Miss Ruth Elliott of North Grosvenordale, Miss Gizelle Magnant and Miss Elizabeth Smith of Putnam. The hours are from 7:30 to 9:30 Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday evenings. The increasing enrollment shows that the evening school advantages are appreciated more and more.

Rev. Mr. Lockwood, who was the supply pastor at the First Baptist church in this city for a number of months has accepted a pastorate in Cambridge, Mass., to begin Sunday, Oct. 10. Mr. Lockwood has also been supplying the pulpit at Thompson Congregational church during the illness of Rev. Stephen Livingston. Mr. Lockwood made many friends in Putnam who will wish him success in his new field of work.

Arthur Potter, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Potter was in an automobile accident at Quinebaug, at the four corners. Potter was driving east, going to Webster when he came into collision with a car driven by Charles F. Monograves of Three Rivers, Mass. Mr. Potter's car was wrecked and he was cut by glass. The other car was not much damaged and the driver escaped with a slight cut on the face. Each driver claimed to be going but 20 miles an hour.

Twenty-two members of the Putnam Rotary club attended the meeting of the Rotary club of Willimantic, at which delegations from the clubs of Norwich and Danielson were guests. Rev. George J. Donahue, of Pomfret, was the speaker of the evening.

William Muir of Providence, one of the owners of the Manhassett Mills, was in Putnam Wednesday. He authorized the statement that the rumor is without foundation that the Fiske Tire and Rubber company have either leased or bought the mills. It has not yet been decided by the owners just what disposition will be made of the property.

Rev. Frank A. Fuller of this city has returned from Stafford Springs where he went to officiate at the funeral of Mr. Haines, a former parishoner of Mr. Fuller and one of the few remaining veterans of the Civil war in that community.

In spite of the non-recognition of soviet Russia by the United States that country is purchasing a greater volume of commodities from the United States than from any other nation, commerce department figures show.

Whitham, lecturer, Groton; Mr. Avery, chaplain, Mrs. Charles Adams, assistant; lady steward, Groton; Morgan Adams, gatekeeper, Groton; Alice Bishop, secretary, Bozrah; Mr. Hempstead, treasurer; Cynthia Crary, Ceres, Preston. Miss Bishop, Flora, Bozrah. A dinner was served by Pachaug grange. In the afternoon a class of 88 received the state degree. The officers giving the degree were: Minor Ives, state master, of Meriden; F. N. Taylor of Lebanon, who acted as overseer; Mrs. A. B. Keetzmer of Wethersfield, Flora; Mrs. E. J. Whitham of Groton, lecturer; Frank H. Peet of Kent, steward; Charles M. Adams of Groton, assistant steward; Rev. J. H. Hoyt of New Canaan, chaplain; Ard Weton, Plymouth, secretary; William Edmond, Pachaug acted as gatekeeper; Mrs George T. Hine of Orange, is Ceres; Jennie Holton, of Ellington Pomona, and Mrs. Charles Adams of Groton acted as lady steward. The hall was beautifully decorated with dahlias given by Rev. J. W. Reynolds from the Pilgrim Gardens, in Lisbon.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace H. Payne have had as guests Mr. and Mrs. Denniston Chadlton of Caumaguay, Cuba.

Mrs. E. H. Hiscox spent Thursday in Windham with her cousin, Miss Gertrude L. Arnold.

Mrs. G. A. Haskell attended the meeting of the Mayflower club at the home of Mrs. Silas Wheelock in Putnam.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Walton and son are on their way by automobile to spend the winter in Florida.

Local friends are interested to learn of the arriage of Theodore Barry, formerly of Jewett City and Theresa Plozek, at Litchfield. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John L. McGuiness in St. Anthony's church Sunday afternoon at one o'clock. The bride wore a pink and gold gown with hat to match. She carried an arm bouquet of bride' roses and white asters. The bridesmaid was the bride's sister. The Susie Blozek. She wore a dress of blue and tan color and carried pink roses and asters. The best man was the groom's brother, Florimond Barry, of Jewett City. A turkey dinner was served at the bride's home to near relatives. After a short honeymoon trip Mr. and Mrs. Barry will live in a newly furnished apartment in New York where Mr. Barry is employed.

Althea Feild was given a surprise party on her birthday, Tuesday evening by a few of her friends. When the door bell rang she answered it and found a number of packages, but no one visible. Later Catherine Jodoin, Margery Webster, Irene Jaskiewicz, Gloriana and Lois Gill, Helen Weaver, Lawrence Peterson and John Parrish appeared to spend the evening. Games were played and refreshments served, a birthday cake adding to the surprise.

The records show that but few vegetarians marry grass widows.

PROTECTING OUR WOODLANDS

The development [illegible] forest resources of the state has long been urged in the interest [illegible] wood [illegible] ing of waste [illegible] lumber and the natural [illegible] benefits to life and property [illegible] would accrue therefrom.

But while [illegible] need for development [illegible] need for protection. We must [illegible] for what we have and [illegible] recklessly destroyed [illegible] Forester Hawley [illegible] the fact that [illegible] spends $150,000 [illegible] for forest fires [illegible] that none ought to be [illegible] for such a purpose and he attributes this to the fact that there are so many now going into the woods for recreational purposes and the thousands who are being carried there by automobiles.

It is quite evident that we cannot expect forest development if our woodlands are going to be burned over faster than reforestation can be carried on, but it is [illegible] to think of the large proportion of that destruction which is [illegible]

More than half of the forest fires are the result of carelessness on the part of those who go into the woods during those months of the year when there is a heavy carpet of dry leaves, which with a certain amount of dry underbrush makes the finest kind of kindlings. All that is needed to start the roaring fire is the application of the firebrand which is [illegible] cast aside by someone [illegible] from a fire which has [illegible] left or the cigarette which is [illegible] ately tossed out of a passing automobile into the leaves beside the highway.

The state forester sees need for more funds [illegible] such agencies of destruction. Undoubtedly that is true if such fires are going to be fought as they should be fought, but what [illegible] necessary is the [illegible] care by those who [illegible] fires. That would involve [illegible] of the state appropriation [illegible] much closer to the [illegible] funds that [illegible] to be careful.

ELECTRICS PICKING UP

Almost every [illegible] has had a chance [illegible] which have been [illegible] trolley lines. It has been [illegible] to turn every penny to the best expenses down [illegible] been obliged to [illegible] the fares. Some have been [illegible] and to escape receivership. Others have not and there are a few which have recovered [illegible] and gone out of business.

Before the Automobile Railway [illegible] Cleveland [illegible] that one [illegible] lines were in the hands [illegible] But [illegible] ing for the [illegible] vention was told that most of these receiverships [illegible] has been [illegible] been discharged.

The [illegible] ended the operation [illegible] owned automobiles, but [illegible] felt the effects of the [illegible] especially where cars [illegible] to run over [illegible] lines.

And yet the evidence is not few where the [illegible] of the has lines to the extension of the trolleys has proved [illegible] and the trolleys have been [illegible] favor. In the cities the conditions are such that the trolleys are indispensable. They are demanded by all classes and even the motorist [illegible] the feeling that it is quicker to get through the centers of cities by electrics than by automobile, especially [illegible] question of finding a parking place is involved. And with the increase in automobiles this is bound to be more and more recognized.

Where trolley lines running into the suburbs have lost patronage to the auto busses, it is also being found that even the bus lines find patronage unsatisfactory. Such lines have even gone out of business as they easily can because so many of those who would naturally use them drive their own cars.

The street cars are on; going ahead with leaps and bounds as they did some years ago but it will not be in the immediate future that those in cities will cease to find appreciative patrons.

SCOUTING

Scouting in football doesn't mean the same thing that it does in professional baseball. In the latter sport the scout goes about looking over the various teams with a view to getting a line on the players who give promise of developing into strong players and batsmen. And the scouting is done with the idea of securing such players for the strengthening of the big league team when needed.

In football scouting is for a different purpose. Representatives of the various universities are sent to watch the playing of other teams for the purpose of getting an insight into their methods and making it possible to build up a defense that will meet the various offenses. The scout brings warning of what can be expected from this, that or the other team and gives the coaches a chance to direct their efforts accordingly. It is because of the scouts that there is less chance for the trick plays causing big surprises.

Nevertheless there is a movement underway for the abolition of the football scout in order to reduce the commercialization and to check the intensive developments. The desire is for each university or college to develop its team according to its own ideas and put it against the others which have been developed in the same way. That might work so as to produce more onesided scores but it would, in the opinion of the advocates, give the coaches more time to develop new plays instead of causing them to devote their attention to developing a defense that would be flexible enough to meet most any form of attack.

The idea of abandoning the scouting is by no means unanimously approved. Those who favor it see no reason why the game should not be developed as a science and a business and can see no advantage to the game or the institutions by banning the scouts. There might be more argument in favor of such a change if it was a practice indulged in by only a few, but where all or most of them do it they seem to be on the same footing, scouting is of course a big system but if all are agreed to it honors are even.

MEETING THE DEBT

France has had a committee considering the agreement which has been negotiated for the payment of its debt to this country. It is a step taken previous to action regarding ratification by the French parliament and according to reports the committee does not favor ratification of the agreement in its present form. The committee feels that there should be some reservations, that there should be a safety clause whereby France would be relieved of payments in case Germany for any reason failed to pay France, and that the amount which has been fixed in the Mellon-Berenger agreement is too large.

The safety clause is not a new thought on the part of France. It was urged at the time of the previous negotiations and there is no reason to believe that there is any more inclination on the part of this government to sanction it now than there was then. France's debt to this country has nothing to do with what Germany owes France, and it would be certain to get more consideration if it were to ratify the agreement to pay and found that it couldn't come time in the future because Germany failed, that it will now in any move to make such a contingency considered in advance. Germany might well say, "If France hasn't got to pay America what it owes it if we do not pay France why should we pay France?"

As for the amount agreed upon for France to pay being too large, the sentiment expressed in this country that France should pay all and not a part of the bill indicates the reaction of this country on that point. France like others has been billed only for what it is believed it is able to pay.

WASTING NO TIME

Indications seem to point to the fact that President Calles of Mexico is going to have a chance to show his hand in the matter of putting down of trouble makers even as President Obregon did. The latter served notice that revolutionists must cease and that his efforts were going to be devoted to bringing the country back to a peaceful state of affairs. It will be remembered that he was true to his word and Mexico was given that chance to recover from the condition into which it had slumped because of so much internal strife.

President Calles accepted the improved conditions in the country to the south and now it rests upon his shoulders to see that they are maintained. He has been obliged to deal with no direct revolution and yet there has been an ugly temper shown by some, in Durango and the Yaqui [illegible] by those actions are causing no little concern.

It is a situation which the Mexican government cannot ignore and it is taking steps which show that it does intend to. Precautions have been made to increase the Mexican army [illegible] troops have been sent into the field with substantial reinforcements and the Mexican war department is sending arms into the field and providing dictates for effectively dealing with the troublemakers. Conditions of this kind given encouragement to the bandits but even they are being dealt with more firmly.

Mexican authorities know the value of [illegible] such trouble, watching it [illegible] the proportion of a [illegible] of [illegible] just [illegible] and following the Obregon policy appear to be doing so.

JOLTED OUT OF THE RUT

It was in the middle of the second act that the thing happened and DeWitt turned cold with confused terror. Looking at the brightly lighted stage, he realized suddenly that he could see only half suddenly head, that portions of the moving characters were blank to him in a queer hit-or-miss fashion and then when he instinctively closed his eyes the fireworks began --pinwheels, jagged lightning flashes of white fire against the black.

Optic nerve! At once he thought of old man Hennings and his oft-repeated tale of how he had gone blind. DeWitt had listened fascinated often as a boy, and this was what had happened to Hennings. The flashing wheels still revolved and something of his silent horror communicated itself to the girl sitting beside him. She leaned against his shoulder and spoke low, "What is it, DeWitt? Does your head ache?"

At his nod and murmured answer she made a sound of sympathy, suggesting at once that they go home, but DeWitt protested. It was nothing and he would be right in a few minutes. He'd just sit with his eyes closed for a bit and she was not to mind.

This was the sort of thing that was happening to people right along, upsetting their plans, ruining their lives, bringing tragedy. Blindness, death, bank failures, parabolis, all the sickening troubles of which he had been vaguely aware and which left him quite unmoved, having never experienced the touch of misfortune. He would have chosen any of the other ills. A desperate sense of all that he had lost and must forever miss overwhelmed him, so much that he might have grasped had he not dallied along the years cursed by the inertia that comes with comfort, success and sheer pleasure in life. It seemed now that it was this very night he had intended to ask Marion to marry him finally, after a couple of years of knowing on his part that he was going to ask her some day and that she knew it and was not likely to refuse him.

And now this put her so far away on unscalable heights that without knowing it he reached out and clasped her hand in a sort of desperation. A blind man could not ask a girl like Marion to sacrifice herself for him—wasn't he living up to this minutes thought on his secret consciousness that any girl with sense would feel lucky to be chosen? She would have ease, and even luxury, in a few years.

It was with an added pang that he thought of the European travel he had wanted some day, the jaunts over old roads to quaint world spots, the pictures he had thought he would see, the mountain tops from which he could look down on Swiss valleys—sunsets, sunrises, dew sparkling on the grass, wild crabapple blossoms, Marion's profile and the curve of her lips—

"You're awfully pale, DeWitt," she was insisting as the curtain fell. "Come—we're going this instant! You're ill, I know!"

"Perhaps I had better get home," he heard himself saying as he opened his eyes and found that he could see sufficiently to get about. She was not to know until he could not help himself and he shrank from what her pity would be when he had wanted so much more than pity. Why, there was no reason that would have prevented their having been married a year or so before, except his reluctance to settle down permanently. Fortunate for her that it was as it was.

He tried to say good-night casually but his voice broke, and the girl watched him enter the taxi at the curb with some perplexity. She sighed a bit as he closed the door of her home. All [illegible] DeWitt dozed fitfully, thinking.

It was morning before he was in the waiting room of a noted oculist, overriding the appointments of others with his insistence. He tried to tell what had happened to him briefly and calmly. His hand control the nervous paroxysms which shook him. He sat stiffly during the tedious examination of [illegible] followed. The doctor at [illegible] desk and began writing, and DeWitt's throat did not relax enough for him to voice his desperate question. Didn't the unmoved man in the white smock realize what this meant to a human being?

"You've strained your eyes and need [illegible]," the doctor said turning [illegible] "Here's your prescription for the lenses. Optic nerve? No, just the strain and perhaps a digestive disturbance! Your eyes [illegible] in every way!"

It was a bright sunny day when DeWitt emerged on the street feeling as if he had just realized the world and all that was in it. It was the Christmas [illegible] he was surrounded by [illegible] and perfume and there was music in the air. A strange tenderness [illegible] being he met [illegible] Soon he was at a telephone and was speaking to Marion in a ringing voice.

"Yes," he answered her, "I know it's only 1 o'clock in the morning, but I'll be there in half an hour. I've got to tell you something, ask you something, Marion, and I can't wait. I—I don't know how I've waited as long as I have."

YOUR HEALTH

SUNLIGHT

By Norman E. Titus, M. D., New York City,
Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

The more that medical research goes into the wonders of nature the greater number of uses are found for nature's greatest remedy—sunlight. Animals brought up without contact with actual naked sunlight are physically deficient. This is experimentally proven in watching the growth of chickens and mice on different diets.

It is not necessary that the body be exposed to the direct rays of the sun to get many of the benefits that come from the sky. The British frequently speak of "sky shine" which is just the light from the bare sky when the sun shine directly on their faces and light hitting the patient.

Consequently babies in carriages can sleep in the open air without having the sun shine directly on their faces and still acquire benefit from the light of the sky and the effect of the sun on the open air.

Few people realize that sunlight is of no benefit if it passes through ordinary window glass. Sunlight in bringing about its benefit generally produces sunburn and no one ever gets sunburned in a sun-parlor. It is therefore best in rooms that we wish to have the sun affect to have the window wide open.

Even the fresh air blowing in through the window will carry in some beneficial properties. Glass-like substances that will pass untraviolet rays and allow people to see through them have to be made either purely or to a large extent of quartz. This makes the glass quite expensive, although there is one expensive form that has recently come out that will find more and more use.

One should never forget the benefits of skyline. Its benefits can be demonstrated by the fact that it is possible to be sunburned on a boat on a hazy day when actual sunlight is not apparent. The active part of sunlight that is beneficial is the ultraviolet ray which is invisible to the eye and incidentally very difficult to reflect. Again the wonders of nature are appreciated when we realize that the best reflector for ultraviolet rays are water and silicum, of which sand is largely composed.

Today doctors are able to generate these ultraviolet rays by means of mercury lamps and old fashioned carbon are lamps give light most resembling sunlight and again nature's great wisdom is shown in the fact that in the treatment of tuberculosis the mercury arc lamp is not as good as a carbon arc.

Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D.

Caring for Subject

On the other hand those who find difficulty in focusing the mind for long periods of time may be comforted by the following opinion of Professor William James than whom there is no better authority on matters of this kind: "The total mental efficiency of a man is the resultant of the working together of all his faculties. He is too complex a being for any one of them to have the casting vote. If any one of them do have the casting vote, it is more likely to be the strength of his desire and passion, the strength of the interest he takes in what is proposed; concentration, memory, reasoning power, inventiveness, excellence of the senses,—all are subsidiary to this. No matter how scatter-brained the type of a man's successive fields of consciousness may be, if he really care for a subject, he will return to it incessantly from his incessant wanderings, and first, and last do more with it, and get more result from it, than another person whose attention may be continuous during a given interval, but whose passion for the subject is of a more languid and less permanent sort."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

At the real head of the United States Steel corporation since the first inception of that giant among industrial organizations, Judge Elbert H. Gary, who today celebrates his 80th birthday anniversary, stands among the foremost of the world's industrial leaders. Beginning life as a farm boy in Illinois he attended college and law school and in 1871 began the practice of his chosen profession in Chicago. He early specialized in corporation law, became counsel and director of two large steel corporations, and with the broadening of his industrial interests he abandoned the practice of his profession and went to New York as president of the Federal Steel company. With the organization of the United States Steel corporation Judge Gary was chosen chairman of the board and as such he has continued to be the directing head of the great combination.

AS OTHERS SEE IT

Dr. Penniman's View

(Christian Science Monitor

What Dr. Josiah H. Penniman, president of the University of Pennsylvania, said in an address to the students of that institution at the opening of its 187th academic year, regarding the qualities needed for success in college life is far more than merely local interest or value. Wearing funny clothes, peculiar hats, society pins or college badges, he urged, is quite incidental, for "To be respected, it is necessary to be worthy of respect, and if you are worthy of respect you will be respected." There has grown up strangely the fallacy that the individual of unusual ability must be eccentric, and consequently some ape eccentricities, in the hope that they will be considered, therefore, of unusual ability. This is how Dr. Penniman disposes of such beliefs:

The incidents and accidents of college life are only incidents and accidents. It requires exactly the same qualities to succeed in college life that are required in the world at large, and you will be judged and measured by your fellows, in college, or out of college, by your possession or these qualities.

Stories That Recall Others

Have You Ever Been Guilty.

Rita, age five, enjoys assuming responsibilities in the art of cooking.

One Saturday permission was given her to bake the Sunday cake. It seemed to be a big success but grandma was to pass final judgment on her visit the following day.

When grandma had tasted enough of the cake to form an opinion, she said, encouragingly: "Well, I'd tell the world that this a mighty good cake, Rita."

Rita bristling with pride promptly replied: "I thought so myself, grandma, when I licked the pan yesterday."

A Financier

Barbara's mother was in the hospital and the aunt who was looking after her welfare was trying very diplomatically to get the young lady to take a nap.

"What would you say, Barbara," coaxed Auntie Bee, "if I told you that if you take a nice long nap, when you wake up, you'll find a nickel on the foot of your bed?"

Barbara studied a minute, then her little face lighted with happy inspiration.

"S'pose, Auntie Bee," she said, "I take a little bitty nap and when I wake up there'll be a penny on the foot of my bed?"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Knights

Mr. Editor: Ain't war hell? But where does an ordinary sinner get off in this war of knights. We have Knights of Columbus, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, and several other knights we never hear about. They are just knighting and wondering what it's all about.

A knight in olden times was supposed to be a gentleman, high souled, honorable and above petty squabbling about the cheap things of this life. He went out at times in a ton or so of tin helmet, steel pants and O. D. shirt of boiler plate and either got his block knocked off, or knocked the block off some other knight worker, and called it a day in either event. But he did it openly and in daylight. Suppose we let these modern knights get out in tin lizzies and other gas devourers and fight it out in a regular tilting ground, and let the real "silent knights" get busy and do something for the day workers. Find 'em a job and some sensible laws to live under. We need 'em along with "Men who look on public office, as a sacred public trust, not as a public private grafting, or a public purse that can not bust."

Every man must make his bargain with the Lord who made us all. And after all its a private business. What a chap does with his soul.

Watch Your Frail, Puny Child Grow Strong—Take on Weight

Cod Liver Oil in Sugar Coated Tablets Puts on Flesh and Builds Them Up.

In just a few days—quicker than you ever dreamed of—these wonderful health building, flesh making tablets called McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets will start to help any thin, underweight little one.

After sickness and where rickets are suspected they are especially valuable. No need to give them any more nasty Cod Liver Oil—these tablets are made to take the place of that good, but evil smelling, stomach upsetting medicine and they surely do it.

A very sick child, age 9, gained 12 pounds in 7 months.

Ask Lee & Osgood Co., or any druggist for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—as easy to take as candy—60 tablets, 60 cents, and money back if not satisfied.

Did it ever occur to you that the easiest way to do a thing is to do it right?

THRIFT POSTER CONTEST FOR 7TH AND 8TH GRADES

Announcement has been made of a thrift poster contest for the seventh and eighth grades of the schools of Norwich in which prizes are personally offered by Charles H. Babcock, president of the Norwich Savings Society.

Jan. 17 to Jan. 24 is National Thrift Week, which always begins on Jan. 17, the birthday of the great American apostle of thrift, Benjamin Franklin. The largest and most lasting thrift work has been accomplished in the public schools and to keep up the interest of the children Charles H. Babcock, president of the Norwich Savings Society is personally financing an original thrift contest for the pupils of the seventh and eighth grades. Three prizes will be awarded for first, second and third.

The contest is open to pupils in the seventh and eighth grades, the posters will be judged on a committee of men to be appointed later. The prizes will be awarded on Thrift Week and the posters will be exhibited in the public library.

The conditions that have been announced for the contest are that the posters are to be on the subject of Thrift and the drawing shall be on paper 12x18 inches in size and must be original, not copies. Pencil, ink, crayon or water color may be used.

Those competing are directed to write their age, address, grade and name of school on back of drawings and hand to teacher on or before Dec. 15, 1926. The drawings are not to be signed nor folded.

Back Again In Cell

WEDDINGS
White-Tackaberry

Owen J. White of Putnam Conn., and Miss Sara Christina Tackaberry, of Lewiston Maine, were married there at St. Joseph's church Tuesday morning by Rev. John E. Kealey. Miss Alice Tackaberry, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Luke E. White, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Following the ceremony an informal breakfast was served to the couples at the home of the bride's parents.

Mrs. White is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Tackaberry. She was graduated from Bates college in 1926, and since graduation has taught at Rockland, Me., and Putnam, Conn. Mr. White is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. White of Putnam. He is a graduate of Clark university, has taught in Putnam and is now an engineer with the Connecticut highway department. After a wedding trip to New York, they will be at home at Putnam, after Oct. 17.

Giddens-Rose

The marriage of Miss Ruth Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Rose, High street, Baltic, to Henry Giddens of Franklin, took place Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Baltic parsonage.

Rev. Harvey Conklin, pastor of the Methodist church in Baltic, performed the ceremony. Miss Rose was attended by Miss Louise Webster and Allen House of Hanover was best man. The gift of the bride to the bridesmaid was an Egyptian gold bracelet. The gift of the bridegroom to the best man was a set of gold cuff links.

The bride was gowned in dark blue and carried a shower bouquet of white Killarney roses. The bridesmaid was gowned in channel red, with hat to match and carried a large bouquet of roses.

A reception, followed at the home of the bride's mother. The color scheme was pink and white. A large white bell hung over the wedding cake on the table and streamers from the chandeliers were caught at the corners of the table.

Mr. and Mrs. Giddens left for a honeymoon trip to New Hampshire, where they will visit Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Rose.

The bride has attended Windham high school and the bridegroom is a successful farmer in Franklin. Many beautiful gifts of silver, glassware and linen were received by the bride.

After Oct. 10 Mr and Mrs. Giddens will be at their newly furnished home in Franklin.

CAUGHT AFTER BEING OUT OF JAIL 2 YEARS

Quick action on a tip that Peter Bilecki, 29 was in the city Thursday night, brought about the arrest of the man for whom the police have been on the watch ever since he escaped from the jail in this city over two years ago.

Capt. Thomas Murphy got the tip that Bilecki would be found at the home of the man's sister on Second street and set Deputy Sheriff Oscar H. Malo on the trail with the assistance of Sergeant Mathew Delaney and Officer Crary. When the trio reached the house, the deputy sheriff went inside while the others watched in case the man should try to escape. "Where's Peter" the deputy sheriff asked of the sister. "No here, gone," she said, but the deputy sheriff decided to see for himself. About the first place he looked was in the pantry, and there was Peter.

Bilecki spent the night in a cell. He was serving a 30 day jail sentence for breach of the peace when he walked away from the jail yard in April, 1924, and it is known that he has been in New York and New Jersey working as a longshoreman since then.

FORESTERS CLUB MAKES SOCIAL EVENING PLANS

The Foresters Club of Norwich, Inc., is to be host to the members of Court City of Norwich, No. 63, Foresters of America this (Friday) evening, when an oyster chowder will be served at the club rooms.

All the candidates to the class initiation to be held on Oct. 16 have been invited together with several of the grand and supreme officers. A large number of the charter members or those known as oldtimers, are expected to come and renew old acquaintences and lend support to the present working committees.

MARRIED ON WEDDING ANNIVERSARIES OF HER PARENTS AND GRANDPARENTS

Miss Lucile Franklin Thomas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Snowden Thomas, of Saratoga, N. Y., and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Owen S. Smith of this city, became the bride of Kenneth Newton Palmer of Boston, Mass., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Palmer of Catskill, last Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents in Saratoga.

The wedding was a significant date in the family history for the occasion was also the 54th wedding anniversary of the grandparents of the bride; and the 25th double wedding anniversary of the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, and of the bride's uncle and aunt, Rev. Edward Huntington Smith, and Mrs. Smith, of Foo Chow, China. All were present for the service except the latter couple, who are on their missionary duties in China. The bride and bridegroom were greatly pleased, however, to receive a cablegram of congratulations and well wishes, shortly before the service from Mr. and Mrs. Smith, sent from Foo Chow.

Three generations of the family with Saturday's ceremony observed their wedding anniversaries on the same day, and three generations of the family were represented in the service Saturday.

The Thomas residence was simply, but attractively decorated with hydrangeas and ferns, which were so arranged before the large window as to form a pulpit effect before which the couple were married. The Rev. Paul Morrison, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church performed the ceremony at 5 o'clock in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends and college mates of the couple.

The bride wore a gown of white crepe de chine, trimmed with valenciennes lace, simple but modishly made. Her white tulle veil was that worn by her mother at her wedding 25 years ago and was beautifully caught by a wreath of orange blossoms. The brides only jewelry was a necklace of pearl beads; and her shower bouquet was of bride's roses. The best man was Theron Reynolds of Troy.

The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Helen Huntington Smith, daughter of the Rev. Edward Huntington Smith, and Mrs. Smith of China, was her duntie coustebridesmaid, and wore a gown of shaded flame colored Japanese silk, blending from deepest flame to light. Her bouquet was of Japanese lilies, mindful of the Orient where she was born.

Miss Blanche E. Schoonmaker of the place, and Donald J. Thomas, a brother of the bride, at the organ played the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin. They also rendered appropriate music during the reception which immediately followed, the bridal party receiving alone.

Yellow chrysanthemums were the flowers used in the dining room where the color scheme was yellow referring to the fact that the bride was a graduate of Skidmore college. Other autumn flowers were used throughout the residence, adding a color note to the simplicity of the event.

A buffet wedding supper was served.

The bride is a graduate of Saratoga Springs High school and of Skidmore college, class 1925. Since graduating she has been physchiatric social worker in connection with the Boston state hospital.

The bridegroom is associated with the Life-Fix Mutual Insurance Co., at Boston, Mass. He is a graduate of the Lansingburgh high school, cross of 1917, and of Union college, class of 1925, where his fraternity was Phi Gamma Delta. He enlisted in the Hospital corps during the World war and was stationed at the Chelsea Naval hospital, seeing 15 months service.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer received a large number of attractive, useful, and valuable wedding gifts which were testimonials of a wide acquaintanceship.

After a wedding trip by motor into the Adirondacks, Mr. and Mrs. Palmer will be at home after October 15 at 30 Jamaicaway, Boston, Mass., where a newly furnished apartment awaits them.

The bride's going away costume was a gown of jungle green crepe de chine; a coat of Norman colour trimmed with beaver fur and a hat to match the gown.

Among the out of town guests at the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Palmer, of Catskill; Mr. and Mrs. Owen S. Smith of Norwich, Conn.; Mrs. W. O. Rogers and Miss Eleanor H. Smith of Norwich, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. Evan W. Thomas of Rockton, Mass.; Miss Edythe L. Thomas of Boston; Miss Eunice E. Smith daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Smith of China, who is attending Wheaton college, Newton, Mass.

Miss Severn Tyler and Severn Tyler, Jr., and James Tyler of Colmanwood, N. J.; Miss Helen L. Thomas of New York Miss Eleanor C. Coon of Glen Ridge, Miss Burnet T. Thomas of Colmanwood, N. J.; also in a formal missionary in China, Lester Sheehy of Boston, Mass.; Miss Mary C. Kennedy of Hunter; and Alison C. Rogers of Boston, Miss; Miss Helen Huntington Smith of New York; Joseph Reynolds of Troy; Lester Gaillard of Schenectady; Merritt Gaillard of Colchester, Elsie Graham of Southampton, Mass.

COMPENSATION AWARD IS SETTLED BY COMPROMISE

The sum of $1,000 is awarded to Mrs. Margaret H. Williams of 306 Vauxhall street, New London, as full and final settlement for all claims of whatsoever nature that William B. Williams, late of New London, had during his lifetime, and which Mrs. Williams may have because of his death, according to a finding handed down by Compensation Commissioner J. J. Donohue against the W. R. Perry Ice Co., employer, Indemnity Insurance Co. of North America, insurer, respondents.

William B. Williams was injured on Jan. 1, 1926, with death occurring Sept. 23, 1926. The claimant contends that the injuries sustained by Williams on the day in question arose out of and in the course of his employment. This is disputed by the respondents. The respondents claim that Williams suffered only a slight fall which did not incapacitate him and that he continued to work some time and made no complaint known to his employers. They contended further that Williams caught cold which developed into grip and later into pneumonia and that the grip and pneumonia died on account of the injuries received on June 1, caused the incapacity which Williams complained of.

Dr. Donohue in closing of double sentencing them, and the dispute as to the cause of Williams' incapacity it is found that this is a proper case to settle on a compromise basis, and said compromise is hereby approved, Commissioner Donohue said.

MRS. DAKIN, FROM STORRS IS TO ADDRESS CLASS

Instead of her usual weekly free lesson at the lecture room of the Norwich Gas & Electrical Dept. Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 13th, Miss Gladys L. Peckham, home service expert, has prepared a surprise for the class.

As Miss Peckham is to be at Atlantic City Oct. 13-14, attending the American Gas association convention she has secured Mrs. M. E. Dakin from Storrs college, state nutrition specialist, to address the Norwich class on "Diet for Weight."

Already 25 have enrolled for Miss Peckham's free evening cooking class which is limited to 60 and which will open the season Monday evening, Oct 18th with a lesson from 7 to 8 o'clock.

PLANNING TO ATTEND WITH COTTON MANUFACTURERS

Local mill men are planning to attend the annual meeting of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers at the Copley Plaza hotel in Boston on October 13th and 14th. The association which is the oldest trade organization in the country is now the largest it has been in its history, according to W. Irving Bullard of Boston and Danielson, treasurer of the association, and chairman of the committee which has been conducting a membership campaign in the New England states and New York.

Listing in the personnel of membership of the subcommittee for Connecticut and Rhode Island, which has been carrying on the membership campaign, is L. M. Carpenter of the Ashland Cotton Co., Jewett City.

FOUND IN AUTO WITH 83 GALLONS OF MOONSHINE

Tony Rodriques, 26, of Force street and Louis Plotsky, 33, of Preston were arrested about 5:30 o'clock Thursday morning by State Prohibition Agent Weeber and Kinnimon on a charge of violation of the liquor law. The arrests occurred as the two men were about to leave Forest street with 83 gallons of alleged moonshine hidden under potato sacks in the rear seat of a Buick touring car. The two were presented before Judge Arthur F. Libby in the city court Thursday morning and their cases were continued until Monday morning, bonds being set at $2,500 each.

Plotsky is due to appear in the superior court at New London today (Friday) as the defendant in a civil action.

Rodriques claimed he knew nothing of the liquor found in the machine. He stated that he was on his way to work at the Chappell company yards when he was arrested. Later he claimed he was on the way to his work at the paperboard plant. Plotsky furnished bonds but Rodriques being unable to secure a bondsman went to jail until Monday morning.

Rodriques was arrested in this city last week by Officer John O'Neil on a charge of driving an automobile while his operator's license had been suspended. At the time of this arrest Plotsky was with him. There were several empty cans in the car of the type which is usually used for moonshine. Before this Rodriques had been arrested in New London where he was found sitting in a roadster in which were about 20 gallons of liquor alleged to be moonshine. A considerable part of $700 which Rodriques had with him at the time went to pay his fine and costs in the New London court.

LIGHTNING WRECKS HOME AND GARAGE IN WATERFORD

Shortly before noon Wednesday during a short but terrific storm in the Niantic river section of Waterford, lightning struck a large apple tree in the rear of the summer home of Mrs. Mary E. Keeney, traveled down the trunk, ploughed up the ground at the base of the tree and passed in a diagonal line through the garage and continued 50 feet to the house. It apparently exploded with cannon like effect in the kitchen, smashing window panes and sash, stripping plaster from walls of the kitchen and pantry and strewing the floor with debris of broken dishes and crockware.

Although a section of the electrical feed wire was burned off and woodwork was charred, the house was not ignited. Nobody was in the house at the time.

The bolt found a convenient hole under the garage foundation, left the floor in a sponge condition, passed under the northeast corner and upon emerging threw up the ground as though turned by a plow. Once within the house, it put the electrical system out of commission, destroyed the fuses and melted away copper switches. That the house did not take fire was regarded as remarkable. The damage, which will amount to several hundred dollars, was covered by insurance.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Sayles and Miss Margaret Sayles have been on a motor trip in the Berkshires.

Dr. and Mrs. Harrison Gray recently closed their camp at Preston Pond for the season, returning to their home on Crescent street.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy D. Judd and the latter's mother, Mrs. David H. Thorpe, of Broad street have left for a motor trip to the White Mountains.

Miss Bess and Miss Edith M. Bliss have opened their home on Washington street, having spent the season with their brother at Niagara Falls.

Providence papers noted that Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Jr., who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. Linton Jordan, was to return to Norwich on Thursday, in her honor Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Jordan gave a dinner party of twenty four at their home on Elmwood avenue.

Most of the free advice we get is worth just about that much.

DECISION FOR LEVINE IN FORECLOSURE SUIT

Judge Newell Jennings in a decision handed down and filed with Clerk George E. Parsons of the superior court gives judgment in favor of Michael Levine of Norwich in the amount of $1,285 against Charles J. Jacobson of Norwich.

On July 19, 1923, Jacobson owed James O'Connell of Norwich $1375 on a note secured by a mortgage of the property known as 38-40 McKinley avenue.

On Sept. 22, 1924, O'Connell assigned the mortgage to the plaintiff, Levine.

Michael Levine claims to hold a first mortgage for $6,500. Benjamin Golfarb of Norwich, mortgage for $118, Theodore H. Breckenridge, Norwich, $92, with attachments as follows: George Boucher, $700; Sydney P. Smith $150; William L. Ashbey and Martin E. Robbins, $150; Elkin Smith, $5,000, Max Blazer, $100.

The attaching creditors are named party defendants in this action. The first Tuesday in Nov. is given Jacobson to redeem his property by paying off the debts mentioned.

SUES FOR PARTITION OF PAWCATUCK REAL ESTATE

A partition sale of real estate is petitioned for in a civil action filed with Clerk George E. Parsons of the superior court, brought by Nellie J. Sullivan of Pawcatuck, administrator of the estate of Patrick J. Sullivan, late of Pawcatuck, against William J. Smith of Pawcatuck.

Sullivan, prior to his death in November, 1925, and Smith were the owners as tenants in common of property located on Stillman and Vine streets, Pawcatuck of which Smith is now in possession.

In order to settle said estate and pay the bills against it, it necessary that the property be partitioned and sold, it is claimed.

ARRESTED ON EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE FROM PASSAIC

On a warrant sent here from Passaic, N. J., Charles S. Blum, 24, was arrested Thursday night at his home, 12 North Cliff, on an embezzlement charge. The arrest was made by Sergeant Matthew Delaney.

The warrant was issued on a complaint from the Lauter Co., of Passaic on the allegation that Blum, while employed as a salesman, had embezzled the sum of $345.

PROMINENT REPUBLICANS TO CAMPAIGN IN EAST

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP)—An array of speakers of national prominence, including six members of the president's cabinet, will take part in republican congressional campaign in eastern states, Representative John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, eastern campaign manager for the national republican senatorial and congressional committees, announced today.

The cabinet members are James J. Davis, secretary of labor; Hubert Work, secretary of the interior; Harry S. New, postmaster general; Curtis D. Wilbur, secretary of the navy, and Attorney General John G. Sargent.

In addition, Representative Tilson said addresses would be made by Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the house of representatives. Charles Evans Hughes and many members of the house and senate, Mr. Tilson said also were expected to have Senator William E. Borah, Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, and President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university fill speaking engagements.

A tentative itinerary calls for Secretary Davis to speak in New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts; Secretary Wilbur and Postmaster General New in New York, and Attorney General Sargeant in Massachusetts and possibly other eastern states. Secretary of State Kellogg, it was announced, will make one or two addresses in the east, but has not been assigned to any particular state.

DECISION RESERVED ON THE MORSE PETITION

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Decision was reserved by by Judge Thomas D. Thacher in United States district court today on a motion for severance of the cases against Harry F. Morse and Benjamin W. Morse, sons of Charles W. Morse, and three others indicted on a charge of misuse of the mail in the sale of United States Steamship Company stocks.

The case against Charles W. Morse has been indefinitely postponed due to the illness of the defendant.

The court also reserved decision on a demurrer entered by counsel for 16 defendants, jointly indicted in the case, after hearing a plea that the pending indictment was actually an attempt to put them in jeopardy for an alleged offense the second time. Counsel argued that his clients had been tried and acquitted on "similar charges" in Washington, D. C.

AN INFANT KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE MILK TRUCK

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Eugene Daniels, Jr., 15 months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene A. Daniels, of 94 Bradford street, East Haven, was run over and fatally injured by an automobile milk truck in front of Daniels' market in East Haven today. The child died a half hour after the accident.

The driver of the truck, Loren Avery, of this city, will appear before Coroner Eli Mix tomorrow morning.

There were no witnesses to the accident and it is believed that the child had left the store without its parents' knowledge and had crept beneath the truck.

The child's skull was fractured and a deep furrow across the forehead indicated that the tire of one of the wheels had grazed the top of the head.

CYRENAICA: WHERE ITALY TAKES ITS TURN

Another revolt has been quelled in North Africa, according to news from Rome. Senussi tribesmen and an Italian detachment battled at a dry creek bed deep in Cyrenaica.

"Many nations have endeavored to put the Cyrenaicans in their place," says a bulletin of the National Geographic society from its headquarters in Washington, D. C., "that place being, of course, in control of a recognized power.

"The list begins with Greece in 700, B. C. not A. D., and is jeweled with such conquerors as Rome, the Moors, and, preceding Italy, came Turkey. But no matter what the title line, the text of every chapter in Cyrenaica's history, has the word 'revolt' sprinkled liberally through the pages.

"Perhaps it is because there are few schools that the natives never learn to read the treaties solemnly signed in Paris, Vienna or elsewhere which have given Cyrenaica to this nation or to that. Or it may be that nature leads the revolt. Possibly the nation has not yet risen which can oppose her will in this kingdom of the blazing sun. Certain it is that news of a battle on the central plateau is not new but the back drop against which the affair was staged is one to make a civilized audience sit up and take interest.

"Cyrenaica can be called a Gibson headland of North Africa. The round brow of it facing across the Mediterranean toward Greece is surmounted by the pompadour characteristic of the Gibson girl in the form of a range of limestone hills. They rise from the shore almost as steeply as a cliff and then slope away toward the back. Benghazi, port on the west, and Solum on the Egyptian border, are in the British Libya covering an area almost as large as Texas. The British say that British Libya runs as far north as Cyrenaica. Exactly where on the border is a secret whispered by the roving sands of the Sahara and understood by not more than a few very close-mouthed Arabs.

"Nevertheless great men have been born in Cyrenaica. When civilization was in swaddling clothes the Greeks knew the limestone ridge as the Gardens of Hesperides. From ancient Cyrene, a city of 100,000, up on the ridge amid groves and grass, came poets, and philosophers and statesmen to contribute to the glory that was Greece. Cyrene today house a few dirty Bedouin families in the rifled tombs of the largest and finest graveyard in the world preserved from the wreck of the Greek era.

"Even back on the central plateau which drops off to a line of salt marsh oases and then merges with the desert, there are remnants of a dead civilization. One comes upon broken bits of pottery and other mystifying relics in a region which is blasted and blistered by the red sun for eleven months of the year. The twelfth month is the brief season after the January rains. Every dried shrub miraculously produces olive green leaves. The magic wand of water recreates grass for under the bushes whose branches have protected the grass roots. Beautiful flowers carpet the plain. Larks sing and robins, down from Europe for the season, hop bluthefully about. Spring is just as wonderful in a land that has no winter.

"Nothing meets the eye on the level Cyrenaican plain except the little humps of wall mounds. The North African wolf or 'dib' is such an important institution from Tangier to Palestine that it deserves a description. Upon approaching one of these wall mounds, it becomes apparent that the dirt pile of 8 to 10 feet high is the pivot for a hinge of two long and low rock wall arms. These converging arms stretch up a rock slope which has a slight rise. In the peak of the V is a small black hole 15 inches across which is the 'dib'. When the season's rain comes it drains between the water walls to the well. To look down into the hole is to find a chamber widening like a bottle to a diameter of about 15 feet and 12 feet deep. Depending on the season and the frequency of travelers, the 'dib' will contain a quantity of sweet, cool water.

"How are these desert thermos bottles made? The excavation in solid rock is not as difficult as it appears to be. The limestone when first cut into is soft but it hardens on exposure to the air providing a strong cistern. 'Birs' go a long way toward making desert travel possible between the isolated oases which are the centers for trading and agriculture."

Wonderful for Piles

Suffered for Years; Says There's Only One Remedy

John O'Leary, 297 North Division Street, Buffalo, for 14 years Supervisor of the Second ward, wants to pass the good word along.

"Take it from me," says Mr. O'Leary, "When you suffer torment with piles for many years as I did, and tried all kinds of remedies without any success, you'll be glad to say a good word for the only remedy that is any good."

Peterson's Ointment rid me of piles so quickly that I was astonished. I felt somewhat peeved, however, to think that I had suffered so many years before knowing what a wonderful remedy Peterson's Ointment is. Let me thank you from the bottom of my heart."—John O'Leary.

Any live druggist will tell you about Peterson's Ointment—a big box for 35 cents. Use it for old sores, ulcers, itching eczema, rashes, burns, bruises, chafing and all skin diseases—there is nothing better.

PENNOCK WINS TEN-INNING PITCHING DUEL FROM SHERDEL IN FIFTH GAME

With the Game Almost Won Sherdel Weakens in Ninth and Yanks Tie at 2-All—Lazzeri's Sacrifice Fly in Tenth Scores Koenig With Winning Run—Crowd of 40,000 Sees Most Exciting Game of Series—Ruth Unable to Hit Sherdel—Cards Must Win Two Straight for Series While Yanks Need One.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The Yanks snatched victory from the Cards today just as the Red Birds were about to fly away with it.

Baffled for eighth innings, by Willie Sherdel and his slow curves, the American league champions rallied to tie the score in the ninth and win in the tenth inning of a game that alternately had another record crowd chilled and thrilled.

It was the fifth game of this spectacular world's series battle and the Yank victory, gained by a score of 3 to 2, put the New Yorkers in the lead, 3 to 2, as the contending clans met tonight to resume the struggle in the Yankee stadium Saturday.

One more triumph will clinch the world's title for the Yanks while the Cards face the necessity of capturing two straight if they are to realize their dream of championship glory for the first time.

Herb Pennock, the lanky Yank southpaw, twirled his second victory of the series, repeating his opening game triumph, also gained over Sherdel, but he had more trouble winning today than he did the first time. For eight innings it was a stirring duel with Sherdel having the best of it, but the Cardinal southpaw, with triumph seemingly in his grasp, weakened, lost control and went down to defeat as the Yankees came with a rush at the close.

Ben Pachal, a pinch hitter, brought over the tying run in the ninth with a Texas leaguer to left, while Tony Lazzeri, the Italian, second sacker scored the winning run in the first extra inning with a towering sacrifice fly to Hafey.

It was a decisive finish but it was gained only by capitalizing every advantage for Sherdel, although weakening, fought desperately and courageously to hold the 2-1 lead which the Cards had gained by bunching hits off Pennock in the fourth and seventh.

Earl Gehrig started the finishing fireworks with a flukey double in the fifth that Hafey lost in the sun. Lazzeri, attempting to sacrifice, beat out his tap to Bell, and Gehrig raced to third, from where he tallied a moment later on the hit by Pachal who pinched for Dugan.

Sherdel tightened here, getting three outs in a row as Severeid, Pennock and Combs failed to knock the ball out of the field, but it was only a lull in the tide that turned toward the Yanks.

Mark Koenig, whose erratic fielding had previously proved costly, started the tenth with a rousing single to left and went to second on a wild pitch. Sherdel took no chances with Ruth and walked him, but Bob Meusel advanced both base runners with a neat sacrifice bunt and Gehrig was purposely walked to fill the bases, his set the stage for Lazzeri's winning punch. It was the second time the young Italian had come to bat with the bases full. The first time, in the sixth, he whalloped a towering fly to right that might have gone for a home run but for a stiff breeze that held it back and enabled Southworth to catch it up against the bleacher wall.

This time, Lazzeri took another toe hold and shot a long drive to Hafey in deep left. Koenig raced across the plate with the winning run after the catch. Gazella, next man up, was hit by a pitched ball, filling the bases nicely, but Severeid ended the inning by popping to Hornsby.

It was a heart-breaking defeat for the Cards, who had come back to put up a stirring battle after being put to rout by Ruth's sensational home run batting yesterday. It was disheartening, too, for a crowd which shattered the record for Sportsman's park for the third day in a row. The attendance was 39,552 and every nook of the park was jammed to the limit.

The crowd was whipped to high pitch through the early part of the game as Sherdel effectively checked the Yank heavy artillery, twirling superbly in the pinches, and continuing his effective work even after suffering a bruised finger on his pitching hand while taking a return throw from his catcher in the sixth inning.

It was in this frame that Sherdel yielded the first Yank run, manufactured from Pennock's double, and a single by Koenig. Passen to Combs and Gehrig helped fill the bases but Sherdel got Lazzeri on the latter's high fly to right after striking out Ruth with two men on the bases.

Ruth's big bat was completely stymied by Sherdel's baffling curves. The Babe failed to get the ball out of the infield in three attempts and was walked in his other trips to the plate.

Pennock yielded only seven hits, four more than he did in the first game and two less than Sherdel, but the Cards bunched four of their blows to produce their runs. A double by Bottomley that bounced off Koenig's glove in the fourth, followed by Lester Bell's single to center, scored one tally, while a double by Bell and a single by O'Farrell that caromed off Koenig's foot in the seventh, accounted for the other.

After the seventh, Pennock settled down and was never in danger. He walked Holm in the eighth but a double play started by Lazzeri checked the Cards, who went out in order in the ninth and were retired in the tenth after Thevenow had singled with one out.

While the Yankee southpaw had erratic support at several stages of the game, particularly from Koenig, he also was aided by several fine plays. Combs robbed Hornsby of a triple in the sixth with a fine running catch and Ruth, after previously failing in an attempt to bag Bottomley's two bagger, from his shoe strings, came back to grab Hafey's foul in the fourth with a marvelous one-hand catch up against the wire screen in front of the field boxes.

HAFEY BLAMED FOR LOSS OF FIFTH GAME

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 7—(AP)—(By Charles W. Dunkley)—Failure of the Cardinals to capture today's game was directly due to the error in judgment displayed by "Chick" Hafey, the Cards' left fielder.

That was the explanation of Rogers Hornsby after he had his defeated players off the field.

"I hate to say it, but ordinary pop flies that anybody should have caught were allowed to go for two base hits," Hafey, in judged Pennock's fly at the start of the sixth, with the result that it went for two bases. Hafey ran in for the ball, then tried to turn and go back and fell down. That started the Yankees scoring.

"That two base hit of Gehrig's in the ninth was just an ordinary pop up. We gave that to him. That gift cost us the ball game. The score should have been 2 to 1 in our favor."

Hornsby and two Cardinal players consoled Wm. Willis Sherdel, their pitcher, when they reached the dressing room, sympathizing with him for losing such a high game. Hornsby praised his performance, declaring he pitched a better game than Pennock.

"They didn't earn a run," Hornsby declared.

"Another thing," Hornsby added, "you can say for me that we are going to pitch to Ruth in the remaining games of the series."

"Sherdel pitched right at him today. You didn't see him get any home runs, did you? He didn't even hit one out of the infield. Once he nearly broke his back striking out. We'll tear into him again Saturday, pitching right at him."

Sherdel suffered a painful injury, the seriousness of which he gamely concealed until after the game when he was struck on the first finger of his pitching hand in the fifth inning. Three-quarters of the finger nail was black and blue when he examined it after the contest.

Douthit, the Card center fielder, who was knocked unconscious yesterday, when he collided with Hafey as they raced for a fly ball, will be unable to play in the remaining games. His ribs were damaged in the crash, with the result that his left side, from shoulders to his waist, is firmly bound in tape.

Hornsby intends to start Alexander in the sixth game of the series in New York Saturday. The veteran bowled the Yanks over, allowing them only four hits in the second game. Hornsby believes "Old Pete" is ready to repeat.

The victorious Yanks believe they have broken the fighting spirit of the Cards and may end the series in the next game, although Manager Miller Huggins flatly refused to make that prediction.

"I intend to pitch either Shawkey or Shocker," Huggins said.

"The fighting spirit of the Yanks is marvelous. It has been tough on them to keep on getting all the bad breaks and still come back fighting. We had plenty of men on bases today, but couldn't get the runs."

"That slam that Lazzeri connected with in the sixth when we had the bases loaded, should have gone into the bleachers for a home run, but the wind was against it. That's one of the breaks in a game that we must expect."

Ruth, although failing to get a hit today, still was a very happy individual over his record breaking performance of yesterday. The Babe received 813 telegrams congratulating him on his feat in slamming out three homers.

"If they want to pass me instead of putting them where I can take a good sock at them, why that's all right with me," Ruth said, referring to his two passes today.

DIFFERENCES BETWEEN PRINCETON AND HARVARD HAVE BEEN SMOOTHED OUT

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Harvard and Princeton will face each other on the football field in 1927. This was agreed upon at a conference here last night attended by chairmen of athletics of Yale, Harvard and Princeton.

It was mutually agreed, it was announced today, that the proposal of Harvard to drop Princeton from her 1927 football schedule and substitute the University of Michigan, was counter to the understanding and practice of the "triple alliance" and on the suggestion of Harvard it had been accordingly withdrawn.

The three universities were represented at the conference by Prof. George H. Nettleton, chairman of the board of control of the Yale Athletic association, William J. Bingham, director of athletics at Harvard, and Charles W. Kennedy, chairman of the faculty committee on athletics at Princeton.

The new accord is looked upon as a distinct move in binding the "big three" together more closely and comes at a time when conditions between Harvard and Princeton were said to be near the breaking point.

It is the first official recognition of Princeton by Harvard as meriting special consideration in athletic agreements it was pointed out here tonight. In the past Harvard has maintained that the Yale game was the only fixed contest on her football schedule and that Princeton along with the other six games was engaged from year to year. Harvard players have been awarded no insignia for playing against Princeton and in some of the games with the Tigers, Harvard players have refused to wear numbers on their backs contending that Yale's title merited that distinction.

These matters along with others which have led to misunderstanding between Harvard and Princeton were taken up at the conference and the discussion led to the official recognition of the "triple agreement."

It is understood that Yale took the initiative in calling the "peabe conference" and that New Haven was selected as a neutral ground between Cambridge and New Jersey. Yale, it was said, sought to prevent any definite breaks in the relations of the three great universities.

No indication was made as to whether the freshman athletic relations between Harvard-Princeton would be resumed. Beginning last year no Harvard or Princeton freshman teams have been matched in any sport.

The statement signed by the officials who took part in last night's conference, read:

"The first regular meeting for the present academic year of the Harvard-Yale-Princeton chairmen of athletics was held at New Haven, Wednesday afternoon, September 6. After full conference it was mutually agreed that the tentative proposal of a Harvard-Michigan football game at Ann Arbor, in 1927, was counter to the understanding and practice of the 'triple alliance' and on the suggestion of Harvard it was accordingly withdrawn. The Harvard-Princeton football game for 1927, will be played in Princeton, and no change in the essential athletic relations of the three universities is contemplated."

WHITE SOX WIN CITY SERIES FROM THE CUBS

CHICAGO, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The American League White Sox today won the city series title by defeating the Cubs who held the honor last year, in the seventh game of the engagement.

The score was 3 to 0. Ted Blankenship having the better of Charley Root and Sheriff Blake, who divided the pitching burden for the Cubs.

Neither the White Sox nor the Cubs took full advantage of opportunities to score, the American leaders having no fewer than fourteen men stranded on bases, while the Nationals added the punch to bring eleven potential scorers home.

WORLD SERIES NOTES

(By the Associated Press)

A "homer" by Lazzeri, Yanks second sacker, cost the New Yorkers a run in the second inning of the fifth game. Gehrig was on third and Lazzeri was on first, with one out, when Dugan rapped to Hornsby. Lazzeri instead of slowing up, ran into Hornsby, permitting the Cardinal pilot to tag him and throw to first to complete a snappy double play.

Sherdel worked slow curves on Ruth in the Babe's first two turns at bat, getting the Yank slugger on a grounder to Hornsby in the first but walking him in the fourth inning. The rest of the Yanks found the Card southpaw's "loop the loop" ball just as hard to straighten out in the early innings.

Pennock got a double in the sixth on "poetic justice." He belted the ball to left after Sherdel had tried to slip over a third strike on a snap throw. Then Hafey misjudged the ball and it sailed over his head. Pennock was saved again a moment later when Thevenow fumbled O'Farrell's throw as the Yank pitcher was caught off base.

In the midst of the Yank rally in the sixth Sherdel suffered an injury to the index finger of his pitching hand, catching a return toss from O'Farrell. He resumed his work after receiving first aid, however and retired the side with the bases full.

The cheers that greeted each of Ruth's three homers yesterday were nothing as compared to the outburst that greeted the Babe when Sherdel struck him out in the sixth with two Yanks on base. The bambino swung mightily at the last two slow curves.

FAIR AND WARMER FOR SATURDAY'S GAME

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP)—A promise of fair and warmer weather was New York's greeting tonight for the returning world's series team, due to arrive here tomorrow afternoon for a renewal of their battle Saturday at Yankee stadium.

Skies will be blue and sunny for the sixth game, forecasts the weather man, while there were indications that another throng of 63,000 would look upon the spectacle. If a seventh game is necessary on Sunday, the entire seating and standing room capacity will go on general sale.

Today's victory established the Huggins favorites in the series at 5 to 2 and 3 to 1.

Although one Wall street firm reported a wager of $3,000 to $2,500 that the Yankees would win the sixth game, betting commissioners were offering no better than even money owing to the fact that Grover Cleveland Alexander was expected to pitch for the National league team.

If the Cardinals succeed in taking the count at three games apiece on Saturday, cold, calculating baseball men announced that the St. Louis team would be heavily backed to win the championship. Take six no pitcher in six on the Yankee roster to beat Jess Barnes in the final game on Sunday, should a seventh game be necessary.

All records for world series wagering were shattered in New York's today commissioners estimating that more than a million dollars changed hand, along Broadway on the result of the game.

WINDHAM AND WESTERLY IN FOOTBALL CLASH TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 7.—Windham Hughes Alexan will enter the field at Recreation park Friday afternoon against the formidable Westerly High eleven with a rearranged defensive, as was announced by Coach Thomas A. Nicholson this week. The encounter is the second most important on the season's schedule, being secondary only to the game with Hartford Public High school, Saturday afternoon, October 23. Based on comparative opposition, however the game this afternoon equals the Hartford game, in the opinion of the locals who have trimmed the Westerly lineup includes eight regulars from last year. The veteran Westerly coach, "Hal" Rogers will send seven his team into the field. There promises to be much opposition on the side lines too, as the Westerly undergraduates are planning to come in strong numbers and Windhamites with their cheering squad have signified likewise.

The game is scheduled to start at 3:15 o'clock sharp with R. J. Gauger of Storrs as umpire.

SEVERAL INTERSECTIONAL GAMES ON SATURDAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The east's third round of gridiron conflict on Saturday will hold the hopes of a Harvard revival, the flavor of eight intersectional combats and a test of power for two outstanding rivals scheduled to clash one week hence.

Beaten in their opening fling against Geneva, the Crimson-clad warriors from Cambridge were able today to find no promise of lighter opposition in forthcoming battle against Holy Cross. Under the inspiration of a 7-6 triumph over Harvard last year and the confidence of their 45-0 victory against St. John's last week, the Moleskin band from Worcester appeared primed to strike another heavy blow at Crimson hopes Saturday.

Dartmouth and Yale, down for a clash next week at New Haven, did not appear to be as seriously menaced as Harvard. The big Green machine which rolled over Hobart, 76-0, last Saturday, who listed to try its spectacular forward pass offense against Yale's pride at Hanover, N. H., while Yale is also confronted by Georgia.

Dartmouth apparently had more reason to view its approaching test with confidence than Yale, however, for Georgia threw a sharp and unforgettable scare into the Elis ranks two years ago Yale rescued the game by only a single point, 7 to 6. Although the men of Tad Jones came through by a much wider margin last year, The southerners have given early promise of sending a strong and well rounded eleven against the New Haven aggregation.

Of the six other intersectional tilts, the Princeton-Washington & Lee game held chief interest. Princeton's narrow escape against Amherst last week, coupled with the stiring struggle between the Tigers and the Generals a year ago, supplied the background for Saturday's battle between the rivals of the north and south.

Navy vs. Drake at Annapolis, Syracuse vs. William-Mary at Syracuse, Penn State vs. Marietta at State College, Pa., Army vs. Davis-Elkins at West Point, and New York University vs. West Virginia Wesleyan here were other inter-sectional battles on the gridiron menu.

Pennsylvania will take on Swarthmore in a final testing game before the annual tussle with Chicago on Oct. 16. Other leading conflicts bring together Pittsburgh and Lafayette at Pittsburgh, Rutgers and Washington-Jefferson at Washington, Pa., and Brown vs. Lehigh at Providence.

CHENEY ELECTED PRESIDENT OF CONN. GOLF ASSOCIATION

NEW BRITAIN, Oct. 7.—(AP)—The Connecticut Golf association, at its annual meeting at the Shuttle Meadow club, here yesterday, re-elected J. P. Cheney, of South Manchester, president for the coming year. Fifty delegates were present.

Other officers were also re-elected as follows: M. Farmer, Shuttle Meadow club, first vice president; A. D. Dodge, Farmington, second vice president; R. L. Pryde Race Brook club, New Haven, secretary-treasurer; F. H. Gates, Derby, assistant secretary-treasurer.

The choice of a course for the championship, was left with the executive committee, although Hartford was favored by the delegates from the four offered, including besides Hartford, Woodway, Shennecossett and Wampanoag.

The executive committee will allot dates and the ancillary tournaments later. Several applications were received for invitation tournaments. Applications for invitation tournaments were made by Shennecossett, Shoe Haven, New Haven and Brooklawn.

AGGIES DRILLING FOR GAME WITH MASS. AGGIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, October 7.—Examination of an injury received in scrimmage yesterday by Roderics M. Rent of Springfield, Mass., a sub lineman on the Connecticut Aggie varsity football squad, showed a small bone in the ankle to be broken according to the report issued by the St. Joseph's hospital in Willimantic, where Rent is confined. The injury, while no serious, will probably keep Rent on the sidelines for the remainder of the season.

Coach Ince continues to drive his men in preparation for the game with Massachusetts Aggies at Amherst on Saturday, which is one of the objective games of the season for Connecticut. Last year the Bay Staters downed Connecticut by a last second score, and this year Coach Dolph's men are out to make up for that defeat.

MISS COLLETT AND MISS WILSON MEET IN FINALS TODAY

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Glenna Collett, former national golf champion, and Virginia Wilson, 20-year-old Chicago player, meet in the final round of the Bartholemew cup tournament at the Huntingdon Valley Country club tomorrow.

Miss Wilson created the greatest surprise of the national championship tournament last week by toppling Miss Collett from her throne in a third round match 3 up.

In the Bartholemew tournament today each won her semi-final round match after some effort.

Miss Collett was held for fourteen holes by Miss Helen Meehan, a Philadelphia girl, but won 3 and 1. Miss Wilson triumphed over Miss Edith Quier, Reading Pa. who beat Mrs. G. Henry Stetson, the national champion, yesterday, 3 and 2.

Miss Collett played raggedly on the first nine holes of her match, but on the second nine was only a few strokes over men's par and quickly took the lead, squaring the match at the eleventh and never falling behind from that point. All square at the fourteenth she took the next three hoels with pars to win the match.

Miss Wilson swep Miss Quier off her feet on the first few holes, winning five of the first six. Miss Quier, however, rallied and cut the lead to three up at the turn. She lost the tenth but was only 2 down going to the sixteenth. On this long hole Miss Wilson's superior long game won the hole and the match.

ACADEMY OPENS SEASON AT CAMPUS SATURDAY

The Academy football squad has put in a hard week's work of practice for the opening home game of the season with East Greenwich High at the campus on Saturday afternoon. A light signal drill will be held this Friday afternoon at the campus so that the locals should be in tip-top shape for Saturday's game, which will also be the second of the current season.

The Rhode Islanders are expected to furnish keen opposition for the locals and will journey to this city intent on setting the Academyites back in their first appearance before a home crowd. However, on the other hand, Coach Whitmer's charges, still suffering from the sting of their 13 to 0 defeat last Saturday at the hands of New Britain High at New Britain will be out to place this game on the right side of the ledger.

It is planned to have World series reports given out during the game so that a banner crowd is expected.

DALEY, HARVARD GUARD, GOES TO THE HOSPITAL

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 7.—(AP)—Leo Daley, veteran guard of the Harvard football team, is in the hospital under observation for appendicitis. It became known today. At the same time it was announced that Arthur French, sub, and Hall, center, were out of the game temporarily through injuries.

With the Holy Cross game two days distant, Head Coach Arnold Horween today was striving to find suitable material to fill the many gaps on the varsity eleven. Yesterday it was announced that Captain Coady, also, would be unable to start in Saturday's game because of injuries suffered in the Harvard-Geneva contest last week.

French, the Crimson's most promising punter, is suffering from an infection.

ALL-HEAVYWEIGHT CARD AT GARDEN TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Madison Square garden's historic ring will creak tonight under the machinations of aspiring heavyweights seeking to establish their claims as contenders for the newly won crown of Gene Tunney.

In the last of three ten round bouts, Franz Diener, German champion, will square off against the mid-west heavyweight, Knute Hansen. Alex Rely, South American titleholder, exchanges blows with clever Jimmy Deamer of St. Paul in the second ten round the opening scuffle brings together Jack de Mave of New York and Bob Fitzsimmons of Natlee, N. J.

Preceding these matches there will be a special six rounder in which Archie Sammy of Boston will attempt to stop the winning streak of Eddie Palace town won the 14 bouts he's fought in 4 years.

NORWICH RUNNER ENTERED IN PORCHESTER MARATHON

That Norwich will be represented in the Porchester marathon, one of the leading long distance classic on the year was announced Thursday evening. Alex Charbonier of this city will compete in the 26-mile grind against some of the best long distance runners in this country, including DeMar, Zuma, Meloy, Mich

WESTERLY

REPUBLICAN CAUCUS TODAY PROMISES LIVELY CONTEST

(Special to the Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 7—The caucus of republican electors for the balloting on nominations for senator from Westerly to the Rhode Island legislature to represent both the First and Second Westerly Voting districts is to be held this Friday afternoon and evening. Indications point to one of the largest caucuses held in Westerly in years.

For state senator there are to aspirants, George B. Utter, ho has been representative in the legislature from the First Westerly Voting district for the past to years and Hoard E. Thorp, a Westerly tax assessor. Both candidates have been on the Westerly town council for several terms and reference to election results for comparison prove interesting on the vote-getting records of the two contenders for the office of senator.

In the first year that Utter was elected to the Westerly town council he polled the lowest vote of any of the seven councilmen, in fact in his own or the First Voting district, he was defeated, but gained a sufficient lead in the Second Voting District for election. His next term on the council he carried both districts, but was the low man.

Howard E Thorp has served many terms on the Westerly town council and uniformly ran ahead of his ticket. When several years ago a Citizens' ticket for Westerly town council members was successful over the regular republican nominees Howard E. Thorp appeared or bosh the citizen and republican ballots.

The caucus will also vote as to whether the voters will instruct their representatives in the Rhode Island legislature at the next session to vote on the so-called state re-districting plan, in which cities in the northern section of the state are given more representation in the general assembly. At the last session of the legislature Representative Utter voted in favor of the plan; Senator Dutson and Representative Campbell of the Second district voted against the plan.

Funeral services for Mrs. Hannah Doty Burdick, widow of Solomon C. Burdick, who died at her home, 9 Dixon street, Monday evening, after less than a week's illness, were held at the family home Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The funeral was largely attended by friends and relatives, the services being conducted by Rev. Clayton A. Burdick, pastor of the Pawcatuck Seventh-day Baptist church of Westerly. The bearers were Mrs. Burdick's nephews Ed. N. Burdick, James Jolly, Arnold H. Burdick and Isaac G. Smith. Burial was in River Bend cemetery.

Members of Phebe Green Ward chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Mrs. Carrie E. Savage, regent, held their October meeting Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Ira B Crandall, 9 Grove avenue. The regent presided and made a report on the fall convocation of Rhode Island chapters, D. A. R., held in Warren, R. I. This was followed by an address by Wallace L. Gallup, Ph.D. of the Connecticut College for Women at New London. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the program, the hostesses being Mrs. Alexander M. Blake, Mrs. E. R. Allen, Mrs. Hannah M. Ayers, Miss H. Louise Ayers, Mrs. Frank M. Sullivan, Mrs. Charles D. Maxson, Mrs. Christie McConnell and Mrs. Henry Segar.

Grace Methodist church this (Friday) evening is to hold a reunion supper in the vestry in charge of a committee, of which Mrs. William Rork is chairman. Paul W. Munsell will be toastmaster in the social program which will include music and speeches. Concluding the evening program will be devotional exercises in charge of the pastor, Rev. Marvin S. Stocking. This will be the first in a series of Friday night programs for recreational and social classes.

Miss Harriet W. Ellis of Westerly left on Wednesday afternoon for East Greenwich, R. I., to be the guest of her cousin, Mrs. Mary Edgerton.

Westerly Lions' club began its fall season with a luncheon Wednesday when newly elected state commander of the American Legion, Walter E. Thorp of Pawcatuck, addressed the assemblage concerning the activities of the legion. Speaking on hospitalization and rehabilitation activity Mr. Thorp said: "National headquarters of the American Legion alone has handled over $9,000 individual cases for veterans who needed assistance in obtaining insurance, medical aid, for gaining information on lost and missing men and for various other purposes. This has involved about $10,000,000 and has meant a tremendous saving not only to the veterans but to the government itself. All of these cases are handled by the American Legion gratis." The speaker said the American Legion on March 21, 1921, inaugurated a nation-wide employment drive for veterans, with the result that 750,000 veterans were given employment within three weeks. The legion has established night schools, raised funds for educational needs, and made an effort to wipe out illiteracy. The legion sponsored movements for more playground and recreational centres and physical education for the many.

At the Westerly hospital suffering from severe burns is Albert L. Labounty of 25 Noyes avenue, Pawcatuck. The burns were received Wednesday afternoon, while he was in the employ of the South County Public Service company as a lineman, when he came in contact with a live wire. Several thousand volts of electricity passed through the man's body. His condition is critical. Labounty was at work on an electric light pole off Spark street shortly after 1 o'clock. After suffering three successive shocks, each time taking about 2300 volts of electricity through his body, Labounty fell 30 feet from the top of the pole to the ground, where he was picked up by associate workers.

Harold W. Merrill post, No. 16, American Legion, of Westerly is to hold meetings twice a month beginning in November, on the first and third Wednesdays of each month. Commander Howard E. Thorp named H. Russell Burdick, George Kemp, Harold Barber and John Smith a nominating committee to prepare a slate to be presented at the first November meeting and to be voted upon at the annual meeting in December. Commander Thorp announced that he had ordered a medal to be presented by Merrill post to the winner of the prize drill to be held Oct. 16 by Battery E, 243rd Coast Artillery.

Lottie Belle Loughhead, 60, wife of John C. Loughhead, died in Pawcatuck Wednesday at her home, 11 Courtland street, after an illness following a paralytic stroke suffered late in August. She was the daughter of John C. and Rosanna Hottenstein and was born in Overton, Pa. Besides her husband she is survived by two brothers, Oren J. Hottenstein of Cherokee, Okla. and Ira Hottenstein and a sister, Miss Carrie Hottenstein, both residing in Overton, Pa.

The death of Annie M., widow of James L. Stedman, occurred at about 5 p. m. Wednesday at the home of her son, Herbert H. Stedman, 1 Summer street, where she was staying temporarily. For the past two years she had resided with her daughter, Mrs. John S. Holland, at 20 George street. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Holland of this town and Mrs. Daniel R Dixon of Holden, Mass., two sons, J. Attmore Stedman of East Greenwich and Herbert H. Stedman of Westerly, and three grandsons, Talbot A. Holland of Westerly, J. Kessen Stedman and Donald F. Stedman, both of East Greenwich.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Barber of Pawcatuck returned Thursday night from an automobile visit in Greenfield, Mass.

Rev. and Mrs. Lewis A. Walker of Calvary Baptist church returned to their home in Westerly Wednesday evening from attending the 109th anniversary of the New Hampshire state convention, held in New London, N. H.

Col. and Mrs. Arthur N. Nash are having three weeks' vacation and are on an automobile trip through New York state, being at Binghamton the first of the week.

Mrs. Byron Gallup of Ekonk was in Westerly Thursday afternoon and attended the funeral services of Mrs. Hannah D. Burdick, held at the family home, 9 Dixon street.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Emmons of Pawcatuck, formerly of Moodus, have entertained during the past week Miss Sylvia Arnold of Moodus.

William Spencer, son of William M Spencer of Pawcatuck has entered Yale university.

Judge and Mrs. William A. Wilcox of Pawcatuck were at Brockton fair Wednesday.

Mrs Sarah F. Rogers of New London was a Westerly visitor Thursday afternoon and attended the funeral of her cousin, Mrs. Hannah D. Burdick.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard M. Barber of Pawcatuck, accompanied by Mrs. Mary E. Arnold and daughter, Alice Taylor Rathbun, of Westerly, leave this week end for a vacation automobile tour.

"Rich, satisfying Flavor," says an Authority on Foods

IT'S the unusual amount of milk and shortening that gives White Rose Bread this delicious flavor.

White Rose Bread was perfected with the help of the heads of the domestic science departments of two universities, the Directors of two famous cooking schools, and the editor of a well-known food magazine—Women who know the vital importance of good bread.

Just try it yourself. Cut a slice of White Rose—it cuts wafer-thin without crumbling. Taste and see how good it is—how truly comparable to the best home made bread.

Once you have served White Rose Bread you will never want to have any other bread on your table. Your grocer gets White Rose fresh from the ovens twice every day. Massachusetts Baking Co.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Mae—Is Peggy still going with Jack Harris?

June—Heavens, no! She married him three months ago.—Life.

Cheer up! If the world doesn't know you're in it, you'll not be bothered by subscription lists.—Atlanta Constitution.

"Georgia, I shouldn't slide down the banisters like that."

"Wouldn't you, grandma? Show me how you'd do it."—N. Y. C. Lines Magazine.

Rich Boy—Over in our yard we have a lilac bush 50 feet high.

Poor Boy—Gee, I wish I could lilac that.—Chicago Tribune.

"What are you gazing at so intently in the garden?"

"Been studying this ant. He isn't working."

"Possibly he has set up as an efficiency expert."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Tourist—"The guide book says that there's a hairpin curve near here. Where is it?"

Native—"There isn't. We've had the road bobbed."—Detroit News.

A couple of expert golfers were passing a dub at the game who was, as usual whacking away as his ball in the rough. "I don't think the club ought to touch old George for the full fee," remarked one of the experts.

"Why not?" asked the other.

"He so rarely uses the course."

"Why not?" asked the other.

He so rarely uses the course.

Little Ethel, seven years old, was teasing her small brother who is not quite four. Mamma's more my mamma than she is yours. She was my mamma ever so long before she was yours.

"I don't care," wee brother answered stoutly., "I'm the littlest and the littler a person is the more mamma she is."—Pathfinder.

Only 42 per cent of the lost property turned in annually to Scotland Yard ever finds its way back home, according to the annual report of the Metropolitan police, of London. The total number of articles found and turned in to the police during 1925 was 163,573. Among the deposits last years were a ferret, two human leg bones, a glass eye, two white mice and a parrot.

Bids for the steel work of one of the greatest over-water railway spans of Europe have been asked by the Danish railway authorities, with the aproval of the Rigsdag. The steel work will cost more than $5,000,000 and the completed bridge will cost at least $8,750,000, according to estimates of the engineers. The structure will span the Little Belt, between the island of Funen and the east page of each.

The first page of each of the 1,000,000 vvolumes of school books published at the Kansas state printing plant this year will be devoted to a picture of the American flag. The picture appeared in several editions of state text last year, but it will be found in every book this year. Insertion of a full-page reproduction of the flag in colors was suggested to the state printer by the Americanization committee of the Kansas American legion.

Wild animals from the jungles have been hindering golf in Rhodesia in South Africa. Sharp shooters have been posted on some of the links with the view of shooting away the pesky beasts. At the Winkle course a rhinocerous has been appearing as a natural hazard, much to the discouragement of the players, while two lions have been seen frequently sauntering about the links at Beira. One of these was afterward shot by the men on outpost duty. Between Beira and Dondo two grown elephants and a baby elephant trampled on to the main railway line and nearly wrecked a train. One o fthe animals was killed, and the "elephant" catcher of the locomotice was smashed.

NECESSITIES OF LIFE.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

We've got so used to having to pay a dollar where we formerly got by with a quarter, that it takes quite a "jounce" to make us sit up and take notice of anything connected with the High Cost of Living.

Personally, I got just that kind of a "jounce" yesterday, when I read in a floating newspaper item the "budgets" of a certain farm home in central New York state in 1880 and in 1924, respectively.

The facts, ascribed to the authority of Cornell Agricultural college, are that a family of six persons, three adults and three children, lived through 1880 on a money out-go of $331.45. A family of the same size, three grown-ups and three youngsters, lived on that same farm in 1926, and it cost them $2,563.76 to get through the year.

Same farm; same size family. Yet it cost for keep more than seven times as much in 1924 as in 1880.

It is not made clear whether this is quoted as an exceptional case or as a fair average.

In either event I, for one, should like an itemized account of the two budgets, in 1880 and in 1924, before I opened the faucet for tears to flow.

For example, how much did the 1924 budget call for in gasoline and motor oil and tires?

How much more did the electric lights of 1924 cost than the kerosene and candles of 1880?

How much was devoted to radio upkeep, or the purchase of new phonograph records?

What was the telephone bill, including long-distance tolls and half-hour gossipings over neighborhood news?

How much went to "movies" and jazz dance orchestras?

How much was spent for oranges and bananas in 1924 by the same sort of people who ate home-grown apples in 1880?

How much of 1924's budget went to the delicatessen stores to buy, ready-cooked, what 1880's housewife prepared in her own kitchen?

How much did the bill for ice cream and sodas amount to in 1924 as compared with 1880's spring-water and orchard-made cider?

How much went for silk stockings for the flappers of one sex and silk skirts for the dudes of the other?

Etcetera, and so on, and so forth.

There weren't any gas wagons or radios or movies, and mighty few electric light or telephones or silk stockings in 1880.

There were plenty of all of them in 1924,—for those who had the wherewithal to pay for them. For it must not be forgotten that they all cost money,—much money, when the separate items are added into one aggregate.

As inventions multiply life inevitably grows more complex. The luxuries of one generation, hard to get and available only to the few, become the easily attainable comforts of the next generation,—things it thinks it can't do without.

Right there you come up face to face with the old and never yet settled question as to what really are the necessities of life. Your car and your telephone seem to you unquestionable necessities. Yet your dad and your granddads got along without them. Similarly those dads and granddads regarded steel plows and mowing-machines as necessities, though their own sires managed to make a living and build homes and bring up families, using wooden-mouldboard plows and hand scythes. It is not impossible that the next generation beyond us, as it whips its innumerable air-planes at 500 miles an hour across the astonished skies, may look back at our automobiles and speed boats as crude and lumbering make-shifts, unable to see how they could possibly live from day to day without their own individual planes for flying to market or the post office or over to Europe.

If any million people, picked out by chance, should be asked to set down what they regard as necessities, there would be no two lists exactly alike. It is not only that "what is one man's meat is another man's poison," but that what is one man's desire is often another man's aversion.

Looked at from the purely materialistic standpoint of actual physical needs, man's real necessities are just three: Enough to eat, enough to drink, and enough shelter. Brook water, parched corn, and a hollow tree give all three. Is everything else beyond these therefore a mere luxury? Few, I think, would maintain any such definition.

There is a great to-do, just now, about the action of a western judge who sentenced some offenders to a diet of bread and water. "How can people live on that?" cry numerous critics. Well, a great many people have managed to tide over periods of famine or other emergency without bread, even. Bread presupposes flour and baking. Yet the raw unground grain, perhaps parched, perhaps merely soaked in cold water, will sustain life over indeterminate but certainly long periods.

Indeed, if the tales told or our own aborigines are true, it was the custom of the Indian runner, preparing for a week's long spurt through the wilderness, to provide only a small store of parched corn in a pocket of his belt. And on that he did stunts which very few of us meat and vegetable and pie-eaters would care to attempt.

But,—is the only "necessity" of life that of keeping body and soul together?

If the highest ideal of life is that furnished by a lean and whipcord sinewed Indian runner, then a pocket full of parched maize and an occasional brook crossing the trail are all that is strictly essential. But very few of us are disposed to accept that as an ideal of life.

Man is something more than an alimentary canal. He has very real needs for other things than just those which are necessary to keep that canal in operation.

I can't tell; you can't tell; nobody can tell just exactly where the line runs which divides necessities from luxuries. We can't draw it with perfect accuracy, even for ourselves. Wherefore it behooves us to be chary in attempting to set forth where it runs for others.

You may say that anything we can get along without is not a necessity. But that doesn't answer the question; it simply pushes it along into another field. It brings up the next question: What do you mean by "getting along?" Getting a hundred miles through the woods along an unmarked trail? Or writing Hamlet? Just keeping the body and soul together? Or managing a big railroad or making a department store pay a profit?

No; we shall have to give up any idea of working out a complete and universally applicable theory of what a necessity of life is.

But, nine times out of ten, we can, each of us, make a fairly intelligent decision as to what is practically a necessity and what is merely a convenience or a luxury for ourselves under existing circumstances.

You and I can easily imagine a case where an automobile, for instance, would be a quite unnecessary luxury. It is equally easy to imagine a case where some such speedy method of getting about is a necessity for the effective management of one's business. To the man who uses his radio merely to get the returns from the ball game it is a luxury; but to the captain of a storm-swept vessel in supreme need of assistance it is a necessity.

The great trouble with us all is that we won't take the pains to discriminate between what we "want" and what we "need." We are all inclined to put our desires on a par with our requirements. When we get used to some comfort or convenience we think we can't get along without it. We forget that it would have been quite as possible to get used to its lack.

Age has a few compensations. Among them the opportunity it affords the philosophic mind to make comparisons between what dad was wont to do and what son now does. I, for example, can remember quite distinctly how the neighboring farmers worked and lived 70 years ago.—Like most septuagenarians, I can remember what happened when I was five years old better than what occurred when I was 50.—And, if there is one thing more certain than another in my mind, it is that if the farmers of today would work as industriously, manage as thriftily, live as economically as they did 70 years ago, they would get along as well if not better than the old 'uns did.

But I don't know a single farmer in my bishopric who wants or is willing to work as hard and as long hours, to plan as cannily, or to live as simply as they did 70 years ago. I own up, frankly, that I don't. Why should others be expected to? We've all got used to comforts and conveniences which 70 years ago were unattainable luxuries. They have become, through habit, almost if not quite necessities to us.

And they cost money, all of them.

All the same, I don't believe that the New York farm family who spent $2,563.76 to live in 1924 on the same farm where the 1880 farmer got by on $321.45 actually had to spend the larger sum for imperative necessities. Do you?

That's why I'd like to see an itemized statement of what they bought and what they paid for it. Until I get that statement, I am entitled only to a guess and a bet on my guess. My guess is that the bigger half of the $2,563.76 was spent for what any fair-minded assessor would class as luxuries, not by any straining of definitions as necessities.

And I'd be willing to bet a peck of fresh-dug potatoes, "rots and spots" included, on my guess.

THE FARMER.

SPEAKS TO LIONS ON CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Edwin Hill, general secretary of the Norwich Y. M. C. A., was the speaker at the weekly luncheon-meeting of the Norwich Lions clubs held Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel. President William A. Anderson presided at the meeting and Dr. Kopland K Markoff was the song leader. The meeting opened with the singing of America and Rev. R. B. Day offered grace. President Anderson spoke of the plans for the Armistice day parade and observance in Norwich on November 11th.

The entertainment committee, Louis M. Crandall, chairman, took charge of the latter part of the meeting. Mr. Crandall announced John T. Barry as the current topics speaker and Mr Barry spoke briefly on the subject of voting. Mr. Crandall presented as the speaker of the day, Secretary Edwin Hill of the Y. M. C. A. who spoke on "The Chamber of Commerce". In part he said:

Having been asked to speak to you on the subject of the chamber of commerce, I want to raise a question and propose a challenge; the question is, what claim has the chamber of commerce upon the citizens of the community; and this is the challenge: If it has a just claim upon us we should meet that claim.

I like to think of the chamber of commerce as a sort of a central power for the promulgation of the things that pertain to the material interests of our city. We all recognize the value of the Rotary enthusiasm demonstrated each Wednesday in this room, and the value of the Lions roar of interest in your meetings and in the city. Every same man responds to the high ideals upon which these orgnizations are founded, namely: Service, not for self, but for others, and especially for the city in which we live.

There are certain things that the Rotary can do by itself, and likewise the Lions organization can perform certain services unaided by any other organization; but it is just as true that there are other things that must be done that cannot be done by either of these fine organizations alone. Here is where the chamber of commerce comes to the rescue, and becomes the vehicle for the larger accomplishments for the community. In the nature of the case, clubs like yours must limit its number of members, but the chamber of commerce says to every man, come with us; give us your interest, give us your enthusiasm, give us your best for our common interest; our city. I need not take the time to rehearse the fine accomplishments of the chamber of commerce in these recent years; you know how important a part the chamber has played in many of the things that have come to pass; things of vital concern to all of us, and yet it has touched as yet, but the fringe of the great possibilities in making Norwich and its environs a bigger and better community. Who can prophesy what the chamber can bring to pass when it comes to its own, and it will come to its own only when we all really get together, and that means head to head, heart to heart, interest to interest, friend to friend with the one big central thought, how can I serve my community best. Service is always reciprocal; someone has said that "each soul grows rich by giving;" we have seen it again and again that the more a man gives of himself to his community, the more a community gives back to him; this is a law that works. I know of no other channel at this moment through which we can all combine our talents and our efforts for the material interests of Norwich so well as through the chamber of commerce. There are some things upon which we cannot all agree; for instance, men will always differ in matters of religion, but I hope they will more and more differ pleasantly. We cannot all stand upon the same political platform, some of you democrats will never agree with my republican opinions, but whatever our religion may be and whatever our political affiliation, we can and should stand on the platform of the chamber of commerce and that means that every Lion should roar in favor of the chamber. The chamber of commerce needs every Lion and every Lion needs the chamber of commerce. If the members of the chamber of commerce campaign, contribute the same splendid co-operation and enthusiasm that characterizes both of these lively organizations, and get into the game, for a bigger and better chamber, the goal of 400 members will easily be reached and passed. A bigger and better chamber of commerce means a bigger and better Norwich in the years just ahead of us.

Determination works wonders.

Lions, this is a challenge to you—Accept it and thus make a splendid contribution to our beloved city.

The speakers were heartily applauded and in behalf of the members President Anderson expressed the appreciation for their instructive and interesting talks. The meeting closed with the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner."

A woman seldom listens to a man's explanation, yet it makes her angry if he refuses to offer one.

The new DIETZ BREAD baked with the old Dietz skill -

Fresh from the oven twice a day!

WHEN Mr. Walter Dietz purchased the Dolly Madison bakery, he at once set about reorganizing it and equipping it to supply the fine bread which, for forty years, has been associated with the Dietz name.

This new Dietz Bread Mr. Dietz honestly believes is the best he has ever baked.

He used to consider his old loaf perfect—with the perfection only years of experience, the finest ingredients and a wonderful recipe could give. But new experience has brought him even further skill—taught him the secret of new improvement which he has used in making the new Dietz Bread.

He has installed in the Dolly Madison bakery a wonderful new type of oven. It insures a new uniformity and dependability in baking which give added tenderness to the firm loaves, greater crispness to the evenly browned crust. With this new oven two bakings a day are possible, so that the delicious loaves reach your grocer twice a day—fresher than ever before!

Your own choice of ingredients

Dietz Bread is made of the same quality of ingredients you would use at home. But the flavor and texture of the loaf are even better because, instead of just the one kind of flour you use, several fine flours are blended to insure uniform gluten strength and rich wheat nourishment.

Get Dietz Bread in its homey red and green wrapper from your grocer today. It has the wholesomeness and honest goodness you require for your family. Dolly Madison Baking Corporation, Springfield, Mass.

FORTY years ago some of the best bread makers in New England began buying Dietz Bread.

Because they recognized in the loaf made by Dietz the same choice of ingredients, the same honest care, which they gave to their own baking. Dietz Bread was at home with the other well-cooked foods on their tables.

Father and son, the Dietz family, has carried on the tradition of making fine bread. Always they have had before them an ideal—a loaf perfect in appearance, in nutriment, in texture and in flavor.

ANNOUNCE

Broadway Theater

A capacity house yesterday greeted a most enjoyable combination program at the Broadway theater.

The Keith-Albee five act program established themselves solidly.

Two boys who style themselves as Those Two Steppings Browns glorified hoofing. Davis and Connie are of the eccentric dancing type which in itself is of the comedy kind.

A really phonominal voice gave the audience a treat. Here Miss Marion Claire offered A Tone in Symphony and is an artistic treat for music lovers.

Static is a splendid comedy offering with three people, presented by J. Gordon Bostock. It is a comedy cartoon of the current chaze and well worth seeing.

The season's best comedy act with Ferrari and Jordan followed in Topics of the Day. You'll laugh and laugh with them.

A beautiful offering closed the bill. Some feathered theplans presented by Ramsey's Canaries is a pretty clever novelty.

Some Pun'kins came, the people saw, and were conquered last night at the Broadway theater first local showing of Charles Ray's latest—and one of his best—cinematic efforts released under the banner of Chadwick Pictures Corporation.

Joseph de Grasse, who supervised the production, and Jerome Storm, who directed it, seem to have spared nothing to make this initial Ray-Chadwick epic an auspicious start. Judging by the reception the audience gave it last night at the Broadway theater it is due for an exceptionally prosperous run, and deservedly so. Give us more like this one, Charlie.

Russian Choir Gives Popular Programs

Many elements enter into the popularity of a song. In the case of so-called popular music or "jazz" a great deal depends, of course, on rhythm. Sometimes the words of a song help to make it popular. In other cases again it is the humor of the song.

In the case of classical or semi-classical music, however, the quality sought most is probably the human appeal. Dvorak's Humoresque is beloved by millions of people, probably for no other reason than its sentimental appeal. Schubert's Ave Maria has impressed itself upon the mind of so many people for its religious appeal. Rachmaninoff's famous Prelude which has contributed so much to the popularity of the composer, has, no doubt, caught the fancy of its impressive chords. In other words, music can be both good and popular. The Russian Symphonic choir, which will make its appearance here at Slater Memorial hall on Wednesday, October 20th, includes in its programs a number of compositions which are classic in worth and popular in appeal. The Volga Boatman Song is, perhaps, one of the best known folk songs in the world, and as sung by this choir, will be a treat to [illegible] music lovers. The same can be said about a number of other songs which will appear on the program of this unique company, and a Bohemian song, in particular, is said to bear all the earmarks of a composition which is destined to be hummed by every American music lover who has a fondness for tunefulness, rhythm and sentimental appeal in his musical fare.

Mail notice of number of tickets desired to Mr. H. A. Farrell, principal, or enter your subscription upon list now at Cranston's store. Advance subscribers will have prior choice in selection of seats.

Tickets, including reserved seats, will be $2.00 each.

Some men ought to be thankful that the world doesn't understand them.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Club Work of United Workers

The club department of the United Workers is soon to begin its work for the winter of 1926-1927. Through its classes in sewing it endeavors to give to the girls of the city an opportunity to gain a practical knowledge of hand sewing, an art somewhat neglected in this age of machinery, but nevertheless very useful and necessary. All articles made by the girls they are allowed to have for themselves. In the cooking classes, the pupils are taught proper methods of preparation of simple foods and certain principles which underlie those methods.

During last year about 200 girls between the ages of seven and 15 were enrolled in these classes. Twenty women, beside the supervisor, gave their time and served as regular teachers, and a number of others served as substitutes.

This department of the United Workers has no endowment fund and is dependant on the gifts of the people. The district visitors are calling this week for the yearly contributions to the United Workers. It is hoped everyone will give liberally that the club department as well as all the other department may have the best year ever in the history of the United Workers.

Palace Theater

Tonight for one night only the Palace will present on the stage, semi-professional vaudeville. A novel entertainment by future stars of the stage wiht all new acts, the performance given last Friday night proved highly enjoyabel and those present last week will be interested to learn that the two acts that received the most applause were booked after the show for engagements in professional vaudeville. Tonights bill promises to be even better than last weeks show and the screen program is of surpassing excellence headed by Milton Sills in the tremendous screen sensation Men of Steel, that won instant success with Thursdays crowds, this great photoplay a head and shoulders above anything seen here this year and easily one of the finest productions in the entire history of motion pictures. It is real drama with a powerful story that never let the interest die out for a single moment from first flash to final fadeout. Milton Sills has never done anything quite so fine and the large supporting cast including Doris Kenyon and Mae Allison, George Fawcett, Frank Currier, and many others is perfection itself. Men of Steel is too big for words to describe, it is truly one of thos rare pictures that must be seen to be appreciated and one that no one can afford to miss. Then there is Mary Carr in Somebody's Mother a delightful drama with this beloved star at her very best. Gene Tunney in the fifth chapter of the Fighting Marine and the always interesting Topical Events with the latest news of the world. Walter Lang and his musicians will provide the musical setting for what is without doubt one of the best programs of the season.

TODAY'S EVENTS

Centenary of the birth of Matt W. Ransom, for many years U. S. senator from North Carolina.

Seventy-five years ago today the Hudson River railroad was opened to traffic between New York and Albany.

Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of the United States Steel corporation, celebrates his 80th birthday anniversary today.

Headquarters will be opened in Philadelphia today for the national convention of the American Legion, which is to hold forth in that city during the coming week.

Matthew Fleming, who was invalided out of the United States army before the Civil war, will celebrate his 100th birthday today at his home in Port Townsend, Wash.

Rev. Dr. Tertius Van Dyke, who recently resigned the pastorate of the fashionable Park Avenue Presbyterian church in New York city in order that he might carry on his religious work in a small town, today will be formally installed as pastor of a church in Washington, Conn.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theater

Bowlegs were at a premium in Hollywood all the time that Douglas Fairbanks was making The Black Pirate, scheduled as the next feature at the Broadway theater, starting Sunday.

"Doug" decided that pirates are not pirates unless their lower limbs have the contour of a parabola or an oversized ostrich egg. For that reason the extras in his picture were chosen not for manly beauty but for the breadth of distance between their knees. No doubt they make a grotesque spectacle, with knives between their teeth, bandanas encasing their heads, earrings dangling from their ears, and boots hanging at half mast.

Billie Dove is cast in chief support of this new offering. The only other woman in the cast is Tempe Pigott, in the role of maid to the heroine. Doug's three principal mal supports are Donald Crisp, Anders Randolf and Sam de Grasse, as a trio of cutthroat pirates that would have awed Captain Kidd.

It comes here direct from a most successful run of six months where it played at two dollars, but will be shown to the Norwich theater goers at small popular prices.

Breed Theater

Silver, Buck Jones' knowing equine companion, shares many screen honors with his master in The Gentle Cyclone, the western star's newest thriller which comes to the Breed theater today for a two day engagement.

The noted horse, long a favorite with those who have thrilled at Jones' daring film escapades, has the opportunity to performs numerous feats of hazardous nature under the guilding hand of the redoubtable western actor in the current photoplay. Wild leaps, thrilling chases, mountain climbs and falls are but a few of the dangerous pastimes in which Silver participates.

Rose Blossom, Marion Harlan, Kathleen Myers, Jay Hunt, Will Walling and Stanton Heck portray the principal roles in support of Jonse.

Other attractions on this bill include the 8th chapter of The Bar-C Mystery, an Imperial comedy and the Pathe News.

STONINGTON

Residents of Mystic and Stonington were shocked Thursday to learn of the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Adams Edwards, wife of Eugene Phillips Edwards, of Stopington, at Brookline, Mass., Thursday. Mrs. Edwards had been ill for some time but was believed to be on the road to recovery. She was the daughter of James and Emma Adams, of Brookline.

CHIROPRACTOR IS RULED OUT IN COMPENSATION

Compensation Commissioner Leo J. Noonan of Hartford holds "a chiropractor is not a competent physician or surgeon within the meaning of the compensation act" and "by law is limited in the treatment of the human body to manipulation of the vertebrae," and he is "unable to discover in the standard medical books anything to the effect that palpitation of the vertebrae will cure arthritis in the knee."

The decision is contained in the case of Charles O. Stanley, Avon hotel, in his claim against the Hotel Bond Co., employer, and the Royal Indemnity Co., insurer.

At the hearing which was held on the motion of the respondents for the purpose of clearing up the situation, it was brought out that Stanley had secured the services of Dr. Charles M. Nellis, a chiropractor of Meriden, without the consent of the respondents.

Mr. Noonan diallowed the bill of Dr. Nellis and also a bill from Dr. Eliot S. Coggswell of Hartford on the ground that Stanley had gone to the latter without the consent of the respondent while he was receiving proper medical aid from Dr. F. Arthur Emmett.

The commissioner also disallowed bills of $40 for extraction of teeth and $80 for artificial teeth for Stanley on the ground that no one had ordered the work done.

The lord bishop of London sees "an unusual opportunity for the younger generation in America to improve its journalistic standards through blotting out of sensationalism in its newspapers."

The Ghost Herons

'Tis strange that things we see at night
Can startle us by being white.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

But it is so. That is because, whether people want to or not, they think of ghosts the minute they see anything white in the dark. Just why people should be afraid of ghosts, I don't know. There are no such things as ghosts. But people still believe in them, and ghosts are supposed to always be white. Why that is so I don't know either.

Danny Meadow Mouse did some of his traveling at night. One night after he had watched Longlegs the Heron fishing Danny traveled until long after dark. He was still keeping close to the bank of the creek, or as close to it as he comfortably could. Every once in a while he had a chance to see the water, or to see the muddy little coves around the edge of it. It was in one of these coves that Danny was startled. He peeped out of the grass and in the moonlight he saw a ghost heron. Anyway, there was a heron and it was all white. Danny had never seen any such thing before. It looked like Longlegs the Great Blue Heron turned white. Danny stared with all his might; and while he stared two more herons stepped out from some rushes, and they, too, were white.

"My stars!" whispered Danny under his breath. "Is something wrong with my eyes? It must be the way the moonlight falls on them. Yes, sir, it must be the way the moonlight falls on them. They can't be white."

He crept around where he could be a little nearer to those big white birds and could see better. There was no longer any need to rug his eyes. These birds were snowy white. Danny felt a funny feeling coming over him. Could they be alive? Perhaps he really wasn't awake himself. Perhaps he was dreaming. Those great white birds couldn't be real. No, sir, they couldn't be real.

Perhaps he was dreaming. Those great white birds couldn't be real

But just then one of them caught a fish, and the way that fish disappeared was very real indeed. It gave Danny a most uncomfortable feeling. It gave him the feeling that probably one of those herons would just as soon have him disappear that same way, and he had no desire to disappear that way. Then he heard the voice of that heron, and he knew beyond doubt that that was a real heron. He looked a little closer. Those herons were not quite so big as he thought they were. They were big, but they did not stand quite so high as Longlegs the Great Blue Heron. Presently all three spread their wings and flew away. He could see them a long way, even in the night, because they were so white. When they had disappeared he began to wonder again if he really had seen them. He decided that he had seen enough for one night, so he hunted for a place to go to sleep and soon was in dreamland.

Early the next morning Peep the Last Sandpiper came flitting along. Danny called to him. By this time Danny and Peep were very good friends. Danny told Peep about the ghost herons he had seen in the night. Peep chuckled. It was a soft little chuckle.

"They were real, Danny," said he: "They were just as real as I am. Those fellows don't belong way up here. They belong down south. I guess they must have wondered up to see the country. They belong to the Heron family, but they are all white, and they are called Egrets."

"Well, I'm glad they're real, anyway," said Danny. "They gave me a creepy feeling, and I don't like creepy feelings in the night."

CRUSHED IN ROLLERS AT MONTVILLE PAPER MILL

John Merriman, Jr., 19, of Oakdale, was fatally injured shortly before 6 o'clock Thursday morning when he was drawn in between the heavy steam heated rollers of a paper drying machine at the Robertson Paper company mill at Montville. He died while being taken to the hospital in New London. The right arm was badly mangled, his skull probably fractured and he suffered internal injuries.

The young man had been employed at the plan at different periods during the past three years. Thursday night he was working on an extra shift at the plant. His fingers apparently became caught between the heavy rollers. The rollers were jacked up and the dying man rushed to the office of Dr. John J. Donohue of Montville. Dr. Donohue ordered his immediate transfer to the hospital.

Surviving Mr. Merriman are his parents, five sisters and three brothers; Mr. and Mrs. John Merriman, Mrs. Myrtle Pace, Mrs. Stella Hammond, the Misses Emma, Carol and Margaret Merriman and Arthur, Frank and Raymond Merriman. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker C. A. Gager of this city.

The discovery of previously unknown poems by Omar Khayyam is reported in a despatch to the London Daily Express from Karachi, British India.

PROGRESS WEEK SAVINGS

88c day — today — is the department buyers' greatest problem. The quality of goods is such that they find it very hard to drop their prices to the level of 88 cents! In doing so they often take a loss, they limit quantity not for the effect it may have but because they do not wish to accept so great a loss against their department. They find the dollar day hard enough but the 88-cent day is the real "Bone of Contention". However, 88 items are offered and every one of them is true Boston Store value! Be sure to come!

DRUG ADDICT FROM OHIO COMMITTED TO JAIL BY NEW LONDON JUDGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 7.—Wilbur Rider, a sailor who came to New London on a lumber vessel and who was arrested yesterday for an assault upon Arthur Green, mate of the ship, made a mistake when he broke his way to liberty by destroying the lock on the cell that restricted him. He was absent about two hours when it was discovered that he had fled. A search for him located the fellow and he was placed where he was certain to remain. Rider is declared to be a dope addict. It was the habit of taking a narcotic that led to his trouble, for he was picking daisies on the vessel when he was admonished by Mate Green that he was annoying the crew. The men had a scuffle and Rider was arrested. It was disclosed in court this morning that Rider had represented that he had bought and sold habit-forming drugs and that he admitted that he had been driven from the state of Ohio for a term of five years. This Rider denied, but the story he had told to others when there was no reason for his telling it. He might have been sent to jail for a year for breaking jail, but he was committed for six months.

CURTIS ROY PENNEY DIES—WAS PINNED UNDER AUTO

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 7.—Curtis Roy Penney, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Penney, 326 Summer street, Somerville, Mass., died this morning at Lawrence hospital as the result of internal injuries suffered in Waterford last evening when the automobile in which he was riding overturned and pinned him beneath it. Penney suffered a ruptured stomach and ruptured liver and his life was despaired of from the time he was admitted to the hospital.

Penney and a companion, William Stead were walking along the highway in Waterford, near Jordan cemetery, when an automobile driven by Paul Kushner, Niantic, came along. Kushner offered to give the young men a ride as they said they were trying to reach New Haven. Hardly had the young men entered the automobile and the journey was resumed, when Kushner suddenly lost control of the steering wheel, from what cause it was not determined. When the auto was plunging past Station 17, it left the highway and before Kushner could bring it to a stop it crashed through a fence and overturned. Kushner and Stead were hurled free of the car, but Penney was thrown to the ground and the auto landed upon him, crushing his body terribly. Kushner and Stead succeeded in extricating Penney and it was at once seen that he was seriously injured. The hospital ambulance was summoned and Penney was rushed to the institution, but his condition gradually became worse. He finally lapsed into a state of unconsciousness and expired.

WESTERLY TO NORWICH TRIP AND SPREE COST $39

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 7.—Peter Rice happened in town from Westerly on his way to Norwich, he said, to visit his sister. He represented that he had $39 in his duds when he arrived, but he didn't have a cent when he was picked up drunk. On his presentation in court today he was allowed to continue to Norwich and was told to make certain that he got there.

A couple of fellows who told what has come to be known as the "Fishers Island story", appeared to answer for intoxication. They were fined after they repeated an oft-told tale. Another fellow from the same section, forfeited a bond of $25 because he did not appear.

Peter Chicardi's wine supply has brought him a lot of trouble. He is the owner of a home at East New London, but his wife and son do not anticipate that he will own the place long, unless he abstains from using his wine as freely as he has used it recently. They want him to provide for them while he is in prosperity, but this he refuses to do, so the matter is one that is freely discussed, not always calmly. He was charged with a breach of the peace today. There is a chance to bring harmony into the family, so the case was continued six months in an effort to bring about the happy result desired.

George Whitney was taken from a local restaurant about 4 o'clock this morning, with a discolored eye and a bruised lip. He was there with a chum whom he designated as "Stink", and whom he knew by no other name. Both men had been drinking and they had an argument over the payment of a food bill of 15 cents. Finally a sailor settled for the food and then a row started. Whitney, when a police officer was called, accused the sailor of having struck him, whereas the blow was delivered by Whitney's chum. The case in court became one of the sailor's word against that of Whitney, so a continuance was granted till November, that more testimony might be secured.

The funeral of Mrs. Rosalia Seira, wife of Santa Seira, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, the mass of requiem being celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimons. Relatives acted as bearers. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The funeral of John Dwight Griswold, whose sudden death of heart trouble occurred Tuesday afternoon, was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at his brother's home in Pine Grove, Niantic, and was attended by many mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. Charles F. Eldridge. Burial was in Union cemetery, Waterford.

DROWNED GUARDSMAN'S BODY DISINTERRED AND SENT HOME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 7.—The body of Harold O. Hill, former United States Coast Guard, who was drowned in the Thames river about May 2, last, which body was buried with military honors in St. Mary's cemetery June 24, was disinterred this morning and forwarded to the young man's home, Portsmouth, Ohio, where it will be buried for all time. But three hours after Hill was buried, a telegram was received from his father, Albert Hill, requesting that the body be forwarded to Portsmouth. Owing to legal regulations the body could not be disinterred during the summer months, so that action was deferred until today.

FOURTH DEGREE K. OF C. ANNUAL INSTALLATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 7.—At a meeting of Rev. George Deshon assembly, fourth degree, Knights of Columbus, officers were installed by Deputy T. J. Sullivan as follows: Faithful Navigator, Peter J. Moriarty; faithful captain, Paul Curton; faithful admiral, Frank LaBlanc; faithful pilot, John A. MacDonald; comptroller, Patrick J. Lynch; inside sentinel, George Linicus; outside sentinel, George King. Faithful appointment of the following committees: Faithful patrons, Paul Curtin, Navigator Moriarty announced the chairman Cornelius C. Costello and James Donnelly; entertainment, John A. MacDonald, chairman; Patrick J. Lynch, George Linicus, Louis MacKenzie; membership, Francis LeBlanc, chairman; John Courtney, George King and Lawrence Contin; auditors, James Gilmartin, chairman and Paul Curtin; sick, Thomas Moran, chairman; James Murray, James P. Galvin, Mystic and Frank Roche, Lyme; Memorial, Henry S. Dorsey, chairman; William T. May and Jerome J. Collins. The organization is planning to conduct a ball in the Cronin building.

R. R. Rutherford, of Old Lyme, made complaint to the police this morning that he had been robbed of his gold watch at the Hotel Winthrop. Rutherford obtained lodging accomodations there early in the evening and when he awoke about 7:30 o'clock this morning he discovered his watch missing. There was no evidence that the room had been forced. It is believed that if the watch was stolen from the room the door must have been unlocked, allowing the thief freedom of the room.

The grocery store of Louis Belgrod, 18 Montauk avenue, was visited by thieves again last night, making the second break at the store within a week. Entrance was gained by forcing a rear window and the plunder obtained was trivial. The break, which was discovered this morning when the store was open, it is believed, was perpetrated by boys, a gang of whom loitered about that vicinity last night and who were driven away by the police upon complaint of teachers at Nameaug school, where a meeting was held. The first burglary was perpetrated in exactly the same manner as was the one last night.

Louis Sauter today sold a house and lot on Washington street, near State street, to Archibald S. MacFarlane. The house was for years the home of the late Charles Chapman and he maintained a grocery store there. The late James Hill made his home there many years and the late Agatha States, famous years ago as a prima donna, had her home there many years as she was a relative of the Chapman family.

Joseph A. St. Germain has sold a building lot on Montauk avenue to Domenica Girl.

Mary Hurwitz has sold an undivided one-half interest in a house and lot on Steward street to Rose Lemkin.

The Pequot Realty company has sold to Thomas T. Wetmore, Jr., and William Clark Lot 32 Lower Boulevard and lots 122-139, inclusive, Washburn road.

Rose Frank has sold a house and lot on Main street to Harris Regen.

Funeral services for Charles A. Chester, of 40 Blinman street, were held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 15 Masonic street, Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of St. James Episcopal church, reading the service. Burial was in Elm Grove cemetery, Stonington.

Mrs. Walter Spencer and infant son, of 12 Brewer street; Ultra Tacci, Goshen street; Mrs. David Connors and infant son, 24 Berkeley avenue; William Rusatin, United States Ship Pequot and Richard Richmond, 56 Mechanic street, Westerly, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

Another group of drunks will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning, for tonight there were several inebriates locked in cells awaiting trial. Included among the drunks is James Mulrain, who claims to reside in Worcester, Mass. Mulrain was arrested Wednesday on a charge of drunkenness when Patrolman Henry Hick found him staggering all over North Bank street. He was later liberated when a friend gave $25 cash, for Mulrain's presentation in the police court this morning. When court convened Mulrain was not present so the court ordered the bond forfeited. This afternoon Patrolman Arthur Feeley found Mulrain again beastly intoxicated on North Bank street, so he was locked up again, the second time within 24 hours.

Motorcycle Officers Augustus Ray and George McCaskey, who have been performing this form of police duty since last April, have been relieved of that duty and have been assigned to patrol duty.

John H. James has returned to his home, Bellevue place, having spent several days in New York.

Mrs. William O. Tuttle, of Miami, who recently underwent an operation for appendicitis at the private hospital, left today for Miami. Mrs. Tuttle will also go to Coral Gables, where property owned by her was damaged during the recent hurricane.

Mrs. Nellie Edgcomb, 225 Colman street has returned home, having spent several days in New York.

Miss Lonnie Landers has concluded a visit in New York and has returned to her home on Connecticut avenue. Miss Landers was accompanied back to New London by Mrs. A. E. Gurney.

Mrs. Robert Moore, of New Orleans, former resident of the Pequot colony, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Harkness at Goshen Point.

Norwich Produce Market

Apples are abundant but move slowly except for fancy stock. Native peaches are practically gone but moderate supplies of New York stock are offered at $1.50-$2.25 per bushel. Native pears of several varieties in limited quantities at 85c-$1.25 per 14-quart basket while New York Bartletts are offered quite freely this morning at $2 per bushel. Moderate quantities of native grapes at $1-$1.15 per basket and quinces at $1.25.

String beans are limited at $1.50-$2 while moderate supplies of shell beans are at $1.75-$2 and limas $2.50-$3. Cauliflower, celery and spinach are all offered more freely but tomatoes are scarce with the season practically over. Limited offerings of parsnips at $2.25 per bushel, turnips $1.25, Hubbard squash 3c-4c per pound and citron 1 1-2c.

Poultry remains steady with eggs and butter firm. Hams are a little easier, lard, lamb and western veal somewhat lower and other meats steady.

Cut throat competition in peaches on the municipal market in Syracuse, N. Y., forced the price down from $2.25 to 25 cents a bushel, caused a hand-to-hand fight and resulted in a squad of police being dispatched to the market to restore order.

DECLINE IN STOCK PRICES.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—(AP)—A further decline in prices took place in today's stock market with the reaction, like that of yesterday, following an early period of strength. Stronger resistance to selling pressure was shown, however, by many issues although bear traders again succeeded in uncovering a number of new weak spots. Total sales again ran well over the two million mark.

While the decline was not associated with anything in the day's news which, in the main, continued favorable, a new crop of rumors were brought forward to "explain" the liquidation. These included a report that insurance companies and other powerful financial institutions were liquidating large blocks of high grade rails and industrials acquired at much lower levels, which lack verification. The increase of over $76,000,000 in stock exchange members' loans last month also caused some uneasiness despite the fact that call money rates continued relatively easy and that no change was made yesterday in the Boston federal reserve bank rate. The New York bank rate also was announced as unchanged after the market closed.

U. S. Steel common and General Motors were again subjected to aggressive selling attacks and their failure to hold up under the assaults of bear traders undermined confidence in other issues. Steel was hammered down to 143 1-2, or more than 15 points below the recent high, while General Motors broke from an early high of 165 to 155 and then rallied a point for a net loss of 6 3-4 points on the day. Du Pont collapsed from 241 to 221 1-4 and then rebounded to 230 3-4 off 5 3-4 net.

Heavy selling of the public utilities was in anticipation of another magazine attack against the bookkeeping methods of some of the large operating and holding companies. American Water Works dropped from 57 1-4 to 54, American Power from 66 1-2 to 62, and North American Co., from 51 3-4 to 48.

Over a dozen issues collapsed to new low levels for the year. The list including Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies preferred, American Agricultural Chemical, American Home Products, Christie Brown, Electric Refrigeration and New York State Railways.

Independent strength was shown by a number of specialties in which favorable developments are believed to be pending. Warner Pictures A jumped 5 points to 62, closing near the top, and Case Threshing was bid up 7 points to 165 but slipped back to 163 1-4 on realizing. Moderate gains also were recorded by Interboro Rapid Transit, South Porto Rican Sugar and Woolworth.

Rails received better support, as a group, although rather substantial declines were again recorded by Chesapeake & Ohio, Rock Island, "Nickel Plate" common and Texas & Pacific. On the other hand, Colorado & Southern was bid up to a new high and Atlantic Coast Line showed a net gain of 3 points.

Call money renewed at 4 1-4 per cent., and then advanced to 4 1-2. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Active wheat futures advanced more than a cent a bushel on reports of adverse weather in the Canadian spring wheat belt. But most of the other commodities lost ground. Cotton options showed net declines of 9 to 17 points on bearish crop estimates. Coffee prices fell back 33 to 33 points and sugar futures yielded slightly although the spot market held firm.

Foreign exchanges held steady. Demand sterling was quoted around $4.84 3-4 and French francs around 2.56 1-2 cents. Italian lire rallied nearly 3 points to above 3.33 cents.

TAFTVILLE

Lov. and Mrs. Edwin G. Crowdis of North Third avenue attended the fall meeting of the New London Association of Congregational churches on Tuesday. The meeting was held with the church at Lebanon and it was Ladies' Day.

Joseph E. Scott of South B street has received word of the death of his brother-in-law Henry Moss of Fitchburg, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Sigrist and family of North A street are moving to the house on North Fourth avenue vacated this week by Mr. and Mrs. George Moore and family.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Whitehead of Boswell avenue and Stephen Parrylo of Voluntown are in Danbury today (Friday) exhibiting dogs at the American Kennel club show held in connection with the Danbury fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Polster and family of South Third avenue moved Thursday to Wauregan, where they formerly resided before coming to Taftville.

Matthew J. Hatton of Providence, R. I. was a business caller in the village Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lachapelle and family of South Third avenue are to move soon to a house on South B street.

Miss Marian Clarke of New London is the guest of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Axel L. Aberg and family of North Third avenue.

TELEPHONE CO. PROMOTION FOR JOHN T. FITZPATRICK

John T. Fitzpatrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Fitzpatrick of 26 Hobart avenue, has been promoted in the service of the Southern New England Telephone Co. by being appointed commercial representative at the New Haven headquarters of the company. He had been serving in a similar capacity at Hartford.

The current issue of the Telephone Review says of the promotion of the former Norwich man:

"Mr. Fitzpatrick entered the service of the company in September, ten years ago, as collector at Norwich. He was furloughed for military service, enlisting in the Signal Corps with a number of other men from our company and after the war he returned to the business in Norwich. In 1922 he was made commercial agent at Hartford and he did such a good job in that capacity that a little later he was appointed commercial service representative. Now another advance has come to John T. and his friends are sure that he will have the same success in this that he has had in the other places he has held in the business."

CATHOLIC WOMEN'S CLUB BEGINS NEW SEASON

The Catholic Women's club of St. Patrick's parish began its season on Thursday afternoon with a meeting at the rooms of the Ladies of Columbus in the T. A. & B. building. The president, Mrs. Thomas J. O'Rourke outlined to the very good number of members present the plans for the season. Several new members were admitted. It was voted to hold the Christmas sale in December and Mrs. O'Rourke was chosen chairman.

A pleasant informal social hour followed, when sandwiches, cake and tea were served from tables attractively decorated in pink and white, with gallias and pink candles. Mrs. Maurice F. Kelly, Mrs. Charles F. Lee and Mrs. Frank B. Disco were at the tea table.

Later there were several tables of bridge and whist, the prizes, framed pictures, being won by Mrs. Nelson C. Disco at bridge and Mrs. P. J. McNerney at whist.

As in former years, this organization will work during the winter for the parish poor, holding one social meeting each month.

SPECIAL ORGAN MUSIC FOR CHURCH SERVICE

Professor William Herbert Bush, organist of the First Baptist church in New London, together with a number of his talented pupils, will give a half hour of music at the evening worship service on Sunday at 7:30 at the Central Baptist church. The program will be as follows:

PICTURED TELEPHONE DEMONSTRATION AT FAIR

NORWICH MERCHANTS VOTE FOR NOON CLOSING ARMISTICE DAY

The Norwich Retail Merchants bureau, at its regular monthly meeting held Thursday evening, with a large attendance, voted unanimously to close Norwich stores at 12 o'clock, noon, on Armistice day in view of the observance of the day that is to be held in Norwich.

This action followed an eloquent appeal by Max Hanover, urging those present to close their establishments on that day, stating that the occasion was of sufficient importance to justify that action.

Mr. Hanover spoke as follows:

"While I hold with all the merchants present that it is the duty of every merchant to pay close attention to his business and to employ every minute of business hours for the interest of his business, I also hold that on rare occasions, he must regard patriotism and the welfare of mankind above personal business interest. I may be permitted to take you for a moment back to November 11, 1918, when the whole civilized world was electrified by the glad news that the armistice was signed and that the greatest tragedy in the history of the human race had terminated. Do you recollect how the entire world almost went insane with joy and jubilation because the future of civilization had been saved.

"Now please stretch your imagination by assuming that the war had continued for another year. Can you realize what a terrible calamity that would have been for mankind, especially for the United States of America. We then had about two million men abroad the flower of our manhood. They had about completed their training and were ready to take over several fronts. And in the several battles in which they had engaged they showed such noble valor and brave courage of freedom, largeness, completeness—lives of elevation and deep and high usefulness in a world where the majority will always be captives to ignorance, prejudice, superstition, provincialism and restraint, and under the pressure of economic and social forces.

In a word, democracy must have leaders if it is to survive and learning must be exalted as the requirement for leadership instead of, as now, being a liability. Only from our trained and able and qualified men and women should we make choice of those who shall be our leaders in church and state, business and society. I look for the development, over a process of time that may take many decades to establish—that shall train our statesmen, our judges, our legislator and executives and all others in posts of leadership for their respective duties and those candidates who shall be before us, men and women alike, people whom we may know are qualified for the tasks they seek to perform and the choice of the electorate, whichever candidate succeeds shall fall upon one who in technique, character and personality is qualified for the office. In a word, education, especially higher education, aims to make it possible for us to choose with wisdom from among the best who present themselves for service in the higher public offices.

President Marshall was introduced by Frank R. Murdy who has charge of the program for the meetings during October. He introduced the speaker as the head of an institution of which eastern Connecticut is very proud, a man loved by everyone as a teacher and good Rotarian.

E. A. Faris, president of the club, presided at the business session and William G. Park was the song leader. In the absence of Henry J. Fontaine, club pianist, Johnny Egan, talented pianist of the Palace theatre orchestra, substituted very acceptably. One of the features of the song program was the singing of a Rotary song for Frank H. Pullen, a member of the club who has recently returned from New Haven hospital where he underwent a serious operation. Mr. Pullen "listened-in" to the song at his home by telephone. Mr. Pullen has so far recovered from his operation as to be out daily.

The club voted to accept the invitation of Robert Fletcher Post, A. L., to participate in the Armistice celebration.

Secretary John J. O'Rourke of the Chamber of Commerce urged a large attendance of Rotarians at the opening exercises of Shantok park on next Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner

MISSIONARY MEETING HELD AT CHURCH AT MOHEGAN

Delegates from Congregational churches in New London and Windham counties were in attendance Thursday at the quarterly meeting of the Eastern Connecticut Branch of the Woman's Board of Missions, which was held at the church at Mohegan with morning and afternoon sessions. There was an attendance of about 60.

The women of the Mohegan church had the edifice tastefully decorated with autumn leaves and fall flowers. Between the morning and afternoon sessions they served a bountiful luncheon.

Miss Mary C. Willard of Colchester, the president, called the opening session to order at 10 o'clock and after reports were presented there was an interesting talk upon the Northfield summer school by Miss Elizabeth P. Dodge of this city, who is secretary of the branch.

A message was read from Miss Gertrude S. Avery, formerly of Norwich Town, who is now a missionary in Africa. It was read by her mother, Mrs. Dwight W. Avery.

In the afternoon session Mrs. Charles N. Ransom, who has been a missionary in Natal, Africa, gave a vivid and instructive description of her life and work there, and there were reports by Miss Sylvia Norton, West Indies, the new president of the Connecticut Home Missionary Union.

Those present from Norwich were: Miss Sarah Hyde, Miss Elizabeth Huntington, Mrs. Morris, Mrs. Harvey M. Briggs, Miss Jane M. Allen, Mrs. Hattie Zumbro, Miss Mary Lucas, Miss Nancy Lucas, Mrs. W. H. Lucas, Miss Elizabeth P. Dodge, Mrs. Cobb Mitchell, Jr., Mrs. Samuel E. Spalding, Miss Edith M. Bliss, Miss A. W. Cogswell, Mrs. S. H. Howe and Mrs. Allen Latham.

BOY SCOUTS INVITED TO YALE-BROWN GAME

Norwich Boy Scouts and their friends have learned with pleasure that the Yale athletic association has this year renewed its annual invitation to boys and their escorts to attend a Yale football game in the bowl at New Haven, which will be the Yale-Brown game on Saturday, Oct. 23. There will be added interest in the game to Brown men as the team from that college will be playing under its new coach.

Within a few days Scout Executive F. G. Bickfield Jr., will make requests for transportation for about 75 boys and it is felt by the Boy Scout officials that the response to this plea will be immediate and upon such a scale that no boy will have to stay at home because no one can take him along.

CHELSEA PARADE SITE FOR GERMAN CANNON

The captured German cannon, secured for Norwich by Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, and which arrived in this city some months ago, has been hauled to Chelsea Parade where it will be located permanently. It is to be placed back of the World war memorial tablet at the parade. Exercises commemorating the placing of the war trophy on the parade will be held Armistice day as a part of the town's Armistice day and sesqui-centennial observance

SPRAGUE HAS BROUGHT THREE VOTING MACHINES

The town of Sprague bought three voting machines Wednesday, two for use in the state election and the third as a spare, becoming the 30th town in the state to abandon paper ballots for voting machines. The machines are the same model as is used in Hartford. New London adopted voting machines a few weeks ago and a joint committee of the town of Vernon and city of Rockville is to be appointed to consider their adoption there.

Workmen's Compensation

Workmen's compensation agreements have been approved as follows by Commissioner J. J. Donohue:

COLLEGE PRESIDENT TELLS OF EDUCATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Education, Particulary as Developed at Connecticut College, was the topic of a very interesting address delivered by Benjamin T. Marshall, president of Connecticut College at the weekly meeting of the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday noon. President Marshall's address was highly instructive and held the attention of the members very closely. President Marshall said in part:

It is well to begin in facing a topic with a definition in the interest of clarity, and I propose the following liberal definition of "education"—"All that process or series of processes and experiences, by which the mind and spirit and whole person is stimulated, trained, developed and advanced that he can lay hold on any task anywhere at any time, at his will and discharge it with satisfaction to himself, and profit to society." On the basis of this definition it is plain that education may be secured in many different places, by many different methods, on many different levels—and not only within the school, but without. One has seen wonderful results produced in the life of one who was a simple mechanic like the old country blacksmith and wheelwright, the country storekeeper, the country squire, whose schooling ceased with the simple schoolhouse, but who kept his eyes and ears open, and did a lot of thinking. Education of this sort is secured today in various commercial and industrial pursuits independent of the school—one's business, the public press, good books, the platform and pulpit, and even more than these—one's own meditations and reflections upon what one has seen or heard—these are some of the means by which education is secured.

But we still think of the school and college as forwarding education in its higher and more specific sense. The advantage of these earlier forms of education of which I speak lies in the fact that the human element and the practical values of life are not disregarded, and it has been unfortunately too true that in school and college, these factors have been disregarded in the past, and even suppressed, so that people and particularly hard-headed business men have their scornful terms like "academic," "impractical," "professorial," etc.

I can give you assurance, however, that the human element and the practical values of life, coupled with ideals that elevate and inspire, are more sustained in the school and college than in any place under the sun, not excepting the church.

Writers and speakers and thinkers on many sides are trying to assert again and again that education is the hope of democracy. As good reading on this topic, I would urge you to read in the October Harper's an article by Will Durant, "Is Democracy a Failure?" and what he there sets forth in the way of trenchant criticism and constructive thinking for the betterment of conditions are a set of ideas, of which for some time I have been humbly and earnestly a promoter, and frankly I put it this way—Education is indeed for all, but education must be adapted to the ability, capacity and limitation of the individual. There is no heresy in democracy comparable to that which "All men are created equal." It never was true, and never can be true, and yet there are those who think the thronging of the colleges by vast hordes of young men and women seeking admission, is a demonstration of the desirable universality of higher education, and that all are capable of it. The fact is that but few, relatively, reach college out of the many who enter high school, and fewer still of those who enter college and even pass through are really qualified for the experience, or trained, or adequately profit by it. The problem of education is becoming more and more to find right selective processes by which justice shall be done to the individual seeking admission and that justice shall be done the colleges and universities that they shall not be loaded up and congested with those of whom it cannot be said that they have the requisite intellectual zest, and mental efficiency, and strength of will, and zest, passion for learning and culture, belong there.

It is with regard to these convictions and processes that Connecticut college chooses with great care among the many candidates for admission those who shall be finally received. The college is a liberal college of the arts and sciences—and by liberal—we mean a college which shall so train and stimulate its students through the counsel and inspiration and leadership of a faculty that they shall live lives

SAVING CHILD EYESIGHT AS HEALTH MEASURE

More and more thought is being given to good eyesight as a factor in good health and eyes are receiving more careful attention in the general physical examination, says the weekly health bulletin issued this week by the state department of health. There are many children daily being discovered whose vision is so poor that it cannot be corrected by glasses.

In March 1926 some 220 "sight saving" classes were reported in 57 cities in the United States. This growth has come about as a result of more careful eye examination in the schools, and a better understanding of the needs of children who are handicapped by poor eyesight.

It is estimated that about one out of 20 school children will be found in need of this special instruction. Such children beside having between 20-70 and 20-200 normal vision have such symptoms as red watery eyes, headaches, lids of their books too close or too far away, have difficulty seeing the blackboard, often distort their faces in trying to see, are listless, and easily tired and are unable to accomplish their work. Many of these are found to be repeaters in their grades from one to four years.

Sight saving classes take on somewhat the routine of ungraded schools. Usually, not more than four grades are handled by a teacher in the class of not more than twelve. Handicapped for such classes are found in the regular grades by teachers, school nurses or school physicians, at health center or by social workers.

As the prime object in establishing such a class is to conserve the eyesight the school equipment is of a special kind. Large typed books, colored pencils devoid of fine lines and paper, ruled in heavy black lines, are provided. Also games as possible or manual work are used to illustrate the result lessons so that there shall be less book work to strain the eyes. The children in these classes being few in numbers receive more attention so advance as rapidly as their native abilities will allow. Many have thus advanced into high grade work and have been able to retain some achievement along special lines because of this more or less individualistic training.

During the course of their school work the children are under the special care of an oculist who advices the teacher as to the amount of eye work advisable for each, and the precautions to be observed in individual cases. A school nurse does the follow-up work so that co-operative effort in the home may keep pace with the care given at school.

In establishing such sight saving classes certain physical essentials of the school room are carefully controlled, such as the exposure which should be northeast, east or west to avoid a bright changing southern light. Windows are placed on one side only, to avoid cross shadows. Walls are treated so as to prevent glare, buff rather than white being the prevailing color, and the artificial lights are diffused. Desks and blackboards have dull surfaces, and books are printed in large size type with black letters on buff paper.

Sight saving classes have already proven their usefulness in the communities where they have been established. To show how much importance is placed on this as a preventive health measure a training course for supervisors and teachers of sight saving classes was held at the University of Cincinnati last summer. This was a six week's intensive course and was attended by representatives of 31 cities in 16 states.

GOV. TRUMBULL COMING FOR ARMISTICE DAY

Announcement was made Thursday by the committee in charge of the local Armistice day parade and observance that Governor John H. Trumbull and his staff are coming to Norwich to participate in the general observance. Governor Trumbull will probably introduce the principal speaker at the exercises at Chelsea Parade.

Birthday Surprise Party

Mrs. Ethel Hoelck was pleasantly surprised Tuesday evening by a number of relatives and friends at her home on Russell Road in honor of her birthday.

Mrs. Hoelck was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts, among them a beautifully decorated birthday cake presented by the Women of Mooseheart Legion.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Teresa Watters and Mrs. Maude Whitmarsh with the Misses Helen McGee and Lillian Ross as aitresses. Vocal, piano, and radio selections were enjoyed and a pleasant evening was enjoyed.

Mrs. Hoelck enjoyed the distinction of receiving three prettily decorated birthday cakes, one from her mother, Mrs. Rose Kennedy and the other from Mrs. Edna Piper.

FATE OF DAUGHERTY AND MILLER IN HANDS OF JURY

Case Was Given to the Jury at 9.43 Last Night—At 10.16 the Jury Sent to the Court Room for Some Papers—At 11 Judge Mack Adjourned Court Until This Morning—The Jurymen Were Given Permission to Go Under Guard to a Hotel, But Were Told They Could Deliberate in the Jury Room as Long as They Liked Before Retiring—At 11.55 the Jury Was Escorted to a Bus to be Conveyed to a Hotel for the Night.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8—(AP)—The fate of Harry M Daugherty and Thomas W Miller charged with conspiring against the government they served during the presidency of Warren G Harding was placed in the hands of a jury tonight and a verdict will not be delivered until morning.

The jury took the case at 9:43 o'clock and at 11 o'clock when no verdict had been reached, Judge Mack ordered that the jurors retire for the night and return to the jury room at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. For the night they were permitted to go under guard to a hotel but were told they could deliberate in the jury room as long as they liked before retiring.

At 11:55 the jury signified its readiness to retire and was marshaled from the courtroom by a bailiff to a waiting bus.

The case in main was a statement of the difference between them as it rose by itself, with which the defendants were not charged, and conspiracy with them as an inducement, which was the charge against them.

The judge said after the jury had gone out behind the doors of the jury room that he would stay in court until seven o'clock or a little later or long enough that a verdict might be reached by that time. If no indication had been shown by that time, he said, that a verdict was imminent, he would have the jury locked up for the night.

During the judge's charge the defendants sat calmly on opposite sides of the counsel table. Miller chewing methodically and Daugherty busy with his chair, a handkerchief across one eye, affirmed by a cough with the other eye closed. It appeared asleep to the casual observer but that he was paying close attention was evidenced by the fact that he nervously uncovered eye each time his name was mentioned. Mrs. Miller, who came down from emotion during the afternoon session was not in court.

Referring to conspiracy Judge Mack told the jury that to complete men did not have to put their agreement in writing.

"People don't put in writing their every move to violate the law," he said. "There may not even be one spoken word. There may not be so much as the raising of a hand or the nod of a head. But they are guilty of conspiracy just the same if they come to some sort of agreement in advance of the words uttered to the defendants from John T. King and uttered in a government to constitute the offense in conspiracy to conspire the judge said that the mere fact that Daugherty and Miller were shown to have come into possession of the bonds and proceeds only prove that they were benefited from King as a bribe.

"Not of itself," he added, "nor it is the circumstance which you must weigh with all the other circumstances of the case. What is a mere coincidence or what is something more? Is it reasonably consistent with innocence? That is your problem."

Before turning the case over to them, Judge Mack told the jurors that they could bring in a verdict of guilty, both innocent, or one guilty and the other innocent.

At 10:16 the jury sent to the courtroom for some papers which were taken from the files on Buckner's table and sent into the jury room.

Judge Mack told the Associated Press that if a conviction were brought in he would not impose sentence today.

"Tomorrow?" he was asked, and answered only with a shrug.

The papers requested by the jury included the claim papers asking release of $3,000,000 impounded assets of the American Metal company in 1921. It is conspiring to defraud the government of their best services in prohibition cases of those assets that Harry M Daugherty, former attorney general, and Thomas W Miller, former alien property custodian are charged.

That these papers were requested may be taken as an indication by close students of the trial that the jury could be out for a considerable time, as the papers are of an unusually voluminous nature.

Argument of Prosecution

United States District Attorney Buckner addressed the jury for five and one half hours in his summation for the government. The defendants are charged with conspiring to defraud the government of its best services and allowing release of $3,000,000 impounded assets of the American Metal company.

As soon as Buckner ended his address Judge Mack announced that he would reconvene at seven o'clock tonight at which time he would charge the jury and place the fate of the defendants in its hands. It was learned that a decision had been reached on special request of jurors.

Buckner's summation was in main a straight argument, aimed at breaking down the contentions of defense counsel in their final words to the jury and to retracing the course of $274,000 of alleged graft money from John T. King to the defendants. King was given a fee of $441,000 to arrange release of the metal assets by Richard Merton, German copper magnate who came to this country for that purpose.

After stating that whether the Merton claim was valid or not was immaterial to the present trial, if it were shown that there was a conspiracy to push it through regardless of its merit, Buckner answered an argument brought against him by counsel for Miller yesterday

William Rand Miller's trial lawyer, had reminded the jury that an earlier indictment naming as well as Americans half a dozen German and Swiss financial institutions and persons had been thrown out at Buckner's suggestion.

"Of course I had it thrown out," Buckner shouted. "I inherited that indictment from my predecessor and at the time I asked to have it dropped the case American mentioned it was Tom Miller. Do you know that this offense is not extraditable? I couldn't subpoena the books of those institutions; I couldn't extradite those foreigners.

"What I wanted was to get the big fellows. Jess Smith committed suicide before he could be brought to trial. John Kent died. But Harry Daugherty, the man who got $241,000, is here at the bar of justice."

The prosecution forward yesterday by Max D. Steuer, counsel for Daugherty, that the former attorney general burned bank records important in the present trial solely to hide facts concerning the Harding campaign fund, was declared untenable by the prosecutor.

The Harding fund was raised in 1919 and 1920, he said, "and Harry Daugherty burned records which had only to do with bank accounts of the latter part of 1921. Those records affected this case but they could have had no connection with the Harding campaign."

Buckner then asserted that he was faced with a most surprising situation in that Reed declared that Jess Smith had nothing to do with putting the Merton claim through while Steuer asserted that Smith had everything to do with it, but that he kept his connection with the matter a secret from Daugherty.

"Steuer says King got Smith to expedite the claim through his acquaintance in Washington," Buckner thundered. "His acquaintance with whom? With street car conductors? With the commissioner of Indian affairs? With the attorney general of Alaska? Acquaintanceship with whom, I ask you if not with Harry Daugherty, whose very faithful collie dog he was?"

The prosecutor closed his summation with the statement that the jury owed it to every honest man and woman in the country to bring in a verdict of guilty. He admitted that some of the evidence was circumstantial, particularly the buried records, but he asserted that this made no difference.

"If the proof we have is not enough to convict these men," he cried, "then close up the courts of justice except for catching the little fellows. We had no eavesdroppers; we had no one lying under the beds of Harry Daugherty and Miller to hear their secret conversations. They sent no incriminations to the meeting at which they conspired so that we might have written pictures taken of the proceedings. But what we have leads to but one inevitable conclusion and that is that Harry Daugherty and Tom Miller stole from the government they were serving with the same hands they raised to take their solemn oaths of office."

HINDENBURG ACCEPTS RESIGNATION OF SEECHT

BERLIN, Oct. 8.—(AP)—With characteristic directness, President Von Hindenburg today called in Major General Von Seecht personally to accept the general's resignation as commander-in-chief of the Reichswehr, spurning the idea of writing him a letter.

General Von Seeckt tendered his resignation as a consequence of the cry that was raised in republican circles over the action of Von Seeckt in permitting Prince Wilhelm, son of the former crown prince, to have a part in the recent maneuvers of the Reichswehr. The generals supporters say it was his desire to meet with the wishes of Prince Wilhelm's mother, Crown Princess Cecilie, that prompted him action.

President Von Hindenburg thanked General Von Seeckt for his extraordinary services to the fatherland in war and peace.

This sentiment is echoed by virtually all the newspapers the observation being that the worthies of the German soldiers is unknown since the war has retired on pension."

President Von Hindenburg now faces the delicate problem of appointing a successor. As field marshal, he naturally will pick a man whose military ability is unquestioned, but ahead of the republic he must also select a leader who is beyond the shadow of doubt loyal to the new form of government.

The man mentioned as most likely to succeed General Von Seeckt is General Walter Reichenau commander of the Second cavalry division at Stuttgart. He had an important role in the reorganization of the army after the republic was established.

It is learned however that General Reichenau has requested that he be not appointed.

MISS C. WOOLWORTH M'CANN TO WED WYLLYS R. BUTTS, JR.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Miss Constance Woolworth McCann, 20 years old, granddaughter and ultimate heiress of the late F. W. Woolworth, founder of the chain of five and ten cent stores, and Wyllys Tossiter Butts, Jr., 25, obtained a marriage license at the Municipal building today. Mr. Butts is a resident of Tuxedo Park, N. Y., and a banker. The ceremony is to be performed October 19 in St. Patrick's cathedral.

EDERLES ARE TO OCCUPY MORE PRETENTIOUS HOME

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Gertrude Ederle, the first woman to swim the English channel, and since then the pride of Amsterdam avenue, will move to a more pretentious neighborhood. The Ederle family, it was learned today, has purchased a residence in Pelham at a cost of $18,000.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

PARIS, Oct. 8—A negro pupil has just been admitted to the Higher Normal school for the first time in its long history. He is Lenis Blanche, a native of the Island of Guadeloupe. He is fifty years old.

MADRID, Oct. 8—(AP)—King Alfonso and Queen Victoria traveling by special train, returned from San Sebastian. Government officials and a large crowd greeted the monarchs at the railway station.

KIEV, Ukraine, Russia, Oct. 8—(AP)—The Ukrainian government today approved the plans of Hugh Cooper, American engineer, for the construction of a $60,000,000 hydro-electric plant on the Dnieper river.

HAVRE, France, Oct. 8—(AP)—The French line steamer Paris, on arriving here from New York tonight, collided with the tug Ursus as the tug was casting her to the dock. The tug sank and it is feared ten of the crew were drowned.

PARIS, Oct. 8—Francisco Ascaso and Bonaventura Durotti, Spaniards, who were arrested late last June on a charge of conspiring against the life of King Alfonso during his visit to France, were sentenced to terms in prison for carrying concealed weapons and false passports. The public prosecutor was unable to prove the conspiracy charge.

PARIS, Oct. 8—(AP)—The Bank of France during the last week issued 170,884,000 paper francs ($4,895,700) in exchange for French gold and silver coin and foreign currency, the weekly bank statement shows. The amount of each category purchased is not given. The purchases are made under the new law aimed at increasing the bank's metal reserve.

THREE NEGROES KILLED BY MOB AT AIKEN, S. C.

AIKEN, S. C., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Mob violence flared up in Aiken early today, leaving two bullet-riddled bodies of three Negroes, one a woman, as its victims.

Overpowering the sheriff and under a band of undetermined size, variously estimated at between 50 and 500 stormed the county jail, seized the Negroes, on trial for murder of a former sheriff, and took them to a wooded section outside the city where their bullet-riddled bodies were found.

The position of the bodies, officers said, indicated that the prisoners had been released by the mob, ordered to run and then shot down.

Governor Thomas G. McLeod, in a statement at Columbia, deplored the affair and promised a thorough investigation.

The Negroes, Clarence, Desmond and Bertha Lowman, were being tried a second time for slaying Sheriff H. H. Howard during a raid in their home in April, 1925. At their first trial all were convicted, the men being sentenced to death and the woman to life imprisonment. The state supreme granted a new hearing which began early this week.

A directed verdict of not guilty given yesterday by Judge Lanham in the case of Desmond Lowman aroused the community officers said, and apparently led to mob action.

None of the mob was masked, it was said.

CUSTOMS AGENT WAS SHOT BY DRIVER OF AN AUTO

BURLINGTON, Vt., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Customs Agent L. D. Webb of St. Albans lay tonight in a "very serious condition" with a bullet in his abdomen while a fruitless search was directed for the driver of an automobile who shot him and a prohibition agent near here early today. The agent, Murray Tucker of Brattleboro, wounded in the hand and arm, was resting comfortable. Both were brought to the Mary Fletcher hospital here where the bullet was extracted. The two officers were on watch at Milton Line when an automobile with New York registration plates sped by in defiance of their order to stop. They gave chase and overhauled it in Sunderland hollow, just north of the city.

Tucker went to the rear of the car while Webb, from the side, began a search of the bottom. The driver shot Webb, Tucker rushed to his aid and seized the driver with a blow of his flashlight on his head but was shot during the struggle. The man leaped into the machine again and sped away.

Later a motorcycle, supposed to be the pilot, was found ditched nearby. It bore New York plates and in the side car were 100 bottles of ale.

MAY REVEAL CORRUPTION IN INDIANA POLITICS

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 8—(AP)—D. C. Stephenson, former grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, may have an opportunity next week to reveal a story of alleged corruption in Indiana politics. An order issued today from Superior Court Judge Sheldon Muller in Indianapolis for Stephenson's return to the state prison in Michigan City to this city to give testimony in a receivership case.

Attorneys for Stephenson in a statement at Stephenson may be a witness in the storm.

Stephenson was sent to the prison to serve a life term for murdering Madge Oberholtzer. From the penitentiary Stephenson sent word he would expose what he knows about local, county and state officers. Thomas H. Adams, Vincennes, Ind., publisher, who with several associates has for some months been investigating political conditions declared that he is certain Stephenson can furnish evidence which will uncover a serious scandal in the conduct of various governmental units.

TO MAKE DENATURED ALCOHOL UNPALATABLE

WASHINGTON Oct. 8.—(AP)—"Crank case hot shot" may be made but not relished from a commercial echo to be played on the market January first as the government's New Year toast to bootleggers.

Having been forced to charge half a dozen formulas for denaturing alcohol because bootleggers have found a way to eliminate the denaturant and retained a marriage license at the Municipal building today. Mr. Butts is a chemists, after long study, have finally hit upon a brand new formula which they say will make alcohol smell like "hot, burnt crank case drainings from an automobile engine."

FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM ABE TO FINANCE COTTON

WASHINGTON Oct. 8.—(AP)—President Coolidge has been informed by Secretary Mellon that in his belief, the federal reserve system is able to cope with financing the cotton situation while Secretary Jardine has assured also that cotton is a commodity which lends easily to credit.

10,000 Persons Died in Besieged Wuchang

Most of the Victims Died of Starvation—Many Drowned in Effort to Escape.

HANKOW, China, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Ten thousand persons have died, most of them of starvation, in the horror city of Wuchang since the Cantonese red army began its siege at the end of August. The figures are those of Chinese officials. No white man could penetrate the barred buildings, within which thousands succumbed in secret misery.

Five hundred coffins have been shipped to Wuchang to bury those trampled to death or drowned in the frantic effort to board boats to take them across the Yangtze to Hankow and safety. An Associated Press correspondent who walked through the streets of Wuchang, found them deserted except for neglected dead lying in the roadways. The city which with Hankow and Hangyang, formed the commercial center of middle China, was desolate. Many of its fine buildings had been destroyed by flame or shell fire. The numerous mission structures were deserted. Barred shops and dwellings hid from view the tragedy of death in the city of a half million population wrought by the besieging Cantonese outside its walls.

Failing in their efforts to carry Wuchang by direct attack, defeated in hand-to-hand fighting in the city's streets with its northern army defenders, the Cantonese at a safe distance maintained a war of attrition—starvation their weapon.

It is rumored that the Cantonese will put the proposal of the defenders to end the city if permitted to serve as the army that has shelled and starved them. The date for surrender is said to be October 10, a national holiday celebrating the founding of the Chinese republic.

This date also, however, that set for Cantonese ultimatum for the beginning of a general bombardment of the entrenched beings who crawl about the lifeless city.

Refugees ceased today their desperate struggles to board rescue boats for Hankow, two miles distant across the Yangtze. This is believed to be that their belief that Wuchang is to be delivered to the southern forces and that they will be allowed to return to the army that has shelled and starved them. The hundreds Chinese civilians have no part in the struggle of military caretakers for wealth or aggrandizement, the prize being the entire provinces which the Cantonese seek to wrest from the control of Marshal Wu Pei-Fu.

Fifty thousand Wuchang refugees are receiving the ministrations of the Red Cross at Hankow and organizations co-operating in the work of relief and charity.

FAVORS ABANDONMENT OF THE VOLSTEAD ACT

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Supreme Court Justice Robert F. Wagner in formally accepting the democratic nomination for United States senator tonight, attacked the Volstead act and said he was in favor of its abandonment.

"No issue in the pending campaign is of more importance to the people of New York," he said, "than that of Volsteadism."

"I am opposed to the law and a system on which the government is spending hundreds of millions of dollars to change the personal habits of a free people.

"I am opposed to a law which also declares that to be a crime which our people tell us is not morally wrong.

I protest against this waste of public funds which results only in the appointment of the bootlegger, the corruption of the public services, dissension for all law and an utter failure to bring about real temperance.

"I am in favor of its abandonment, and the substitution of a system more in accord with the democratic tradition that our people have the right to order their own lives and choose how they shall pursue their own happiness."

THREAT OF BRITISH MINERS CHARACTERIZED AS "BLUFF"

LONDON, Oct. 8.—(AP)—The threat of the miners leaders to bring about the withdrawal from the mines of the safety workers was characterized as "a mere bluff" tonight by Secretary Shirkie of the union controlling the majority of the safety men. He declared that his union would not withdraw the workers upon whose efforts the safety from flooding of the pits depends. The other unions concerned, he said, also would refuse.

The miners' federation delegate conference, following up its action of yesterday in rejecting the government's offer to create a national arbitral tribunal for the settlement of the differences between the miners and the mine owners, today decided to refer to the various districts the resolution adopted by the South Wales miners to call out the safety workers "below when we cannot go without most serious results."

Speaking before the military order of the World war, the commander of the American Expeditionary Forse told U.S. ons-time soldiers that the world is not yet free from jealousy and covetousness and the situation at home and in the future demands maintenance of a highly developed needs for national defense.

Only a "vociferous minority" opposed to such a program," he asserted, adding:

"There can be no earthly justification for saving a few million dollars a year on the army during peace, as a consequence we must spend many billions in an emergency in an attempt to make up deficiencies.

"The difference between an adequate and inadequate system is not sufficient to warrant the risk. There is a point below which we cannot go without most serious results, and we have reached that point."

The general departing from a discussion of the army reserve said, which he described as an "unusual condition of lawlessness" throughout the country.

"It is not to our credit that an unusual condition of lawlessness exists in our country today," he said. "Highhanded criminals escape the law and go unpunished. Officials elected by the people fail in the enforcement of law.

"How long this will continue depends entirely on the people themselves. We may as well be warned of our fate unless good citizens rise up and demand a change.

"The busy lives of present day Americans, too often absorbs their thoughts to the exclusion of that consideration of the obligations of citizenship upon which a safe and sound government under which the constitution rests."

The general also appealed to his audience not to forget that "the law of our government is the command," and the citizens "are directly responsible for the manner in which law and order are preserved."

CONNECTICUT WINS FIRST AWARD IN JERSEY COWS

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Connecticut won the first award in the Jersey cows in the National Dairy exposition today. Besides Cunning Meuse, owned by John S. Ellsworth of Simsbury headed a field of 20 cows. She was second in the recent states showing.

Ellsworth continued his winnings in the class for four year old cows, Rose Side taking first place in a special field, with the other places going to western cows.

Ellsworth scored again when Rashhays Wanted Daisy won first honors in the class for three year old cows, Massachusetts and New Jersey cows following her for the first six places.

FRANCESCO CIMMINO OF NEW HAVEN TO BE DEPORTED

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Judge Francis A. Winslow of the federal court refused to interfere with arrangements for the deportation of Francesco Cimmino, whose extradition to Italy was asked by the Italian consul in New Haven, Conn.

Cimmino is charged with a murder in southern Italy in 1921. In 1923, during his absence, he was convicted and sentenced to 20 years imprisonment. When he was found in New Haven he opposed extradition, charging unnecessary delay on the part of the Italian authorities.

To Resume Monday Recruiting For Army

Enlisted Strength Has Fallen 110,345 Men, 8,405 Below Pay Strength.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—(AP)—The army's enlisted strength had fallen today to 110,345 men; 8,405 below the pay strength and 14,655 under the authorized strength.

The reduction was attributed at the war department directly to the recruiting stop order which became effective Sept. 15 and was issued to avoid a heavy threatened deficiency in funds appropriated by congress for pay and subsistence during the current fiscal year.

Receipt of reports that the strength had dropped below the 110,000 figure fixed by the department as the average to be maintained until next July to prevent a deficiency in funds, led to a modification of the recruiting order.

As the situation now stands, limited recruiting will start Monday and be so regulated as to ensure as nearly as possible the 110,000 average until July, which is the end of the fiscal year.

PERSHING SEES DANGER IN REDUCING ARMY

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8.—(AP)—General John J. Pershing broke the silence he has maintained for over a year to publicly sound warning tonight that the army has been reduced to a point

You and the World

You can sit in your room and turn through advertisements and demand any portion of the world before you to come to you and it will come!

Advertisements tell you the desirable portions of the world you can buy. How most quickly to call them to you. How much you like them when yours. Grown on a far island—dug from a mine—if advertised and you ask for it, it's yours. If you ask it to do what it's advertised to do, it will. If you ask others who have used it what they found out about it, they will repeat facts advertised about that product. Advertisements are your surest, quickest means of enjoying the world. DISAPPROVES OF LABOR CONDITIONS IN FORD PLANT

Secretary Berries of the Metal Trades Department of the A. F. of L., Asserts That the Men Are Working Under Pressure That Will Send Them to the Human Junk Heap Within a Comparatively Few Years—Declares That as Long as New Men Can be Constantly Added to the Force Such a Plant Can Run, and No Longer—Says the System Provides Good Material for the Radical and the Demagogue to Work Upon.

DETROIT, Oct. 8.—(AP)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, tonight repudiated the remarks of Sherwood Eddy, secretary for Asia of the International Y. M. C. A. before yesterday's session of the federation's convention.

Mr. Eddy "did exactly the opposite of that which he told me he would do," Mr. Green's statement said. "Word was brought me that he wanted to present to us his views of the recent action of the Y. M. C. A. of this city. I am not responsible for whatever Mr. Eddy may have told any delegate or group."

The verbal skirmish between officers of the Detroit board of commerce and the labor convention was continued today with a public statement from the commercial organization that "we have no apology to make about any assertions that the American Federation of Labor is un-American and unpatriotic."

The statement was issued by Lewis E. Pratt, a director of the board of commerce, and C. C. McGill, director of public relations.

Labor officials read the statement without comment.

The usual afternoon session of the convention was abandoned today in favor of an inspection tour of the Highland Park plant of the Ford Motor company.

Disapproval of the conditions of labor as he found them in the plant was expressed in a formal statement issued tonight by A. F. Berries, secretary of the metal trades department of the federation.

The text of his statement follows:

"The constant monotony which the men in the Ford plant which we visited this afternoon are subject to, added to the tremendous pressure which [illegible] under, means that within a comparatively few years they become another addition to the human junk heap and their places are taken by newer arrivals. So long as new men can be constantly added to the force such a plant can run, but no longer.

"Instead of tending toward helping these men and making them better Americans, this system provides men who cannot help being good material for the radical and the demagogue to work upon."

The storm which broke in convention circles Tuesday with notice that Detroit pulpits would be closed to labor speakers next Sunday, continued to subside today. Rev. Worth M. Tippy, executive secretary of the social service commission, federal council of Churches of Christ in America, announced completion of arrangements for 16 speakers, six of them delegates in the labor convention, to address congregations Sunday and Monday; and a spokesman for the Catholic diocese of Michigan invited delegates to a special service in St. Aloysius church Sunday morning at which the Rev. John A. Ryan, an officer of the national Catholic welfare conference would deliver the sermon.

A message from several Sacramento, Calif., churches urging assemblage of the 1927 convention in that city was read to the convention.

Reports that a bloc of delegates had launched a move to replace Mr. Green as president in next week's election, were set at rest tonight by an official statement from Matthew Woll, a vice president, that he is not a candidate for the presidency.

James M. Lynch, president of the International Typographical union, similarly announced he was not a candidate for the place of Secretary Frank Morrison.

SEEKING HINDRANCE OF PROHIBITION IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO Oct. 8.—(AP)—The police department of Chicago was engrossed today in a federal inquiry into methods which are hampering prohibition enforcement here.

On the heels of indictments charging conspiracy against seventy-nine officials, gangsters and saloon keepers of Cicero suburban community called by federal agents a source of Chicago's [illegible] supply Edward [illegible] Olson federal district attorney subpoenaed police records of several score of prohibition raids made by Chicago police, and announced a drive against police who are connivers with the bootlegging industry.

In an apparent effort to stifle [illegible] inquiry the manipulations [illegible] among leading gangsters and the officials charged with law enforcement, [illegible] agents Pat Roche and Clarence L. Conrad working under the direction of A. P. Madden chief of the federal intelligence unit, framed their attention to enforcement conditions [illegible] Chicago following the presentation of evidence against Chicago officials.

Mayor W. E. Dever and Chief of Police Morgan A. Collins [illegible] subpoenaed to the [illegible] court of [illegible] records to federal agents [illegible] promised these documents [illegible] the inquiry.

VEGETATION IS BEING DEVASTATED BY WORMS

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—(AP)—An army of worms moving relentlessly west and leaving in its wake devastated vegetation has aroused agricultural leaders of the country and [illegible] first defenses were formed.

The [illegible] corn [illegible] was [illegible] the worm's [illegible] corn cobs and other crop remains having caught havoc during the summer, was the cause of a conference here of the International Corn Borers committee. Plans for [illegible] ment [illegible] against borer and closer [illegible] between state and government agents were arranged.

Ravaging at the rate of [illegible] a year toward Indiana, Illinois and other big corn producing states, the borer has covered [illegible] of Ohio, Michigan, New York, Pennsylvania and the New England states.

An appropriation of $300,000 [illegible] to assist the federal government [illegible] was [illegible] $1,000 to [illegible] the [illegible] from Indiana. [illegible] was appointed [illegible] committee [illegible]

MISSING MAN IDENTIFIED THROUGH MASONIC CHARM

DEEP RIVER, Conn., Oct. 8.—(AP)—A man found wandering in the street at White River Junction, Vt., yesterday and taken to a hospital in Hanover, N. H. has been identified through a Masonic charm and papers in his pocket as Philip R. Pratt, 27, a manufacturer of this place, who disappeared on the afternoon of July 30.

Mrs. Pratt's father, John H. Chapman and brother, Kane Pratt of West Hartford left this afternoon for Hanover to complete identification.

At the time of Pratt's disappearance many townspeople searched the woods and fields for him and state officers also gave assistance.

ORMISTON WAS IN HIDING NEAR LOS ANGELES, CAL.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Wide detectives scurried about Los Angeles and vicinity, following tips that Kenneth G. Ormiston, missing radio operator, was in hiding near here. Ormiston's statement of several months ago went into court records at the preliminary hearing of Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson on charges of criminal conspiracy.

The statement, contradicted in several instances by evidence recently brought to light, came by ay of the lips of Joe Taylor of the Los Angeles police force. Taylor testified to questioning Ormiston while the sea of Santa Monica was being dragged and searched for the body of Mrs. McPherson.

Ormiston the detective said, gave dates and places to fix his various movements up and down the coast, sometimes under his own name sometimes under an alias. In the statement he denied any connection with Mrs McPherson's disappearance or any rendezvous with her. The prosecution, on the other hand, contends that Ormiston and Mrs. McPherson spent time together May 18, when she disappeared from sight, in a cottage at Carmel, Cal.

FLIER ENDANGERED WHEN PLANE DIVED INTO SOUND

MILFORD, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Sebastian Pond, 22 [illegible] and Mrs. Nicholas Pond of New York and Milford, had a narrow escape [illegible] drowning today when flying from Mineola, L. I., to Bridgeport in his own airplane.

Engine trouble developed and he attempted to make a landing at Beardsley aviation field here. Finding this impossible he turned his machine into a nose dive towards the sound three blocks away.

The aircraft landed upside down on the sand flats 150 feet from shore, near the Milford Yacht club. Pond was strapped to his seat, but was found to be uninjured when aid reached him from the shore. It was at low tide and the machine and the aviator were partly submerged in sand and water.

Pond has been [illegible] during the past year. His mother [illegible] regent of Precious Blood [illegible] chapter, D. A. R., of Milford. The family will return to its winter home in New York next Monday.

RELIGION GIVEN AS THE CURE FOR HEART TROUBLE

WASHINGTON, [illegible] Oct. 8.—(AP)—The cure for [illegible] troubles is religion, Rev. Dr. Henry Van Dyke, of Princeton university told the gathering at the First Congregational church, of Washington, this afternoon in the course of the service at the installation of his son, Rev. Tertius Van Dyke who had come to be a country church [illegible] Park Avenue Presbyterian church in New York city.

"As modern civilization advances heart troubles seem to increase" said Dr. Van Dyke. "There is an appalling number of sudden deaths in the prime of life, in the spring of work or play. Petty degeneration, hardened arteries, heart failure!

"Physicians tell us this comes from the increased speed and complexity of life. We have invented so much machinery that it breaks our hearts to keep it going. If Methuselah had owned a head of automobiles and a flock of airplanes he might not have lived 969 years."

THE LOS ANGELES HAS RETURNED TO LAKEHURST

LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 8.—(AP)—The naval dirigible Los Angeles returned to the air station tonight from a two day practice flight to Newport, R. I. At 5 o'clock the giant craft was hovering over the landing field while the ground crew made preparations to return it to the hangar.

My colored clothes wash brighter

—this easy way

IT'S wonderful to watch everything come out so fresh and clean. I never knew colored things could get so bright and new-looking. And I don't even touch a washboard.

I just soak the wash in rich Rinso suds. Dirt and stains float off by themselves. Clothes get whiter and brighter than I could scrub them.

Rinso is a granulated laundry soap, and it's all I need on washday. No bar soaps, chips or harsh chemicals. I like it because it softens the water and gives thick suds.

So easy on my hands! They don't get a bit red or washworn. Ask your grocer for

DANIELSON

FATHER AND DAUGHTER BURIED IN WESTFIELD

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 8.—Relatives and many friends gathered at Westfield cemetery this afternoon to attend the committal service and burial of Brooks K. Parker and his daughter, Miss Helena Parker, five, who came to their deaths in Hartford as the result, it is now indicated, from escaping gas in their home. A funeral service had been held in Hartford Thursday evening. The service at the grave was conducted by Rev. Mr. Baker of Abington. Relatives acted as bearers. Those who came to the cemetery were representative of various sections of the town of Pomfret and of other towns in this section.

Mrs. Parker, who was in critical condition the first of the week, having been made ill by the escaping gas, was reported Friday as recovering at a hospital in Hartford. At the cemetery here Undertaker L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

NEW ASSISTANT PASTOR TO SERVE AT SO. KILLINGLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 8.—Announcement is made that an associate pastor of the Westfield Congregational church of Danielson is to be appointed, he also to serve in the same capacity at the Congregational church in South Killingly. Rev. Harding W. Gaylord, pastor of the Congregational church here, also ministers to the church at South Killingly. In order that a greater amount of service may be rendered at South Killingly, an associate pastor is required, he also to assist in the work in Danielson. That the appointment of an associate be assured, the Missionary society of Connecticut will give a substantial increase in its annual grant to the church at South Killingly, established well over 100 years. Greater service to both the Danielson and the South Killingly church will be possible with an associate pastor, whose appointment is anticipated in the near future.

How Women

Now keep fresh, charming under hygienic handicap—new way provides true security—discards like tissue

THE uncertainty and insecurity of the old-time "sanitary pad" has been ended. Scientific protection now supplants it.

Wear sheer gowns, keep up with social and business requirements, at all times . . . without handicap.

"KOTEX" is a new and remarkable way . . . five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads.

✓ You discard it as easily as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

Absorbs and deodorizes at the same time. Thus ending ALL fear of offending.

You get it for a few cents at any drug or department store simply by saying "KOTEX." Women ask for it without hesitancy.

Try Kotex. Comes 12 in a package. Proves old ways an unnecessary risk.

PUTNAM

SIX DIVORCES GRANTED BY JUDGE BALDWIN FRIDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 8—Six uncontested divorce suits were heard in superior court here today by Judge Alfred C. Baldwin and decrees were granted in all of them. Five were on the grounds of desertion, one for cruelty. Harriet Streicht, who now lives in Plainfield—four of the petitioners came from the town of Plainfield—was a former resident of Webster, where she married Albert Streicht in 1900. His present whereabouts is unknown.

Ora Miskiavitch of Putnam was the complainant against Stanley Miskiavitch. She is a daughter of Mrs. Virginia Montpelier with whom she now lives. Her husband left her June 28, 1921, just one year to a day after their marriage. Ernest C. Morse was her attorney.

Helen L. Bergenson married Victor L. Bergenson in 1921 and he left her in 1923. Harry E. Back was her attorney.

James Young was given a divorce from Lois Emeline Young. He said that he had lived with her people and after the birth of a child in 1920 he was asked by her and them to leave. He tried unsuccessfully to change her decision.

John Woodward was given a divorce from Gertruda Woodward, for desertion. They were married in New Jersey in 1920 and later moved to Plainfield. His wife, he said, was accustomed to the life of a larger town and was not satisfied to live in Plainfield and one day she left and returned to her parents in New Jersey.

Etta H. Collis of North Grosvenordale married Charles W. Collis in 1919. Because of his abuse and cruelty she left him after living with him two years. This decree was on the grounds of cruelty. Irving H. Miron was her attorney.

Winifred Owen of Worcester, formerly of Putnam and North Grosvenordale was granted a divorce from Paul Owen. They were married at North Grosvenordale August 24, 1922. Mrs. Owen testified that her husband had deserted her and that she was ill and without food for a week after his departure. Owen did not call medical attention for his wife and a physician was called by neighbors to attend her at the birth of a child which did not live. She further said that he never gave her money for food or clothing and that on Saturdays and Sundays he was always in an intoxicated condition and many times throughout the week. The husband has been serving a sentence in the House of Correction at Worcester for disorderly conduct, she also said. The decree was granted, the suit being uncontested.

The October meeting of the Woman's auxiliary was held in the guild room at the church Thursday afternoon and plans formulated for the work of the coming winter. An unusually large number of members attended.

At the Second Congregational church Young People's meeting at 6:30 Sunday evening, Miss Minnie Keyes of Pomfret will tell of the World Christian Endeavor convention at London, England, which she attended this summer.

At a recent meeting of Abington Congregational church it was voted to install running water and a bathroom in the parsonage, at a cost not to exceed $500. Rev. William English of Hartford has been filling the pulpit as supply minister for several weeks. Mr. English is the father of Rev. James F. English, of Putnam Congregational church.

Charles Seder of Boston, formerly a business man of Putnam, has been in for only the week. His young son, who was born in for several years is now being treated in a New York hospital and is slowly improving.

The funeral services of Mrs. Marjory Schmoll wife of Robert Schmoll were conducted at the home of her parents, Mr and Mrs Marcus A Cook of North Grosvenordale on Thursday afternoon. Burial was in Hope cemetery at Worcester Mrs. Schmoll was well known in Putnam and a number of people from here attended the services.

JOSEPH D. LITTLE TO TALK ON HISTORY OF OLD SILVER

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 8—The first meeting of the 1926-27 season of Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter D. A. R. is to be held Monday at 3 p. m. The program will include piano selections by Miss Elsie Littlefield of Melrose Highlands, Mass., and an address by Joseph D. Little of New York, representing the International Silver company of Meriden, whose subject will be the History and Romance of Old Silver. He has devoted a life-time to this important subject and his library on silverware ranks among the finest in the country. He was an employe of the Gorham company for 35 years. The committee of arrangements has asked the chapter members to bring for exhibition any rare old pieces of silver that they may have. Anne Wood Elderkin chapter of Willimantic and Sarah Williams Danielson chapter of Danielson have been invited to be present.

William Webster Ellsworth of New York for many years president of the century company, gave a lecture last October before the students of the Woodstock Academy which attracted so much interest that Mr. Ellsworth was asked to come to Woodstock this year. He has consented to speak before the students of the Academy Thursday evening, October 14. The subject of his talk this year will be "Abraham Lincoln, Boy and Man" and will be illustrated with stereoptican photographs, in color, of Lincoln's boyhood, as well as other scenes from the life of this famous man.

Postmaster Macdonald has issued a notice that after next Sunday, the postoffice will be closed at 7 o'clock p. m. instead of at 8 o'clock as at present.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter N. Phillips have returned from a two months' trip to the Pacific coast.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Grosvenor, who recently moved from Pomfret to Norwich have been guests this week of their daughter, Mrs. Omar Millot.

Mrs. Graydon Sharpe is a patient at the Worcester City hospital, undergoing special treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Torrey are spending this week in New York and Philadelphia. Mrs. Torrey is the Red Cross nurse for Putnam and during her absence Miss Dorothy Nower is substituting.

Miss Alice Stevens was in Worcester Friday.

Mrs. J. E. Brown of the Sawyer district is the guest of her son, B. F. Brown and family, at Providence.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Booth have been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lyon and children of Norwich. Mr. Lyon was formerly local manager for the Southern New England Telephone company.

Mrs. Carl Danielson and daughter of Hartford have been visiting local friends and relatives.

Miss Emily Dunbar of New York, who is the guest of Mrs. C. O. Thompson at Pomfret, recently returned from Europe, where she spent six months.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Euverard of Pasadena, Cal. are visiting Mr. Euverard's brothers. Mr. Euverard was formerly a resident of Putnam.

ANDOVER

A whist party was held in the town hall Wednesday evening. The proceeds are to go to buy more seats for the hall.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Butler and two children from Hartford have been spending a few days with Mrs. Butler's sister, Mrs. William Thompson.

At the town meeting held in the town hall Monday the following selectmen were elected: first selectman, Otis Wilcox; second, Max Hutchins; third, Wilbur Palmer; town clerk, Ellsworth Crowell; town treasurer, Lewis Phelps to succeed E. A. Jarrett who has held the office for 30 years he resigned as he has sold out his business and is going south for the winter. A hearty vote of thanks was given him at the town meeting for his long service.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE CAMPAIGN

Every community needs a live civic organization that is constantly at work for the best interests of the community. It makes little difference what its name is so long as it accomplishes results.

Such an organization deserves to have the fullest support and cooperation of the community. It is needed in handling many community problems and in promoting community welfare. A virile organization constantly on the job, ready for service and promoting the best interests of the city is a priceless asset, even if that asset varies in amount with the way in which the citizens desire it. Obviously it is the strong, active and well supported organization that, in the parlance of the street, "gets there."

Norwich wants an organization that will "get there" an organization made up of the public spirited citizens for promoting the business and other interests of the city. The need of such an organization, a perennial question and the good record of the Norwich chamber of commerce not only speaks for itself but it shows where even greater good can be accomplished through a bigger and therefore a better organization. It is an effort that on the interest of the community at heart, and it should therefore have the wholehearted backing of the citizens.

The chamber of commerce is a clearing house for dealing with vital matters not otherwise handled. It affords a leadership that is available for a progressive community in dealing with questions concerning the public an organization ready for service is needed. This is the object of the chamber and its work stands to the credit of the city as well as itself.

The effort that is now being made for increasing the membership, pushing it up to 400 in order to make it as efficient and effective as needed, is one that should go over the top with flying colors. Public spirit will prompt it and Norwich has repeatedly shown that it isn't lacking in that necessary requirement.

MARK THE ROADS

Listen to this statement by the highway commissioner of the state of Indiana: "It is the desire of the state highway commission to make it virtually impossible for anyone to lose his way on an improved state highway."

There's a small army of highway users in other states that would welcome that same attitude in their accommodation, for this means the erection of signs which will inform the people seeking any one of the many crossroads where they should turn and puts to an end all the uncertainty which possesses the stranger on the unmarked road.

It is to be congratulated that the effort in Indiana concerns only the connecting system of roads, for that means much for it will give impetus to the building of the highways users. And yet there is a good reason why the same information should be provided on other roads, whether they be main roads or the efforts of the state be supplemented by communities in the state.

Trying to find out where road is the right one to take to reach a certain point is the task of many motorists every day. Then it becomes necessary to remember the roads and turns which are told by those familiar with the locality, but where to ask a Greek to the inquirers, and a guessing to interpret the explanations as to bridges and roads not to be taken. Confusion reigns because there are no signboards to guide. Disputes are held to determine because no two persons agree upon them when giving directions and the result is that because there are unmarked roads those living along them are constantly pestered by the lost drivers as to whether they are going right or where they should go from there to reach their destination.

By all means should the state roads be so marked that the users are informed as to where those turning off from it go, but it is not alone the state road that should be marked in these days when all roads are so extensively used by those who are not familiar with them and who for lack of signs, are getting to their destination by frequent inquiries.

SEAL PROTECTION

Previous to a decade and a half ago it was possible to go out and kill off as many of the fur bearing seals as could be found. They were numerous and there was money in the business, but it became apparent, quite the same as it has in relation to our forests, that unless a stop was put to this indiscriminate slaughter it would be only a few years before it would be next to impossible to find a seal. The seriousness of the situation was readily understood, the need of preventing it from getting any worse was recognized and through an international agreement the number that could be killed each year was rigidly restricted.

By this arrangement the United States bureau of fisheries was put in charge of the work of protecting the seals. How well that has been done for the past 16 years is interestingly disclosed at this time when the report from the seal rookeries in the Alaskan islands shows that there are 761,251 of them, or a gain of 38,291 for the year. The protective work has been carried on so thoroughly that a careful census of the seals is maintained, and what this protective has done is clearly shown by the fact that at the time of the agreement the number of seals had been reduced to less than 124,000.

Waste in seals quite the same as waste in lumber, property and money was among the possibilities and it was being carried on to the point that no consideration was being given to the future. So certain was this that had it been permitted to go on a few more years it would have been difficult to have prevented the extermination of these sea animals. They were being killed off faster than they could breed, without any justification for such action.

The restraint was attempted none too soon. The method of preventing the needless waste is proving highly efficient and while seals are still killed each year the number is limited and the result is that their number is being increased instead of decreased. It is the result of an efficient application of a needed control and future years are going to experience the benefit of it.

BETTER THAN A STRIKE

What must be regarded as a safe solution of the wage situation between the Amoskeag company in New Hampshire and its employes is the decision to continue in force for the next six months of the arrangement that has prevailed in the past.

Between these employes and employer there has been an agreement whereby the cards were put on the table, conditions discussed freely and wages fixed accordingly. When the time came for a new understanding there was an appeal by the company to the employes to take a wage cut in order that the company might accept orders in competition with others which would not otherwise be received or which could not be accepted except at a loss. Such business would insure steady operation for a considerable period.

Such an agreement was opposed by the employes. They could not see their way to accepting a wage cut even with the assurance of steady employment, but they were willing to continue the existing agreement for another six months for such work as the company could provide thereunder.

Opinions may differ in regard to the wage cut and the action on it, but it was a case of putting forth the facts as they are. If the company can get business and run its mills it will do so. If it cannot it will have to close as it has done in the past. The understanding between the company and its employes appears to be complete. The company hasn't attempted to force a wage cut, there is no strike and there will be no more lost time than business conditions justify. What they will miss is just that uncertainty which prevails in the manufacturing business and in this instance the employes are taking the same chances the company is without being willing to bid for positive and steady employment.

VON SEECKT'S MISTAKE

Apparently General von Seeckt of Germany as commander of the reichswehr considered that he had more authority than the minister of defense, so that he could do as he pleased and fail to keep the ministry in touch with his action. Those things can go along for a time without interruption but there comes a time when it is discussed and then the end. General von Seeckt has gone through that experience and now is out of a job, removed because of the protest by the allies over his unwise administration of the office.

General von Seeckt has been a strong friend of the German republic, so it would probably be an injustice to claim that he was endeavoring to undermine it, but it was a serious menace for him to carry the idea that it was not necessary to abide by the laws governing the reichswehr and particularly when it did it in such a manner as to arouse the suspicion of the allied commission charged with the enforcement of the military clauses of the Versailles treaty.

It was insisted that the ministry of defense did not know what General von Seeckt was doing, that he was violating military clauses and it was brought to attention that he had permitted the eldest son of the former crown prince to participate in the army maneuvres. The last completed a chain of circumstances which made it impossible for the general to avoid resigning. Perhaps no serious harm was done but the appearances were bad and the loss of an otherwise strong man will do much to relieve the situation.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

"An institution is the lengthened shadow of an individual." This quotation has recently been made in a Sunday school quarterly to emphasize how the personality of Moses dominated the Judaism of his day. It can truly be said that the early Hebrew institutions were his "lengthened shadow." This great man—in fact one of the greatest characters that the world ever produced—made the trend of the national life subservient to his powerful will. Out of raw material that had just emerged from long captivity he fashioned a nation and gave it a code of laws that underlies many of our modern constitutions. The three branches of government, the administrative, legislative and judicial were centered in him. The long trail from the Egyptian lime pits to the land of Canaan was truly his "lengthened shadow." An evangelist in the west expressed this idea very forcibly, if not elegantly, when he said, "this man Moses was the whole shooting match."

Sudden changes in temperature at any season of the year are not a novelty here in New England, but they are somewhat more pronounced in the spring and fall than at other times. I don't think Mark Twain was very grateful when he said: "New England has all the weather she wants and plenty to spare." The professional humorist forgot that his splendid residence in Hartford was never threatened with destruction in a 120-mile-a-minute gale, and none of his family killed by crashing timber. He never knew the day when Hartford had to resort to soup kitchens to feed the homeless, and aid solicited from the Red Cross to look after the injured and dying. We will readily admit that the thermometer in New England sometimes acts like a "jumping jack," but the elements are so submissive to law that we have never a weather "holocaust. "Seedtime and harvest," summer and winter never fail.

The mere fact that the word "mount" and "mountain appear in the Scriptures 130 times may not have very much significance. It has, however, been claimed that the topography of a country has something to do with the religion of the people. There is some reason for believing this, for we know that character is very much influenced by climate and climate is modified by the physical features of the earth's surface. We can easily see why a hilly country is less subject to hurricanes than a valley, and that droughts are the frequent visitor where mountains abound. While, then, there may not be any direct connection between geography and religion, still we know that the place in which a man lives has something to do in the formation of his character. To prove this we have but to consider some of the islands of the world in which fogs prevail most and compare them to to places of more abundant sunshine.

The terrible calamity that has come to southern Florida through nature's vampire has put fresh emphasis on the standing value of the Red Cross organization. This great humanitarian institution is responsible for that being forestalled that is under forward. Calamities will be possible just as long as elemental forces are potential, and if they were not potential they would be useless and this would be a far greater calamity than when they are at times over energetic. With its national companion the Red Cross represents an up-to-date fire station, something that is ready to act at a moment's notice, and it functions on well-considered scientific principles. No organization is more worthy of popular support than this.

That we base our activities on faith rather than on knowledge is brought to our notice frequently, but rarely more vividly than in this advertisement recently appearing in one of our popular magazines: "Down by the sea in Florida—where the gentle breezes from the friendly gulf stream temper winter months to the warmth of balmy June—is a superb hotel that promises to be the center of social and recreational life in southern Florida during the coming season." To be sure that would be a relief, but it surely will not be the "center of social and recreational life in southern Florida during the coming season." The walls of this hotel are standing; the roof also is there, but nearly everything else is gone. That advertisement was written in faith, and there was every reason to believe that it would be verified sometime, however. Happened quite out of the ordinary showing that we must not go to the near future.

Is there not a selfish purpose back of many circulated statements purporting to come from reliable sources, as to the shortage of this, that or the other article in the world? The idea evidently is to boost the price of such commodities. Every kind of food ever raised by man has had its lean years. Climatic conditions regulate good yields and bad yields. As well as good time and harvest which have never failed and never will. But man must cooperate with nature to lessen these food shortages. We must not only make better use of the land already under cultivation but cultivate more land. Let anyone motor through eastern Connecticut with this idea in mind and he will be amazed at the acreage still in the wood state. It probably doubles the amount now under cultivation. It is estimated that if Connecticut were cultivated to the extent Belgium is, we could easily feed all New England.

One of the specters that begins to loom up before some of us timorous souls is the coming coal shortage, which many of us have long dreaded. We have cleaned it out, or, more correctly, have paid the plumber for doing it; we have bought the coal, but have not paid the dealer for that, and we are now praying that we may run the pesky thing without losing our tempers, our reputation and our religion. The situation was not to be quite so serious if the steam heater didn't know how to eat up coal. It certainly does and no use of it by putting in our way all the obstacles that are known and practiced in the regions below. When set on season of our smaller children are shivering we open the draft and in five minutes the blooming thing is out. When it is too hot we close the draft and soon you can boil potatoes in the attic. There will be no steam heaters in heaven.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Vincent Massey, whose selection for the post of first Canadian minister to the United States seems to have met with unqualified approval on both sides of the border, is a native of Toronto and is now in his 40th year. After graduating from the University of Toronto he went to England to complete his studies at Oxford and returned to Canada with an M. A. degree from that university. Although never a politician in the general acceptance of that term Mr. Massey has held several high positions in the public service. He was secretary of the war committee of the cabinet and later became director of the secretary of the war committee of the cabinet and later became director of the repatriation committee. He has been prominent in commerce and finance while in the world of education he is even better known. He has been president of the national education council and a member of the board of governors of Toronto university.

"WE SAVE AT WASHINGTON AND WASTE IN STATES."

Pointing out that tax relief is not yet an accomplished fact; that we save at Washington and waste in the state capitals; that government not only is taking one-seventh or one-eighth of the national income but is absorbing half of our national surplus, James A. Emery, general counsel of the National Association of Manufacturers, addressing the annual convention at New York this week, recommended sweeping and definite remedies.

They are:

In the federal field:

1. The repeal of the additional one per cent tax burden placed upon corporations.

2. The reorganization of federal departments, boards and commissions for economy.

In the states:

1. To halt extravagant expenditure and adopt or enforce rigid debt limits.

2. To adopt a "Pay as You Go" policy.

3. Budgetary control of appropriation and expenditure.

4. Lessen the flow of tax-exempt securities.

5. Abolition of unnecessary and duplicating states boards.

Mr. Emery said in part:

"There is no greater popular delusion than the common belief that tax relief is an accomplished fact. Splendid gains are recorded in the federal field, but every gain in that province is more than equalized by the drainage of local public expenditure. We save at Washington and waste in the state capitals. The tax burden of the American people for the year will be little more than $100,000,000 less than during the war peak of 1919.

"Worst of all, our communities not only increasingly accumulate debt and enlarge expenditure, but they do so generally under a startling system of financing which continually increases the volume of public realty, and public securities which lessen the capital flow to reproductive industry and make no contribution to the levy on income. The tax exempt security issues of local government still averaging $1,300,000,000 annually are but substantially sums to the requirements of the states and their subdivisions for sinking funds and fixed charges. But one state, Massachusetts, is consistently paying as it goes, and but 17 out of 48 are spending within the limits of their annual revenue.

"Our tax situation cries for reform and demands permanent and enduring leadership, unless we are willing to permit the vast proportion of our hard-won surplus to pass in a swelling flood, to be taken from private administration and expenditure and to be spent by and for government.

"The facts demonstrate this situation. Remedy is at hand and can be applied if we are prepared to tackle the task. Let us summarize the situation:

"The national indebtedness of $25,482,000,000, June 30, 1919, stood, August 30, 1925, at $19,381,000,000. But, But, meanwhile, the debt of the state and its subdivisions leaped from $3,822,000,000, in 1913, to $11,652,000,000, in 1924. Between 1919 and 1924 federal taxes declined 39 per cent, while those of the states increased 87 per cent and their local subdivisions 56 per cent. During that period the average American family paid $92.64 less to Washington and $61.31 more to local government annually.

"The total expenditure for government, national, state and local, reached $10,252,000,000, in 1924; it was more in 1925, and, at the growing rate of expenditure, it will be still greater in 1926.

"What does this mean in terms of production, and savings and effort? It means the expenditure for and by American government annually of a sum equal to half our savings banks deposits.

"It means that we pour from the public purse annually a sum greater than the value of the crops raised upon 6,500,000 American farms, utilizing 320,000,000 acres of land. The greatest producers of foodstuffs and cotton in the world, the annual value of both would not meet the revenue requirements of our towns and municipalities, and all our wheat would barely support state government, while neither, the net income of the manufacturing corporations of the United States, our greatest wealth producers, nor the money in circulation in the nation, would meet the combined annual expenditure of state and local government.

"Measured by the recent report of the federal trade commission on national wealth and income, our total outlay for government is more than one-seventh of our gross national production of wealth, measured in both services and commodities. The chief source of federal revenue is personal and corporate income, and that to an increasing degree is now levied by the states. However, the main burden of local taxation is borne by realty, including improvements.

"But more than $40,000,000,000 of the $230,000,000,000 or realty represent the steadily increased holdings of non-taxable public property. While the loans through which local government has so vastly increased its debt are now represented by tax exempt securities of more than $14,000,000,000, increasing at the rate of $1,300,000,000 per year, and which, added to federal tax exempts, makes a total which threatens to shortly equal in amount our diminished national debt. Our communities are systematically enlarging their debt and expenditure and contracting the real property and income which must support the burden.

"Taxation is indispensable to government and government is indispensable to individual and collective security. It is not the fact of taxation but its form and amount which menace our progress. The wealthiest of nations, we contemplate expenditures proportionate to our wealth and position in the society of mankind. The industrial system we have established and developed and the maintenance of our prevailing standards of life require for support and expansion an increasing amount of all we produce. Multiplied capacity for production is the foundation of our established social power. It determines the kind of life our people shall enjoy. For out of it we provide not merely the wants of the body but those of the mind and soul. It gives us command of leisure, which insures to the scientist and the scholar, to art, education and literature, the opportunity to minister from its surplus to all the nobler flowering of individual and national life. Our economic power has not only enabled us to transform the whole character of popular life but give us the means in a world crisis to sustain the battling forces of civilization and reinforce the stricken life of Europe.

"But the taxable capacity of a people is not determined by the proportion of public expenditure to gross national income. Government in all its forms is plainly consuming 12 per cent of that total. That might mean that one month in twelve we labored exclusively for the state.

"Startling as that may be, it is not the whole truth, for we are told that three-fourths of the national income is consumed, socially and individually, in the productive effort. It is that surplus over and above what we socially and individually consume that provides the funds of progress. That is as true of the nation as it is of the individual. All forms of income taxes are the first charge against the net results of production and service. They are a necessary limitation upon what we may otherwise spend or save, for it is not the product of the farmer's fields which measure his prosperity. It is what he has over and above operation and living that permit him to improve his stock, repair his buildings, better the home and enlarge his family life and their opportunities. It is only what is left after operating expenses are met which permit a railroad to enlarge its facilities or improve its service.

"It is not the $48,000,000,000 of gross production which measures the progress of 3 per cent of manufacturing corporations which alone possess a net income, but the $4,000,000,000 of surplus which provides the means of sustaining and expanding the service they render the American people. We move forward, individually and collectively, from the margins above consumption.

"We must then measure our taxable capacity not by the difference between that 12 per cent of all we produce that goes for government, but we should maintain a parity between the surplus and public expenditure. We move by individual initiative and enterprise, applied to the development of our resources, the service of our people and the improvement of our social structure. How much, then, may we take from private saving and expenditure with that $15,000,000,000 or $20,000,000,000 annual surplus without imperilling the size and stability of that fund privately saved and administered through which we have met our requirements and must provide for our future?

"It is important to reflect upon the stunning fact, not that government is taking one-seventh or one-eighth of our income, but is absorbing half of our national surplus.

"The remedy is with the citizen. It calls for individual and collective action. We must awaken a tax-consciousness which makes each realize that the cost of government is a vital part of his own cost of living, wherever its charge primarily falls. A rich and generous people, we must learn to walk the parkway between parsimony and extravagance in public expenditure. The president has pointed the way, but we know now that the practical reform required demands something more than sound precepts and good example. Never was the time more ripe for national business to invite and secure the active and enduring co-operation of the farmer, the home-owner and the enormously developing body of small capitalists whose savings and investments and whose future hopes are menaced by the clutch of the tax collector. In the federal and state field the salient elements of a plain task are visible.

"In the federal field: (1) The immediate repeal of the invidious and discriminating addition burden placed upon that characteristic form of business enterprise, the corporation. The returns for the first half of the fiscal year demonstrate that the one per cent additional corporation tax levied to meet an anticipated deficit from the repeal of the corporation stock tax is unnecessary. Being levied for that purpose alone, it is but fair to ask its repeal at the short session of congress.

"(2) The re-organization of federal departments, boards and commissions, urged by Mr. Hoover with inductive logic, assures not only further savings but enormous increase in administrative efficiency. The necessity for the reform is unlimited. It merely requires public pressure to secure its accomplishment.

"But the chief place for immediate action is within the states. A cooperative committee representative of the characteristic American industrial, agricultural and home-owning organization can rally an aroused citizenship:

"(1) To halt in each state the further increase of extravagant expenditure, and adopt or enforce rigid debt limits.

"(2) To urge and support a public demand for the adoption of a 'Pay as you go' financial policy.

"(3) To secure the adoption of an effective budgetary control of appropriation and expenditure.

"(4) To lessen the flow of tax-exempt securities, establish stricter control of viting bond issues, and confine their life to that of the improvement against which they issue.

"(5) To duplicate within the states Mr. Hoover's proposal for the reorganization of administrative boards and commissions, thse abolition of the plication and the curtailment of expenditure.

"Many states are overhauling their constitutions. An opportunity is thus afforded to reduce annual legislative sessions to biennial, or to follow the example of Maryland be cutting biennal to quadrennial sessions, with appropriate provisions for emergencies. Attention would further be concentrated on local problems, if state elections were generally authorized in odd years, the problems of community government, would be decided comparatively free from the overshadowing influence of national elections."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Thinks Remarks Queer

Mr. Editor: In opening The Bulletin this morning, I notice that the three youths from Brooklyn had their trial in Willimantic the day before. I have nothing to say about the penalty inflicted.

Some remarks made at the trial struck me queer coming from the states attorney. I refer to his remark that the judge in the lower court was a Catholic.

If the state's attorney for Windham county believes that the lower court judge was prejudiced, why not bring impeachment proceedings against him? In my opinion their own attorney could not have defended them any better than did the state's attorney.

Indeed I think his remarks were ill advised. Why should our public officers make such remarks in open court?

FAIR PLAY.

Sunday Morning Talk

ONE THING

For I determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ, and him crucified. 1. Cor. 2:2.

This was the keynote of Paul's life after the wonderful experience on the road to Damascus. It was after this new rule that the Apostle Paul was great among men. He holds the first place among the true heroes of mankind. All his varied powers were used for the welfare of his fellow men. There was from the beginning of his Christian career an evident and entire forgetfulness of himself. Never was there a character more distinguished for unity and concentration. He had but one motive, and that never wavered. In whatever presence he stood before a company of philosophers, a profligate prince like Agrippa, a Roman officer in Cyprus, a crowd of soldiers and sailors in danger of shipwreck, his greatness in every instance was acknowledge and revered. He was the quality of his love, which made him so buoyant and joyous. It was this which made his heart warm, when, in the winter, without a cloak he voyaged across the stormy Adriatic. In accomplishing the great object which Christian love suggested he was lifted above all that was mortal. His independence was not stoicism, for how gentle was his heart, how it logged for sympathy from those he loved. But he had reached a sublime serenity, unmoved by the ordinary ambitions of the world. Whether he possessed or lost what the world most values, was to him of little consequence, so long as his soul lived in the upper atmosphere where all the common distinction of human life are forgotten.

He is the same zealous apostle to the last, such was his heartiness of purpose that many of Ceasar's household were converted to the Christian faith.

Calm and blessed in anticipation of his own martyrdom be written those great words which ever since have been among the "march melodies," of the Christian church." I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought, the good fight, I have finished my course. I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness which the Lord the righteous judge, shall give me at that day," so wrote the gerat apostle, within sound of the lions gnarling and roaring for his blood. When arraigned before Nero, he had no man to stand by him, no advocate, no friend. But faith in his ever present Lord made him superior to fear. As the setting sun appears to be of larger dimensions and its beams of richer effulgence than at the meridian, so the greatness of this Christian apostle seemed more glorious than ever, just as he sinks from our view, at his close of his most eventful life in the mysteries of his martyrdom.

Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D.

Have a Clear Idea

We must have a clear idea of what we read if we wish to retain it. We cannot remember perfectly what we do not understand. We must think about what we read, assimilate it and unite it to the knowledge that we already possess. Every time we go over it in our minds we make the impression clearer.

Professor James lays special stress on the aid to memory that is derived by this association of ideas. "When we wish to fix a new thing in either our own mind of a pupil's, our conscious effort should not be so much to impress and retain it as to connect it with something else already there. The 'secret of a good memory' is thus the secret of forming diverse and multiple associations with every fact we care to retain. But this forming of associations with a fact—what is it but thinking about the fact as much as possible? Briefly, then, of two men with the same outward experiences, the one who thinks over his experiences most, and weaves relations with each other, will be the one with the best memory."

YOUR HEALTH

MATERNAL CARE SAVES LIVES

By Fred L. Adair, M. D., Minneapolis, Minn.

Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

Much can be done to cut down the needless lost of life of both mother and infant. In the United States this fact does not seem to be realized sufficiently well, and as a result the mortality rate of this period is far higher than that of many European countries.

The future mother has to live a more sane, normal life because she is handicapped by a closer margin of safety in all her physical and mental organisms. She needs constant attention, education and advice concerning the mode of living, necessary preparations, and adjustment to a new order.

Protection can best be accomplished by the use of preventive measures being practiced more and more every day. Absolute prevention of unfortunate outcomes is obviously not possible, but much suffering, disability and loss of life, both of mothers and infants can be prevented.

There are two main ideas to consider in carrying out these health measures. First, how can the acquisition of a disease be prevented? Second, how can we detect, early in its course, a disease which we do not know how to prevent, but may be able to cure in its beginning?

Any successful attempt to carry out these ideas must rest upon the foundation of co-operation between the individual and her adviser.

In maternity cases it is necessary that the physical condition be determined early and that any changes be observed carefully. Special examinations and observations are necessary, frequently, in order to prevent later complications and to detect any diseased condition early in its course of development.

At least during the antenatal, natal and postnatal periods, it is necessary that mother and infant receive the very best care and advice. The result makes for health and happiness of both.

PIMPLES LASTED THREE YEARS

Itching and Burning Were Terrific. Cuticura Heals.

"My trouble began with pimples on my face. They were small at first, but after a while turned to great, large, red pimples that festered. Later on pimples broke out on my chest. The itching and burning were terrific and I could not sleep. My face was badly disfigured. The trouble lasted three years.

"Other remedies were used without success. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in two weeks I got relief. I continued using them and in six weeks was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Mury Grishkavy, Box 66, Amesbury, Mass.

Stories That Recall Others

She Lost Herself

Auntie, sewing in her bedroom, noticed that little Muriel, whom she had left to play in the sitting room below, was unusually quiet. At last she went downstairs and opened the door. She saw Muriel sitting in an easy chair with her hands folded.

"Well, dear," said auntie, "can't you find anything to do?"

"I can't find anybody to play hide the thimble with me," the child retorted, "so I've hidden it myself and now I'm waiting until I forget where I put it."

At Least Sane

Esther was ten and was accustomed to use high-sounding phrases. One day her mother was ill. In the evening a neighbor came to inquire and asked of Esther, "What is the world is the matter with your mother?"

"Well," replied the lofty Esther, "she's got a headache and a cold and I don't know what else, but we think she is all right mentally."

It is easier to pose as an optimist than it is to be one.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action. It soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote other healing elements which soothe and heal the affected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist (adv.)

OBITUARY

Mrs. Harry H. Boyden

(Contributed)

In the death of Mrs. Harry H. Boyden of 122 Prospect street, which occurred at the Backus hospital early Wednesday evening, the Greeneville section of the city has lost an individual of unusual personality. Rarely has a new comer into our midst made so favorable an impression on the community at large. The family of which she was a member came from Providence three years ago last January, and became identified with the Greeneville Congregational church and Mrs. Boyden joined the Ladies' Bible class. Subsiquently, when a vacancy occured in the superintendency of the school, a call came to Mrs. Boyden so loud and with such persistency that she accepted the office. For a woman to fill that position was such an innovation that some were doubtful of the result. But in a short time there was nothing but a chorus of praise. Her gentle voice, kindly ways, tactful moves, but most of all her general efficiency and powerful personality soon won all hearts.

She introduced the cross and crown system as rewards of merit for perfect attendance, consisting of gold and silver pins which met with great acceptance especially among the younger pupils. She also introduced a new and more up to date singing book which was greatly needed. Being an experienced teacher, her fine hand was seen in improving the class work. It is not too much to say that whatever else she did was marked by the same effective thoroughness. These characteristic features were seen in her home and all her contacts with the neighborhood. While we believe that her translation means promotion to a larger sphere of service, still her loss to us seems irreparable," says one who knew her well.

WEDDINGS

Gibson-Spivery.

Miss Hattie Orva Spivery, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Spivery of 65 Myers avenue was united in marriage with Rev. William Marvin Gibson of Worcester, Mass., Thursday evening by Elmer E. Thompson, D. D. of South Method. Mass. The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock.

The bride, gowned in white georgette crepe and rhinestone trimmings, and orchids, carrying a shower bouquet of white roses, entered the parlor with her father. She was attended by Miss Dorothy Jeffres of New London, who wore pale pink georgette crepe and trimmings carried pink roses.

The best man was Rev. Y. L. Clayton of Boston, Mass. The wedding march was played by the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin played by the sister-in-law of the bride, Mrs. Thomas F. Spivery Jr. of New Jersey. The bride's gift to the maid of honor was an emerald bar pin.

The bride is a graduate of Broadway grammar school, Norwich Free Academy of this city and is a graduate nurse of John A. Andrews hospital, Tuskegee, Alabama. Since her graduation she has been engaged as office assistant to H. G. MacKerrow, M. D., of Worcester, Mass., and has endeared herself to a large circle of friends. She is an efficient worker in church and sunday school.

The early school days of the groom were spent at his birthplace Henderson, Kentucky. He is a graduate of Howard university, Washington, D. C., also a graduate of Yale Divinity school. Next year he will be in charge of the John St. Baptist church, Worcester, Mass., and has proven himself a very great power in the ministry for Christ and the church.

A reception followed the marriage, ice cream, cake and punch being served. Mrs. Frances Evans was Mrs. Spivery's assistant in receiving the guests who comprised friends from Worcester, New Haven, New London, Westerly, Cambridge, Springfield.

The bride and groom left at 11:30 for their home 42 Mason street, Worcester, Mass. with the best wishes of their friends for their future success.

Among the numerous wedding gifts were 6 gold coins.

Burning Leaves Fire Tree.

Squad A was called out at 12.45 o'clock this (Saturday) morning to extinguish a fire in the base of a tree on Greene avenue. Three gallons of chemical were used to put out the fire, which was evidently caused by children burning leaves at the trunk of the tree during the afternoon, for a small fire there earlier in the evening was extinguished by an employe of the electric department working nearby.

The call was the second to be received during fire prevention week.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham was given a surprise party by friends celebrating her birthday Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver L. Johnson were guests over night at Hyde Manor, Sudbury, Vt., while on a motor trip of two weeks to Lake Placid.

On their world-cruise on steamer Ryndam, Prof. Thomas G. Brown and Grosvenor Ely, Jr. are due at Los Angeles today the 9th. Their stay at that port of call will be brief, the steamer leaving Sunday for Hawaii.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. VanWagenen returned Friday, after three weeks' trip to Porto Rico, with later visits to Philadelphia, Atlantic City and Hartford. While in Hartford they were guests of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. VanWagenen Jr., of 80 Garden street, who motored down to Norwich with them Friday, returning home in the evening.

Members of the Society of Mayflower Descendants have been invited by Col. Jeremiah Wadsworth Branch of the Connecticut society, Sons of the American Revolution to attend the ceremony of presentation to the town of Farmington of a memorial to patriots during the Revolutionary War. Exercises are to be held at 3 p. m., on October 13, followed by the unveiling of the tablet on the village green.

CAMPAIGN TO GAIN MORE MEMBERS FOR CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Forty-two members of the Norwich chamber of commerce responded to the call of their team captains for a meeting which was held in the Wauregan hotel, Friday evening for the purpose of increasing the membership of the chamber. Six teams composed of ten men to a team are calling on a prospect list of nearly 500 citizens to help support an organization whose every effort is an endeavor to promote the reputation, the business, and the prosperity of the home town. Believing that a city worth living in is worth working for, these enthusiastic members of the chamber are putting forth their efforts to help build a stronger civic organization for Norwich. The present membership is composed of three hundred forty-six residents of this community and the present effort is made in order to enlarge the activities of the chamber. Norwich can easily, in comparison with other cities of its size, have a membership of 500, in the opinion of many.

President James L. Case, who is qualified, by reason of his great experience in travelling and realising what other cities are doing in promoting their communities, is directing this effort for increased membership. In a few gracious words Mr. Case introduced Rev. A. H. Abbott, who has served several times as a director of the chamber to the meeting.

Mr. Abbott told his hearers how important to the community is a chamber of commerce. He dwelt particularly upon the affection one has for the community in which one lives and enjoys the friendship of his friends. To prove this affection one must and should work for those things which will promote matters affecting the general welfare of our town. We are all members of the community of Norwich, he said. It is as it were one big family abiding by the same laws, accepting the responsibilities as citizens, and affectionately calling Norwich, Home. It is but natural for one to work for his home. It is just as natural for one to work for the good reputation and the success of the home town. In his characteristic manner Rev. Mr. Abbott spoke of his faith in the work of the chamber of commerce and expressed his gratification at the large number of the members who were willing to put time and effort for membership increase in the chamber.

President Case explained the reasons why Norwich should have a strong and active a chamber as it was possible to create. The teams were instructed as to the methods being used in this effort to increase the membership and reports will be made next Monday evening. Some of the team members could not be present at the meeting, but they will do their share of the work.

The team captains and team members are as follows: H. B. Cary, captain, H. W. Gallup, E. A. Harris, Edwin Hill, H. D. Johnson, H. W. Lanz, J. M. Morton, Alexander Pasnik, N. Eugene Smith, H. C. Adams, W. S. Moon.

H. M. Lerou, captain; E. LaRue Bliven, Dr. H. B. Campbell, F. S. Crowell, S. Goldberg, G. E. Johnson, A. L. Lillibridge, A. Mitchell, E. A. Rich, E. V. Ross, Harold Robbins.

John M. Lee, captain; J. B. Caron, J. A. Cunningham, L. J. Fontaine, C. V. James, Alexander Jordan, W. S. Gilbert, J. W. McKinley, H. F. Parker, H. F. Powers, F. Aubrey, W. S. Williams.

E. O. Rodier, captain; L. M. Crandall, Max Hanover, J. C. Macpherson, C. I. Smith, C. E. Smith, Arnold Smith, W. S. Spencer, Earl Taggart, J. R. Tarrant, Earle Wood.

J. M. Roantree, captain; W. R. Hasted, A. G. Bliven, C. A. Gager, N. A. Gibbs, Louis Gotthelf, E. W. Jewett, Eben Learned, W. C. Pullen, C. A. Spear, C. E. Taylor.

Abner Schwartz, captain; Morris Epstein, Charles Jacobson, David Kerr, T. C. Murphy, W. F. O'Neil, J. K. Panek, C. W. Taggart, F. C. Thumm, J. C. Worth.

CHRIST CHURCH AUXILIARY MEETS WITH MRS. GREENE

The Woman's auxiliary of Christ church, parish met Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Gardiner Greene, with an attendance of about twenty-five. Mrs. Greene, the president, presided and opened the meeting with prayer. The monthly reports of the secretary, Miss Ina M. Ufford and the treasurer, Miss Sue I. Gallup were read and approved. It was voted to accept the model constitution for the parish branch as drawn up by the diocesan organization. Delegations to the diocesan meeting to be held in November were elected and are Mrs. Gardiner Greene and Mrs. C. Montgomry Budlong.

Mrs. William R. Clark of Linden Parkway, read a letter of Acknowledgement for a box sent to Serena Edmo, an Indian girl in the school at Ford Hall, Idaho. The box contained a complete new outfit and was value at $25.

The list of work for the coming year was read and the selection of work for the branch was left to Mrs. William Clark, supply secretary. Notice was given of a rummage sale to be held at Buckingham Memorial.

At the close of the business meeting Mrs. Greene introduced the speaker, Miss Ritchie of Norwich Free Academy faculty, whose home was at Hindman, Kentucky. Miss Ritchie spoke of the Kentucky mountaineers emphasizing the fact that they do not need missionary work for Christianity but do need education and improved living conditions. She read several dialect poems, also sang a number of old ballads brought over from England by the ancestors of these mountain whites as far back as Shakespearean times.

At the conclusion of the meeting tea was served Mrs. Budlong pouring. The usual silver offering toward the work was taken by the treasurer.

GREETING IS GIVEN NEW PHYSICAL DIRECTOR

An enjoyable and enthusiastic supper meeting of the gym leaders and life saving corps was held at the local Y. M. C. A. Friday evening at 6:30, with William C. McKean, the new physical director, the honor guest. A delicious supper was prepared by Miss Margaret Delaney and was greatly enjoyed by the "gymites". General Secretary Edwin Hill acted as toastmaster. Grace was said by Lewis R. Church, after the singing of one verse of America.

After supper, the toastmaster stated that the purpose of the get together was to get acquainted with Mr. McLean and talk over the plans for the physical work for the fall and winter season. He spoke in cordial terms of the former physical director, E. J. Fritz, and urged the same cordial cooperation for the new director that the leaders had given to Mr. Fritz. Mr. McKean was introduced and was heartily applauded; he stated that he was greatly pleased to come into New England and especially to Norwich; he expressed the belief that the gym work this fall would be very successful, having been with the American forces overseas as an officer of the artillery, knew whereof he spoke when he said that the non-commissioner officers were the backbone of the army, and so the volunteer leader of the "Y" gym shoul dand would be the backbone of the association physical department. Mr. McKean stated that he was here for that kind of service that would be of real benefit to the boys and men of Norwich.

DeWitt Parsons, president of the leaders corps and William Wyman, the examiner of the life saving corps, were called upon to speak and they expressed the belief that both of the groups they represented would cooperate to the limit with the new physical director. Lewis R. Church, the assistant secretary, spoke briefly, urging the leaders to really lead in all that was for the best interest of the association. Emery H. Davis, the boys' secretary, in well chosen words urged the leaders to transfer the loyalty that had so splendidly shown to Mr. Fritz to Mr. McKean, he told the fellows that one leader could pull down more than ten could build up, he prophesied the best season yet in the physical department, the prophesy being based upon the enthusiasm already shown by many of the boys and men for the opening of the gymnasium work.

Several others voiced their willingness to "get into the game" and to work hard for the success of the work. The meeting was much enjoyed by all and will doubtless be a factor in starting off the gymnasium next week with fine promise of success.

ANOTHER JAIL SENTENCE FOR RECAPTURED PRISONER

Peter Bilecke, 29, who escaped from the Norwich jail in April, 1924, and was recaptured here Thursday night was given a sentence of 30 days in jail when he was presented in the city court Friday morning. When he escaped he was serving a 40 day sentence for breach of the peace.

FORESTERS HEARS TALKS UPON MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

Continuing the work under the year's activities, the Foresters club entertained the members of Court City of Norwich, No. 63, and invited guests at an oyster chowder with fixings, prepared by Chef Blanchard. The capacity of the rooms was taxed, necessitating a second sitting for serving.

The entertainment committee presented through Chairman Frank Quinby, Grand Chief Ranger Henry A. Congdon, who thanked the members for their attendance and spoke on the intensive membership drive that is now being conducted throughout the state.

Frank Barrett then rendered several songs. Next Thomas Addison spoke interestingly upon the compensation activities and the work that now is laid out before the members.

John J. Mack, the leader of Mack's Merry Men, entertained with songs and humorous stories which were appreciated by the members.

Past Supreme Chief Ranger John F. Cosgrove of Hartford, received a great ovation when introduced and complimented the local members for their excellent work and asked for a continuance of that go-get-'em spirit to put Court City of Norwich over the top in this drive. He spoke of the wonderful work done by other fraternal organizations and mentioned that the Foresters have always met every obligation and told that the present indications point to one of the most successful year in the life of the order. He asked that each officer and member do his part in the upbuilding of the order and entreated the members to support the present executive council. Dr. Cole Kennedy spoke upon the patriotic spirit of the order and explained the motto fully and asked for the hearty cooperation of the members in this section. James Hussey of Hartford congratulated the members upon their spirit and expressed his belief that Court City of Norwich would be heard from in the drive and bring home one or more of the prizes that are being offered by the grand court. Alphonse Fortnine entertained with several pleasing solos.

After thanking the visitors and the members for their presence, Chairman Quinby turned the meeting over to the house committee and an informal entertainment then was carried on until a late hour.

Court City of Norwich, No. 63 is to conduct a class initiation in Olympic hall on Saturday night, Oct. 16, when Court Welch degree team of Waterville will conduct the candidates through the mysteries of the forest. This is the crack team of the state and will no doubt attract a large number of the members.

CENTRAL BAPTIST WOMEN HOLD OPENING BANQUET

A banquet attended by about 150 on Friday evening at 6:30 in Bushnell chapel of the Central Baptist church opened the season for the Woman's League, with enthusiasm. Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt asked the blessing and the Doxology was sung before a delicious chicken pie supper was served by the domestic committee under the direction of Mrs. Henrietta Tefft. The tables were beautifully decorated with Fanning Park dahlias.

A brief devotional service conducted by Mrs. C. C. Glidersleeve preceded th business meeting at which the president, Mrs. George A. Ashbey, spoke of the year ahead and introduced the other officers and department heads to speak of their plans of work. Mrs. David A. Pitt addressed th meeting on the objects which the league should set as its goal.

The address of the evening was given by Miss Margaret Suman who spoke in a particularly interesting way of her personal experiences in missionary work in the Philippines as a representative of the Woman's American Baptist Home Mission society.

A delightful part of the evening programme were soprano solos by Mrs. Roger M. Eldred of Hartford, for whom Mrs. Charles A. Saxton was accompanist. Her selections were Ah, Love, But a Day (Beach), Thank God For a Garden (Del Riego), Oh Let Night Speak of Me (Chadwick) and Values (Vanderpool).

FUNERALS

Henry Harvey Fitch

The funeral services of Henry Harvey Fitch were held at the Long Society Congregational church, Preston, at 7 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends. Rev. Charles H. Ricketts of the Greeneville Congregational church officiated, assisted by Rev. W. D. Hetherington of East Killingly. Burial was in the Preston City cemetery where Rev. Mr. Ricketts read the committal service.

Mr. Fitch was formerly a resident of Preston (Long Society district), but for a number of years had resided in East Killingly. He was 75 years old and was a member of Park Congregational church of this city. He died in Tiverton, R. I., where he had resided but a short time with his sister, Mrs. Anna S. Williston.

NORWICH PASTOR HEADS RELIGIOUS EDUCATION COUNCIL

At the closing session of the annual convention of the New London County Council of Religious Education Friday evening at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church, Rev. J. Harlow Graham, pastor of the church, was elected president of the council for the ensuing 12 months. The evening session, called to order at 7:30 o'clock by Rev. Henry Hurlbert of Groton, was the third meeting of the day. It opened with a devotional period, followed by a demonstration, "Friendly Indians" by the Boys' club of the Wapping Federated church. Then followed a brief but splendidly delivered address on The Place of the Young People in the Church, by Rev. Carl Canty of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion church in Hartford. Rev. Mr. Canty said that there are all kinds of flowers in the garden of humanity, but that after all we are all human and one family. We've got to feel that our work and play are co-ordinated, he said. Christianity is something we can feal, something we all can have a part of. The young people are looking for a friend; someone to take them in charge and lead them on.

REV. J. HARLOW GRAHAM

You'll be surprised at what the young people can do if they are only given a chance, Rev. Mr. Canty concluded his talk by reciting an appropriate poem.

State Secretary Wallace I. Woodin gave the report of the nominating committee as follows:

President, Rev. J. Harlow Graham, Norwich, vice presidents, Edward T. Bunyan, Colchester and Rev. Henry W. Hurlbert of Groton; secretary, Susan Perkallow, New London; treasurer, Charles L. Smith, Norwich.

Department directors—Children's division, Mrs. C. Edward Smith, Norwich; girls' work, Mrs. Dwight C. Howe, Hanover; boys' work, Emory H. Davis, Norwich. Young Peoples' work, Herbert C. Plumb, East Lyme; leadership training, C. E. Spaulding, New London; adult division, W. R. Davenport, Mystic; temperance, Miss Nellie Starr, Uncasville; missions, Miss Helen Eadie, Hanover; week day schools, Rev. C. H. Howe, New London; vacation schools, Miss E. L. Dunbar, Norwich. Members of the executive committee, term ending 1927, Dr. J. H. Weeks, Stonington; Term ending 1928, Rev. J. Harlow Graham, Norwich.

The report was accepted and the officers unanimously elected. Following the usual announcements there was a splendid vio given pageant. The Tea, with the following characters taking part: Rev. E. R. Leach, Lyme, Mass., Rev. C. H. Spaulding, New London, Rev. E. Roy Myers, Westfield, Mass., Rev. Irving W. Armod, Springfield. These boys of the church assisted in the pageant, which brought the convention to a close.

There were 33 schools represented at the convention and the total attendance was 316 delegates representing all sections of the county.

The morning session opened at 10:30 o'clock, Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church offered prayer. Alexander C. Purdy, professor on Bible lands at Hartford Theological seminary, gave Munk's Portrait of Jesus during the Bible period.

Rev. E. R. Leach, pastor of the First Methodist church, Lynn, Mass., was the principal speaker, his topic being Dramatic Methods in Religious Education.

In the afternoon meeting, Prof. Purdy continued the Bible period. There was an address on Paganism by Rev. Mr. Leach, departmental conferences on children's division, young peoples and administration.

RESULTS IN PRESTON PLAINS POTATO DIGGING

About 100 persons attended the digging of the potato seed source tria all the farm of Clinton Dawley, Preston Plains, Friday afternoon at one o'clock. Prof. Owens of Connecticut Agricultural college, Storrs, and County Agent Walter T. Clark explained to those gathered at the farm the nature of the seed trial demonstration and also explained the demonstration on the treatment of seed for scab. The treatment of seed with a common mercury product, Uspulun, reduced the percentage of scab an dalso reduced the yield materially as there were 230 bushels per acre with the dry and 238 bushels of potatoes per acre with the liquid use of Uspulun as compared with 278 bushels per acre from untreated seed.

The treatment by using corrosive sublimate for scab increased the yield three bushels over the untreated seed or 281 bushels.

Following the digging demonstration the picking contest took place. There were two entries in the senior and two in the junior class and the prizes went as follows:

Senior class, resulted in a draw between Percy Drake and Morris Blake, prizes to be divided.

Junior class, first Anna Crouch, 85; second, Evelyn Stillman 82. After this the vines were weighed and calculated. The conditions under which the potatoes were grown were as follows:

Planted May 20, 1926. Merrimac fine sandy loam soil in a high state of fertility. Potatoes were grown in 1922, 1923 clover in 1924, grasses 1925. Plowed last fall. About 1,200 pounds of a 6-8-6 broadcasted and an equal amount in the row distributed by the planter. Well filled. Planted by hand in rows three feet apart. Covered two to three inches. Seed cut by hand as near 2½ two ounce sizes as possible.

	1st grade	2nd grade	Tl.
Dry Uspulun dust treated 2 ozs per bushel	200	18	218
Liquid Uspulun	214	24	238

NEW YORK, Oct. 8—(AP)—Elbert H. Gary, 80 years old today, surveyed a road which he believes to be growing steadily better and more moral, and told some thirty odd members of the press his views on women, prohibition, the 5-day week for laborers, Mussolini, Babe Ruth books, music, and the progress of mankind.

The chief executive of the billion-dollar United States Steel corporation paused in his task of opening hundreds of telegrams and cables of congratulations to chat with newspaper men and listen to the singing of spirituals by the Fiske Jubilee Singers, a group of negroes.

Asked almost immediately about his "rumored retirement" Mr Gary scouted the idea with a shrug. "As far as I know," he said, "The question has not been raised by any of my associates—I shouldn't wonder if after the publication of my full age they wouldn't want to replace me with a younger and better man—but nothing has been said about it."

Henry Ford's suggestion of the 8-hour-day and the five day week received scant consideration from Mr. Gary. "I don't believe in it because it isn't logical," he said. "I know I can't do as much work in five days as I can in six, and I don't think anyone else can."

Replying to another question he reiterated his opposition to unfair domination of labor by labor unions.

"I am not oppose dto labor," he said. "But when labor unions undertake to say when and where a man may and may not work, I consider that it is an economic sin."

Prohibition he approved, saying: "From my own experience and from what I see I believe prohibition is a real benefit. Had I been framing the law I would have excluded light wines and beers."

"How is today's game coming along?" he interrupted the interview to ask at one point. He was embarrassed when reminded that there was no game today.

"I don't suppose there's a man in the room," he mused, "that doesn't admire Babe Ruth."

A NEW RISE OF RIVER FLOODS BEARDSTOWN, ILL.

BEARDSTOWN, Ills. Oct. 8—(AP)—A new rise in the Illinois river deepened tonight the water which has made Beardstown a bedraggled Venice.

The river, which receded yesterday after making an island of the city, went up again today to twenty-five and half feet, only four inches short of Thursday's high mark.

Representatives of the city, meeting with Red Cross and Salvation Army executives voted down proposals for an appeal for aid which the Red Cross offered to sponsor, and voted to raise within the city of Beardstown ample funds to care for the homeless and the hungry.

Flood conditions were slightly worse tonight than twenty-four hours ago, with most homes still heatless, a hundred city blocks under water and uncooked food the fare of the inhabitants. Trains still halted two miles from the city, and boats were the vehicles of commerce to the outskirts of the marooned community.

CHARGED WITH VIOLATION OF THE DENTAL LAWS

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 7.—(AP)—Arthur G. Jones, an assistant dentist in a Chapel street dental office here, is under arrest, charged with violation of the dental laws.

Jones was recently arrested and convicted on similar charges. It was claimed that contrary to the statutes, Jones performed dental operations without a licensed dentist being present to supervise the work.

The arrest, it was said, followed an investigation by operatives retained by the Connecticut State Dental association.

FLURRIES OF SNOW FELL AT TUPPER LAKE, N. Y.

TUPPER LAKE, N. Y., Oct. 8.—(AP)—Flurries of snow fell here today for the first time this season following a sudden drop in temperature last night. Residents recalled that a year ago the Adirondacks were visited by a snow storm that made the roads impassable.

My Treasure Chest

I've gathered up those dearest things
With which I would not part,
And laid them carefully away—
Yest close beside my heart;
Those things on which Time has no
llen,
The things I love the best,
The priceless things more dear than life—
These are my treasure chest.

My confidence in fellow man
And my belief in God;
The heritage of my old home
Deep rooted in the sod;
My rosary of sorrow,
My beatitude of tears;
The glory of my mother's love
Still shining through the years:

The fullness of the summer moon,
The o'erflowing harvest horn,
The whiteness of a winter night,
The flowers of April's morn:
The soul that lurks within a song,
The faith within a child,
The beauty that all nature holds
For one who loves the wild:

Were wisdom never can replace
Illusions fair of youth
And yet these things I've hoarded up
And wrapped about with Truth,
Are recompense for all the days;
They'll stand the final test
Of the fit and the eternal,
Deep within my treasure chest.

STUFFED CABBAGE

Dear Social Corner Sisters: What grand autumn weather we're having! Can't you smell the nuts and ripe grapes these mornings? It seems when I go out in the morning that I could start for the woods and not come back until night. But it's only a dream for me. Because with children to attend to you can't very well do these things. Oh, Well they'll grow up some day then I can go again as in days of yore. (That is if I live until then). I'm pretty healthy now but one never knows the future.

Have you all finished your canning? For myself I have nearly finished. I have to make green tomato mince meat and quince jelly and then I'll store my canning utensils until next year. I have 15 jars in my cellar now of all sorts of things. So if any of you sisters should drop in this winter I'll let you taste some of them.

Eben Shirley: Who are you? Pray make yourself known. As long as you know my brother ask him for my address and come over soon. Because the frost will soon be here and I have some nice flower slips I could give you. When you come over call me up as I have a phone. My brother will give you the number. Hope I see you soon.

Kochie: Congratulations. You're always winning prizes. I see you won some more at Pachaug fair. How's the clam chowder and fritters these days? Hope you'll serve some more this coming winter. I never tasted it personally but have heard of it and better still smelt it as I drove by. I wish you'd invite the Social Corner sisters over some time to taste of your cooking. I'm sure they'd give you a medal.

What's that? You don't know who I am? Well that's funny, just put on your thinking cap. Whatever you do don't let those canaries out of those cages you make because they'd fly over here and tell you who I am. Ha ha!

I wonder if any of you have ever tried "Stuffed Cabbage." I'm sure if you haven't and if you try it you'll find it's delicious. Here's the recipe.

Stuffed Cabbage: 1 cup boiled rice 1 onion, 1 cup cold beef or mutton, 1-2 cup cooked celery, 1-2 cup bread crumbs, salt pepper, 1 medium, sized head cabbage.

Boil cabbage head in salt water 10 min. drain, open outer leaves and remove heart, chop heart very fine, chop onion and fry in butter until a light straw color, mix all ingredients with chopped cabbage heart. Fill cabbage with stuffing, tie in a piece of cheesecloth and stew for an hour in beef broth or salted water. Remove cloth and serve with lemon egg sauce or gravy to which either the juice of a lemon has been added or 1 tablespoon vinegar.

I hope those of you who try this will report

Well, how long I've made my letter! I really only started out to say good morning but when the editor reads this he'll say "Good Night!"

Bye Bye for now.

WAY DOWN IN GEORGIA

Dear Social Corner Friends: Perhaps you would like to hear from a Georgia sister It is my first experience as far south as this. I surely chose a good hot time to come. But home letters tell me you are having unusual heat in Connecticut.

There are few towns smaller than this little one in northwestern Georgia. The pleasant people make up for the lack of entertaining places to go.

There are some beautiful spots to which I have been taken, but there is only one which compares favorably with the beautiful spots in Connecticut. With few exceptions the streams and lakes are discolored from the red soil which one sees everywhere. I try to be as enthusiastic as the rest of the crowd but with doubtful success.

KITTY LOU'S VIEWS

Dear Editor and Members: Here is a new way of drawing a chicken and I find for canning that beats the old way that I was taught years ago.

Of course you could learn much easier if you could see a demonstration, but Miss Ina Lindman gave a new idea through the New England homestead and I think it is a wonderful way. She said, "One might list it with the dainty tasks. The entrails are taken from a slit in the front of the ribs instead through a slit in the usual place. By this method you can draw and cut up a chicken in about 2 minutes." Then by packing the portion that has the neck and upper ribs in the central parts of the can, the cavity between the ribs furnish a sort of funnel through the center of the can allowing the heat to quickly reach the center. This of course is very important in all kinds of canning especially meat.

L. C. G.: Yes E is very busy. He has six teachers started in his line. You know he has the whole of New England territory. Roosevelt said that "A man who was willing to shed his blood for his country is good enough to be given a square deal afterward. More than that no man is entitled to, less than that, no man shall have." But some Norwich parties don't believe in that. This is a city with a set of knockers. Every knock though, proves to be a boost.

To the sister who wrote about gossip. If people would only keep truth on their side you wouldn't mind but when it comes to downright story telling, relating things they know nothing about, simply to run the party down—that is another thing. I certainly get sick of it, but I never think of comparing such people with my darling little coal black kitty with a yellow paper twisted and tied on her neck. She is a darling, we set her table and mind you she won't touch anything but cream. She is so nice we all love her. She never has stolen a single thing since we had her. Bless her little green eyes.

My pen name Kitty Lou was originally a cat's name. Our neighbor had a cat. Her name was Kitty Lou and this same party owned two dogs. Kitty Lou used to get up on the sewing machine and throw down spools of thread for the dogs to play with, and she used to hide her kittens in the coal bin. One of her kittens after it had grown to a full sized cat, ate up about two dozen ears of corn I had put out to dry, but she was such an "ideal" cat, I couldn't get angry with her.

At Devil's Hopyard

Dear Social Corner: It is more than a month since my last letter. I was glad to see last week's page was full and brimming over. And so many nice recipes. I want to try them all. I was disappointed that I could not go to Aunty No. 1's picnic.

Thank you Vesta for bringing plate, fork and spoon for me. Sorry I could not use them.

"I enjoyed "Jack's Wife's" letter. Devil's hopyard seems home to me. I have spent many happy days there. It is not as grand as when there was a dam, and sawmill above, as then the water rushed over the fall, and at the lower fall was like soapsuds. In the hillside across the stream is a hole full of water called the "Devil's kettle, where he made his broth." Very few are able to locate it unless they know the place. You can go back of the upper falls and stand erect and let the water pour over the rock in front of you. There is a lacey moss there that grows nowhere else in Connecticut. There were places where the sun never shines but so much of the dense woods were cut before the state took it. I doubt if that is true now. The wonderful smooth round holes made by small stones washed round and round on the rocks, the mill wheel that shows so plainly in the water at one side, the ruins of the house, burned down and the pine trees make a weird picture.

A short distance away is the little village of Willington, home of many old time fiddlers, one of whom has the prize from the Hartford contest.

Also home of Mr. Mathews who made violins as well as played them.

Ellen, I can not tell you just where to find the quotation in Byron, but I think I can give it to you as when a little girl I learned it to speak the last: day of school. When I told it to the teacher she said, "That's lovely, but I know one the children will like better," and she gave me to learn, "I Love My Kittie, Handsome Cat." But I used to say my own over and thought it much better.

The Byron quotation asked for is:

"Man's love is of man's life a thing apart,
'Tis woman's whole existence. Man may range
The court, camp, church, The vessel and the mart;
Sword, gown, gain, glory, offer in exchange
Pride, Glue, ambition, to fill up his heart—
And few there are whom these cannot exchange.
Men have all these resources. We but one
To love again, and be again undone."

GREETINGS FROM OLGA

Social Corner Sisters: Will try and send in a few lines.

Rather late, but will take this opportunity to thank all who sent me cards on my birthday. I received a whole pile of them. Then the lovely embroidered bag from Red Rose, and the beautiful embroidered burned set from Eca, just matched my wall paper. And the dainty linen handkerchief with lovely tatted edge from Alfara. I consider myself a most fortunate woman to have such fine friends, I pray I may be worthy of them, and assure them their love and kindness are fully appreciated.

We have times I have had at the meetings I have been able to attend—North Stonington, Westerly, Atlantic beach, and The Love Nest.

Wish I were able to write about each one but will have to group them. And say they were each splendid. Aunty No. 1's was the last I attended and we did have a wonderful time. The setting was perfect—lawn, trees and flowers. Then the dinner was so varied and so appetizing and everyone seemed so happy. And then too we had a "Dan" present. I believe that is how they designate a person of importance. He was Dr. Lloyd Case of Honolulu, a most gracious and pleasant, young man, so unassuming and so kindly to all as elderly people, who felt so sort of proud to have him attend our Corner meeting. Hope he can meet with us some time again.

Edison Fan: How pleased I was to meet you. Having enjoyed your good letters your happy smiling face seemed like an old friend. Hope you found hubby all O. K. on your return home.

Lucille Drew: Was much interested in your description of the Congressional library at Washington, D. C. As my mothers own cousin, Walter Shirlow painted the figures in the western corridor.

Joan: You see I have taken you at your word and written again. You sent in a good letter. You say so much in so few words, and say it so well. Wish I had that gift. So you have some Currier and Ives pictures. I never saw one that I know of, but often read about them.

Nema: Write some more about your early days. You make everything so clear. I could almost see the old Indian you wrote about. It certainly was a wonderful thing to have experienced these times and to remember them so well and be able to write about them now.

Sis Hopkins: Am sorry you had that accident. Hope the ankle will soon be well

Betty T: Am in hopes to see you about before long. You have had a long hard time, but am sure you were cheerful through it all. You must be very careful now.

Too Late: What a good time we did have at your picnic. Fear you were awfully tired; you did so much. The chowder and succotash were delicious, as was everything on the well filled table. It means a lot of work to entertain and we all thank you for inviting us.

Elva: Say your picnic was dandy and your garden was an Eden. One would never suspect that lovely place back of your home when riding by. Never would think you were in the city limits when down by the river. How good those two boys were who brought us the cream and soda. And how cool we were and everywhere else it was so hot. It was an ideal place for a picnic.

Whirlwind and Foxglove: You are two good sports; driving so far and helping all to have a good time.

Was so glad to see Priscilla and Olive and their friends. Hope they can come again.

Lonesome Pine and Bachelor Maid: Am sure you had a splendid week end at your old home in Massachusetts. Sorry I could not have been with you.

Eca: Hope you can come to the next meeting. We miss you. Well, must stop now, time to retire. Love and sympathy to the bereaved [redacted] those who are ill.

THAT DISH WASHING DREAD

Dear Cornerites: I think myself of all household tasks, women seem to have the most dread is that of dish washing. "I do not mind the cooking. We often hear them say, "But I simply can't stand to wash the dishes after I get through eating." Like many other ill from which we suffer in this troublesome world of ours, "'Tis thinking makes them so." "Mr. Dooley would probably tell us that Shakespeare never had to wash dishes. Anyhow he didn't say anything about this peculiar form of trouble. But for all that, the getting at it is the hardest part. With proper preparation and plenty of soap and hot water, there is no need of such unholy dread of this familiar duty.

In the first place when you dish the food for the table fill each pot and pan half full with boiling water and let them stand ten or 5 minutes to wash them and if you can't attend to them at that time you can see to them later. In clearing the table after the meal wipe the plates with a soft paper or old newspapers. If you have no drain board use a dish pan and dish drainer, or two dish pans. Make the suds in one having the water as hot as you can bear your hand in and with a mop cleanse them quickly and put them in the other pan to be rinsed. Wash the glasses first and wipe them, then the silver, cups and saucers, plates and vegetable dishes and platters in the order named. When they are on the drain board or in the other pan, pour over them boiling water to rinse off the soap. The hotter the water the easier they are to wipe and the more quickly they will dry. I presume you wouldn't care for my mode of wiping dishes. I wring out my dish cloth first from hot water wipe the dishes on that then use the dish towel where I usually had three dish towels I only have one.

Lastly I take my pots and pans, pour the water out of them and with other cloth and towels kept for them alone, wash scald and wipe and stand them on the stove for a moment to dry thoroughly before putting them away.

Last of all scald the tea towels in clear, hot water in a clean dish pan and hang them in the sun, if possible to dry for the next using. Two workers, one to wash and wipe with the dish cloth the other drying in the dish towel will greatly expedite the dishwashing and if done in this manner, with rigid attention to the heat of the water and cleanliness of dishpans and the tea towels there is no reason why this task should be more disagreeable than making the beds or sweeping the rooms.

A VISIT TO NEW YORK

Social Corner Friends: It's a beautiful morning after the shower of yesterday.

October is here, and we've had no frost yet. Isn't it wonderful! Our garden looks green like summer. Lettuce and radishes are tender and crisp. Celery is growing fine and needs hoeing every few days. Some apple trees we see out-doors were first came here the beginning to bear. One tree is loaded with large yellow apples. I think it must be a winter pippin. Most of the trees have beautiful red apples, some are fall, but the most are winter apples. It's interesting to watch them grow.

I had the pleasure of a short visit to New York recently. It was far too short to visit many of the places I used to know so well. We rode down Riverside drive which hasn't lost any of its charm. It's as beautiful as ever with its wonderful apartment buildings and the unobstructed view of the Hudson. We saw Grant's tomb by moonlight. Morningside drive is a lovely spot and well worth going to see. St. John's cathedral which is on Morningside drive and 12th street is open to visitors every day. When we entered, the great organ was playing so we sat down awhile to listen. At the sides and rear of the organ are several classrooms which form a half-circle. Each room is given in memory of a friend. This great edifice is only half completed and will take years to finish. A trip downtown on the subway and back, and it was thue to star: for home.

Nema: Suppose you are picking red raspberries these days. Ours hang loaded with blossoms, green and ripe berries.

Black Eyed Susie: Was glad to hear from you through a neighbor.

Ann Tenna; I am sending in the poem you are still waiting for, if our editor doesn't think it too long to put into print.

Best wishes to all.

THE LEGEND OF THE FUSCHIA

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: Perhaps some of the readers of the Social Corner page (who do not know it already) would like to know the legend of the fuchsia.

Almost every flower has a legend connected with it. It is said that angels whispered this legend to mortals here below.

When the Saviour was crucified an angel at the foot of the cross prayed that the drops of blood that flowed from the wounds might not be lost, but might take some form of beauty and live in the world to remind people of the blood that had been shed for them. Then the fuchsia sprang up there on Calvary, hanging its head from sorrow, beautiful though without perfume, for its fragrance had all ascended as incense to heaven, but in this lovely flower those drops of blood still live.

Jack's Wife: I certainly enjoyed every word of your letter. It was so much like myself, only I have never been to Devil's hop yard.

Melissa: In answer to your question What is Friendship? I can only say

Friendship is a plant of Heavenly birth
Constant its nature, immense its worth.

Friend is a word of royal tone,
Friend is a poem, all alone.

Cherish friendship in your breast
New is good, but old is best
Make new friends, but keep the old
Those are silver, these are gold.

Dorinda: It did me good to read your true story about the man who loved to kick cats, etc. Didn't he get his pay? It served him right. He won't kick any more wood pussies.

Dorothy Bradford: It takes an hour to cook the onions and peppers. They want to be well done, soft and brittle. I hope you have good luck as I [redacted]

GREETINGS FROM RIDDY

Dear Social Corner Friends: Hello! Everybody!

Have been reading the Bulletin and I do enjoy reading about cats. We have a lovely thoroughbred Angora cat. She gave birth to five babies several weeks ago and my daughter got $5 apiece for them. She is very cute in some things. For instance if she gets out after six o'clock at night she'll not come in until she gets good and ready." And to catch her it is impossible. She loves to roam around in the grass and catch bugs. One night we got a whiff in one window and on looking out doors in our back yard there was our Fluffy playing with two little skunks. Our neighbor stood ready with his rifle to shoot them but he couldn't on account of our cat. No bad results came of it. She came in around midnight. She is lovely and just as gentle as can be. I say be kind to cats.

Melissa: I believe with you in regard to true friendship. I have had friends in my life whom I thought I could trust but today I say as you do. If you are going to be a friend at all, why not be a friends at all times.

I have been hurt deeply through friends whom I thought were treating me as I thought friendly, but I try to speak a good word for all. My motto is the Golden Rule.

Sis Hopkins: Didn't know you were sick until I read the Corner page. Hope you are feeling better ere this.

Joan: Glad you enjoyed the poem, also the picnic.

We are very busy, Fairy and I. We have eight table boarders from the normal school. We enjoy our work and with the baking and washing of dishes with the other housework we are kept very busy I can tell you. That is the reason I could not be at the picnic. I shall be unable to attend any of them I am afraid.

L. J. B.: Your morning prayer is all right. If we all would keep that prayer with us how much better the world would be.

Jack's Wife: I join in with you by saying the Devil's hopyard is beautiful: Did you see the devils footprint at the top of the natural faces?

A man by the name or Dibble lived there and raised hops to sell. He was nicknamed devil. I do not know why but the place has always been called the devil's hopyard.

Wouldn't it be lovely if the state would take it over and make a nice road through there and someone put up a tea room?

Trottie: Where art thou?

I join in with you by saying we have good times at Aunty No. 1.

Dorinda: You said it when you tell the sisters they ought to go through Lavender's cottage on the campground. I have stayed over night with her in this beautiful home of hers. I had a special invition to spend the day with her three weeks since on her birthday. Her daughter invited me over and, say sisters, I got there before she was downstairs, almost before she had her peepers open. We certainly had a glorious time.

Lavender is one of my closest friends. I believe she is one who will show herself friendly. She always has to me. I certainly enjoy her company.

I think adhesive tape is splendid to mark your dishes with. I do mine. It is splendid even for mending a split in a linoleum rug. Put it on the wrong side of the rug after drawing the edges together nicely.

Grace: How do you feel after the wedding? I have thought of you a number of times. Your school teacher that boards there says she doesn't know what she'd do without you.

Guess I'll clop my wings and go to roost. Cut-cut-cut-cut-ca-da-cut.

SHORE LINE CLUB MEETS OCT. 19

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I too had a wonderful trip up Mt. Tom and then on over the Mohawk trail and back via Jacob's Ladder. We ate our suppers at a beautiful lake at Lenox, Mass., and had a wonderful trip covering 310 miles in one day.

Would it interest any one who does not know it who has large geraniums that are too large to pot that they can hang them up dry by the roots in a sunny place in the cellar and in the spring soak in plenty of water for one week and plant in ground and you will be surprised how quickly they will grow and bloom and can easily be slipped for fall.

I also had some extra cooking apples on hand and wanted to save them until later. I peeled them and cut in small pieces, sterilized my jars, filled same with apples, poured boiling water over them and sealed. When needed one can use for pies or whatever way wanted.

The Shore Line club will meet in the North Stonington Grange hall on Tuesday, Oct. 19 and all Social Corner members and any who care to join will be welcome. Am looking forward to a large gathering as the hall is large with plenty of room to park and it is near the bus line. We will have our yellow ribbons out as usual.

Please bring your own dishes and something good to eat.

CATS AND DOGS

Dear Social Cornerites: Many thanks to the sisters who sent in the poem I requested. Am asking for the words of another poem to the Sun, beginning Oh thou, who rollest above, round as the shield of my fathers.

Am glad to note so many are interested in the kind treatment of animals. We have a three-colored cat called Mrs. Fagan who, when lately robbed of her infant kitten went to a farm 1-4 mile away and brought a kitten here belonging to our neighbor's cat. She managed to bring the kitten on the morning of my husband's birthday and laged it at his feet. Now will you say dumb animals cannot reason? She selected a blond one too knowing that "Gentlemen prefer blonds (maybe.)

And dogs! Oh boy! How I love them! I have one small dog that has never missed (but once) sleeping on the foot of my bed in ten years. She is part black and tan. We have a collie which likes to roam the woods with my husband and is skillful at killing snakes and will amuse herself by the hour watching the frogs hop hither and thither on the brook side. Still another dog is a hound which nobody wanted so she is my barn dog watching the cattle.

Joan: Am glad to note you read the red time stories, like myself. Am sending a poem you will like.

Kind wishes to all from

FINE VISIT IN CONNECTICUT

Dear Social Corner Friends: It is such a wonderful morning. I feel just like writing and telling you what a wonderful time I had on my trip in Connecticut.

I want to thank you all for the excellent time I had at Aunty No, 1's picnic. To be sure there were many I expected to see but did not. I met many I used to know in days gone by.

Mayfaire I had not met before since she was a little girl away back in 1879. Was sure pleased to meet her again. I shall always remember the 15th of September, 1926. I visited with our dear Calla Lily, also Hope on her birthday an afternoon well spent.

Hope: May all your birthdays be just as bright as the last.

I had not met her since 1908 and now her children that were are grown to young ladies. My slips are doing fine.

Calla Lily: I was disappointed in not seeing you also Ready C. E. and many others at the picnic. Every minute of my visit was enjoyable and long to be remembered.

Kochie did his share towards making my visit very pleasant.

Joan: Well I did have a dandy time with you and son. Learned to do chair bottoms. I just love art craft.

Kochie's mother is fine. Don't miss a chance to meet her if you ever get a chance. Sorry I could not find time to visit her longer but had a glorious visit with her as it was.

Went to New Haven for a visit with my son. I enjoy motoring and I was on the go most of the time while there, taking in sales, trollying in evening, went to West rock, visited many places of interest and oh what a wonderful view. Could have camped there had I the time. Visited East rock to see the rose gardens and the zoo. So much to see in so short a time! It was all glorious, indeed it was.

I have had company ever since I arrived home and am expecting more tomorrow.

A very dark gloom has fallen over Gray as one of our prominent physicians was killed by the Lewiston interurban trolley at South Gray Saturday afternoon. He was only 49 years old.

Thermometer says 60 above today, and the forests are putting on their dress of red and gold.

Not long ago 63 of our 65 wild ducks came to our landing to be fed. They do enjoy a hand out so much.

Kochie: Mr. B. T. wanted to know when you are coming up to see us.

Only wish the Granges have as nice weather next month for we have not had a killing frost as yet. Flower gardens just as bright as ever, but crops short on account of drought. Where we had seven bushels of potatoes last year we are only getting four this year.

Grandma Gray: Hear you have one of our Gray school teachers boarding with you—a very fine girl. Trust she isn't as lonely as she was. Why don't you get her to join the Social Corner? There is always room for one more.

Many, many thanks to all for kindnesses shown me.

RELISH AND CATSUP BY TAFTS

Dear Editor and Social Corner: Am sending in some recipes.

Tomato Relish: 30 ripe tomatoes, scalded and peeled, 12 sour apples, pared and quartered, 10 onions peeled and 6 green peppers, seed removed. Put all through chopper and to every 4 quarts of liquid add 1 quart of cider vinegar and sugar to taste. Boil until thick as you like, bottle hot. Two tablespoons salt added to above mixture.

Grape Catsup: Wash 5 pounds grapes cover with water, cook until soft, put through sieve. Add to juice 2 pints of vinegar. Add salt, cinnamon and cloves, to taste, little mace and half teaspoon red pepper. Boil slowly until thick.

Tomato Catsup: To 1-3 gallon tomato juice, which has been strained, add 1 tablespoon salt, 1-2 tablespoon of whole spices each. (Put these in a bag so to remove them later) 1-2 teaspoon red pepper, 1 cup sugar, 1 pint vinegar.

Boil until thick as desired, seal hot.

Tomato Preserved (yellow plum): 1 peck yellow plum tomatoes washed, add 3 pounds brown sugar, 1 pound seeded raisins, 2 sliced lemons. Boil sugar, lemons and raisins with about 4 quarts of water until lemons are most done. Then add tomatoes. Boil very slowly. Can while hot. The strawberry tomato can be preserved the same way.

CLUB NO. 2's SEASON OPENS

Dear Corner Sisters: The first fall meeting of Club No. 2 opened in Odd Fellow's hall Oct. 2 and by the good number of sisters and visitors attended it appeared as though everybody was glad to meet again and renew chats and ideas.

Most everybody had some kind of fancy work they were busy on. The dinner was fine, plenty and to spare of everything in food.

Scottie and her assistants had every body in good spirits by their smoothness in serving dinner. The program was carried out nicely under Mayfaire's direction with music by Joan and Black-eyed Susie as well as a recitation by the Member.

Aunty No. 1, I. J. B., Mittie: Sorry you were sick or had sick ones that kept you home. Hope to see you all in Nov. 3, with more visitors and new members.

Lo: Where are you and your mother Corner days?

Whirlwind: Are you going to New Britain Oct. 16-19 to P. S. convention? I am thinking strongly of it, am one of the delegates.

Onondagne 1902: Thanks for the money you sent to club. You are very kind and thoughtful. Am going to answer your letter soon.

Now the fall is here wish the old members would find their pens and come to the front. It would seem like old home week to read their letters.

K. the Unknown: Where are you? You seem to be a mystery but I've kept my promise not tell.

Grace: See you have an in-law in your family. Wish them lots of luck for me.

Best wishes to all.

CALLA LILY.

TURPENTINE IN THE HOUSE

Dear Social Corner Friends: It surely has been ages since I've written to the Corner, and wouldn't be surprised to the good editor had erased my name from the Corner list. I enjoy reading all letters but I haven't attended a picnic or a club meeting in years.

Crimson Rambler: How are you? Remember the good times we used to have at Aunt Abby's?

Catnip; Have thought of you so many times. How are you, and do you drive it? If so, come up and see me and we will talk over old times.

Turpentine is a sure preventive against moths. By dropping a trifle in drawers, trunks and cupboards it will render the garments secure from injury during the summer months. It will also keep ants from closets and storerooms if a few drops are put in the corners and upon shelves. It is sure destruction to all sorts of vermin, and will drive them away from the various articles of furniture. It does not injure either furniture or clothing. One tablespoon added to a bucket of warmed water is excellent for cleaning painted woodwork.

Best wishes to all.

KITTY CLOVER.

QUILT 100 YEARS OLD

Dear Social Corner Editor: Please make a correction in my letter of last week. The bedquilt which I mentioned is over a 100 years old and not ten.

Ten years old wouldn't make it much of a curiosity, and every one might think I had escaped from Brewster's Neck. Well, I don't live far from there.

I have been wondering if it would be permissible for members of the Social Corner to call at the meetings in the afternoon if they paid the fee and ate their dinner at home.

I never could get my morning's work done and leave home at eight o'clock, and couldn't get a bus again until after dinner. Have heard the meetings are very enjoyable.

SILENT PARTNER.

IT'S A LONG LONG TIME

Dear Friends and Sisters of the Social Corner: It's a very long time since I have been with you and have greatly missed the good times that I used to enjoy so much, meeting old friends and making new acquaintances. My household duties, canning and company have taken up my time to the extent that I have been too tired for social intercourse of any kind. I finally broke down like an old "tin lizzie" about a month ago and was such a total wreck that I expected to be 'junked' any day. But my husband decided that with a few repairs, I would be able to get around on my own power for a while yet, but I have to get around on "low gear" and avoid hills for a while. I am going to try so hard to go to our Social Corner gathering next Wednesday even if it's only for a short while.

I want to thank one who signs herself "One of the Committee" for her notice of my illness in last Saturday's issue, also for the letters and cards. I would thank them personally if I had known other than their pen names, but I thank them all for their kind remembrance.

Conawah: Thanks for delivering my message.

Hope Cobweb: So sorry I could not entertain you better the day you called but better luck next time.

Melissa: In answer to your query of what constitutes a friend my answer is this.

A friend is one who is not afraid to tell you the truth about yourself, life for you if necessary, and stand by you in time of trouble.

Try this way of baking apples. Cut in half, stem and cut out seeds. Fill hole with sugar and a pinch of cinnamon. Do this until your baking dish is full then put dots of butter on last layer, half cup of water in bottom of dish and cover. Bake one hour, and serve with cream or powdered sugar. Best wishes to all the Corner and a speedy recovery to the sick.

Sis HOPKINS.

LATCH STRINGS, APPLE PIES, FRIENDSHIP

Dear Friends of the Social Corner: I have often wondered why people care so much for old fashion things and ideas such as the high post bedstead with its curtains hanging all around to keep out mosquitoes or the other unwelcome intruders. But when it comes to the latch string I take off my hat to the genius who invented that. I have never seen one but I have read about them and in Jennie's letter I see I have the right idea of one.

A latchstring as used in olden times was so simple and yet so all sufficient for the necessity requiring it. It was used night and day. Truly necessity is the mother of invention. I have a friend not far fro mthe Morton house on the Shore Line road and I think near the house also, that Jennie writes about that was built in 1660. If it is the right one I will ask my friend to take us around the dear old house of 266 years and show us the latch string that is still at the back door.

Silent Partner; I tried your way of making a one crust apple pie as given in your Social Corner letter of Oct. 2nd and had splendid success. Thank you for it. I took the precaution as given in Joan's letter of stewing the apples first as they were very hard winter apples. After turning the plate over and dropping a few bits of butter over it I frosted it. My family would not believe it was an apple pie or my making. None of it was wasted and I feel encouraged to try it again.

I mean to try Oriole's drop cakes for as she writes they are much easier and quicker than cookies.

Melissa: You have made real friendship so true and deep and fine in your conception of it that I cannot add or detract one jine to make more clear what I think of it.

There is nothing finer in life than real friendship as you describe it and it is a rare blessing to have such friends for they are few and far between. Why we do not have more faithful friends who know us beyond a doubt and will stand by us, I do not know, for as a general thing we are not a great mystery to ourselves or to others who know us so well we call them friends. Those who want real friends are pretty apt to be that kind themselves. To such real friendship is not money or what money brings but an honest conscience that is so steady it is bomb proof against any sudden assault by adversity or opinions that may suddenly arise like a storm out of a clear blue sky. We know the blue sky is there and will be there when the storm has passed away from our vicinity to trouble some other unfortunate over whose path the same kind of storm may rage until it again passes on for new quarters.

The sweetest cordial we receive at last,
Is conscience of our virtuous actions past.

—Denham.

Best wishes to all from

FRIENDSHIP

Dear Social Corner Members: I saw in last week's letter by Melissa about friendship. I have this to say about it. How hard it is to find a friend on whom we always can depend; sometimes we think a friend is got, till trials prove we have him not. Many to serve some selfish ends, declare and vow they are your friends, but soon as serving self is o'er behold they are your friends no more. Others will act a part more base, always be friendly to you face. You turn your back, and they your name expose to obloquy and shame. Apparent friendship others show, to find out all you may know your secrets thus are pumped out and then are handed all about those who of others tell you much, my counsel is beware of such. Something to tell of all they know as freely they will speak of you. A faithful friend I highly prize a treacherous one I do dispise, all in suspense I ask around where can a real friend be found. Where'er disposed a friend to trust be always sure to prove him first and when he's tried then treat him kind, a faithful friend is hard to find.

A sure cure for scandal: Take of good nature one ounce, of an herb called by the Indians, mind-your-own-business, one ounce, mix these with a little charity for failings and two or three sprigs of keep-your-tongue-between-your-teeth. Simmer them together in a vessel called circumspection for a short time and it will be ready for us. Now I will stop. My best wishes to all.

WONDERFUL TIME AT TOO LATE'S

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I must write a few lines about the last picnic, which was held at the home of Sister Too Late. The weather man did not seem favorably inclined but for all that, there were quite a few there and all had a splendid time, including the youngest, who was only four weeks old. Of the oldest I don't dare give the age. The hostess and helpers were busy during the morning, preparing the most bountiful dinner, which was served at 12 o'clock sharp. The tables were decorated with yellow crepe paper and yellow flowers, the Corner color and all very pretty. We had for dinner, chicken stew, succotash, corn on cob, sliced tomatoes, sliced cucumbers, pie, cheese and fruit, which certainly was enjoyed by all. Now wasn't that lovely of "Too Late and helpers? We spent a pleasant afternoon and started for home in due season. We missed you Whirlwind and Foxglove.

I also have been interested in the letters telling about cats. I will never forget the time the whole family was gone from home for a few days. Our neighbor said she would feed the cats by putting food on the back door step. Well the youngest one got her milk every day, but the older one must have been a bit shy, as she wouldn't go near the place, so the day I came home she met me on the way and honest, I never saw a cat so tickled to see any one as that one was to see me. She was at my heels for days after.

Then we had another cat. It was in the autumn and she must have got her foot caught in a trap. It was quite a bad hurt so I doctored it nicely and she certainly appreciated what I did for her, as that winter she would not go into the sitting room until after I had the supper dishes washed and was ready to go in. Then she would come in with me. My John coaxed and coaxed trying to get her to come in without me but it would not work. The next winter she forgot all about it. We are never without two as they certainly keep the mice and rats away.

Irva Lynn: It is a long while since we have had one of those nice letters from you. Are you too busy? Do write soon.

Double Fuschia: How have you been this summer?

Best wishes for Corner.

MARIGOLD.

CLUB NO. 5'S MEETING

Dear Editor of the Social Corner: I was both surprised and pleased to receive your check on my return from Club No. 5's meeting this afternoon. I thank you most heartily for it

Even though it rained a goodly number of people gathered at the Buckingham memorial and we had a very enjoyable time.

Elva the hostess and her associates led the march with the old soldiers to their places of honor at the table. After the bountiful dinner, Commander Price told us very interestingly of his western trip to Des Moines.

When the tables had been cleared, several readings and songs made an interesting program.

After singing God Be With You Till We Meet Again and America all wended their various ways hoping to mee again in November.

GREETINGS AND RECIPES FROM MAJESTIC

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Summer is about over, the fall winds will soon be blowing and the leaves will be putting on their dresses of red and gold. What an awful thing the disaster in Florida must have been.

Rhody Louise: Write a letter to the Corner some time. Glad that you are feeling better.

Kitty Lou: I like your letters very much.

Ann Tenna: Glad you like the old songs. I like them myself.

Here are some good recipes:

Figs in Honey: Soak half a pound of washed whole figs until they are soft; then stew them in a cup of honey and a cup of water until they are tender. They may be served hot with a little of the juice or they may be cooled and served with cream.

Pineapple with Nut Salad: 1 1-2 cups pineapple, 1-3 cup preserved ginger, 1 tablespoon chopped pecan, 1 tablespoon grated coconut, whipped cream.

Mix the pineapple, ginger, grated coconut and pecans with enough ginger syrup to moisten. Place in small dessert dishes, and put whipped cream on top.

Meat Spinach Pudding: 2 pounds of spinach, 1 cup cooked meat, 1-4 cup butter, 2 eggs, 1 cup milk 2 tablespoons flour

Boil the spinach in as little water as possible then add butter, milk and flour and mix thoroughly with the chopped cooked meat and beaten eggs.

IN DAYS OF OUR FOREFATHERS

Women Prepared Their Own Medicines

The wise pioneer women learned to gather, in woods and fields, the remedies the Indians used. From the rafters of colonial houses, hung great bunches of dried roots and herbs. From these, in times of sickness, the busy mother brewed simple and powerful remedies.

From roots and herbs, Lydia E. Pinkham, a descendant of these sturdy pioneers, made her Vegetable Compound. The beneficial effects of this dependable medicine are vouched for by hundreds of women who tell of returning health and energy.

Mrs. Wm. Kraft of 2838 Vinewood Ave., Detroit, Mich., saw a Pinkham advertisement in the "News" one day and made up her mind that she would give the Compound a trial. At that time she was very weak. "After the first bottle," she writes, "I began to feel better and like a new woman after taking six bottles. I recommend it to others and always keep a bottle in the house."

If Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped other women, why shouldn't it help you?

STAR BACON

LOCAL BASEBALL TO CLOSE SEASON WITH GAMES TODAY AND SUNDAY

Baseball will make its final bow to the public this week end when two contests will be played. Joe Faber's All-Star club figuring in both of the contests. This afternoon at Taftville Faber's club will cross bats with the Taftville A. A. in what will probably be the last game of the season for Taftville. On Sunday Riverview will probably wind up its 1926 baseball season against the Stars.

Faber's Stars have established something of a record when in the first appearance of the season last Sunday against the Moosup club downed that team very decisively. Joe Faber, himself is one of the leading baseball attractions in Eastern Connecticut and the real ball fans have followed Joe's career with interest during the past season. Faber was with the York, Pa., club which finished second in the New York-Pennsylvania league. He led his club in batting and led the league in the number of hits, 168, and also poled out the largest number of two-ply wallops in the league, 31 in number.

For the game today Faber has a club that gives promise of being able to throw a scare into the Taftville club. For pitching material he will have Tony West or Johnny Tillman to do the hurling and also claims that he has Letty Dugas on his roster. Bill Liberty will do the catching while the remainder of the outfield will include Robertson at first base, Hamil at second base, Cimikoski at third and Joe at short. In the outfield will be Pete Raille in left, Leo Jarvis in centerfield and Spike Liberty or Gilbert in the right garden.

Manager Jimmy Troland will also put a strong lineup in the field, being composed largely the Riverview club. Troland also claims to have Letty Dugas for mound duty along with Hughie Canavan. Eccleston will do the catching while Eddie Murphy of the U. B. Martin team will be at first. Dinty Moore will play second with Monk Normandin at short and Ray Verrington on third. In the outfield will be Clabby in left, Lloyd Jarvis in center and Letty Dona in right.

There will be radio returns of the game at the field.

Sunday's game

Paul Zemke, who has so successfully managed the Riverview club during the season has relinquished the managerial duties and Tony West has been installed as manager. West has taken up the management of the club and will direct the club in Sunday's game. Either West or Dugas will pitch against the Stars while it is almost certain that Tillman will be Faber's choice for the mound work. Tillman can pitch both Saturday's game and the game Sunday without much difficulty as he did it early in the season.

West will have Joe Belair doing the receiving while Joe Hamil will be at the first bag. Cimikoski will be given the second base assignment with Normandin at Short and Nap Liberty at third, in the outfield will be Clabby, Dugas, Moore and Hart.

Faber's team will be somewhat changed from the lineup he will use on Saturday. Bill Liberty will catch, Tillman will pitch and Lloyd Jarvis will play first base. At second will be Eddie Burns while Faber will play short and Wojack will take care of third base.

In the outfield Faber has plenty of material in Carl Krause, Leo Jarvis, Pete Raille, Spike Liberty and Joe Gilbert. The game is scheduled for 2.30 o'clock and arrangements have been made to have a radio at the field for the world series game if there is a seventh game in the series.

PENNOCK AND O'FARRELL LEAD RESPECTIVE CLUB

NEW YORK, Oct. 8—(AP)—The brilliant world's series performances of Herb Pennock, Yankee southpaw, and Bob O'Farrell, Cardinal backstop, have emphasized the likelihood of their being officially recognized as the "most valuable players" of their respective leagues for 1926.

Pennock has capped his consistent work throughout the pennant season by registering two fine victories over the Cardinals, giving him a record of four triumphs altogether in world's series play without a defeat marked against him.

Pennock won 22 games and lost 11, leading the Yankee curving corps and ranking second in the American league pitching list to George Uhle, the Cleveland star, who won 27 and lost 11. Experts figure Uhle and George Burns, Indian first baseman, as Pennock's only outstanding rivals for the American league player award.

O'Farrell, a tower of strength all season to the Cardinals, has been a sensation in the series so far. His defensive play and handling of pitchers had stood out while he leads both clubs at bat with a mark of .437 for five games. O'Farrell caught all but nine of the Cardinals games in the pennant campaign and was declared by Hornsby to be the club's most valuable performer.

The National and American league most valuable player awards both will be decided shortly by committees of newspapermen representing the major league cities. Last year the American league made its decision before the world's series, handling the palm to Roger Peckinpaugh, Washington shortstop, whose play fell off sadly in the championship games with Pittsburgh.

The National league's award carries with it a cash prize of $1,000 but the American league confers only the honor and a diploma.

This is the fifth year of the American league award and third for the National league. Previous winners were: 1922, George Sisler, of the St. Louis Browns; 1923, Babe Ruth of the Yankees; 1924, Walter Johnson of the Senators and Dazzy Vance of Brooklyn; 1925, Roger Peckinpaugh of the Senators and Rogers Hornsby of the Cardinals.

WINDHAM BEATS WESTERLY BY A LONE TOUCHDOWN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 8—Taking quick advantage of an apparent misunderstanding of signals, on the part of Westerly High, which led a forward pass astray, Windham's eleven copped the pigskin for a touchdown and a successful placement kick when the encounter of the two teams held on Recreation park here Friday afternoon was yet but a few minutes young. Displaying good field generalship which put Windham a favorite on downs in the first half, the locals managed to keep Westerly from scoring. Westerly threatened the Windham line in the final quarter and was bidding fair to narrow the margin, but lost the ball to Windham. Opening with a rush the large crowd of spectators howled when Heller, the local right guard, muckled the ball. Subsequent runs by Haggerty and Rood sent Windham gamboling to the Westerly goal. Ahern went through for the touchdown and Wojick kicked the goal. The visitors displayed a favorite line-buck which was used for considerable gain during the game, Haggerty was lost to the locals through injuries in the first half. The lineups:

Windham		Westerly
Saba	right end	D. Meikle
Capt. Buck	right tackle	Macfarlane
M. Heller	right guard	Flore
Garrigus	center	DeRocco
Wojick	left guard	Mark
Dawson	left tackle	Hogan
Connor	left end	Edmond
Ahern	quarterback	R. Meikle
Wilkinson	fullback	Salimene
Rood	right halfback	Capt. Turco
Haggerty	left halfback	Smith

Score:

Windham	7	0	0	0	—7

Referee, R. J. Guyer, C. A. C. Umpire, Scoville, C. A. C. Linesman, Dorsey, C. A. C. Time, four 15-minute quarters. Substitutions: Windham: Prater and Storrs; Westerly, Leonetti and Spellman.

MUCH INTEREST IN BIG TEN FOOTBALL TODAY

CHICAGO, Oct. 8—(AP)—Big Ten championship conflicts were a week away tonight, but several of tomorrow's games in the middlewest have created enthusiasm usually merited only by late season conflicts.

Outstanding was Norte Dame's invasion of Minnesota bringing together two elevens well grounded in open play. Notre Dame is not a member of the Big Ten.

Chicago, which last week defeated Florida, will meet another intersectional foe in Maryland, the heaviest team which ever invaded Stagg field.

Wisconsin, which gave promise last week of becoming a powerful factor in the Big Ten championship calculations, will play the University of Kansas of the Missouri valley conference, at Madison.

Michigan, 1925 Big Ten champion, engages Michigan State college at Ann Arbor. Northwestern, which also gave evidences of power last week in running roughshod over South Dakota, will have another "warm up" opponent tomorrow in Carleton college.

Illinois will meet Butler, Iowa will engage North Dakota;; Purdue, defeated last week, will play Wabash; Ohio State will be host to Ohio Wesleyan, and Indiana will play the University of Kentucky at Bloomington.

RED GRANGE AND TRYON AT CLARKIN FIELD SUNDAY

Red Grange and Eddie Tryon, are the star backs of the New York Yankees, who play the All-New Britain professional eleven at Clark Field, Hartford, Sunday, are not the only brilliants of the Yankee team.

In fact, Grange and Tryon are but two gems in a rare setting. The Yankee lineup boasts more than a dozen players who have been outstanding college stars over a period of the last three years.

The coach Ralph V. Scott, who also plays is a former Wisconsin player and was selected by Walter Camp for his All-American. Scott was with the Chicago Bears the past three seasons. He is a giant standing 6 ft. 2 1-2 in and weighing 234.

Others are Harold W. Griffin, captain of the University of Iowa last year, who plays a tackle; Larry Hayes, Indiana university halfback in 1923, 24 and 25; Roy Baker, former University of Southern California and star last year in the game in which Los Angeles played Red Grange's team; Pooley Hubert, from the University of Alabama and all-Southern Conference fullback in 1924; Paul Minick, guard from Iowa university; August Michaiske, former Penn State guard and fullback; Francis J. Kearney, former Cornell tackle; Bob Hall, Illinois tackle; Lowell Otto from Iowa; Wesley Fry, former University of Iowa fullback and sensational line plunger; Gerald S. Mahoney, ex-Dartmouth right end and assistant coach at both Dartmouth and Norwich; George G. Pease, former Columbia freshman quarterback; Schmeitch, four years Columbia center; and Paul Goebel, one of the team's best players, who won Lawrence Perry All-American nomination and who last year was picked by President Carr for the National Professional football league as one of the all-National league team.

It is expected that the greatest crowd in the history of the state pro football will greet "Red" Grange and his warriors; provisions will be made to seat 12,000.

The game will be called at 2.30.

GLENNA WINS OVER HER FORMER CONQUEROR

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 8—(AP)—Glenna Collett, who lost the women's national golf championship last week, bagged another trophy today in lieu of the championship cup, at the same time squaring accounts with Virginia Wilson, Chicago, who dethroned her in the title tournament.

Playing a remarkable brand of golf, Miss Collett defeated Miss Wilson, 5 and 4 to play, in the final round of the annual tournament for the Berthellyn cup at the Huntingdon Valley Country club.

Miss Collett was in fine form. From the first hole until the fourteenth, where the match ended, she was in command of the situation.

The former champion made three pars to gain a 2 up lead at the start. Dubbing a brassie on the fourth, she lost the hole, but took three of the next four to make the turn, 3 up. She was out in 39, only three strokes above men's par, playing boldly for the pin, from the fairways and putting past the cups whenever she couldn't hole out.

A remarkable approach putt coupled with Miss Wilson's miss of a four-footer clinched Miss Collett's victory. The cards:

Miss Collett out 4 4 5 6 3 5 3 5 4—39
Miss Wilson, out 5 5 5 5 5 5 5 4 4—42
Miss Collett, in 5 5 6 5 3.
Miss Wilson, in 6 3 7 5 4

YALE ALL READY FOR TOUGH BATTLE WITH GEORGIA

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 8—(AP)—Changes were made in the Yale varsity line-up today during the final signal drill before the football battle with Georgia tomorrow.

Charlesworth, one of the guards on last year's freshman team, was moved to right guard on the varsity. Webster as first choice for that position is out of the game with a pulled tendon. Dick Wortham, who won his letter at guard two years ago, had been playing at the right guard post, but he also is out of the game with injuries. Noble, Foote and Wadsworth were in the back field today, but if Klin's ankle is in good shape, he will be in at right halfback in place of Wadsworth.

The Georgia team arrived here at noon and had a long secret signal drill in the bowl this afternoon.

EDDIE DOOLEY, DARTMOUTH QUARTERBACK IS MARRIED

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 8—(AP)—Edward Dooley, Dartmouth quarterback, pulled a surprise play yesterday, when he quietly slipped over to Norwich, Vt., and married Miss Harietta Marie Freely of Rutherford, N. J., it was learned today. The ceremony was performed by J. F. Johnson, a justice of the peace.

Dooley, whose home is in New York city, attracted some notice about a year ago when he showed that in addition to being a star all-around athlete, he was a poet. The poem which proved this claim to fame was inspired by the now Mrs. Dooley.

College mates were of the opinion today that "Eddie" would be on hand for the Virginia Polytech game here tomorrow.

Danbury Track Record Lowered

DANBURY, Oct. 8—(AP)—Three horse races today completed the racing card for the week at the Danbury fair. Automobile racing will be on the program tomorrow.

In the 2:08 pace today, Major Frisco, owned by H. N. Stanford, of Oneonta, N. Y., lowered the Danbury track record, covering the distance in 2:09. The previous record time was 2.08 1-4.

ALEXANDER AND SHAWKEY PICKED AS PITCHERS IN SIXTH SERIES GAME TODAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 8—(AP)—The record-breaking battle of the east and west for the 1926 world's baseball championship again in New York, finds the Yankees holding the whip-hand over the Cardinals.

The Yankees taking two out of three games from the Cardinals in St. Louis, gave the invaders a 3-2 lead and primed them to clinch the series, with its major share of gold and glory, in the sixth game tomorrow. It also made the Cardinals fighting-mad, a group determined to make it a battle to the finish.

Grover Cleveland Alexander, the 39-year old veteran who checked the Yankees last Sunday, will take the firing line for the National league champions tomorrow at the Yankee stadium, rested and determined to make his come-back complete with another victory. It seems likely that he will be opposed by Bob Shawkey, seasoned right-hander of the Yankee brigade.

Alexander and Shawkey both formerly wore Philadelphia uniforms and both came to the clubs they now represent by the waiver route, generally regarded as a step on the downward path. "Aleck" came to the Cards late in the season as a Cub discard while "Bob the Gob" became Yankee property a decade or so ago for a small price. Yet tomorrow, these two old-timers as baseball men go, will carry the main burden with a world's championship and some $50,000 at stake, the difference between the winner's and loser's end end of the player pool. It may be that Shawkey will yield the preference to Urban Shocker of spitball fame but the latter already has been beaten and "Bob the Gob" is understood to have first call.

The Yankees staged a triumphant return today from the scene of their western conquests. It was mild by comparison with the frenzied outburst that greeted the Cardinals in St. Louis but it was nevertheless enthusiastic for a city that has a habit of taking its champions calmly. There was a wildly cheering jam of 5,000 fans in and around Grand Central terminal when the Yankee special rolled in at 6.10 p. m.

The Cardinals, traveling over the Pennsylvania on a special train, beat the Yankees home by nearly three hours, arriving at 3.20 p. m. and completing their trip in the record breaking time of 21 hours, 19 minutes.

All along their separate routes, crowds gathered at the stations to cheer the players. They yelled for Babe Ruth wherever the Yankee special stopped but except at Manitoon, Ill., where he stepped out on a platform to greet the crowd, the fans yelled in vain.

At Grand Central, however, the Rambino towered above the group that was bungled from the train and New York acclaimed as her own once more the slugger who shattered all world's series records with his three homers in Wednesday's game.

If the Yankees win the series they can trace their triumph directly to the inspiration of Ruth's amazing batting outburst in the fourth game. Those soulful swats of the Babe were the rejuvenating tonic that the Yankees needed.

If the Yankees can keep their winning poise and capitalize opportunities as they have in the past two games it will be difficult to keep them from final triumph. But the Cardinals have not yielded by any margin sufficient to say that they have been put to rout. Submerged by Ruth's hitting one day they came back the next within an ace of taking the fifth game.

Seldom have two outfits been any more evenly matched in nearly all departments with only a "break" here or there to sway the results. The Cardinals, although trailing in games won and lost, have outhit and outscored the Yankees, as a matter of fact, while Haines and Alexander have turned in pitching victories that rival the twin triumphs of the New York ace, Pennock.

Defensively the Yankees have been more alert, especially in the pinches. Mark Koenig, whose three miscues at short represent the error total of the Yankees, has more than atoned for those by sparkling work in tight places, coupled with batting that played a major role in yesterday's victory.

All three members of the Yankee "kid infield"—Koenig, Tony Lazzeri and Lou Gehrig—have come through the testing fire of their first world's series conflict with honors.

Lazzeri, in fact, has outshone his famous rival, Rogers Hornsby, in batting and held his own in dfeensive play. Koenig's figures, neither at bat nor afield, match those of Tommy Thevenow, Young Cardinal shortstopping star, but Gehrig has outbatted his first base rival, "Sunny Jim" Bottomley.

Billy Southworth and Bob O'Farrell, outside of the pitchers, have carried the main brunt of the Cardinal battle on their experienced shoulders. Southworth, traded by the Giants about the middle of the season, has batted sensationally and roamed over the outfield for all sorts of catches. O'Farrell has been equally as bright a star. His batting average of .437 tops the regulars of both teams.

The Cardinals will take the field for the sixth game handicapped by the loss of their fleet centerfielder, Taylor Douthit, who was unable to play yesterday and who is out of the series altogether with strained shoulder muscles caused by his collision with Hafey in Wednesday's game.

The cardinals outfield reserves are at low ebb, as a result, for Ray Blades also is on the casualty list with injuries suffered late in the pennant season. Douthit and Blades both were lead-off men when forced out.

Roscoe (Waddie) Holm, who has replaced Douthit, was converted into an outfielder after being tried out as a shortstop and catcher.

SOUTHERN TEAMS WILL INVADE NORTH TODAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 8—(AP)—Cleated warriors of the south will descend upon six gridirons of the north tomorrow in the most sweeping inter-sectional offensive of the collegiate football campaign.

Two thrusts of the invasion will be aimed at members of the "big three," with a husky Georgia band bursting into the Yale bowl to grapple with another powerful Tad Jones' team and a strong Washington-Lee brigade is storming the ramparts of jungletown in a renewal of pigskin warfare with Princeton.

At the same time four other universities of the southland will send their soldiers of the moleskins into action against powerful gridiron battalions of the north, with Virginia Poly venturing into a Hanover barrage of forward passes to tackle Dartmouth, West Virginia Wesleyan confronting New York university, William-Mary squaring off against Syracuse and Davis-Elkins tackling army.

The outlook of Yale and Princeton appeared more promising than that of Harvard, which was called upon to tackle an inspired Holy Cross eleven at Cambridge. Crippled by loss of stars through injuries and ineligibility, wrestling with the new methods of Coach Arnold Horween, and depressed by unexpected defeat in their opening game, Crimson gladiators tonight needed all their traditional fighting spirit to throw off psychological shackles and time their stride to the winning procession.

Pennsylvania faced its first stiff test of the season against Swarthmore in tile of these ancient rivals. With a tussle one week hence against Chicago, Pennsylvania gridders found themselves confronted by a team against which they could hazard few chance plays, for the garnet boasted a line-up consisting largely of veterans, a powerful and versatile aggregation.

With a lineup including many of their 1925 stars, Army looked impressive enough to hold off Davis-Elkins tomorrow. But memory of the gruelling struggle they had a year ago with the same team was still vivid on the West Point plateau. The future generals were prepared for vigorous opposition, and seemed to have strength with which to combat it.

The Navy-Drake game promised an exacting test of the middies' power as a final tryout for the Princeton battle one week from tomorrow, while before Penn State was an opportunity to measure against Marietta the offensive strength with which it will confront Knute Rockne's Notre Dame machine one week hence.

Other games of more than ordinary interest tomorrow will bring together Columbia and Wesleyan here, Pittsburgh and Lafayette at Pittsburgh, Cornell and Williams at Ithaca, Brown and Lehigh at Providence, Washington-Jefferson and Rutgers at Washington.

AGGIES IN FINE SHAPE TO MEET MASS. FARMERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STORRS, Oct. 8.—Believing that his team is in good condition and fully prepared for their game with the Massachusetts Aggies at Amherst tomorrow, Coach Sumner Dole of Connecticut Aggies held no practice for his men this afternoon. The squad has been through a hard week of drill in which there was much scrimmage and Dole feels now that many of the defects which cropped out in the first game with Wesleyan a week ago have been eliminated.

In announcing his starting lineup, Dole said he had no predictions to make regarding tomorrow's game except that his men were ready and expecting a hard tussle. The Connecticut team will take the field with Kennedy and Callagan, ends; Longo and either Wilson or Sayers, tackles; Lorentzen and Zollin, guards; Captain Daly, center; Schofield, quarterback; Eddy and either Noonan or Knaut, halfbacks; Williams, fullback. Two full teams will make the trip to Amherst.

RECORD CROWD EXPECTED AT TODAY'S CONFLICT

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—(AP)—With fair weather promised for tomorrow's game, attendance records may be shattered for the fifth successive time with a crowd numbering close to 65,000. Last Sunday, 62,600 jammed their way into the Yankee stadium to break all baseball records while on each of the three days in St. Louis, the attendance mark for Sportsman's Park was shattered with the crowd for the fifth game reaching 39,552.

The aggregate attendance for five games was 241,543 and a crowd of 61,000 tomorrow would be enough to send the total beyond the world's series record of 302,430 set by the Giants and Yankees in their six-game series of 1923.

Gate receipts also are certain to go over the million-dollar mark with the sixth game. The total so far is close to $900,000 and another $200,000 "gate" here, such as a capacity crowd would mean, would send the figures to $1,100,000, within striking distance of the record of $1,182,854 made last fall when the Pirates beat the Senators in seven games. A seventh game in this series would easily send the receipts "over the top."

Harvard Harriers Win

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 8—(AP)—Harvard defeated Holy Cross today in a cross country race over the Charles River course, 21 to 34. Leonard Novograd of Harvard was the individual winner, covering the course in 29 minutes 35 seconds. Harvard freshmen defeated Holy Cross freshmen, 26 to 32, in another race.

GEHRIG SAFE AT THIRD IN THE SECOND GAME OF THE WORLD'S SERIES

ACADEMY FOOTBALL TEAM OPENS HOME SEASON AT THE CAMPUS TODAY

The Academy football team will open the 1926 home season at the campus this (Saturday) afternoon with East Greenwich Academy as the opposition. A banner crowd is expected to witness the local gridders in their first appearance of the current season before a home crowd and the local management has made preparations to that effect.

The local squad rounded out a stiff week's practice with a short, light signal drill on Friday afternoon, and they should be in tip-top shape for this afternoon's play.

Merle E. Bigham has assumed charge of the squad since Courtland C. Whitney left town last week to re-enter Middlebury college and it is expected that he will start practically the same line-up as that which gave New Britain high such a battle last Saturday; it New Britain only to loose by a 13 to 0 score.

The probable starting line-up for the locals is as follows: Ends, Marks and Moore; tackles, Fidell and Kahn or McCluggage; guards, Fox, Shea or Columb; center, Schwartz or Columb. In the backfield will probably be seen ImJim Williams at quarter, C. Brewer, McGlone, Labenski jr Vitiano at halves and Capt. Ed, Brewer at fullback. This list of players shapes up as very formidable and should be capable of giving the best a hard tussle as the boys will be out to give their all for the Red and White every minute of the contest.

East Greenwich Academy, local's opponents this afternoon, is reported as being rated with the best in the high and prep school class in these parts and will make the Academwiters fight every minute of the contest in order to gain the decision.

Kickoff is set for 2:30 sharp.

Yale-Dartmouth Seat Sale Monday.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Following a check-up of the Dartmouth football game applications, the Yale Athletic association announced tonight that a few thousand tickets will be left on hand after the Yale applications and those of the public season book holders are filled. Accordingly, there will be a public sale of tickets for this game starting Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

WESTERLY

HOWARD E. THORP NOMINATED FOR STATE SENATOR BY CAUCUS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 8.—Howard E. Thorp won out in the caucus this evening, receiving 1093 votes to 564 for George B. Utter, for state senator.

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. —From the long lines of prospective voters at the Westerly town hall Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, when the balloting caucus was held for republican electors to nominate a Westerly senator to the Rhode Island legislature, it appeared that a record number would participate in the caucus. Opposing nominees are Representative George B. Utter of the First Westerly voting district to the general assembly and Howard E. Thorp, member of the Westerly board of tax assessors. On a separate ballot appears the question as to whether the Westerly delegates to the general assembly will support the state redistricting act, by which the northern part of the state will have increased representation in the legislature. By some it was held that this latter ballot might prove illegal, inasmuch, that no reference was made to it in the call for this republican caucus. There have been raised questions as to the exact legality of this caucus by reason of the republican town committee's failure to notify the Westerly town clerk in writing at least six days before the first or nominating caucus was held. Further requirement of the Westerly caucus act stipulates that the nominating caucus must be held three days after the first caucus. Sundays and holidays excepted. The democratic town committee Chairman Thomas V. B. Clancy notified the town clerk in writing last Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock that the democratic caucus was to be held Friday night and further provision of the Westerly caucus act states that no two political parties shall hold their caucuses on the same day, which is apparently being done in disregard of the caucus act.

By some it is claimed that by sharp practice the contest could be called illegal and the matter taken up by the Westerly republican town's committee or by the county or state central committee for final solution. It is understood that both candidates Utter and Thorp have agreed to abide by the result of this caucus, but if it should prove illegal, advantage might obtain to Representative Utter, who is now the Westerly member of the republican state central committee.

October 7. William A. Wilcox, commissioner of the estate of Peleg Clark, to Louis La Fountain and Margaret La Fountain, land approximately 11,362 square feet, Lot No 53, in Parcel No. 2, estate of Peleg Clark.

October 8. Franklin E. Coe of Torrington, Conn., to Edward J. Murphy of Springfield, Mass., eight lots No. 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 5 and 6 in Sec. 12.

Voting started shortly after two o'clock with the following officials in charge: First voting district: Moderator, Everett A. Kingsley; clerk, John J. Dunn; supervisors, James H. Hodgson, Howard D. Swan; gate tender, Alexander Mitchell; checkers on the outside of the rail were for the republican town's committee, Arthur Hill and Mrs. R. C. Dove for the Candidate Thorp. The first ballot was cast by Anna Thornton Williams.

Total vote cast at 9 o'clock was 783.

Following the announcement of the results, to the more than 200 voters assembled, the following vote was offered by Attorney A. T. L. Ledwidge and seconded by George B. Utter, the defeated nominee: "It is hereby resolved that any defects or irregularities with reference to the notice, time, call, or calling, or conduct of this caucus be and the same is hereby waived and Howard E. Thorp is hereby declared the choice of the republican electors of the town of Westerly, at the republican caucus held this 8th day of October, 1926, as the candidate and nominee of this caucus for the town of Westerly, R. I."

The resolution was adopted by a voice vote, without any dissent.

Howard Edwin Thorp of Potter Hill, the successful candidate, was born in the town of Hopkinton, June 10, 1889. He attended Hopkinton grammar school and graduating from the Hopkinton high school in the class of 1905, was a student for a year at Westerly Business college. In 1910 he was first a member of the Westerly republican town committee and from 1914 served for five and one-half yars on Westerly town council, during which period the change over to biennial elections was made. From 1916 he has served as a member for ten years consecutively on the Westerly board of tax assessors. He is engaged in the insurance and real estate business.

ONLY FOUR DEMOCRATS APPEAR TO HOLD CAUCUS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Oct. 8.—A caucus of the democratic electors of the town of Westerly was called to order by Chairman Thomas V. Clancy in the council chamber of Westerly town hall this evening at 7.30 o'clock. Clerk Joseph Montague read the call for the senatorial and district representative caucuses. A recess was taken and after a wait of 20 minutes only four democrats were in the council chamber to pass the vote that gave the democratic town committee power to fill all vacancies.

CLIFFORD W. CAMPBELL

A meeting of the democratic town committee is to be held Saturday when

A Home on Stilts

There's nothing like a timely rest
To keep one at his very best.
—Old Mother Nature.

Danny had been traveling now for several days, and he was getting pretty well tired out. You know, it doesn't do to do a thing too long without change. Everybody needs a rest. They say that work never kills, but it does if there is too much of it. Danny began to look around for a place to spend a few days in order that he might rest and freshen himself.

Most of the time Danny had been traveling in the marsh, and he didn't find any place that he wanted to stay longer than for a nap. But now he came in sight of something that made his heart pump right up in his mouth for pure joy. He knew what it was even from that distance. Yes, sir, it was a haystack. It looked just like the haystack in Farmer Brown's barnyard late in the fall. Danny loves haystacks. When he saw this he forgot he was tired. That haystack was still a long way off, but it was a haystack and that was enough to keep Danny going.

White-tail alighted right on top of that very haystack, and there he sat and sat and sat

At last Danny reached it. Then he went all around it. Never had he seen a stack like this one before. It was on stilts. Yes, sir, it was on stilts. You see, it was on the marsh and that marsh was sometimes covered with water at extra high tide. Hay would spoil if it were wet by high tide. So a great many big stakes had been driven into the marsh, leaving the tops above high water. On these had been built a stack of hay. It was salt hay. You know the grass that grows on the marshes is salt. Danny didn't know what to make of this haystick. He ran in and out among the stakes and then he made up his mind that this was the best place he had found since he left home. It was no trouble at all to climb up one of those stakes and burrow into that mass of hay. There he had the softest kind of a bed and no one in the Great World would think of looking for him there.

Danny spent several days there. In fact, he hated to leave his home on stilts. "I wish Nanny were over here," said he. "If Nanny Meadow Mouse were here what a wonderful time we would have. This would be a wonderful place to spend the winter, if only I had food enough."

But thinking of winter reminded him of home again, and in spite of his comfortable quarters he began to grow homesick. The very next morning when he poked his head outside almost the very first thing he saw was White tail the Marsh Hawk. Whitetail was sailing back and forth very close to the marsh, looking for his breakfast. It was Whitetail beyond a doubt. Danny had played hide and seek with Whitetail too many times on the Green Meadows not to know him. Finally Whitetail alighted right on the top of that very haystack, and there he sat and sat and sat.

Danny began to wonder if Whitetail suspected that he, Danny, was hiding in that stack. If he didn't suspect anything of the kind, why did he stay so long? "I think I'll move on this very night," said Danny. "I'm rested and I think it's time to move on. I don't like Whitehall's company. He isn't another one of those fellows who is fond of tender, sweet Meadow Mice. I'm not tender, but I suspect that Whitetail wouldn't be fussy. I'll move this very night."

And that is just what Danny did do. He once more pointed that funny little blunt nose of his toward home and started on.

SOCIAL CORNER

Put in a baking dish and bake for half an hour in a moderate oven.

Scrambled Eggs With Cheese: 1-4 pound grated cheese, 1-2 cup evaporated milk, 6 eggs.

Stir the ingredients together, but do not beat the eggs. Place in a buttered skillet, and cook over a slow fire, stirring constantly, so that the cheese is melted by the time the eggs are cooked.

Zulleka: Your letter about cats was fine. I am very fond of cats and dumb animals.

Biddy: That was a beautiful poem you sent to the Corner called, Be Kind to the Loved Ones at Home.

Aries: Will you please tell me the address of the Connecticut Humane society at Hartford, Conn? Do you have to pay to join the society? Love and best wishes to Social Corner Editsooner complying with reques' for MAJESTIC.

MELISSA'S HARD TASK

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Was much interested in the Social Corner letters of Oct. 2nd especially Melissa's. I think she gave us quite a hard task to define friendship. I think her sentence "Friends stand by" an excellent one. She covered a whole acre when she wrote it. If you say you will do a thing, stand by, b reliable, consistent. We may possibly loose by it in someways, but, oh that feeling I can depend upon that friend covers another acre.

If I don't look out I'll circumnavigate the whole Social Corner. It would be some acreage. Wouldn't it?

Melissa: Give is an easier thing to write about.

Thanks you for introducing me to the Corner; and your card.

Dorothy Bradford: I love to meet you everywhere and anywhere.

Crimson Rambler: Don't seem to get started up your way. So many ways to go. It must be wonderful up there now overlooking that lovely valley.

Wish I could write something funny, but few funny folks get out of world alive. I am looking forward to Oct. 13. Club No. 6's day.

I suppose the Corner in The Bulletin will print where we are to meet.

Thanks to every one who has given and is going to give me a friendly time.

BLANDINA.

LIVE BY THE GOLDEN RULE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: It's been some time since I have written to the Corner and I really feel ashamed of my neglect. But the weeks go so fast and I have been very busy entertaining friends, and doing a lot of outside work, and then canning which takes so much time at this season of the year. Today have been trying my luck at red pepper jelly, but the recipe I had did not tell how long to cook the peppers. I wonder if some sister could tell me about that.

I am glad E. L. M. has such a high opinion of my ability to get up church dinners. I had a number of very fine helpers and that solves half the problem. I certainly agree with Melissa about friends. I like to think my friends are as true to me as I would be to them. A friend means to me one you can depend on at all times, through adversity as well as prosperity. I think if everyone of us would take as a personal motto, the words of our Saviour, when he said, "What ye would that men would do to you, do ye also unto them," this world would be a better place to live in.

When do we have another picnic and where?

I had a lovely time at Green Hill, if it's not too late to say so, and think it must be fine to spend the summer there. Will bring my letter to a close with best wishes to all.

A NEW DISH

Dear Sisters: Here is a new dish.

Nut and Corn Porridge: 3 quarts lima beans or canned beans, 1 dozen ears of corn or canned corn, 1-2 pound of English walnuts, 1-8 pound of butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon sugar, 2 quarts of water.

Place the beans on to boil in two quarts of water. Grate corn (the top off) then scrape down with a knife wash off the cobs in about two quarts of water. Put water over to boil with beans, when beans are tender put in the corn and boil ten minutes, just stir in the nuts Serve with toast.

Pudding a La Louisiana: 4 cups of milk, 1-2 cup of rice, 1-2 cup or raisins, 1-2 teaspoon each of cinnamon and salt.

Mix thoroughly bake in a quick oven for 2 1-2 hours, stirring 4 times for the first hour and add three teaspoons of butter. The fourth stirring. This serves six.

My Prize Graham Bread: 2 1-2 cups of Graham flour, 1 1-2 cups of wheat flour, 2 eggs, 1 cup sugar, 5 teaspoons baking powder, 2 teaspoons salt, 2 cups of milk, 1 1-2 cups chopped nuts.

Mix all together, bake in a moderate oven. Let stand 20 minutes before putting in the oven. Bake 45 minutes. This makes 2 loaves and 8 muffins.

Nut Bread Without Eggs: This is a very good nut bread without eggs. I made some today. It was excellent. Two cups of graham flour, one cup of wheat, 1 teaspoon salt and 1 1-4 cup sour cream or milk, 3-4 cup or nuts, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 of baking powder, 3-4 cup brown sugar, molasses or granulated, (I use granulated sugar.)

Sift the dry material together, then add milk, and if you don't use cream, I put in 1 tablespoon melted butter.

Let stand 20 minutes after in the dish. This makes 1 loaf and four muffins.

GUESS WHO.

MEMORIES

Dear Editor and Social Corner Friends: As one of the sisters has said, so much has been written on every subject one hardly knows what to think up to write about. However as I am alone tonight with nothing but my thoughts to keep me company while memories of the past are stealing o'er me I shall take that for my subject. Memories are mostly a comfort for no matter how hard life seems at times there is always something pleasant to look back upon. And the older we get the more we have to remember, and to my mind they are given us to heal, not to hurt. I have been going over the old days when life was young, and hopes were high. How many have gone down in the great silence since then! Somehow I seem nearer to them than to those who are living, as I am now situated far from the old scenes and am surrounded only with chance acquaintance and friends that have no connections with the joys and sorrows of the past. And how the view changes as we go on! At first the rosy enthusiasm of youth, then the bright light of mid-day, then slowly we slip into the valley where the shadows fall like memories across the heart. What strange things we human beings are! Our very crosses get dearer after we have carried them a while. And even though my little ship can only now sail into a harbor of memories yet there are sunny seas and it will never sink. No, no matter what the weather is, it will sail on and grow rich in experience, as through all the happy days of girlhood, the sorrowful days of womanhood on un to the bittersweet present, my faith and trust have never failed me.

How clearly are the days of girlhood and my old home brought back tonight. As I think of them now they seem to have been such happy days. I can see the same old paths I used to tread, the same old woods and fields nestled among the green hills along the grand old Hudson. And I am the same freehearted, bold romping girl again. Ah yes the same, yet not the same. What now of all my girlish joys, my beautiful aircastles? These have all drifted far away on the waves of time. And again memory harks back to long years ago when God gave to me a little child, whose eyes looked into mine with such wordless questions in their starry depths. How I planned and worked and loved my baby boy his face that is ever before me now. It haunts me in my dreams. It comes to me as I go about my daily work. It is not always the face of a man as when I last saw him. Sometimes it is a baby face looking into the love-lit eyes of a young mother and again the laughing mischieveous face of a school boy. Then too soon the boy was gone and the man had come. What a man he was to be, how strong and noble! How proud I was to be mother of him. There would be no son in all the world so worthy of pride. And then in after years there would be his arm to leap upon, his love and devotion and help to rely on in my widowhood's declining years. But soon the boy became a restless man; he must see and know foreign lands to seek his fortune. Then over me passed a great wave of sorrow at the thought of what that parting meant to me. Yet there was no blame, only a sad farewell. I had less fears for him than most mothers have cause to fear, for I knew he had high and noble principles and had passed through a discipline that had matured and sobered him far beyond his years. So with a last farewell we said goodbye. At first the letters came so full of hope and bright prospects. I was glad for his dear sake. Then suddenly there came the awful tidings. "Your boy is dead." Then all my hopes and dreams lay in the dust. He had died in his prime—alone in a strange land—and I would never know how much he suffered or what care had been given him at the hand of strangers. Oh how my heart rebelled. I couldn't pray—I could not say, Our Father—but as time is a great healer it brought at last a change into my saddened life. A still small whisper fell upon my soul. Your son has dropped his garment of mortality. You are the mother of an angel now," and in my heart a wondrous holy joy took root and grew form that day. So the while I work at my appointed task I give God thanks that he has given me the wondrous crown of motherhood—although to sit alone in my silent home almost stupidly dull with heart hunger and empty arms while I can only read just myself for what the future has in store for me. I have nothing to show for all the lonely years only my worn out self and memories that are tapping at the door of my soul and I cannot shut them out. Only his letters and memories left me now, memories of that day when he went away forever, so brave, so confident of the future. "I will come back safe and sound," he said. And then the waiting, the agony of it, the silence, the hourly prayer that all might be well with him, and then the news that came and ended all.

All I have now are his letters and memories. My eyes through a mist of tears see a young ardent, bovish face. I see eyes that are filled with a hope that fights against despair. Those precipus letters are as a voice that comes from out the past, that voice that reminds me of how I loved him. I wonder if among the members there are some sisters who have a packet of old letters, an old glove, a lock of hair, hidden away in their possession. And so when all else have failed us memory is monarch of all, memory rules and reigns supreme.

Pepper Relish: 15 ripe peppers, 15 green peppers, take seeds out and scald, put through food chopper and also put 1 bunch celery and nine onions through food chopper. Then add 2 cups sugar, 1 1-2 quarts of vinegar, salt to taste and cook 15 minutes. I put in hot glass jars and put wax on top. Hope some one will try this as it is very nice

Broadway Theatre

When Douglas Fairbanks arrives in town with a new film in his bag, the movie fans, which include everyone but the inhabitants of cemeteries, indulge in broad, expectant grins, and wonder what on earth (or over it) Doug has done now! Upon which they start promptly for the box office. And, be it said, The Outlook, being perfectly human is just as naively interested as anyone else!

So writes Charles K. Taylor in The Outlook. He continues:

Every now and then I have tried to explain how Douglas the Dynamic manages to create such an uproar wherever he goes—or where ever his films go. In the last analysis, no doubt, it is all a matter of personality—only in this case it is a personality that has but one rival as the most popular in the world, the other belonging to that incorrigible horseman, the Prince of Wales!

Many of us had our doubts for the first time when we heard that in "The Black Pirate" he had departed from the usual white-and-black world to which we have become accustomed on the screen. We would accept without a qualm the perfectly natural idea that Doug if he so desired, could defend his life joyously with a twenty-foot lash, and that should he feel so inclined, he could easily enough slide down the bellying surface of a great sail with only his knife ripping the canvas by way of a brake. But why should he go out of his way and simply court disaster by trying to make a picture in colors? And even if by some miracle the result did not closely resemble an explosion in a paint works, would it not be, for a Fairbanks film, merely the painting of a lily? There was left to us but one slender hope—that Doug would have the same complete luck with his colors that he has had in the past with his hosts of implacable enemies, his gangs of unscrupulous villains, and his devouring monsters of the air, the sea, and the land.

Well, he seems to have accomplished the impossible, but there certainly was no luck about it, unless, as some philosophers say, that luck comes only as the result of good hard work. However that may be, it is certain that Mr. Fairbanks has produced a picture of exquisite delicacy and beauty, a composition in subdued sepias, pale greens and buffs, in comparison with which the usual "white-and-black" is likely to look very flat indeed.

The original musical score as used in N. Y. city will be interpreted here with an augmented orchestra.

Jordan Motor Car

A five passenger custom sedan and a four passenger custom victoria, both mounted on the light eight chassis, have just been announced by the Jordan Motor Car company. According to Edward S. Jordan, there has been an insistant demand for custom bodies on the light eight chassis ever since the public saw the custom models that were announced last spring on the larger chassis.

Both of the new bodies come in optional two-tone color combinations and are trimmed with custom broadcloths of exclusive patterns. Tufted seat cushions and backs, braided silk pull-ups, newly designed vanity cases and smoking sets add greatly to the luxurious appearance of the interiors. The instrument board instead of being jet black as in the standard models is of burled walnut to match the door panels. On the victoria a trunk is carried at the rear as standard equipment. A new combination of shock absorbers including the Hoodye in front has further improved an already easy riding car. The addition of these new models gives Jordan a very complete line including a custom style sedan and victoria on the great line eight chassis, a custom style sedan victoria and playboy roadster, also on the light eight chassis. The new models are priced at $2195 f. o. b. Cleveland and are already on display in Jordan showrooms throughout the country.

The reserved seat chart for the concert to be given in Slater hall on Wednesday evening, October 20th, by the Russian Symphonic Choir, will be opened for choice of seats at Cranston's store on Tuesday morning, October 12th.

It is important that it be clearly understood by all interested in this concert, that on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday seats can be selected only by those who have indicated their intention of attending this concert by subscribing for seats in advance.

Non-subscribers may secure their seats at any time following this advanced selection, or in other words from Friday morning until the concert begins. But, on the three days mentioned, choice of seats will be open only to the advanced subscribers.

To get a place on this list, mail notice of intention to take tickets to H. A. Tirrell, principal, or get the notice in by phone to Mr. Tirrell or at Cranston's store. Additions will not be made later than Monday evening.

Tickets for this concert will be $2 each. Immediate action will be necessary to get on this list and have the privilege of this advanced choice of seats.

Breed Theater

Malays, half-casts, mulattoes and Orientals mingled in one of the strangest assemblanges gathered at even a screen studio, for the filming of The Road to Mandalay, Lon Chaney's new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer vehicle coming Sunday to the Breed theater. It is a vivid drama of Singapore, Mandalay, and the Bengal Bay region, with Chaney in the role of Singapore Joe, weird and sinister ruler of the Singapore underworld. Probably every race on earth was represented in the crowd scenes in the big productions.

Ted Browning, who produced The Unholy Three and The Black Bird, both starring Chaney, has directed The Road to Mandalay from a story written by himself and Herman J. Mankiewicz.

Christian Science.

The Christian Science society of this city will hold its annual free lecture on Christian Science, Sunday afternoon, Oct. 10, at 3 o'clock in the Universalist church, 148 Broadway. The lecturer will be Rev. Andrew J. Graham, C. S. B., of Boston, Mass, member of the Mother church, the First Church of Christ Scientist in Boston, Mass. The public is cordially invited.

Feature Moving Picture at Y. M. C. A.

At four o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Norwich Y. M. C. A. the second half of the unusual and impressive moving picture feature, "Over the Hills with Mary Carr the leading character will be shown in the big gymnasium, and both sexes 14 and over are invited.

This gripping picture story is among the leaders in its strong appeal to human nature, and few persons indeed can sit under its impressions without being deeply moved. The trials and struggles of a mother of a large family are always touching, and Mary Carr takes the mother's part in this picture as few women could. On this occasion of the showing of the last half of this unusual picture appears the brighter side of the mothers life after the storm and stress of sorrow. A brief message on "Mothes Love" will be given between the reels by Rev. Edwin Crowdis whose talks are always full of interest, Hugh Kinder will furnish the music for the picture and also render appropriate vocal solos. The doors will be open at 3.30 and the service will begin promptly at 4 o'clock.

Palace Theater

Today patrons of the Palace will have their last opportunity to witness what is without doubt one of the greatest photoplays that has ever graced the screen when Milton Sills in Men of Steel will be shown for the last times, the crowds that have packed the Palace during this engagement have added their praise to that of audiences all over the country and pronounced Men of Steel a truly great picture. It is filled with action without a dull moment for the theatre goer who dared. The powerful story of love, hate, romance and courage that thrills the spectator. No one should fail to see this most marvelous production added attractions include Mary Carr in Somebody's Mother a delightful drama in which this beloved star wins everyones heart, Gene Tunney in the fifth chapter of his serial of adventure, The Fighting Marine and the Topical Events completing just about the finest program seen here this season. For Sunday and Monday the management announces another outstanding double feature bill headed by Sena Owen in The Flame of the Yukon a great melodrama of the northwest in the gold rush days when brawn and grit meant fortune to those who dared, the action is swift and the climaxes thrilling and the production as a whole highly captivating and the other feature of the big double bill is none the less interesting presenting the beautiful Greta Nissen in The Lucky Lady with Lionel Barrymore, Marc McDermott and a great cast. The short subjects include a new comedy The Wise Quacker and an out of the inwell novelty. It's the Cats and the Topical Events a big Sunday evening's entertainment that for quality and quantity it would be hard to equal.

Public Health Nursing Department

In a modern health program, the public health nurse has become an indispensible factor, according to Dr. Merrill Champion of the Massachusetts state department of health. The truth of this statement is being constantly demonstrated in Norwich by the increase in the demand for the services offered by the public health nursing department.

The United Workers with wise foresight, laid the foundation for the present department in 1887, when a "district nurse" began her duties under their auspices. Since then the work has grown until the original activity of bedside nursing is but one in a wide field of usefulness. Due to the new doctrine of prevention rather than cure the "visiting or district nurse" developed into a teacher of health and became known as a public health nurse.

In 1916, the nursing committee of the United Workers reorganized and since that time has functioned in the community as the public health nursing department.

The bedside nursing work for which a fee is collected when possible, still continues to be an important service. In addition several free services are gladly given when desired. The expectant mother, the new-born baby, the infant and the pre-school child are given instructive visits as well as nursing care. The tuberculous patient and those who have come in contact with tuberculosis are taught the simple rules of right living. This work is done in close cooperation with the physicians. A nurse from the department is sent in response to all calls, but unless a physician is in attendance further calls are not made.

The Rock Nook children's clinic for children of pre-school age is held each Wednesday from 2 to 4 at No. 9 Washington street, with a physician in attendance. This clinic is financed by the Rock Nook home funds. A well babies conference is held each Thursday afternoon at the same place. The tuberculosis clinic held on Tuesdays from 2 to 4 at No. 9 Washington street, gives those in need an opportunity for a complete chest examination by a specialist from the state sanatorium. Once a month a conference for pre-school children is held in Yantic, Occum and Taftville.

Bedside nursing and instructive nursing for several insurance companies is done by this department.

Perhaps more than any other does this department of the United Workers belong to the people. Not until every man, woman and child can truthfully say "Our Nurse" when the nurse in grey goes by, will the goal set, be reached. Until such time "neither snow, nor rain, nor heat, nor gloom stays these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds."

Christ Episcopal Church

Sunday, October 10th is family Sunday in Christ Episcopal church. At 10:30 a. m. the service will be in keeping with the day. All age of the family are expected to attend. Processional hymn "Onward Christian Soldiers" by A. Sullivan, will open the service, and those words include every member of every family—The Venite. "O Come Let Us Sing," means father as well as mother, so bring the whole family. The Tedeum, "We Come to Praise Thee O God," takes in that oldest son as much as the little daughter. The Jubilate, "O be Joyful in the Lord," applies to the church family life and takes in each member. The Gradual hymn "New Mercies Each Returning Day, Hover Around the Family While They Pray," written by J Webbe. Then the Sequence hymn. "There is a Blessed Home" by H. F. Hemy. That wonderful old hymn we all love to sing "Blest be the Tie That Binds," by Prof. L. Mason. Ill be the sermon hymn. The Recessional being, "O Mother Dear Jerusalem." A special sermon will be preached by the rector and the flowers on the altar in memory of the dear ones of the families who are in Paradise.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

This section now has the two executive officers of the fourth degree, Knights of Columbus, in Connecticut through the appointment of Jeremiah A. Desmond as master of the degree in this state and his designation of John F. Conway of Baltic to be secretary of the degree. The appointment of Mr. Desmond, which is for a term of two years, was made by John H. Reddin of Denver, Colo., who is supreme master.

Mr. Desmond has been a member of White Cross council, No. 13, of this city since 1912. He has held practically all the offices in the council and is a past grand knight. He took his fourth degrees in New Haven in 1916 when John M. Lee of this city was master of the degrees for the district of Connecticut.

In civic circles he has been interested in various lines of activity, has been city since 1913. He has held practically as secretary of the gas and electrical commissioners.

The appointment of Mr. Conway as secretary is also for the term of two years, both terms running from Sept. 1. Mr. Conway became a member of Gen. De Leon council of Framingham, Mass., in 1910, transferring to the coun-

JUNIOR AMERICAN MECHANICS

Several applications were acted upon and referred to the various committees. The membership campaign is causing much rivalry between Brothers Ralph Chapman and Fred Shappee. Chapman is now leading by one application. The degree team is to hold practice next Wednesday and all the brothers are urged to be present as several men are needed for the team. The entertainment committee has arrangd to have a special program at the next meeting and refreshments will be served following the meeting.

State Secretary Joseph Wellington was present and gave an interesting talk about the objects of the order. After the meeting the members played several rounds of pinochle and are anxious to have a tournament during the winter.

LEDYARD

Rev. Giles Frederick Goodenough, pastor of Ledyard Congregational church, read his resignation Sunday morning to take effect about the middle of November. Rev Mr. Goodenough has accepted a call to become pastor of the Congregational church in Jewett City. It is with regret that Ledyard loses its pastor and his family. Coming here from Northfield nearly 13 years ago, Rev. Mr. Goodenough has endeared himself to all church and the community. Rev. Mr. Goodenough has been active in the town's affairs, being elected a trustee of the Bill Library association at its annual meeting in August and he is the present master of Ledyard grange. All feel confident that Rev. Mr. Goodenough will have a successful pastorate in his new field of labor.

The annual meeting of the Ledyard Cemetery association was held in the vestry of the Congregational church Saturday, Oct. 2, at 2 p. m. The president, William I. Allyn, presiding. The secretary and treasurer read their reports, which were accepted and ordered placed on file. The following officers were elected: William I. Allyn, president; Charles B. Allyn, vice president; Marion G. Allyn, secretary; James A. Stoddard, treasurer; Amos M. Gallup, James A. Stoddard and Herbert W. Gallup were elected directors.

A large amount of money was spent during the past year on this cemetery in removing the turf and re-seeding. Charles B. Allyn presented the association $100 toward the expense.

The meeting of the town school committee is to be held at Ledyard Center Monday afternoon.

Net operating income of class one railroads in August was placed by the bureau of railway economics at $133,003,268, compared with $124,943,508 in August, 1925.

Here is the Final Proof of Straight Eight Economy

Twenty-two Jordan Straight Eights—driven 3024 miles—in all parts of the United States—averaged 20.85 miles to the gallon

SOME people think that the Eight cylinder motor is less economical than the Six. They are wrong.

That isn't strange.

It was true before Jordan built the Straight Eight.

Eights of the heavier, bulky type were always used in bigger cars.

Jordan produced the first really economical Eight.

Here is the definite proof.

Twenty-two Jordan cars in twenty-two different cities of the United States have just run 3024 miles through all kinds of country with an average of 20.85 miles per gallon.

This test was run through traffic in New York—over the hills of Pennsylvania—through the mountains of California—over the sand roads of Florida—and under the hot sun of Texas.

No special preparations were made—no stunts were allowed.

Jordan cars were driven under ordinary driving conditions, and the consumption records throughout the country were about the same.

This test will be interesting to those who do not know about the Jordan Straight Eight motor.

Six cylinder salesmen have tried to convince people that the Eight is not economical. Their own experience is based on the motors incorporated in heavier cars.

Here are the reasons for Jordan Economy.

Light in weight. Balanced. Moves steadily forward and never sideways. Holds the road. Does not consume energy in side sway.

COLUMBIA

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hutchins of Washington, D. C., are spending two weeks' vacation at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Hutchins, at Chestnut Hill.

Miss Kellogg, librarian of Hebron library, was a visitor at the Columbia library Monday evening.

Mrs. C. J. Holmes and Mrs. Anna Dart have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. John Mitchell at Hartford.

Columbia grange observed Educational night at its regular meeting Wednesday evening. Supervisor Larcomb, School Nurse Miss Denahy, the school board and teachers were the guests of the grange. Mr. Larcomb gave a fine address on getting children for life in democracy. Miss Denahy spoke briefly of her work. Mrs. Edith Isham sang two selections. A reading "The Farmer" by Clayton Hunt followed, after which a short play "The Naturalization Court" was presented by five young men.

VOLUNTOWN

The guns of duck hunters are again heard in the land. Several were out last Friday morning bright and early. No big bags of game have been reported yet.

Thursday evening of last week one of the horses belonging to Clarke H. Rice got mired in the school house swamp. They were out to pasture in nearby lots. A number of local men went to the rescue and after about two hours' work brought the animal to safe territory.

George B. Lillibridge is a patient at the Backus hospital, Norwich, where he has undergone an operation for appendicitis.

There is keen interest taken in the world series baseball games, both the Yankees and the Cards having their adherents. Nearly every radio set in town was tuned in on the event and every owner of a set entertained guests. Several new sets were installed for the series, among those having new sets being Lionel Marson at his store, James Hopkins, George B. Sheldon and Fred Magrey.

Several local fans went to Moosup Saturday to witness the Jewett City vs. Moosup game.

Registrars of Voters Thomas McDonald and Leonard B. Kinnie were in session Tuesday to receive applications To Be Made Voters, a total of 38 names being received as follows: George E. Bromley, Grace E. Bromley, Almina Burton, Marion H. Briggs, Gladys Campbell, Gladys Corcoran, Albert R. Dawley, Jr., Louis A. Davis, Frank A. To be restored, Joseph L. Barton

The town clerk and selectmen will have a busy day to day (Saturday) administering the oaths to many new voters.

There does not appear to be much interest taken in political matters so far this year. Caucuses will be held next week anw no talk is yet heard as to any candidate who wants to represent the town. The republicans will hold their caucus on Tuesday evening to select a candidate.

Grades I and II: Florence Baton, Harvey Kennedy, John Murphy, Michael Pudalski, George Edmond, Jr.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago in Norwich occurred the annual election of pound keepers, sealers of weights and measures, gaugers, haywards, weighters and other town officers. Charles E. Dyer was the moderator for the election which was held at 3 o'clock in the afternoon of Monday, October 5, 1876, the officers being elected by an aye and nay vote. The same week the Preston republicans raised a political flag on Main street and the Niagara hose company elected P. W. Pratt as its foreman. Interesting extracts taken from the files of the Bulletin of October, 1876 are as follows:

Monday, October 2, 1876—(Bulletin of this date missing from the files.)

Tuesday October 4, 1876—The election in this town yesterday passed off without much excitement though there was a good deal of hard work done by the democrats. Mr. Charles E. Dyer presided and made an efficient and impartial moderator.

The meeting was called to order at 3 o'clock. Town officers were elected by an aye and nay vote as follows:

Pound keepers—Cyrus R. Park, Edward A. Stery, William P. Ford, Frederic Manjes and Elias R. Corey.

Sealers of weights and measures—John P. Barstow, George R. Cryer, Henry McNelly, T. Y. Winship and Myron Sears.

Gaugers—Jonathan Trumbull and Fred L. Gardiner.

Weighers—Samuel B. Case, Enoch F. Chapman, William C. Tucker, H. H. Osgood, George D. Fuller, John Hanna, Robert Herrick, Horace U. Sherman, Sylvester Subert, Edwin A. Roath, Henry Palmer.

Oyster committee—Edwin Fay, Harvey Chapman, and William Story.

Packers—Joel Kinne, Charles J. Winters and Addison H. Gardner.

The Preston republicans raise a flag today and a very enjoyable time is expected. There will be a large turnout of the republican organizations.

At the annual meeting of the Niagara Hose company No. 2, held last evening, the following were elected officers for the ensuing year: Foreman, P. W. Pratt; first assistant, John Nolant; second assistant, William Blackburn; Clerk, Thomas Nolan; treasurer, William Hall.

Wednesday, October 4, 1876—The republican citizens of Preston hung out a Hayes and Wheeler flag on Main street last evening and the event was made the occasion for a splendid demonstration on the part of the republican campaign organizations last evening.

The third organ recital at the Park church yesterday was more largely attended than any of the others and evidently very much enjoyed. We may say that both Mr. Kies and Mr. Konsalik did themselves credit.

The new ordinance closing the saloons at 11 o'clock is received with a good deal of disfavor as no one knows now where to find a city official after that hour.

Thursday, October 5, 1876—The balloon seen over the city Tuesday noon, was the W. H. Donaldson, from Bridgeport, containing the aeronaut, D. S. Thomas. The balloon started at 10 o'clock in the forenoon and landed at Rockland, Mass., at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. In attempting to light the anchor was lost, and Mr. Thomas was spilled out, injuring him somewhat while the balloon sailed out to seaward and was lost.

The first social of the season will be held at Steiner's hall, tomorrow evening, under the auspices of the Norwich Rowing association. The club has only been organized a short time, but nevertheless promises a pleasant time to all who may attend.

Yesterday, being a warm and pleasant day, most of the boys who attend school were taken suddenly sick and were obliged to go out in order to pitch pennies behind the barn.

Friday, October 6, 1876—A large and brilliant party gathered at the residence of Mrs. William T. Norton on Broadway last evening to witness the mairriage of her daughter, Miss Angelina P. Norton and Mr. Edward D. Fuller, well known in connection with the firm of Norton Bros. The ceremony was impressively performed by the Rev. M. M. G. Dada. Mr. and Mrs. Fuller left for their bridal tour early in the evening.

The yearly dinner of the Bill library is always looked forward to as one of the pleasant events of the fall. The seventh annual celebration took place at the parsonage given by the Hon. Henry Bill of this city (also the founder of the library) to the church at Ledyard and was an exceedingly enjoyable event.

Mr. George A Reed, formerly of this city, one of the editors of Turf, Field and Farm, is in town on a short visit to his many friends, all of whom will give him a hearty welcome.

Saturday, Oct 7, 1876—Mr. Charles Ledward of Westerly was instantly killed yesterday at his quarry in that place, by the fall of the boom of the derrick. His brother was killed by the cars at Bridgeport a few weeks ago.

An alarm of fire from box 36, yesterday noon, was caused by a bed taking fire at a small tenement at the Falls, on Yantic street. It was extinguished with slight loss.

Gen. James R. Coit is reported as saying that Norwich will send a company of 150 soldiers to the democratic gathering at Albany this month. We doubt it.

The Norwich Rowing association had a very pleasant dance in Steiner's hall last night.

NOANK

The Durham club was formed years ago and numbered many old-timers who came to Noank for a visit. A reunion was held in Traver hall recently by the club, ex-President Edgar Ashby opening the meeting. He gave an address to the old-timers and several made speeches. A wrestling match was put on for the members between Big Babe Adams and William Fitzgerald, formerly of Jewett City. It was a hard fought match, Adams took the first fall with a half-Nelson and the next one went to Fitzgerald by a toe hold.

The last fall was a long one, but Fitzgerald got his famous toe hold, which put Big Adams to the mat. Fitzgerald is under the management of Joe Walsh, who has trained him well. The old-timers enjoyed the wrestling, following which an oyster stew was served by Steward Edward Morgan, to the members. Cigars were passed. This is the first time the club has met in ten years.

The Crushers' football team held a practice game at William's Field under Coach Elliott Bennett, who thoroughly understands football. He used some new plays against the second team which proved a success. Flash McDonald, the star quarterback carried the ball over for two touchdowns for the regulars. The subs could not break the strong line of the regulars. The team is putting in hard practice for the game with New London Sunday.

The steamer Alderback, which the men tried twice to haul out on the ways at the shipyard, and which each time broke the chain, went back in the water Thursday afternoon and was finally hauled into place. The steamer will receive painting and a general overhauling. Getting her on the ways was in charge of A. Meister.

Nellie, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Zuccardy of Prospect Hill, celebrated her tenth birthday, entertaining a number of her playmates. Games were played and the prize in the donkey game went to Muriel Carpenter, while Buleah McDonald was second singing school songs. A large birthday cake in the center of the tables held ten candles. The little girl received many gifts.

Local friends of Miss Charlotte Smith, student nurse at Hartford hospital, are pleased to hear of her recent success in receiving a new ribbon for her cap at a recent social affair among the nurses. Miss Smith recently won prizes, one being for toe dancing. Miss Smith is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Smith of this village.

Mr. and Mrs. Durwood Main and daughter have left for a few months' visit in Minneapolis.

Mrs. Ben Latham and daughter, Ethel, are spending several days in Waterbury.

Freeman Roger has gone to Spring Hill to visit relatives.

Mrs. Lewis Martin of New York is at her cottage at Groton Long Point for a week.

Amasa Banks has entered the employ of the J. H. Webster Heating Co.

Charles Burrows of the village, the newly elected assessor, commenced work with the board of assessors of the town of Groton meeting Thursday at the town hall in Poquonoc.

Miss Emma Fish is spending a few days with Ansonia relatives.

Walter McKnight of Lowell, Mass., is spending a few days with Frank Pray.

Harold Burbine of Fishers Island is home on a visit.

Several members of the Baptist church who went by automobile to attend the installation of Rev. L. J. Shepler at the Union Baptist church, Mystic, were in charge of Rev. F. Wiese of Noank church.

William Chappell has returned from a fishing trip to Block Island.

William Franklin has gone to Boston to spend a few days with friends.

Deaths from automobile accidents in 73 of the principal cities of the United States totaled 4,163 during the first 36 weeks of 1926. This is an average of more than 16 deaths a day and is equivalent to an annual death rate of 12.9 for every 100,000 persons.

MYSTIC

Those having late corn and other vegetables and flowers have been greatly pleased that the frost has held off and nothing in this vicinity has been harmed. Several are interested in growing dahlias for pleasure and on the east side the one who excels in this is Jesse B. Stinson. Probably he has as large a variety in size and color, as any one. Miss Carrie Chapman has a good collection. On the west side, B. D. Williams of Grove avenue has many choice kinds. G. E. Tingley on Edcomb street has been growing them for seventeen years profiting by so many years of experience. Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McGuire on River road have many kinds of flowers and at present their long border of asters is beautiful.

Mrs. Sarah Herrick Ketcham of Pearl street will observe her 90th birthday Sunday. Her children and grandchildren will be present. Mrs. Ketcham is active and able to assist in the household duties. She is blessed with full faculties and can relate many interesting facts concerning the residents and the village from 50 to 75 years ago. She has lived to see the many inventions during the last half century and enjoy many of them.

The meeting of Mystic grange No. 171 as held Thursday evening with 124 present; 42 were visitors, 30 coming from Ledyard grange. Worthy Master L. O. Allen presided. One member was voted in. The secretary was instructed to send a letter of sympathy to Dr. C. F. Congdon, who has been ill for a month. Words of appreciation were expressed for his untiring work in the grange as though his efforts it was re-organized nearly two years ago. It has a membership of 190 and is flourishing. John Jones, chairman of the fair committee reported progress with prospects of it being a success when it is given. The grange closed in due form and then Mrs. Irene Hanks, lecturer of Ledyard grange announced the program she had arranged. The first number was a selection by Ledyard grange orchestra, Harry Hanks, Miss Phyllis Hanks, Frederic Allyn, violins, Mrs. William L. Allyn, pianist. An encore was given; vocal solos by Frederic Burton, Mrs. Allyn accompanist; reading, Mrs. Virginia Tubbs; vocal solo, Alonzo Shafer, guitar accompaniment by Miss Rose Shafer; recitation, Alonzo Shafer; vocal solo, Frederic Allyn.

Each responded to an encore. A playlet entitled "Dr. Cureall" was presented. Characters: Doctor, Jo Davidson, Mrs. Davidson, Miss M. Smith; Mr. and Mrs. Avery Main, Mr. and Mrs. Norcross, Rose Norcross, Mrs Irvin; vocal solo, Miss Phyllis Hanks; recitation, Miss Martha Morgan; recitation, Alonzo Shafer; recitation, Walter Morgan, Jr.; solo, Frederic Allyn. At the close of the program Mrs. Rebecca Eldredge and assistants served ice cream and cookies. The hall was decorated with flowers from several gardens. The dahlias from J. B. Stinson's were especially beautiful. Notice was given that Oct. 21 will be an open meeting with Charles M. Gardner of Springfield, the speaker.

The subject of Rev. Frederick G. Chutters sermon Sunday morning will be Francis of Assisi.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Main of Westerly spent Thursday evening here.

The Sewing society of Charity chapter, O. E. S., met Friday afternoon with Mrs. Elias F. Pray on Noank Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark Barnes and children have gone to Florida for the winter.

Mrs. John Wood has returned to New York after spending a week with Mrs. L. F. Park.

E. H. Barnes has returned from Michigan where he was called three weeks ago by the death of his brother-in-law.

Mrs. Leon Gaskin is in jail in Philadelphia, rather than tell on hubby. She was sentenced to six months for selling liquor, having failed to accept an offer of freedom if she would reveal the whereabouts of her missing spouse, who is accussed of the same offense.

Eastern Connecticut's Leading Credit Jewelers

Starting seven years ago, in New London, in one of the smallest stores in that city, this business has grown until today it has become one of the largest jewelry stores in Eastern Connecticut. To give better service to our many customers in Norwich and vicinity it has become necessary to establish a store in your city, so here we are. We ask that you come and look us over.

Service and honest dealing with our customers, serve as the foundation upon which we have built this big jewelry business. To date this store has bought out the stock of three New London jewelers and the tremendous stock carried enables us to offer you gigantic values in jewelry at prices that seldom bother and never hurt.

In extending credit to our friends in Norwich we believe we are affording all who desire, to have the things they need and want. We fully realize that manufacturers extend credit to retailers and we believe that this should be passed along to you — you're entitled to it. Our method of doing credit business is such that you are not asked to fulfill impossible payments — we try to make the best possible plan of payment for both of us.

Weekly payments and time to pay is the best policy for steday earners. A man gets what he wants when he goes after it with something to offer in exchange. This firm is after the biggest jewelry business in Norwich. In exchange for it we offer good values, dependable merchandise and unlimited faith in Norwich people, as shown by our credit policy of a little down and plenty of time to pay.

CREDIT PUTS FINE JEWELRY WITHIN REACH OF EVERYONE. PAY FROM YOUR PAY. "The working man is entitled to the privilege of a charge account granted the rich man."

Laughing Corn

There was a high majestic fooling
Day before yesterday in the yellow corn.

And day after tomorrow in the yellow corn
There will be high majestic fooling.

The ears ripen in late summer
And come on with a conquering laughter.
Come on with a high and conquering laughter.

The long-tailed blackbirds are hoarse.
One of the smaller blackbirds chitters on a stalk
And a spot of red is on its shoulder
And I never heard its name in my life.

Some of the ears are bursting.
A white juice works inside.
Cornsilk creeps in the end and dangles in the wind.
Always—I never knew it any other way—
The wind and the corn talk things over together.
And the rain and the corn and the sun and the corn
Talk things over together.

Over the road is the farmhouse.
The siding is white and a green blind is slung loose.
It will not be fixed till the corn is husked.
The farmer and his wife talk things over together.
—Carl Sandburg, in "Cornhuskers."

Ode on Solitude

Happy the man, whose wish and care
A few paternal acres bound,
Content to breathe his native air
In his own ground

Whose herds with milk, whose fields with bread,
Whose flocks supply him with attire;
Whose trees in summer yield him shade,
In winter, fire.

Blest, who can unconcernedly find
Hours, days, and years, slide soft away
In health of body, peace of mind,
Quiet by day.

Sound sleep by night; study and ease
Together mixed, sweet recreation.
And innocence, which most does please,
With meditation.

Thus let me live, unseen, unknown;
Thus unlamented let me die;
Steal from the world, and not a stone
Tell where I lie.
—Alexander Pope.

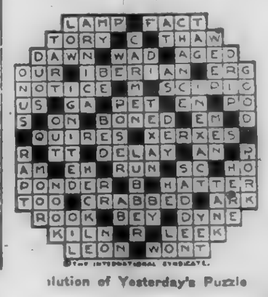
Behind the brush peered the painter, who took one look over the side and then withdrew to the safest spot he could find.

Edward R. Armstrong of Philadelphia, is the inventor of a "seadrome," which, he says, can be anchored in the Atlantic ocean to serve as an airplane base and will make trans-oceanic flights practical. The floating field is equipped with buoys and resistance disks, which give great lightness and at the same time are only slightly affected by winds and waves. He has been working on the model for 20 years.

Food that had been canned for 8 years was opened recently and tested by a Dutch physician, Van Leersum. It was a meat hash, including onions and potatoes, and the doctor's conclusion was that the food was quite suitable for human consumption. The essential thing in canning, Dr. Van Leersum decided, was that all the air should be exhausted from the can in sealing. Oxygen, he said, was responsible for any corrosion that occurred.



Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

NEW LONDON MAN DESERTS WIFE-- SPENDS LEISURE IN JOY-RIDING

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 9—A case of neighborly charity, also of the inhuman treatment of a wife by her husband was revealed this evening when it became known that Mrs. Faracinni, 19 Shapley street, wife of Adolph Faracini, was ill in bed at her home, her three year old child is being cared for by a neighbor and nursing is being accorded the woman, together with medicine prescribed by a physician is being purchased and administered to the woman, because her husband has deserted her and apparently has left her to get along the best she can. Faranic undoubtedly will not be allowed to neglect the woman, for the police this evening when informed of the conditions at the Faracini residence took steps to compel Faracini to support his wife and it is among the possibilities that he will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning, especially if he continue to neglect and provide for his wife and child. A statute exists that compels a husband and father to properly care for his family.

Shortly before 8 o'clock, Patrolman George Perkins, with beat on Main street, was informed of Mrs. Faracini's plight. The officer investigated and found the woman ill in bed and under the care of Dr. Hugh Lena. A fire provided heat in the house, the fuel having been procured by neighbors. Officer Perkins ascertained of the many acts of the neighbors in administering charity to the stricken woman and also ascertained that Faracini was living but a short distance from his home. He had deserted his wife and child two weeks ago and had gone to the home of his mother. Officer Perkins reported the predicament of Mrs. Faracini to police headquarters and to Acting Prosecuting Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky, the latter ordering an investigation made with orders to arrest Faracini if he continue to refuse to support his family. Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield is to interrogate Faracini and will make his report to the acting prosecutor. Mrs. Faracini is greatly depressed because of the treatment accorded her by her husband who spends, it is said, the greater part of his spare time, driving about in his car mostly.

The funeral of Thomas Rowe was held at 9 o'clock this morning at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by many relatives and family friends. A high mass of requiem was sung by Rev. Steele Perkins of 26 School street, Groton, a patient at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital, was discharged today.

Youthful bicycle thieves operated with more or less success here this afternoon for three bicycles were stolen from streets in the lower end of the city. However, two of the stolen bicycls were recovered in good condition, but th third when found was damaged, the front wheel being entirely demolished. The parents of two of the boys guilty of stealing the smashed bicycle paid Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield $12 that a new wheel could be purchased. The youthful thieves numbered five and reside in the vicinity of Shaw street. They went about the street and where a bicycle was found without its owner being nearby the bicycle was stolen and the gang going for rides. The police were notified of the thefts and in a short time the gang was corailed. They will be presented in the juvenile court within a fw days.

A Polish resident of North Bank street tonight, was the only violator of the law under arrest and awaiting trial in the police court tomorrow morning. He was arrested this afternoon by Patrolmen Ernest Opperman and Clarence Martin charged with intoxication and upon complaint of his wife, who started that the man created a disturbance at their home and she could not live in peace and comfort with the husband in his drunken condition.

William Lonergan, plumber, residing at 33 Colman street, suffered painful injuries this afternoon when he fell from a ladder upon which he was working and was injured about the limbs and body. He was taken to his home and attended by a physician. It will not be definitely known for a da, or two whether Lonergan is badly hurt.

Lonergan was employed in making repairs to pipe and gutters on the Woolworth building, State street and a ladder was placed against the building. While Lonergan was at the top of the ladder he lost his balance and fell about 35 feet to the ground. He was given medical treatment and then removed to his home where he received additional treatment.

The body of Curtis Roy Penney the Somerville, Mass., young man, who was fatally injured in Waterford on Wednesday afternoon when the automobile of Paul Kushner, Niantic and in which Penney and a companion, William Stead, Mentheun, Mass., were riding overturned, was forwarded to Penn's home today. At Lawrence-Memorial hospital it was stated that there is but slight change in the condition of Stead and Kushner, the latter having a possible fractured skull and possible fractured left hip. Stead suffered several fractured ribs and lacerations. The state police, Groton barracks, are conducting an investigation and as soon as his condition will permit Kushner will be arrested on a charge of manslaughter. It has not been explained what caused Kushner to lose control of the steering wheel, which resulted in the overturning of the automobile and pinning Penney beneath it.

News has been received in New London of the death at West Suffield this week of Mrs. Mary Ann Hastings, widow of James G. Hastings and the mother of Rev. Stephen G. Hastings, former pastor of the Montville Baptist church and the Baptist church at Jewett City. Rev. Mr. Hastings died several years ago.

Robert A. Rutherford, Old Lyme, reported to the police yesterday morning that his room at the Hotel Winthrop, State street, had been entered and that his gold watch, bearing his monogram on the back had been stolen. Yesterday afternoon after Rutherford, who did not make known his supposed loss at the hotel office, had left the city, a chamber maid in preparing the room occupied the night before by Rutherford for occupancy, found the watch in bed. It was turned over to the hotel management and today it was taken to the police station that Rutherford might recover his property.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Corcoran, recently married have returned from their wedding trip through New York state and into Canada. Mr. Corcoran is assistant postmaster in this city.

Mrs. Frederick Lewis and infant son, of 66 Connecticut avenue and Harry Holloway, Groton, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

The annual meeting of the Ancient Order of Hibernians was held in Temperance hall, Huntington street, last evening and resulted in the following officers being elected: President, Bartholomew J. McCarthy; vice-president, Peter Cunningham; recording secretary, George M. Kennedy; financial secretary, Patrick Harkins; treasurer, Patrick J. Ryan; sergeantat-arms, Dennis McAuliffe; sentinel, Thomas Sheehan; marshal, Timothy C. Sullivan; trustee for three years, John Tansey. The following standing committees were appointed: Hall, Patrick J. Harkins, George M. Kennedy and William T. May; standing, Thomas Guill, chairman; Patrick J. Leary, Charles E. Cavanaugh, Timothy Corcoran and John McCarthy. The newly elected officers will be installed by County President George M. Kennedy and his staff next month at a joint meeting of the division and the ladies' auxiliary.

Hiram Gerboth of New York, and Miss Ruth A. Patte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Myron G. Pattee of 74 Williams street, were married in New York yesterday afternoon. The ceremony was performed in the Little Church Around the Corner. William L. Crane, Pittsburgh, was best man and Miss Katherine L. Troland, this city attended the bride. Mrs. Gerboth is a graduate of Connecticut college for women. Mr. and Mrs. Gerboth will make their future home in Richmond Hills, N. Y.

At the annual meeting of the Junior League of Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital held at St. James parish house yesterday afternoon the following officers were elected: President Lorna McGuire; vice president, Alice Fisher; secretary, Frances Doll; treasurer, Dorothy M. Church.

Willard R. Seylot, United States coast guard, and Miss Eileen Potter, daughter of Mrs. Nora Potter, Methodist street, were married yesterday afternoon by Justice of the Peace Perry J. Hollandersky.

Mrs. Calvin A. Beebe, Fitch avenue, is in Philadelphia where she joined her husband for an indefinite stay.

Mr. and Mrs. John McConville, 128 Bank street, have returned home after a three week's automobile trip, visiting the sesqui-centennial at Philadelphia, Atlantic City, Pittsburgh and Washington.

The police court had before it today a bunch of drunks of varying degrees of offensiveness. James Mulrani, a good-natured but filthy specimen of the worker who earns so much money that he is careless with it, was arrested for the second time in 48 hours. He forfeited a bond of $25 yesterday because he failed to appear after his release. Today he was ordered committed to jail for a stay of ten days, but on his promise to get back to his work the execution of that judgment was suspended. Jimmy and Joe Macumber were together when Jimmy was arrested the first time. Joe was sent to jail. He was released on a bond of $25 furnished by Mulrain so that Joe had a night out, even after he was my was released he was sent to the my was released h ewas sent to the jail and paid a fine of $5 and the costs of committing him to jail. Both men left the court determined to go back to their work at the island.

Steve Butchka, a man with a family of five children, seems to be unable to keep away from booze, so he fails to provide for his family and compels his wife to work. Naturally she tired of that situation and secured the arrest of Steve. Judge Prince told him he should be in jail and that he wanted to send him there, but sympathy for his wife and children made him hesitate. Butchka has served a term in jail, but he failed to learn the lesson his experience would teach. Today Butchka was sentenced to jail but then he was put on probation that he might make good on a promise he had made.

Steve Sanosky was propped up against a building unable to move without falling when he was found by the police. He was a first time visitor to court, so he was released.

James Brown, an old man, who has done time in jail for inebriety, was a frank witness when he was asked whether he was drunk yesterday. He admitted that he was and could explain no other ground than that he just "got drunk." He works at any employment he can find when he is sober and Probation Officer Mansfield undertook today to get him back in the industrial harness.

A couple of speeding autoists were reminded that they must reduce speed when going by intersecting streets, and with their promise to heed the warning were released. It will be well for one of the accused if he refrains from speeding in the future. He has had his lesson but he has yet to learn it.

Frank B. Walker is home from New York, where he has been in conference with William T. Dewart, who succeeded to the management of the Munsey interests here.

Reports from Mrs. Gertie Jordan Macomber, seriously ill, are to the effect that she is more comfortable today than she has been during her illness.

LEFFINGWELL

Friday evening the Leffingwell school Improvement league held its October meeting in the school. The nominating committee, Mrs. E. Bedat, Roy L. Beard and Mrs. Forrest A. Leffingwell proposed the following for officers for the new year. President, Miss Mary Hracky; vice president, Milton Caroline; secretary, Miss Alice A. Bishop; treasurer, Mrs. Roy L. Beard; executive committee, Miss Mary Hracyk, C. Thomas Leffingwell and Edward Caroline.

RECOVERY IN STOCK PRICES

NEW YORK, Oct. 8—(AP)—Heavy week-end short covering, after five consecutive days of steadily declining prices, brought about an irregular recovery in today's stock market after a temporary sinking spell which followed the extreme break of about $4 a bale in cotton and the marking up of call money rates. Final quotations disclosed a fairly long list of gains ranging from 1 to 5 points, interspersed with a smaller number of similar declines.

The break in cotton overshadowed all other financial developments, because it was due to the publication of a government crop estimate of 16,627,000 bales, compared with the previous record crop of 16,135,000 bales produced in 1914. The new prices of cotton reflected heavy hedging by mill owners with the result that a sharp rally set in, reducing the net loss on the day to about $2.50 a bale.

With few exceptions, the rally in stocks was not very impressive. General Motors dropped from an early high of 157 1-2 to 152 1-4 and then snapped back to 156 1-2 for a net gain of 1-2 on the day. U. S. Steel common closed more than a point higher at 146 3-8 after being down to 144 3-8, some of the late buying being influenced by expectations of a sizeable increase in the September unfilled orders of the corporation to be made public at noon tomorrow.

Lambert Co. was one of the outstanding individual strong spots, rallying over 6 points to a new high record at 68, as against a low of 39 1-2 earlier in the year, on reports of large current earnings. Loose Wiles Biscuit jumped 7 1-2 points on a few sales. Substantial gains also were recorded by the Burns Bros. issue, Case Threshing Machine, Dupont, Marine preferred and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe. Local tractions were again in good demand. Montgomery Ward improved fractionally on the announcement of dividends.

Erratic fluctuations took place in Warner Pictures A, which opened at 61 1-4, advanced to 63 3-4, broke to 57 3-4 and closed at 58 for a net loss of 3 1-2 points. Pathe broke over 6 points to a new low at 44 1-2 and Americus Republics collapsed 8 points on one sale to a new minimum at 47.

Rails received better support than the industrials. Sharp recoveries took place in Chesapeake & Ohio, Pittsburgh & West Virginia, Nickel Plate and Delaware and Hudson.

Active wheat futures declined about a cent a bushel in sympathy with the decline in cotton. Raw Sugar was unchanged and coffee price eased slightly.

Call money renewed at 4 1-2 per cent and then advanced to 5 as banks called about $20,000,000 in loans in order to strengthen their reserve position over the week-end. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

A sharp rally of 10 points in Italian lire, which sold around 3.95 cents, featured the firm foreign exchange market. Demand sterling held steady around $4.84 3-4 and French francs were quoted around 3 7-8 cents.

Face and neck covered with eruption

Resinol cleared it away

Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 20:—"I think Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment are wonderful—I was a sufferer from skin trouble and I know what they did for me. I had only a few pimples at first, but this infection soon spread until they covered my face and neck and made me look disgraceful. They irritated me so I could scarcely keep my fingers off them. I tried various treatments, but none gave more than temporary relief. A friend recommended Resinol and I bought a jar of ointment and a cake of soap. After the second application of each, the itching stopped and when I had used the Resinol products for five weeks, there was not a trace of the trouble left." (Signed) Arthur Smith, 489 Hudson Ave.

POPULAR YALE PROFESSOR AT CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

Prof. William Lyon Phelps will address the Central Baptist church at the morning service tomorrow (Sunday) at 10:30. Dr. Phelps is Lampson Professor of English literature at Yale, the students of which have repeatedly voted him the most popular member of the faculty. He is an authority on Russian literature, English poetry, the drama and the development of the novel, and is as well a leading exponent of the Bible considered as both a monumental work of literature and the divine source of truth.

According to Professor Phelps it is possible to consider the New Testament merely as a literary work. It is especially the literary masterpiece of all time, as superior to Shakespeare, Homer, Goethe, Dante, Tolstoi as they are superior to the commonplace, but it is essentially a spiritual book, and cannot be understood at all unless there is some spiritual capacity in the reader's heart and mind.

Professor Phelps is the author, among many other works of "Reading the Bible," "Human Nature in the Bible," and "Human Nature and the Gospel." The professor has also written two volumes of essays on contemporary writers and on the works on secular literature and the drama.

The seats at the Central Baptist church are free.

The officers of the association are: President, Myron E. Center; vice president, Joseph Cooper; secretary [illegible] Nichols Seiss, and the program committee is M. J. Creeger, A. S. Muirhead, J. E. Duxbury.

SECURES FIRST REGISTRATION FOR AUTOS FOR 1927

The distinction of being the first to receive motor vehicle registration plates for the year 1927 is held by Orrin B. Waters of Hartford. The holder of Number 2[illegible], she made application October 2, the day after the state motor vehicle department sent out 270,000 application blanks to present registrants, and received the same number she holds this year. Three other registrants took out their 1927 registration on that day at the main office in the capitol; four did so at the New London branch, two at the Bridgeport branch and one each at the New Haven and Stamford offices. The Waterbury office issued none on that date, which was virtually the first that it was possible to receive registrations, since the applications blanks did not go out in the mails until the afternoon before. Including the registration business done "over the counters" of the various registration offices and by mail, forty-nine registrations were issued Oct. 2, as of January 1, 1927.

Few of the numbers which appear to be considered by many automobilists to be the choicest, either because of their smallness or other distinctive features, have yet been issued, but the present holders of them will have until November 15 to reserve them. After that date, any of those numbers which have not been reserved, by the payment of the fee in advance and the submission of a written request, will be issued at the convenience of the department. Registration No. 1 has been held by Judge James P. Woodruff of Litchfield since the state first began issuing motor vehicle markers. There is always a demand for the registration numbers corresponding to the number of the year during which it is to be used. No. 1927 is held this year by Ella A. Rogers of Westport.

SEVEN AUTOMOBILE OPERATORS TO BE GIVEN HEARINGS

Hearings for automobile drivers are to be given next Thursday at 2:30 p. m. at the common pleas court room as follows:

Sam Kaliunovicz Colchester, reckless driving. Clarence Johnson, Box 135, Pomfret operating without permission. Joseph Ladyka, 27 Greenmanville avenue, Mystic, operating under influence. J. Albert Domonitique, 245 Yantic street, Norwich, reckless driving. Albert J. Richard, 44 Liberty street, Westerly, R. I. operating under influence. David R. Lee, U. S. S. Camden, submarine base, New London, reckless driving. Clifford Kelly, Box 41, Contoocook, unregistered car.

FRENCH VET ARRIVES WITH TWO RELICS OF WAR

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—(AP)—A "two cylindered veteran" of the French army, one of the two remaining [illegible] taxis that carried troops to the Marne battle front in 1914, made its New York debut today, running on its own power to city hall plaza to receive the official welcome of Mayor Walker.

Bound for this country to be exhibited at the American Legion convention in Philadelphia, the cab will be carried by truck tonight to the Quaker city.

A little wheezy, and not so fast as in the days when it carried emeregency troops to the Marne to stop the German advance on Paris, the taxi was given down Fifth avenue accompanied by a host of French and American Legionnaires, including Colonel Yves Picot, head of "The Society of Bustel Mugs," a group of 2,000,000 Frenchmen who were wounded and mutilated during the war.

The cab will be taken to Washington to be viewed by President Coolidge before its return to the Renault museum near Paris.

LOS ANGELES TO TAKE OFF MONDAY FOR DETROIT

LAKEHURST, N. J., Oct. 8—(AP)—Lieutenant Commander Charles F. Rosendahl, flight commander of the dirigible Los Angeles, announced on his return from a flight to Newport, R. I., that weather permitting, the airship will take off Monday morning on a training cruise to Detroit. The flight was expected to be of three days duration and while in Detroit, the ship will be moored to the mast erected at the Ford field.

The two day flight to Newport was [illegible] satisfactory to the high command. It was undertaken for crew training, he said, and was without event.

COL. ROOSEVELT SUFFERS FROM A CARBUNCLE

GASOLINE MADE HAZARD IN FIRE ON BARGE

The coal barge Wilmington of Norfolk, Va., owned by the Southern Transportation Co., of Philadelphia, Captain A. M. Smithson in charge, was threatened with destruction by fire about 9:30 o'clock Friday morning. The fire broke out in the deck house while the barge lay tied up at the Chappell company docks. A telephone call to the fire department was quickly followed by a bell alarm from box 116 on Washington square and a prompt response was made by the firemen.

Quick work kept the fire confined to the deck of the boat, preventing it from getting down in the hold which was about half filled with coal. Considerable gasoline stored in the deck-house was removed by the firemen. The recall was sounded about 20 minutes after the alarm. At first it was thought that it might be necessary to cut the barge loose and get her out into the stream to prevent the coal docks from taking fire.

This was the first bell alarm this month.

As the new Studebaker car of Chief Howard L. Stanton was responding to a telephone call for the fire and was on the way down the hill on Shetucket street towards the water front it was in collision with one of the Troy laundry company motor delivery wagons. According to a report made, the driver of the laundry truck seemed to become confused at the approach of the fire chief car and cut across the street from the right to the left side in front of it. Both machines sustained damage to mudguards.

HOLD-UP IN HARTFORD DRUG STORE LAST NIGHT

HARTFORD, Oct. 8.—(AP)—Two men stepped into the drug store at number 1 Wethersfield avenue about 10:40 o'clock tonight and held up E. Jerry Kaufman, the owner and a boy clerk. After backing the two into a rear room, the bandits looted the cash register of $150 and made their escape. They were said to be neatly dressed men about 25 or 30 years old. One of them displayed a revolver with which he covered Kaufman and the clerk while the other took the cash. Detective Sergeant Charles J. Keefe is investigating.

TRUCK LOAD OF BEER DESTROYED BY FIRE

WEST HAVEN, Oct. 8.—(AP)—A truck loaded with near beer was destroyed by fire at railroad cut crossing on the Milford turnpike today after the machine had crashed through a fence and had fallen to the railroad tracks 20 feet below. The driver, William Casey, of West Haven jumped and escaped injury.

The near beer was being transported from New York to points in Connecticut. It was said that the loss to the truck and its contents would total $7,000.

The American Red Cross yesterday authorized an appropriation, the amount unannounced, for relief work in the flood area in Illinois.

ST. LOUIS NATIONALS WORLD CHAMPIONS OF BASEBALL

Errors by Koenig and Meusel Were Directly Responsible for the 3 to 2 Defeat of the Yankees—Alexander Saved the Game for the Cardinals in the Seventh Inning When, With the Bases Full, He Relieved Haines and Fanned Lazzeri for the Third Out—Ruth Made a Home Run in the Third Inning—Shortstop Thevenow of the Cardinals Starred in Fielding.

(By Alan J. Gould).

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The grizzled, weather beaten figure of Grover Cleveland Alexander came back in all its ancient pitching mastery today to check the Yankees for the third time and clinch the first world's baseball championship that St. Louis has known in 40 years.

Through the haze of this, crucial test, the seventh and deciding game of the 1926 diamond classic, the Yankee defense cracked to yield the Cardinals their winning margin of 3 to 2, but it was Alexander the Great who saved the day with as dramatic and exciting a finish as any championship conflict has ever witnessed.

The bases were full, two were out and only one Yankee run was needed to tie the game in the seventh inning when Alexander came to the rescue of the tottering Cardinal right hander. Jesse Haines, whose finger was split from throwing his knuckle ball and whose control was ebbing fast. It was a situation calculated to test the stoutest heart and the most seasoned skill, with $50,000 and a world's championship hanging in the balance, but Alexander was equal to it.

Facing Tony Lazzeri, a rookie almost young enough to be his son, the great veteran hitched his trousers, called on the power of a right arm that has carried him through 16 major league campaigns and struck out his man to retire the side as the crowd broke into a frenzied uproar.

Alexander Subdues Yankees.

Safely past this crisis, the most dramatic moment of the game, Alexander easily subdued the Yankees in the closing two innings, yielding only a pass to Babe Ruth in the ninth, as he completed one of the greatest pitching exploits in world's series history.

Twice before Alexander had stopped the American League champions, going the full route to gain victories that pulled the fighting Cardinals each time back to even terms. It was only yesterday that his masterful box work led the National Leaguers to the triumph that forced the series to the limit, yet he was ready again today, as strong and effective as ever to cap the climax of his heroic role.

Not since the famous right arm of Walter Johnson pulled the Senators to their first world's championship in 1924, has there been anything so coldly calculated as this finish of Alexander's. Two years ago, however, the big train came back victoriously after being twice defeated while this time the stalwart Nebraskian stepped into the breach with two victories already behind him.

Alexander did not get official credit today for a victory that would have put him among the honor roll men who have won three world's series games. The verdict goes down on the books in Haines' name but the glory belongs to Alexander, the 39 year old warrior, who was sold "down the river" a short time ago as a Chicago Cub discard.

Thwarted as they were by Alexander's great stand it was nevertheless a heartbreaking defeat for the Yankees, who battled desperately to overcome a margin they had yielded in the fourth inning when the Cardinals, aided by two errors, by Koenig and Meusel, scored all their three runs. It was heart breaking for Waite Hoyt, young right-hander, who had twirled brilliant, and it was heart-breaking for Babe Ruth, whose fourth home run of the series, again shattering all world's championship records, had put the Yankees in the lead and upset the confidence of Haines, hero of a shutout victory over the American League champions in St. Louis.

But it was thrilling just the same for the Cardinals, themselves, victims of unfortunate "breaks" in previous games, yet possessed of the fighting spirit and pluck to come back when their cause seemed lost and capture, on foreign soil, the final two games that carried them to the world's championship.

Forty years is a long time between titles but this conquering clan, the first National League pennant winner St. Louis has ever had, came through under fire to establish its right to the peak. Back in 1886, when St. Louis, then in the old American Association, was in the throes of its first and last pennant winning streak, its representatives triumphed over the Chicago Nationals in the ancient equivalent to the modern world series.

But those days have almost been forgotten in the long and barren stretch in between. The triumphs of ancient times carried no such glory and gold as goes with victory in the modern classic of the diamond and so today's triumph marks the end of a long train of hope, with the dreams of two score years come true.

Yet it was not by an overwhelming margin that the Cardinals captured the game's biggest prize in a drab, rain-soaked setting that found only 38,000 fans, the smallest crowd of any of the four games in New York, looking on, chilled and bundled in coats. But for the errors of Koenig and Meusel, the Cardinals would not have scored in the fourth and Ruth and Hoyt might tonight be occupying niches in the hall of fame that opened its portals instead to the heroic figure of Alexander.

The Yankees fought desperately to overcome the advantage they had handed to their foes. They drew up within a run of the Cardinals in the sixth, when Hoyt was withdrawn as reserve forces were tossed into the battle, but they were balked then by Haines and again in the seventh by Alexander, as the Cardinals put up a stonewall defense behind the gallant work of their boxmen.

Laurels For Thevenow.

Tommy Thevenow, gallant little shortstop, shared the laurels of the Cardinal's final triumph with Alexander, for it was his fielding that repeatedly checked the Yankee attack and his bat that supplied the decisive blow in the fourth inning. The way for him was paved when Meusel muffed O'Farrell's long fly in his haste to make the throw to the plate, but it was a clean hit from Thevenow's bat, a smoking shot to right, that scored Bell and Hafey with the runs that turned out to be decisive.

Meusel's Error Costly.

Hornsby had been retired in this inning when Bottomley started the fireworks with a single. Koenig let Bell's bot smash slip through his hands for the first Yankee error and then the bases were filled when Hafey's Texas leaguer dropped safely in deft, misjudged both by Meusel and Koenig. Even in the face of these bad "breaks" Hoyt might have escaped unscathed but Meusel dropped O'Farrell's drive while Bottomley scored, and Thevenow's hit completed the attack. Haines and Holm were retired easily but the damage had been done and Hoyt's brilliant work offset.

In only one other inning, the eighth, did the Cardinal attack threaten and then it was checked by Herb Pennock, star Yankee southpaw, hero of two previous victories, who was called on to finish the game after Hoyt had been withdrawn for a pinch hitter in the sixth. Thus Pennock and Alexander, the twin mound aces of the contending clans, battled each other to the close but the game already had been won and lost when they entered the fray and the Yankee star had no such dramaatic opportunity as Alexander faced and capitalized.

Yankees Weak in Attack.

The cracks in the defense of the Yankees hurt most but their failure to seize most of their opportunities on the attack also played a big part in the team's downfall. They threatened in all seven of the innings that Haines was on the mound and had the bases full when Alexander stepped in to the picture but in only two were they able to push over a run.

Ruth's home run, a towering fly that just cleared the right field bleacher screen, produced the first tally in the third inning with two out while Dugan's single, followed by Severeid's long double to left, accounted for the other Yankee run in the sixth, again with two out. Otherwise the decisive punch was lacking.

Ruth, his hitting punch restored for the first time since his record-breaking clouting in the fourth game, was ready and anxious to bat the Yankees into the championship but he had no chance to do it. He was passed to first on his other four trips to the plate, twice purposely by Haines and finally by Alexander in a dramatic moment in the ninth when the big hitter faced the veteran pitcher with two out.

Alexander, no less cool because he knew that one mighty wallop from Ruth's bat would tie the score, started out to pitch to the slugger. He curved one strike over, then a ball, then a kw one shot the Babe swung at, only to four off. Safe thus far, however, Alexander perhaps figured that discretion was the better part of valor, for

MURDER IN BRIDGEPORT WITNESSED BY TWO MEN

BRIDGEPORT, Oct. 10—(AP)—One of the most brutal slayings in the annals of police records in this city, actuated by a debt of $2 and which occurred Saturday night in a basement hovel at 347 Willard street, when John Droudistal, 44, one of the occupants of the basement hovel, was shot four times with an automatic pistol, was followed by a confession today by the murderer, who was arrested a a suspect less than a half hour after the crime was reported to the police. The man who confessed to the shooting is Frank Pullitano, 26, of 284 Willard street. He is held without bail.

Four others, at least two of whom are eye-witnesses and possibly three, but all of whom were in the house when the shooting took place, are also held without bail as material witnesses for the coroner's hearing which is slated for tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at the county court house. The four are Steve Mazurek, an eye-witness who first identified the killer, Samuel Fedorek, Nick Graticiano and Alex Beck.

CONFERENCE OF STATES HAVING GASOLINE TAX LAWS

HARTFORD, Oct. 10—(AP)—Connecticut state motor vehicle department, will send a representative.

All but four of the states in the union have adopted the gasoline tax, which has been effective in Connecticut since September 1, 1921. The states which do not have the tax on gasoline are: Illinois, Massachusetts, New Jersey and New York.

The Connecticut department has notified the promoters of the St. Louis conference that the gasoline tax law is working out satisfactorily in this state.

Connecticut's receipts from the tax year aggregated about $1,900,000 which were, by law, turned over the state highway department for the construction, maintenance or reconstruction of state roads.

GIRL 18 SWIMMING FROM ALBANY TO NEW YORK

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 10—(AP)—Lottie Moore Schoemmel of New York city, long distance swimmer, plunged into the Hudson here this morning in an attempt to lower the time of Mrs. Clemington Corson for the swim down river to New York.

Mrs. Schoemmel, who is the mother of two children, was confident of completing the long grind in four days, two days better than the time required by Mrs. Corson, who was the second woman to swim the English channel.

Late this afternoon, Mrs. Schoemmel had reached Castleton, nine miles down the river, where she expected to rest for three hours.

Five Persons Killed At Grade Crossing

New York Central Train Crashed Into an Automobile Near Syracuse.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Five persons were killed today when a New York Central passenger train crashed into a light sedan in which they were riding, near the New York State fair grounds. The car was reduced to splinters and three of the bodies were carried fully 500 feet.

The dead are: Angelo Serio; Filippio Siobila; Mike Montreal; John Cicchilli and Phillipa De Mascio, all of Syracuse.

Serio was owner of the machine and so far as can be determined was driving at the time of the fatality.

Railroad officials stated tonight they were unable to understand how an automobile could drive onto the crossing, with the view in both directions practically unobscured.

SIX AUTOISTS INJURED WHEN CAR STRUCK POLE

TORRINGTON, Oct. 10—(AP)—An automobile operated by Henry Ruhl, of Westfield, Mass., and carrying six autoists, skidded and struck a telephone pole in East Main street here today. All six were taken to the hospital but the only one seriously hurt was Mrs. Francis Siglin of Longmeadow, Mass., who suffered a fractured leg and a fractured nose. A two year old child Caroline Ruhl, was hurled through the windshield but escaped with a small scalp wound. Others in the party were Florence and Virginia Ruhl and Benjamin Siglin.

FATAL AUTO ACCIDENT ON TORRINGTON-NORFOLK ROAD

TORRINGTON, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Mrs. Peter Ceglowski, 30, of 313 Landale place, Schenectady, N. Y., and her nephew, Frank Ceglowski, Jr., 3, of 103 Norwood avenue, Schenectady, were fatally injured today, when the automobile in which they were riding skidded on the Torrington-Norfolk road and overturned. The boy was sitting on Mrs. Ceglowski's lap and both were thrown out and pinned under the wreckage when the door opened as the car turned over. Mrs. Ceglowski died in the ambulance on the way to the hospital here while the boy died in the hospital, a short time after the accident. Their chests were crushed.

The automobile was operated by Frank Ceglowski, Sr., and there were two other adults and two children in the party. With the exception of the two fatally injured none was hurt.

75-YEAR OLD MAN BEAT 63 YEAR OLD WIFE TO DEATH

CAMDEN, N. J., Oct. 10—(AP)—Benjamin Wallace, 75, today beat his 63-year old wife to death with a dining room chair because "she couldn't stand her nagging any more."

That was the reason the aged man gave when arraigned tonight on a charg of murder. Asked by Prosecutor Westcott whether he had intended killing his wife, Wallace replied:

"Oh, no. I just couldn't stand her nagging any more and got mad and got up and hit her." He said Mrs. Wallace had criticised him for not hanging up his coat and for "using too much sugar."

He had first attacked her with a broom handle, he said. This had broken and he then struck her with a chair. Police believe Wallace's mind became unbalanced.

WHITE MAN KILLED IN PISTOL DUEL WITH NEGRO

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10—(AP)—Michael Giacomo, a boxer known in the prize ring as Harry Laws, was killed and William Matten a negro, was seriously wounded in a pistol battle today, in a house on Washington avenue.

The wounded man was shot three times, but only one bullet had been fired from the pistol Giacomo clutched in his hand when the police arrived. This led to the belief that others had been implicated in the shooting, the cause of which the authorities were unable to learn.

NEEDY 79 YEAR OLD MAN RETURNED $1,250 WALLET

NEW YORK, Oct. 10—(AP)—A 79 year old man, threatened with sickness and trying to live on a salary of $8 a week, found a wallet containing $1250 and returned it to its owner through Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church. Dr. Fosdick told his congregation the story today in a sermon on "What is Your Religion Doing to Your Character?"

Dr. Fosdick said, "I shall not let him suffer now; but I did not tell him that, not until he had made his choice."

Labor Was Theme of Sermons in Detroit

Six Officers and Delegates to the Labor Convention Were in Pulpits.

DETROIT, Oct. 10—(AP)—Spokesmen for the American Federation of Labor, the Detroit Council of Churches and the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America joined today in cordial expressions of good will and charitable understanding from the pulpit of the First Congregational church here.

The large church auditorium was well-filled, a number of delegates to the federation's annual convention, now in session here being among the audience.

The meeting arranged by officers of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, and which was presided over by Dr. Lynn Hardof Hough, president of the Detroit Council of Churches, was addressed by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, Dr. Gaius Glenn Atkins, pastor of the First Congregational church, Rev. Reinhold Neibuhr, of the Bethel Evangelical church, Rev. and Dr. Alva W. Taylor, national industry secretary for the disciples of Christ. The prayer was offered by the Rev. John McDowell, social service secretary for the Presbyterian church in the U. S. A., and the benediction pronounced by Dr. Frank Adams, of the First Universalist church of Detroit.

The meeting was one of eighteen conducted in Detroit today under the auspices of the Federal Council of Churches, sermons of all of which were devoted to the theme of the relations between labor and the church. Six officers and delegates of the labor convention were in pulpits.

At a special service in St. Aloysius Catholic church, this morning, a large number of labor delegates heard the sermon of the Rev. Dr. John A. Ryan, secretary of the social action department, National Catholic Welfare council.

John P. Frey, president of the Ohio Federation of Labor will speak at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning before the Detroit Ministerial association in the general headquarters of the Detroit Y. M. C. A.

The "mass meeting of the citizens of Detroit," at the First Congregational church was told by Rev. Dr. Worth M. Tippy, executive secretary of the church council's industrial commission, that the meeting had been called "in honor of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and as a protest against the indignities to which he and the federation have been subjected and "to utter protest against the affront which the Detroit board of commerce has offered to the churches of Detroit and the Federal Council of Churches."

"It is intolerable," he said, that national officials of the churches and of the American Federation of Labor should be charged with disloyalty to the government."

"I trust that working men throughout the country will recognize that what has happened here today was due to the courageous and aggressive sympathy of the Protestant clergy for the spiritual and social aims of labor.

"The churches can not rightly seek to be partisan, but they are manifestly sympathetic to labor."

Dr. Hough paid tribute to the Catholic church for its special emphasis "in many critical periods of history."

In concluding the meeting, he said no one says the church itself ever could be authority "for the genuine attitude of the church."

The Rev. Dr. Ryan reviewed the history of the Catholic church as a friend and benefactor of labor throughout the world and lauded the American federation for its "sane and constructive leadership." He said the interest of humanity was the first responsibility and the "continuous duty of the church."

FISHING VESSELS TO RACE OFF GLOUCESTER, MASS.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 10—(AP)—After a lapse of three years this historic port tomorrow will witness a renewal of competition for the championship of the fishing fleet. Tonight two swift vessels, the pink of old Gloucester's famous schooners were groomed and ready for the test which will begin tomorrow morning off Eastern Point. Three days of racing over a 40 mile course will decide whether the Henry Ford or the Columbia deserves the title of Gloucester's champion.

There was no favorite tonight as the race lovers gathered to discuss the chances of the series. Each vessel has figured in a contest for the International fishermen's cup. Neither was successful, but the showing in each case was creditable. The two skippers, among the most experienced of the north Atlantic, have met in previous tilts, with honors even. Captain Clayton E. Morrissey of the Henry Ford, was at the wheel of that schooner when she lost to the Canadian champion Blue Nose off Gloucester in 1922. Captain Ben Pine of the Columbia sailed his vessel at Halifax, N. S., against the Blue Nose in 1923 in a series which never was completed.

This will be no yachtmen's battle, but a real race of fishing skippers.

SENATOR WATSON HURT IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 10—(AP)—United States Senator James E. Watson was painfully injured here today when his automobile took to the ditch to save a crash with another car. The senior Indiana senator suffered a scalp wound, bruises about the face and body, a sprained wrist and ankle. The accident occurred near Westfield just north of Indianapolis.

After receiving treatment at Westfield, where it took ten stitches to close the scalp wound, Senator Watson was conveyed in an ambulance to this city where he is confined in the Methodist hospital. Hospital attendants said the patient probably would be required to remain there for a week.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10—(AP)—Detailed reports on hurricane damage at the navy's pioneer air station, Pensacola, Fla., show that 47 of the 230 planes at the station were destroyed, eight buildings wrecked beyond repair and runways, railway tracks and piers badly damaged. The wind rose to 128 miles an hour and was accompanied by an inundation, the tide sweeping 2.34 feet above the mean high level.

The preliminary estimate of damage was $1,000,000.

DAUGHERTY-MILLER JUROR MAKES COMPLAINT TO JUDGE

Henry Van Ost Tells of Duress Exercised by Some of the Veniremen—Asks if it is Fair for Some of the Jurymen to Say to Another Juror "We Will Sit Here Until Christmas Unless Your Agree With Us"—Complains of Vile Language Used by Fellow Jurors—The Jury Had Been Out 41 Hours at 2.30 Yesterday Afternoon, When Judge Mack Called the Jurors to the Jury Box—Declined to Discharge the Jury—At 9.35 Last Night the Jury Was Excused Until This Morning on Account of the Illness of One of the Jurors.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP)—A verdict reached only under duress of the majority is the sole alternative to immediate discharge of the jury in the Daugherty-Miller conspiracy trial one juror asserted from the jury box tonight.

The juror, Henry Van Ost, is generally believed to be the pivot of an acquittal group in the jury, although in his complaints of "duress" to Judge Julian W. Mack, he described a hypothetical juror who had "made up his mind" five minutes after being charged and would not change his opinion or even discuss with other jurors his reasons for holding such opinion. At one time he said "I speak only for myself." Persons peering into windows of the jury room that faces on an open court, have espied this juror in heated debate with his fellows.

At 2:30 this afternoon, Judge Mack called the jurors to the jury box, counsel and defendants first having been assembled in thy court room. At that time the jury had been out 41 hours, having reported inability to agree and having been returned to the jury room yesterday. They were given the case Friday night.

Former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty and former Alien Property Custodian Thomas W. Miller, charged with conspiracy to defraud the government in a $7,000,000 release of war impounded assets, seemed in jovial spirits. Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney general, seemed in better spirits as he paced the corridors.

"I have called you," the judge told the jury, "to say if there is anything you wish to ask at this time. I have not come here to have you tell me as you did yesterday, that you cannot agree, because I am not going to discharge you at this time."

The foreman of the jury replied that some resentment were in favor of paring up any further effort to agree but counsel [illegible] that others wished [illegible]

FRENCH WAR VETS OPPOSE RATIFICATION OF WAR DEBTS

PARIS, Oct. 10—(AP)—The representatives of 400,000 French war veterans informed Premier Poincare today that these ex-soldiers would stubbornly oppose ratification of the Washington and London debt agreements in their present form, even though such action might bring about the downfall of the government.

M. Poincare assured them that France would undertake payments only within her capacity to pay and to a degree that would not disrupt exchange.

The delegation was headed by President Rossignol, of the National Union of Combatants, who presented a resolution adopted this morning by the regional heads of the organization. This resolution set that the ex-soldiers considered seven billion francs an impossible sum to pay the United States and thought that the total should be scaled down.

"Great Britain and America, who shared the advantages of the common victory without running the same risks as France," the resolution added, "should not in simple justice demand from France more than France receives from Germany."

The premier replied that a formula unexpected would be sought by the financial commission, and declared that it was only loyalty to the country to begin from making engagements that could not be carried out.

HAD ROUGH PASSAGE OF ENGLISH CHANNEL

BOULOGNE, France, Oct. 10—(AP)—The passengers on the Cross Channel Steamer Riarritz, who included prominent members of the British nobility and a distinguished delegation from South Africa endured a harrowing experience in the run between Folkestone and Boulogne yesterday in a [illegible] mile gale.

After being swept by tremendous waves, the Biarritz ran aground in Boulogne harbor, but eventually was pulled off by tugs.

Prince Arthur of Connaught, Field Marshall Earl Haig, the Earl and Countess of Buxton, Viscount and Viscountess Gladstone and Colonel L. C. M. Amery, minister for the dominions, General Hertzog, premier of the Union of South Africa, General Maurice Botha, N. C. Havenga, South African minister of finance, Sir William Hoy, director general of the South African railways shared the miseries of the tempestuous voyage with the 120 other passengers, military and civil dignitaries and war mothers, who had come from South Africa to witness the dedication of war shafts in memory of the South African soldiers killed in action on the Somme.

PARIS ASSURES WELCOME TO AMERICAN LEGION

PARIS, Oct. 10.—(AP)—"The American Legionnaires may be assured of the most heartfelt welcome when they come to Paris for their convention in 1927," Albert Sarraut, minister of the interior, told Hilton U. Brown, editor of the Indianapolis News, who called on him today to discuss the proposed visit of the American Legion to Farnce next year.

"What the American soldiers did for us," said M. Sarraut, "has not been forgotten, and can never be forgotten. The memory is a very part of our soul and life. The American soldiers, gay, valiant, cordial, won the affection and admiration of our people wherever they met. The French will be glad to meet them again; the welcome they will receive will be as spontaneous and as enthusiastic as can be conceived."

LEE SAM'S OPIUM OUTFIT AND WOMAN'S PHOTOS SEIZED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 10.—Lee Sam, Chinese manager of the King restaurant, 673 Main street, was arrested in a raid on the place about midnight Saturday on charges of illegal possession fo narcotics and of being a drug addict. The officers found him smoking his opium pipe. Taking the pipa, lamp and drug from a well hidden trap box in the floor of the room in the rear of the restaurant on the second floor of the Turner block, Sam had prepared his mixture and evidence of what had been about could be seen in a thick screen of smoke. An opium smell prevaded the room. The outfit is the first to find its way to police headquarters in local history, as far as could be determined. Sam said that he had not used opium for a period of three years but that he worked very hard and he recently resorted to the drug. Seized along with the apparatus were two pictures of a local young mother who has not been living with her husband for several months. The pictures were found in the room. Sam was released Sunday under bonds furnished by Fred Turner, proprietor of the block. He will be presented in police court Monday morning. The raiding officers were Captain of Police Frank McLean who held a warrant, County Detective William D. Jackson and Police Officers Lariviere and Laramee.

STILL AND MOONSHINE FOUND AT CAREY HILL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 10.—Sweeping into the home of Stanley and Mary Pranusiszyn at 40 Carey Hill, about eight o'clock Saturday night, police officers and County Investigator William E. Jackson found a five-gallon still in operation and over a gallon of the finished product, a poor grade of alcohol. The still with its hot contents of mash and full equipment, including coil and a copper boiler, as well as the alcohol, was seized as evidence. Pranusiszyn and his wife were arrested on charges of violation of the liquor law. The woman attempted to break up bottles of the evidence as the raiding crew entered, but she was frustrated in her attempt. Police officers on the raid were Captain Frank McLean and Patrolmen Laviviere, William Hurley and Marrotte. The accused woman and man furnished bonds of $— for their appearance in police court Monday morning.

ROBERT O. SNOW QUESTIONS RIGHT TO RAISE SALARIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 10.—Attended by only 14 electors, the annual town meeting held in the town hall Saturday afternoon bade fair to break the time as well as low attendance record, but for a delay in listening to and replying to questions put by Robert O. Snow, relative to the proposed increase of salaries of members for the board of relief and a talk for an appropriation of $130,000 for the school expenses of the present year.

Moderator Alfred R. Handfield called the meeting to order at 2 o'clock. Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton read the warning. The reports of the town officers were accepted and the selectmen were authorized to borrow on specific accounts during the year to defray current expenses. Without opposition the following appropriations were voted: $960 to Willimantic Welfare Bureau, $360 to St. Joseph's hospital and $200 to Windham Center library.

Mr. Snow wanted to know why the board of selectmen had not inserted a clause in the warning for action in increasing the board of relief members salaries. First Selectman Ernest P. Chesbro said that after a discussion it had been decided that if an increase was granted in one quarter it would readily be asked for from all others and Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton agreed with him that salary increases for all of the officials should be taken up at one time and then adjusted at a special town meeting. Mr. Snow went on to deplore the fact that he had sent in a bill for his services, but it had not been recognized and that he was money out for his 13 years of service on the board of relief. Eugene J. Randall promptly rose to a point of order. He asked if the clause under fire was in the warning and was answered that it was not. "Why all this talk, then?" queried Mr. Randall, and the argument closed with a final word from Mr. Snow, who said that he had a right to be heard. On behalf of the school board, Mr. Snow spoke for the appropriation of $130,000 for the school expenses for the year. The amount is $5,000 more than last year, due to increased money the town has to pay the state this year.

The Jolly Girls' club held a delightful masquerade dance in the American Thread company old Fire Bridge building, Friday evening, for about 150 costumed guests. The first prize winners were Miss Yvonne Ducharme, dressed as a gypsy girl and Emil Chamberland as a Spanish troubadour. Second winners, Miss Cecile Deschene and Adelard Marchand. A special vaudeville entertainment was provided by Miss Florence Jarvais, Little Eddie and Lillian Brouliette, all clever dancers. The costume judges were William Nichols and Ralph W. E. Carpenter, officials of the American Thread company, Albert Anderson of New Britain and Edward Lafond of this city. The arrangements committee was Mrs. Annette Frappier, Miss Cleodora Deschene and Miss Yvonne Martin. Willy Frappier was prompter for the square dances. Music was by Lester Cotter and his Melody Boys' band.

Resenting an interview relative to recent apple theft activities in North Coventry, Martin Gill, 45, and his son, Stanley, 16, of that place, pitched into State Policeman Fred E. Taylor and landed in court. The elder Gill was charged with breach of the peace and his son with assault and breach of the peace. Both pleaded not guilty. Justice Gilman imposed a fine of $5 and costs on the father and $10 and costs on the son, the former paying $19.05 and the latter $24.05. State Policemen Taylor and Hulburt of the Stafford Springs barracks were conducting investigations into the attempt to steal apples from the cellar of the Phineas Talcott farm a few nights ago, and went to the Gill home, next to the Talcott farm. The questions they asked there put the Gills into a rage and the son swung at Officer Taylor. He was quickly bundled into an automobile when his father also started to fight and he, too, was taken along to the town court.

Adam Chanski of Kick Hill, Lebanon, who has been driving an automobile only nine days, got into trouble on Main street here about 9.30 o'clock Saturday night which resulted in his arrest on a charge of reckless driving. He will appear in police court Monday morning. Chanski was driving a Ford touring car and following a Ford sedan driven by Joseph Marrotte of this city. About opposite the foot of North street, as the South Coventry trolley car was coming along in the same direction as the two automobiles, Chanski tried to cut in and as a result jammed into Marrotte's car.

Rev. Andrew J. Graham, C. B. S., of Boston, member of the board of lectureship of the mother church, delivered a well attended free lecture on Christian Science, under the auspices of the local Christian Science society, in the town hall Sunday evening. The mother church is the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston.

Egine Company No. 1 made two responses to still fire alarms Saturday. In the forenoon the department was called to 48 Prospect street where a Dodge delivery truck owned by the Yankee Fried Cake company of Norwich had developed a short circuit which had set fire to the machine. Residents of the vicinity extinguished the blaze before the firemen arrived. The damage was slight.

In the afternoon a response was made to a call for a chimney fire at 421 Main street, in a house owned by George W. Hickey and Mrs. Yawrence Marrotte. Nine gallons of chemicals were used. The house is occupied by Harry Gray and family.

D. D. Cavanaugh, secretary of the Windham County Poultry, Pigeon and Small Stock association attended the Brockton fair last week in the interests of the annual poultry and small stock fair which is to be held here in January. William H. Dunnock, Jr., of this city was also at the fair and won prizes as an exhibitor of Anconas.

The majority of the total list of 202 names appearing on the list of to be made voters had been admitted up to the closing of Saturday session of the board of Selectmen, Ernest P. Chesbro, and Jeremiah Healy with Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton, held for that purpose in the town building.

The Methodist Episcopal church auditorium was crowded Sunday afternoon, for the mass meeting held as part of the union services programme being conducted here. Rev. Milton S. Rees, of Rochester, N. Y., who has been preaching in the First Baptist church the past week, delivered the address of the afternoon. Mrs. Rees directed a large union choir.

MYSTIC

The first meeting of the Parent-Teacher association was held in Mystic Academy Friday night. Every seat in the room was taken and extra chairs were brought in. Mrs. Adelia B. Gray called the meeting to order and the secretary, Mrs. Florence Deneke read the minutes of the last meeting held before school closed. A number of items of business were transacted. A new baby grand piano has been bought for the kindergarten rooms and the Parent-Teacher association will pay one-half of the cost. The old piano had been in use so many years it was worn out. It was voted to give a $5 gold piece to the pupil satnding highest in the eighth grade, as in past years. Some new china and utensils are needed when teas are served and it was voted to buy them. Mrs. Lapin and Mrs. Burdett are the committee. The usual party will be given in June to the grade having the largest attendance at the meetings. A cake sale will be held before the next meeting as less than $30 is in the treasury. Mr. Wallace was introduced and he explained about the lectures; some were all sold out and some could be obtained only in cold weather, or the price was too high. It was finally voted to have Burton Holmes give a lecture in April at a cost of $950. The lecture given by Dr. Greenfield last April added to the treasury after paying $200 for the lecture and certain small expenses. Miss Osgood gave two piano solos and then Rev. Edward E. Knapp was introduced and for half hour related thrilling experiences when he served as chaplain in the World war in France. Mr. Knapp is a fluent talker and interspersed amusing experiences as well as the Christian and dangerous ones in his address. All were sorry when he concluded, but he promised to give further experiences at another time. Cake and cocoa were served by Mrs. John McGregor, chairman, Mrs. A. M. Taylor, Mrs. Henry Underfurth and Mrs. J. W. Clark.

Miss Louis Paige of Mount Vernon, N. Y., spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Paige who leave today (Monday) for Florida.

Mrs. Lottie Allyn has been confined to her home on Burrows street by illness.

John Jeffrey, 44, died at his home, 37 Willow street Friday night. He had been in failing health for many months but at one time it was thought that he would recover. Mr. Jeffrey was born in West Hartlepoll, England, April 12, 1882, the son of Anthony Whitten Jeffrey and Alice Gillan. He had resided in Mystic for several years and had been an insurance agent. In 1920 he was elected constable and devoted his entire time to his duties, also as night patrolman for the Stonington side of Mystic. He was a member of B. F. Hoxie Engine Co. and Charity and Relief lodge, No. 73, A. F. and A. M. and Stonington lodge, No. 26, I. O. O. F. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Jeffrey. Funeral services were largely attended at local funeral parlors Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and were conducted by Rev. Walter R. Davenport, pastor of the Methodist church. The burial services in Elm Grove cemetery were in charge of the Masons. Delegations were present from each order and there were beautiful floral tributes.

Mrs. Fannie Welles Thompson, 35, wife of Shirley F. Thompson, died in Old Mystic Friday following an illness of some months. Mrs. Thompson was born in the town of Stonington, Sept. 10, 1891, the daughter of George G. and Diantha Caswell Welles. She grew up in Old Mystic, receiving her education in the graded school. She attended the Methodist church. Her passing is particularly sad, for beside her husband she leaves a son by a former marriage, Anson Morgan, and three younger children by her second marriage. Funeral services held at her home in Old Mystic Sunday afternoon were conducted by Rev. L. P. MacLennen. Many relatives and friends were present and there were beautiful flowers. Burial was in Elm Grove cemetery.

The Mystic League of Women Voters held the October meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. Carl Cutler in West Mystic. Officers were elected as follows: President, Mrs. Carl Cutler; vice president, Mrs. Conrad Kretsen, Mrs. Lloyd Moore, Miss Kariska Gates; secretary, Mrs. G. W. B. White; treasurer, Mrs. J. C. Crandall; chairman finance committee, Mrs. E. A. Harrison. There was an interesting talk on current events.

DANIELSON

TO HAVE EVENING SCHOOL IF PUBLIC SO DESIRE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Oct. 10.— Killingly may have an evening school during the fall and winter. It all depends on how many of the residents of this town sufficiently appreciate such an opportunity to come forward and register to assure making the effort worth while. At a meeting of the town school committee the past week end at the office of Supt. W. E. Parker of Killingly's school system petitions were presented asking for the opening of an evening school. The committee expressed its willingness to provide a school evenings if there is a sufficient number interested to make it worth while to conduct one.

To determine this, the committee is giving publicity to the proposal that is before it and asking those who would attend such a school during a full course of study and attend regularly to register at once at the office of Supt. Parker in the town hall building. Registration may not be made later than October 16, and may be made personally or in writing. Anyone desiring to register by letter should give the following information: Name, address, previous education, subjects which they desire to study. The course will be four nights a week, for 20 weeks.

Obviously the town cannot and will not establish an evening school unless there is a sufficient registration to make it worth while. Also all sorts of courses cannot be established to accommodate very limited classes—though the school committee stands ready to provide an evening school for any sufficient number of applicants in essential and practical courses.

This information should make it clear that the town school committee waits on the response of the public for registrations in sufficient number to warrant establishing a school giving evening instruction to those who will attend regularly through a full course, extending into the early spring. This is the week to act on the matter. The committee must decide on the volume or lack of volume of registrations. All interested in improving their educational standards have been invited to reply.

MRS. JAMES F. COFFEY DIES SATURDAY EVENING

DANIELSON, Oct. 10.—Mrs. Ellen Henny, wife of James F. Coffey, died Saturday night at 11.30 at the family home on Mechanic street. Mrs. Coffey had been gradually failing for weeks. In May she became seriously ill with the grip and never fully recovered from the attack. Seven weeks ago she became ill with another ailment that so taxed her depleted vitality that she was unable to successfully combat it, this largely due to her weakened condition and for the past month her recovery has been as almost beyond hope.

Mrs. Coffey was born in Pomfret, November 3, 1851, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Henny. When she was 5 years of age her parents moved to Canterbury, where she lived practically all of her life until coming to Danielson to make her home about four years ago.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Coffey leaves two sons, Patrick H. Coffey of South Killingly and Stephen M. Coffey of Brooklyn and two daughters, Mrs. George Nuttall and Miss Kathryn Coffey of Danielson. There are three grandchildren, Ruth, Francis and Beatrice Coffey of South Killingly.

Mrs. Coffey was a home-loving woman whose greatest interest in a life of rectitude was the well-being of herfamily. Her death is a cause of great sorry to them.

The funeral of Mrs. Eva Boiselle Martin, who died in New Bedford the past week, was held from the home of her sister, Miss Mary Boiselle, Saturday morning, with services at St. James' church at 9.30. Rev. Joseph Deschaux, M. S., was celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Burial as in St. James cemetery, where the committal service was by Rev. Father Ruest. The bearers were Albert Grenier, Joseph Boiselle, Frederick Moulin, John Burke, Dewey Burke and William Mathieu. Funeral Director Martin T. Burns was in charge of the arrangements.

Killingly town school committee has re-organized for the year as follows: Chairman, F. E. Bitgood; secretary, Mrs. Agnes H. Paine; teachers' committee, Mrs. Agnes H. Paine, Damase Boulais, William S. Hunter, Dr. R. C. Prisque, Frank E. Harrington; finance, W. S. Hunter, Damase Boulais, Dr. R. C. Prisque, Frank L. Bennett, Mrs. A. H. Paine; purchasing, Damase Boulais, Arthur F. Bruton, John W. Gallup; transportation, Arthur F. Bruton, W. S. Hunter, Frank L. Bennett; supervision, Mrs. A. H. Paine; Evans fund, J. W. Gallup, Frank E. Harrington, Dr. R. C. Prisque; library fund, Mrs. A. H. Paine; superintendent of schools, William E. Parker.

Saturday morning a car reported stolen Friday night from where it had been parked in School street was recovered, parked in Academy street, where it was learned, it had been left some considerable time after it had been taken. The machine is the property of Charles Butts of East Killingly. When the machine was found missing the fact was reported to both the borough and state police. No trace of it was found until Saturday morning when it was discovered in Academy street, a minute's walk from where its owner left it, prior to its disappearance. The assumption is that someone took the machine for a joy ride, a dangerous thing to do, as anyone responsible will appreciate if they are caught doing such a thing.

There is either a great supply of male pheasants in this territory or these birds are getting themselves killed off in droves at the very opening of the hunting season to save the trouble and worry of hiding up from hunters' dogs and guns for a number of weeks, with the chances of their being annihilated in any case. About every hunter inquired of, as to his luck Friday and Saturday relates "I got the limit," speaking of pheasants, meaning that he came home with at least a pair. Dozens of these beautiful birds have fallen in the annual fall slaughter and there is a plentiful supply left, according to competent observers who have been afield. Partridges are not so plentiful and have the advantage for the time being of protection from the foliage for up to Sunday morning only a comparatively small amount of the leaves on the trees had come off.

Lockers galore are included in the equipment provisions for the enlarged Killingly High school, yet no extravagance has been indulged in figuring out the requirements. When all of the lockers are in place there will be 324 of what is known as the single type and 100 double-tier and 430 box lockers. The locker equipment includes individual lockers in which students will keep their hats, wraps, rubbers, umbrellas set of lockers for gymnasium classes, lockers where street clothes can be left while gym suits are being worn and where gym suits can be kept while not in use. Combination padlocks are to be furnished to students upon depositing 75 cents for each lock. This will insure adequate protection of each locker's contents while the one to whom it is assigned has anything in it for safe keeping. In a case a student gets careless and leaves a locker open while it contains anything belonging to the student to whom it is assigned, that locker will be tagged and the student required to report at the office and explain why he or she has been so careless.

Announcement is made at the post-office that the United States Civil Service commission is to hold an examination here for persons who desire appointments in the government service as typists or stenographers the positions to be filled being located in many different places in the New England states. The usual entrance salary for junior typists is $1140 a year, and for junior stenographers $1320 a year. Senior typists get $1320 a year and senior stenographers $1500. Only males will be admitted to these examinations. The age limits for these examinations are from 18 to 50 years instead of up to 70 years, as formerly. Detailed information relative to the examinations may be obtained at the postoffice.

Baseball fans who gathered at var-ious places about town Sunday afternoon to hear the radio returns of the final game of the World's baseball series were kept in a fever of enthusiasm up to the last moment of play. It may be imagined that the local supporters of St. Louis were delighted at the outcome.

Mrs. Mary Shea and Miss Dora Gilhooley spent Sunday visiting relatives in Providence.

Only a small number of applicants to be made voters came before the selectmen at Saturday's session of town officials for admission of electors.

Assessors of the town of Killingly are now engaged with their official duties and already have received numbers of lists. At the week end they were mailing out assessment forms to non-resident owners of property.

Br-r-r-r. Twenty-eight degrees just before sunrise in Danielson Sunday morning, and frozen plants and other definite end of things for this season. Also hail Sunday afternoon in territory near here, if you do not mind hearing such doleful details. The day seemed to mark the end of any so-called summer weather.

Some baseball games that were scheduled for territory hereabouts Sunday were called off on account of cold and threatening weather.

Members of the Fortnightly club are to meet with Mrs. Harold F. Greene of Maple street Tuesday afternoon.

Following the close of the week's mission conducted at St. James' church by Oblate Fathers, a mission for the French-speaking men of the parish was opened Sunday evening with about 800 in attendance. The mission for the women was brought to a successful close Sunday afternoon.

Miss Katherine T. Thayer, of Wor-cester was a guest over Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Witter of Academy street.

EXPERIMENTS WITH DOGS SHOW HOW THE PARKERS DIED

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 10.—It has been definitely determined that the deaths at Hartford a week ago of Brooks K. Parker, his daughter, Helena, 5, and the serious illness of Mrs. Parker (Miss Gladys White of Pomfret,) was caused by carbon monoxide gas escaping from a gas water heater and gas stove which had no flue connection. Two dogs were used Saturday in the apartment for experimental purposes by interested physicians and the dogs first became inert, then partly paralyzed and eventually unconcious by fumes from the gas devices that were in use. Later tests of the dogs' blood showed identical reaction with that of the blood taken from Mr. Parker while he was unconscious at the hospital and at the point of death.

If there is any pig in a man's nature it is sure to crop out when he travels.

FIRE CHIEF THAYER WINS PRIZE OF $250 FOR DEPT.

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 10.—Charles T. Thayer, superintendent of the Putnam fire alarm system has been notified that he is a winner in a contest of the Gamewell company, manufacturers and outfitters of fire alarm and police signal service. The winning of the prize does not benefit Mr. Thayer directly, as the purse of $250 goes to the relief fund of the department. Two prizes of $250 each was offered by the company. Class one prize was for the best news clipping or official report of a fire where the use of the fire alarm telegraph system saved life and property. The second prize, which Mr. Thayer won, was for the best news clipping or official report of a fire where a delayed alarm could have been prevented by the proper use of the fire alarm telegraph system.

Mr. Thayer read the story of a fire that occurred in Springfield, Mass., in an issue of a Webster, Mass., newspaper of January 21. Because of the telephone failing to function properly a delay was caused and a $100,000 fire loss was the result. He sent the clipping in accordance with the rules in the contest, which has resulted in the Putnam fire department treasury being enriched by $250.

The contest was nation-wide and as Mr. Thayer took the attitude that Putnam was as good a city as any in the United States, he sent the clipping and was declared a winner. The first prize was won by W. R. Prince, chief of the fier departmnet of Springfield, Missouri.

WESTERLY

CLAIM THAT GEORGE B. UTTER WILL NOT SEEK RE-ELECTION

WESTERLY, R. I., Oct. 10.—A Westerly delegate to the Rhode Island State republican convention for the nomination of state officers, to be held in Elks auditorium Providence Wednesday, predicts that Representative George B. Utter, a member of the state central committee, will not be a candidate for re-election to the state committee. Former Westerly Representative Samuel H. Davis, as previously stated in the Bulletin, as a candidate for member of the state central committee will probably have a majority of the Westerly delegation in favor of his election.

Representative Utter who was defeated by Howard E. Thorp for the Westerly senatorial nomination on the republican ticket by a vote of 1093 to 664, has been a member of the republican state central committee since 1913. The first of the year he was made a member of the board of directors of the American Legislators' association. The Westerly delegates to the republican state convention are Mrs. Edris Datson, John D. Nichols, Samuel H. Davi, Farquhar Smith, Clifford W. Campbell and Mrs. Isabel C. Chapman. Alternates are Charles F. Beery, Herbert F. Clark, Elisha C. Burdick, Charlotte E. Stanton, Richard Mitchell and Thomas Moore.

Funeral services for Lottie B. wife of John C. Loughhead, were held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at her home, 11 Courtland, Pawcatuck. The services were conducted by Rev. Clayton A Burdick, D. D., pastor of the Pawcatuck Seventh-day Baptist church. Burial was in River bend cemetery, the bearers being Myron A. Kenyon, Albert P. Kenyon, John H. Austin, Selden M. Young and Allen C. Whitford.

GEO. B. UTTER

The death of Jennie, widow of Henry Lindsay, and mother of Mrs. Oliver Gavitt of the Shore road, Westerly, occurred at the home of her daughter in Providence, Friday night. Previous to removing with her husband to Providence in 1907, Mrs. Lindsay was a resident of Westerly.

Installation of officers of Hope Rebekah lodge, No. 19, Daughters of Rebekah of Westerly was held the past week in Odd Fellows' hall. The installing officers were District Deputy President, Alice Shepherd; Deputy Grand Warden, Eva Niles; Deputy Grand Secretary, Anna Kugler, Deputy Grand Treasurer, Myra Fish; Deputy Grand Chaplin, Eleanor Burdick; Deputy Grand Inside Guardian, Dora Hollander; Deputy Grand Herald, Louise M. Burdick; Deputy Grand Marshal, Maude Knerr; elective and appointive officers were installed as follows: Noble grand, Margaret Hair; vice grand, Elizabeth F. Barber; right support to noble grand, Emma N. Gardiner; left support, Minnie A. Shephard; right support to vice grand, Elaine F. Smith; left support, Rhoda B. Bliven; recording secretary, Mary R. Banford; financial secretary, Mary Perrin; treasurer, Annie S. James; warden, Margaret Greenman; conductor, Jeanie Laing; inside guard, Louise M. Burdick; outside guard, Stella Reese; Chaplain, Jean A. Grant; past noble grand, Lucy A. Blackburn; assistant warden, Agnes Boell; assistant conductor, Lillian Healey; pianist, Nellie R Wood; trustees, Jean A. Grant, Louise M. Burdick, Emma M Gardiner. Following the installation refreshments were served.

At the last session of Westerly probate court Judge Edward M. Burke on the bench, business was transacted as follows:

Estate of Denison Chesbro Hinckley. Petition received for the probate of the will of the testator, who died Sept. 2, 1926, a resident of Westerly. Will proved with Jennie M. Surber as witness and admitted to probate. Industrial Trust company made executor, bond $20,000, with surety. John O. Mills was named appraiser.

Estate of Matthew McGrath. Petition to render account received and granted. Order entered to render an account on or before Oct. 19th.

Estate of Henry Baker Fisher. Petition received for the appointment of an administrator, on the estate of the deceased, whose death occurred in Westerly on August 31, 1926. Petition granted and Earl C. Fisher was appointed administrator with bond of $3,000. Thomas P. Nichols was named appraiser.

Estate of Albert H. Spicer. Account of Albert H. Spicer, Jr., executor, received allowed and ordered recorded.

Judge Oliver H. Williams presided at the last regular session of Third District court in Westerly, when business was disposed of as follows:

Criminal docket, State, Thomas E Brown, chief of police of Westerly vs. Angelo Turuno. Continued two weeks; State vs. Samuel A. Maina. Continued two weeks; State vs. Julia Davis. Continued two months; Frank H. Brown, chief of police of Hopkinton vs. Edwin A. Clark. Marked passed. Continued two weeks; Thomas E. Brown vs. Mary Nugent. Continued one week; State vs. Mary R. Bianchi. Continued one month. John E. Baird, dept. R. I. state police, complt. vs. Raymond Patriarca, alias. Continued one week; Fred W. Bull, deputy sheriff, complt. vs. John Bienkwicz. Ready. William L. Kay, deputy chief of police of Hopkinton, complt. vs. Arline J. McDonald. Continued two weeks.

John Bienkwicz, aged 50 of Charles-ton, was presented by Deputy Sheriff Bull, charged with an assault with a dangerous weapon upon Howard Hazard of Richmond. At midnight of Aug. 20th Bienkwicz ni company with Albert Stanton and George Davis met Howard Hazard, who was said to have owed the defendant a sum of money and in an argument Hazard was wounded by a shot gun when shot lodged in his shoulder and face. Bienkewicz returned to his home in Shannock, where he eluded state police and going to Pleasant View beach was given over by his attorney, John Dunn, to the sheriff. When reading of the complaint was waived, he was adjudged probably guilty and bound over to the superior court, in the sum of $2,000. George P. Clark of Shannock became his surety.

William A. Burk vs. Jennie, Eliza-beth, Bessie, Etta and Lena Ostman was a suit brought to recover for the board of a pony in which the Ostman girls were charged for sixteen months' board from March 4, 1921 to July 4th, 1922, sixteen months at $15.50 a month amount to $248 plus $3 for care of horses feet and interest, totaling $313.11. William A. Burk produced his books to show that he had not been paid from March 4th, 1921 to July 4th 1922, when he returned the pony to the Ostmans at their Westerly home and denied that he refused to allow them to have the pony, also would not take the pony in part payment for its board.

Jennie Ostman testified that when she moved from Stonington to Westerly the pony was first left at the Burk stable on March 22, 1914 and that the pony was her own property by gift from her mother. Elizabeth Ostman told the court that she had no ownership in the pony and had ridden but twice, having refused to get into the pony cart after a runaway at Watch Hill.

Judge Williams held the matter for consideration.

Even the pessimist might enjoy the good things he has if he wasn't kept so busy grumbling about the disagreeable things he expects.

JEWETT CITY

NEW CONGREGATIONAL PASTOR HAS HAD ACTIVE CAREER

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Oct. 10.—Rev. Giles F. Goodenough of Ledyard, who is to come to the Jewett City Congregational church as its pastor, was born in Winchester, Conn., in 1872. His father, Rev. Arthur Goodenough, D. D., was graduated from Yale university in 1862 and was pastor of the Winchester church for 50 years. His mother is living, at the age of 93. Rev. Mr Goodenough's education was received in the district school in Winchester, Robbins school at Norfolk, Irving Institute in Tarrytown, N. Y., and in Yale university, where he was graduated with the degree of A. B., and at Hartford Theological Seminary, from which he was graduated in 1895. He was ordained in Nepaug. All his pastorates have been in Connecticut—a New Britain Ave. Mission in Hartford, North Goshen, Nepaug, Ellsworth (Sharon), Torringford (Torrington), Northfield (Litchfield), and for 12 years at Ledyard. Mr. Goodenough printed a brief history of Ellsworth of some 250 numbers, the edition being now exhausted. He was a correspondent of the Amenia Times for a few years. He has been a member of the grange since 1896, and has held some official position in either the subordinate, Pomona or state grange most of the time since then. He was elected to the office of school committee or member of school board in three towns of the state. He has held many offices, ecclesiastical or social, in various bodies, all of which involved more or less labor and honor and no other compensation.

Mr. Goodenough was twice married, and has eight children, Dorothy a Smith college graduate, now teaching in Amsterdam, N. Y., Priscilla, a N. E. A. and Smith college graduate teaching in Plymouth, Mass.; Mrs. Earl Hoybridge, a N. E. A. graduate and a year in Columbia Teachers' college, now living in Ledyard; Virginia, a N. E. A. graduate in 1925, now engaged in the motor vehicle department in Hartford, and Arthur, Priscilla B. '25, and David, at home.

TONIGHT'S CAUCUS

With the caucuses tonight there will be completed the ticket that the republicans will put in the field for the November election. There are the representatives from the various towns of the state to be named, and mindful of the fact that it is the representatives who make up the lower branch of the legislature the need of making wise selections should be apparent.

There is no doubt of the fact that the next legislature will be republican. That means that Norwich can depend upon greater consideration for its interests and such bills as it is interested in if it sends republican legislators to represent it. Selections should therefore be made of strong, reliable and as far as possible, experienced men, who can be relied upon to get the endorsement of their townsmen.

Action in this direction has been taken by the republican delegates to the 19th senatorial convention by the renomination of Senator Lee Roy Robbins, whose record in the state senate is a highly creditable one. By their support of his nomination the people of Norwich, Ledyard and Preston are assured of conscientious and satisfactory service in the upper chamber of the general assembly because of his ability, his experience and the fact that he will be a member of the majority party. His choice as a candidate is the right one, and Norwich should nominate men of the same caliber for representatives who will stand with him for the best interests of Norwich and the state.

For that reason the caucus should have the attendance of as many of the republicans of the town as can attend. The importance of the caucus cannot be too greatly stressed. There is a real duty for the party members to perform tonight and having performed it well it should be enthusiastically backed up at the polls on the second of November. A proper performance of caucus duty speeds the election campaign along in the right channel.

THE SESQUICENTENNIAL

The decision has been reached to close the sesquicentennial at the end of November because the exposition is losing about $40,000 a day, has not received the attendance that it should and is already in the hole about $5,000,000.

Since long before its opening the sesquicentennial has been encountering obstacles which contributed nothing to its advancement. Difficulties in getting the organization for it perfected, uncertainty regarding the plans, change of mind concerning the elaborateness of it and division of opinion as to the location, all operated against the development of interest outside as well as within Philadelphia.

The unfortunate beginning has been accompanied by certain incidents since the half completed fair was opened which have hurt. Those who have been supposed to visit the exposition have been discouraged by those who did go and found that only half done, the exhibits not yet opened and the fair not ready for business. To complicate matters there has been the unfortunate controversy over Sunday opening, a matter still in the courts, and the weatherman has not been overconsiderate.

The sesquicentennial has had less than 5,000,000 visitors where it should have had 25,000,000 and in this respect it has fallen behind the exposition of 50 years ago, and the next few weeks at which it is to be continued cannot be expected to overcome this handicap. A world's fair must attract the people if it is going to make expenses. That hasn't been done at Philadelphia, where have been other expositions which haven't made ends meet so the sequel will not break any records, but it is unfortunate that such a huge undertaking, marking the anniversary of years, should have encountered the mistakes and handicaps that have worked against a successful outcome. During the next few weeks that it will be open the exposition will of course do its best. It is now where it should have been when it was opened last spring.

LYNCHING SPIRIT STILL ALIVE

Satisfaction over a record that shows a year without a lynching in a state where lynchings have been numerous is natural, but because there is one such year does not mean that the lynchers of that state have reformed and there will be no more mob rule.

That has been brought to attention in a pointed manner at Aiken, S. C., where three Negroes, two men and one woman, were killed by a mob which had become incensed over the fact that one of the trio had been acquitted by the judge on the charge of causing the death of a popular sheriff who had gone to raid the house where the Negroes lived.

South Carolina has not been flagrantly conspicuous in the lynching record but it is evident that the spirit back of such action is by no means absent in that state, and what makes it all the worse at this time is the fact that the mob refuses to abide by the action of the judge who found that one of the accused was unjustly indicted. Instead of being disposed to accept justice and to abide by court action the South Carolina mob was infuriated. Someone must die for the murder whether it was possible to convict anyone in court or not and the result is, as has been too often the case, that an innocent person and two who had not as yet been convicted were murdered in cold blood, the deliberate action of those who are clamoring for justice but have only a warped idea of what it means.

This case of lynching far exceeds others because of the fact that an endeavor was being made by the authorities and court to convict the persons guilty of the sheriff's death and the mob took the matter into its own hands and insisted upon killing first and finding out later.

It was inevitable that an investigation should be made of this glaring affair and it remains to be seen whether or South Carolina is able to ferret out those who were guilty of this shameful exhibition of lynch law. South Carolina must consider that its good name is at stake until the lynchers have been arrested and properly penalized.

FORT SHANTOK PARK

The desirability of preserving Fort Shantok, the old Indian fort on the Thames in Montville has been recognized through its purchase and its addition to the state park system. Thus there will be kept in existence this historic spot so closely concerned with the early days of the white settlers in this vicinity, free from commercial development and as a place for visitation by the people of this state and all interested in Indian lore.

It is consistent in connection with the opening of the first state park in New London county that there should be appropriate exercises at the program that has been arranged should be attended by large numbers from all parts of this county. Few are probably acquainted with this locality, commanding as it does a beautiful view of the Thames. It is off the beaten path and not greatly changed from the days when the Indians used it except that the old fort is in ruins, although there is the Indian burying ground and a monument to mark the place where Lieutenant Leffingwell landed when he brought relief supplies from Saybrook to the early settlers who were besieged by the Indians.

It is a fine thing that the state park commission has recognized the importance of embracing the 120 acres at Fort Shantok in the state park system to be perpetuated as such and it is the least the people of this vicinity can do as a display of their appreciation and a demonstration of their thanks is to attend in good numbers the joint observance of the opening that has been arranged by the chambers of commerce in Norwich and New London.

Like the Devil's Hopyard, just over the New London county border, it is one of the attractive points of interest about which more people should know.

ST. LOUIS THE CHAMPIONS

In a series which was marked by some brilliant playing, some bad errors and not a little uncertainty St. Louis took the necessary fourth game and for the first time since a member of the National league became the world's champions. It was a test to the limit and a series in which errors as well as batting played a conspicuous part, while headwork and masterly playing were repeatedly displayed.

Not a little satisfaction will be felt over the outcome. It is well that the championship should go for once to this part of the National league territory. It is a good thing for the game, and St. Louis isn't going to get over it for a long time to come. It reflects great credit upon Hornsby's leadership.

It is always desired that the best aggregation of ball players should get the honors in the respective leagues and the same holds true when it comes to testing the merits of the respective league winners. St. Louis has played a consistent game throughout the season, a combination of hard working players and an aggregation in which teamwork has constantly been displayed. The winning game was gotten through errors, but what aided St. Louis Sunday won for New York last week. In batting, fielding and pitching there has been some magnificent work by both teams. With two exceptions scores have been low and consistent with championship players. Ruth stands out prominently for his home run work but the manner in which Alexander got out of the trying position with bases full and the outcome of the game depending upon it will not soon be forgotten.

The series demonstrates that while new wonders are being developed all the time the old ones cannot be wisely dispensed with too soon, while the interest in the national game shows no dwindling.

EDITORIAL NOTES

St. Louis wins. Now for the gridiron.

Remember the republican town caucus tonight and be there.

Now it remains to be seen whether the hunters can tell better stories than the fishermen.

The lynching of three Negroes in Georgia indicates that that state is reviving old practices.

The man on the corner says: It isn't going to be possible to ward Jack Frost off much longer.

Well the world's series is now over for another year, but that doesn't mean that everybody is happy.

There's a large quantity of leaves that must come down before the hunters will be able to bag much game.

Fire Prevention day, but don't let it be the last time you think of such a thing until another year rolls around.

The cry is for more judges but that needn't cause you to worry unless you are depending on lawlessness for a living.

In New Hampshire two were killed when an express struck an auto. It doesn't make much difference where it happens the result is invariably the same.

In New York Niagara county's peach crop has matured so late that it is being sold under small demand for 25 cents a bushel. But probably those ready to pay twice as much never get a chance.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Keep a salt and pepper shaker on the kitchen range. It is handy when seasoning foods.

Brandied cherries and whole nuts made delightful trimmings for the top of a white-iced cake.

Blackberries or blueberries used in muffins should be dredged with flour before they are added to the batter.

Fruit that is to be used in fruit cake should be rubbed well with flour. This will prevent it from settling to the bottom.

Cereals and spices must be kept in air tight cans for protection against insects, even in the best regulated kitchen.

After using the meat chopper, run a piece of bread through it to clean it out. It will be much easier to wash.

After frying onions pour a little vinegar into the frying pan, let it get hot and it will remove all smell from the pan.

Fried bacon, chopped finely or grated, is delicious sprinkled over the top of vegetable salad. It blends so well with mayonnaise.

Wash eggs and save the shells for coffee. If you wish to use the white and not the yolk cover the yolk with cold water and it will not dry.

Fruit juices spilled on porcelain tables or sinks should be immediately wiped up, for they will cause a permanent discoloration if left standing.

The ordinary crockery bean pot makes an excellent garbage can, because its smooth surface can be easily cleaned. It should be scalded twice a week.

If you need to remove fruit stains from tablecloths, cover them with powdered starch and leave this on for a few hours. All the discoloration will be absorbed by the starch.

Wet a heavy rag and wet gently the broken glass on the floor. In this way the smallest slivers are picked up without any handling. Wrap the rag in paper and throw into the ashes.

KEEP IT ON ICE

Pies mean work to many of us. So it is wise to mix an extra amount of pastry when making one. It can be rubbed over with lard and placed in the refrigerator for a couple of days before using.

ABOUT LETTUCE

Never wash lettuce and serve without first thoroughly drying. It will ruin a dainty salad to have wet lettuce served with it and will often make the dressing a total loss. Paper towels are handy in the kitchen for drying raw vegetables that are to be used immediately.

FOR MOTHS

A little turpentine poured in the corners of your closet and bureau drawers will serve as a warning to moths.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

The hands and feet of the British women, which have never been noted for being small, are bigger than they were five years ago. This fact has been brought to light by the manufacturers of gloves and shoes who have an increasing demand for larger sizes. Blame it on out-door sports.

The army medical school has perfected a simple way of purifying water that any camper can easily adopt. Fill your thermos bottle with water and then add one drop of tincture of iodine. Shake the water about a bit and in 20 minutes it will be ready to drink, with all harmful bacteria destroyed.

If a little pad of flesh is beginning to form at one side of the big toe nail this indicates a tendency toward ingrowing, and the nail should be cut down in a V-shape in the center rather than straight across; this makes it hurry to fill in the traitorously created vacancy and forget to bother us at the sides.

The woman whose hands are not naturally ornamental needs to give more time to their care than if they were, but usually it is the woman with pretty hands who massages and manicures them most faithfully. Those with large, stubby or bony hands are likely to be less careful about the texture of their skin and the condition of their fingernails.

REMOVE THE TARNISH!

Here's a good way to remove tarnish from silver: Fill an enameled or agateware kettle partly full of water in which has been dissolved one teaspoon of baking soda and one teaspoon salt to each quart of water, heat this solution to the boiling point, put in strips of aluminum or bright zinc, add the tarnished silver and boil it. The silver must be covered completely by the water and each piece must be in contact with the aluminum or zinc, either directly or through other silver. When the tarnish has disappeared the silver should be removed from the kettle, washed and dried with a clean, soft cloth.

PIE BAKING

When baking fresh fruit pies where the fruit requires more cooking than the crust, a strip of white cloth about an inch wide and long enough to reach around the edge of the pie plate, wet in cold water and bound around the edges of the crust, will prevent the pastry from burning before the fruit is tender.

SCHOOL METHODS

An ordinary felt blackboard eraser is an excellent polisher for the stove. Go over the stove with it while the stove is still warm and it will leave it nicely polished without salt to the hands.

DICTATES OF FASHION

The best designers insist that skirt lengths will not change before next summer.

Egyptian rose is a new, soft, alluring shade or old rose that even a gray-haired woman may wear effectively.

Top coats of plaid tweeds, lined with kasha cloth are in excellent taste for boarding school or college wear.

Wide dolman and kimono sleeves are featured in many of the new fall and winter coats.

Black satin frocks with touches of red and gold are featured among the models designed for autumn.

Velvet according to late fashion reports is said to be much in evidence for trimming on the new autumn frocks.

Capes of brocade and rich satins follow the military cape and may be worn over the summer frock in a very dashing manner.

The black satin frock is made into an ensemble by the addition of a velvet smoking jacket—short, straight and lined with color.

For the sport dress there is a variety of materials from which to choose—jersey, tub silks, shantungs, crepe de chine, and even cotton shirting.

Shawls which give a bit of warmth and may be worn on the beach on cooler days are made of white albatross gayly embroidered in colored wools.

For day and for evening wear, nothing is more popular than chiffon. Chiffon is being very smartly tailored this season, and is used even for tailored suits.

The pleated skirt of this season is more apt to be pleated in groups than in the usual even manner.

The transparent, thin evening gown of this season that is carried out in black chiffon or lace is quite frequently trimmed with rhinestones or tiny jet incrustations that give glitter and life to it.

MUST BE INVISIBLE

Fashion has no objections to knees being visible at times, but it is considered a sartorial faux pas for garters to show. Therefore, round garters have been eliminated from the costume of the smart woman. Instead she dons a belt of crepe de chine with garters of ping ribbon attached. These hold the stockings smoothly in place and the garters are not in evidence, even though the skirt is of the very brief type.

FALL COAT FASHIONS

In almost every instance where the coat is developed on straight lines a belt is added, but in the wrapped models the line of the waist is indicated by tucks or slight pinched folds.

Kimono sleeves are an important new detail and dolman lines are also interesting. These features have not been seen in a number of years. The new versions, therefore, have all the charm of novelty.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES

When making sheets, if you make a wide hem on each end they will wear longer.

Do not use darning stitches when the heels of your stockings become thin. Use a spool of silk and make parallel lines of chain stitches. This matches the mesh so well it can scarcely be detected.

In hanging a skirt take a flat piece of cardboard or, better still, a ruler, and mark on it the distance the edge of the skirt should be from the ground when finished. Place the skirt on the wearer or "dummy," move the ruler around the skirt and place pins at intervals where the mark shows the desired length. By this means a level edge will be obtained and the skirt hang correctly all around.

Pleated skirts of jersey and flannel have the pleats stitched part way usually to a point just above the knees, and they retain their lines much more successfully than where the pleats are merely pressed in.

When stitching very thin materials such as chiffon or nets, where there is a tendency to pull and pucker, lay a piece of paper under the material and stitch through that as well. It will keep the material flat and can be removed easily by tearing it away.

HOW TO DETECT REAL LINEN

In this day of cleverly executed substitutes for real linen, even to the imposition of the fine gloss which is characteristic of fine linen damasks, there is one infallible test by which real linen may be detected from other fabrics.

In order to be certain of your cloth, remove a thread from the fabric, hold one end upright, wet it and fasten with the fingers. As it dries you may know it is linen if it revolves anti-clockwise. You may know it is not linen if the threads revolves clockwise. Another test may be made by putting a few drops of water on the cloth. If it soaks through quickly, it is linen.

RIBBON BANDS

Girls who wear ribbon bands across the top of their hair and bring them down under the hair in the back can economize on ribbon by using a narrow piece of elastic on either side instead of ribbon. It can be attached to the ribbon on either side and will be found very satisfactory in holding the band in place.

BURNED KETTLES

White enameled kitchen pans and kettles seem pretty hopeless when food has burned in them, but put a quantity of strong soap powder and boiling water in them and let stand for three or four days. All blackness will wash off easily with a soft cloth without any injury to the enamel.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Eleven policewomen of the Washington, D. C., police force have resigned recently to be married.

Late statistics compiled in England show that there are nearly 2,000,000 more women than men in that country.

Miss Helen Barnaby, aged 19 years, of North Danville, N. H., recently defeated 11 men in a hay mowing contest.

During her stay in this country, Queen Marie of Rumania, who will sail for America shortly, expects to visit 45 states.

Despite the fact that foot-binding has been condemned by the Chinese government, 55 per cent of the women have small feet.

Two women have been elected members of the Bucharest city council, the first of their sex in that country to hold such an office.

Princess Matchabelli has become a member of the instruction class of the newly organized International Theater Arts institute of New York.

MARK PRESERVES

When canning fruit or any other food always mark cans clearly, printing the label on a small gummed slip of paper to save mistakes in selecting cans next winter.

JUST A LITTLE WATER

Should one or two sections in muffin or gem pans be empty half fill with water before putting the cakes in the oven. It will keep the cakes from getting too brown and make them more moist.

RECIPES

Emergency Peach Puddings: Mix together one cup of bread flour, half a teaspoonful of salt and two teaspoons of baking powder and moisten to a soft dough with milk (about one-third of a cup) mixed with two tablespoons of melted shortening. Drop a spoon of the batter into buttered individual moulds, add half a drained stewed peach and cover with another spoon of the dough. Steam about 15 minutes. Serve with a hard or foamy sauce.

Pineapple Souffle: 3 egg yolks, 1 lemon, grated rind and juice, 1-2 cup sugar, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 3-4 cup grated canned pineapple, 1 1-2 tablespoons granulated gelatine, 1-2 cup cold water, 1-2 cup heavy cream whipped, 3 egg whites.

Beat the egg yolks slightly and add the lemon juice, lemon rind, sugar and salt. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly until the mixture thickens. Remove from the fire and add the gelatine which has been softened in the cold water. Stir until the gelatine is thoroughly dissolved, then add the pineapple. Chill the mixture and when it begins to thicken add the whipped cream and the egg whites beaten stiff. Turn into a mould which has been garnished with pices of sliced pineapple cut in wedge shaped pieces and candied cherries cut in half. To serve turn out on a platter, garnish with slices of pineapple cut in quarters, with candied cherry on each and spoonfuls of whipped cream between.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Knight Explains Accident

Mr. Editor:—Just allow me short space in your valuable paper to contradict statements made by your Jewett City correspondent concerning an auto mix-up with my horse, that are all wrong.

In the first place, my horse, some 14 years old, never in its life showed any of the "wild west" signs it is accused of. My horse was never in its life on the bank, he is said to have jumped off directly into the Jewett City car.

The facts of the case are: Arthur Brand, a boarder at my house started to lead the horse across the road to the pasture. He looked one way, saw no auto and looked the other way before he could tell what was coming he and the horse were both struck by the car, the horse being dragged a distance of 16 feet on the road, as the condition of the road—that has been inspected by reliable witnesses—plainly shows. Brand was of course knocked senseless and the Jewett City correspondent lost sight of the fact that the car struck him.

The owner of the car said to me, "I never saw the horse until I hit him." Another occupant of the car however, saw the horse jump from a bank it was never on in its life directly into the car. At least she said so.

I think I have got some horse if I have one that can kick up an auto like that car was smashed up, but I do not allow either my horse or cows roaming about the roads looking for automobiles to smash up, neither do I intend that any such false statements shall go un-contradicted.

When the car owner came to me and asked me what I was going to do about his car, I flatly replied, "Nothing at all." He then said he had put the matter in the hands of a lawyer, but so far my horse that was struck by his car and dragged several feet has hired no lawyer, and Arthur Brand, the man leading the horse hasn't yet decided whether he'll hire a lawyer or not.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The Right Honorable the Earl of Elgin, who is now visiting America, is a distinguished scion of a long list of Scottish noblemen. His immediate ancestors include the preserver of the famous Elgin Marbles, which are now in the British Museum, as well as many famous statesmen and colonial governors. His grandfather was governor-general of Canada. He had many friends in the United States, was largely responsible for negotiating the Reciprocity treaty of 1851, and was afterward governor-general of India. The present earl, who succeeded to the title in 1917, is chairman of the Carnegie United Kingdom trust and prominent in many educational, philanthropic and public welfare movements in Great Britain.

Make the Most of Books

By James Hosmer Penniman, Litt. D

Association of Ideas

When we read a number of books on the same subject the memory is helped by the association of ideas, and on the other hand we have high authority for the statement that the memory is weakened by aimless reading. There is perhaps no one pursuit in which so much precious time is wasted, no one in which the energies of mankind are expended to so little purpose, as in such reading. "Nothing, in truth," says Dugald Stewart, "has such a tendency to weaken not only the powers of invention but the intellectual powers in general, as a habit of extensive and various reading without reflection."

The habit of sharing the results of reading is as useful to ourselves as it is to others. The scholar of whom Chaucer wrote "gladly wolde he lerne and gladly teche," probably had no difficulty in remembering what he read.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Danny's Run for Life

Who for his life is forced to run.
In running finds but little fun.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

Danny was beginning to feel more at home. Yes, sir, he was so. You see, while the shores of that creek were still marshes, they were no longer salt marshes. Danny was finding sweet meadow grasses and they certainly did taste good. At last he came to a

He rolled over and over until he dropped off on the other side of the road bridge. The creek had now become a river, and this bridge was over the river. It rested on stone piers and there was no way of getting on the other side of it except by scrambling up the bank and crossing the road, and scrambling down the bank on the other side. You see, Danny didn't want to go across on the other side of that road.

It was just as Danny was trying to make up his mind what to do that he heard a suspicious rustling in the grass behind him. Danny had heard that kind of a rustling before. He didn't have to look to know what was making that rustling. One of the snake family was there. Danny tried to steal away, but in a minute he knew that that snake was after him. Then Danny took to his legs. There was only one thing for him to do now, and that was to run as fast as he could and as long as he could, in the hope of finding some place of safety where that snake couldn't get at him. He thought of the water in the river but the snake was between him and the water.

By the time Danny had climbed up the bank to the edge of the road he was feeling a little out of breath. That road seemed a dreadful place to cross. You see, a Meadow Mouse does hate to come right out in the open and that was just as open as it could be. But you know the only way to get on the other side of the road is to cross it. To remain where he was was to invite himself to dinner with that snake and furnish the dinner.

Danny didn't wait. He drew a long breath and started across that road as fast as his little legs could move. To this day Danny didn't know what happened then. A terrible monster came rushing down the road. It made a noise something like that man bird that Danny was used to. But this wasn't in the air. No, sir, this wasn't in the air. It was on the road. Danny gave a little squal of fright, closed his eyes, and then felt a great rush of wind, and was sent rolling over and over and over. He rolled over and over until he dropped off on the other side of the road and rolled down the bank. When at last he ventured to open his eyes and feel himself all over to see if he was whole—which he was—the terrible monster had disappeared.

Of course, you can guess what had happened. An automobile had come rushing along and had gone right over Danny without touching him. He had been just lucky enough not to be under the wheels. By the time he got himself picked up, and had brushed his coat, he remembered the snake. He looked about hastily. No snake was visible. You see, that automobile had come along just in time to frighten that snake back. It had lost all desire for a Meadow Mouse dinner.

As for Danny he was thankful to be alive, and he felt that he had had a double escape—one from the snake and the other from the automobile.

EXPERIENCE OF WESTERN GIRL

Found Cannery Work Too Tiring

The fertile valleys of Oregon hold to supply the tables of America. This is possible thru the magic of the humble tin can.

In one of the canning establishments, Julia Schmidt was employed. It was complicated work because she did sealing and other parts of the work. It was strenuous work and she was not a strong girl. Often she forced herself to work when she was hardly able to sit at her machine. At times she would have to stay at home for she was so weak she could hardly walk. For five years she was in this weakened condition.

She tried various medicines. At last, a friend of hers spoke of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Miss Schmidt gave it a trial.

"Everyone says I am a healthier and stronger girl," she writes. "I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to all my friends who tell me how they suffer and I am willing to answer letters from women asking about it." Julia Schmidt's address is 652 North Front St., Salem, Oregon. For sale by all druggists.

At 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon Lester C. Dart of Montville and Miss Doldia Bandy, also of Montville, were united in marriage at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs Reuben G. Dart in Montville. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles Smith of Montville. The house was very attractively decorated. A reception followed the ceremony and later in the evening the bride and groom left for a wedding trip. On their return they will reside in Montville. The bride has been a school teacher at the West Side school in Montville. Both bride and groom are well known and popular with their many friends who wish them every success in their future married life.

FUNERALS

Mrs. George N. Douglas

The funeral of Mrs. George N. Douglas was held Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock from her home, No. 11 Penobscot street, with a very large attendance of relatives and friends. Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church, conducted the service. The bearers were Stanton, Robert and Ernest Browne and Arthur Simpson and burial took place in the Yantic cemetery. Undertakers Church and Allen had charge of the funeral arrangements. There was a wealth of very beautiful floral tributes of esteem.

Fred E. Thomas

At 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon the funeral of Fred E. Thomas was held from his home at Massapeag with many relatives and friends present. There were a number of beautiful floral pieces. Rev. Charles Smith of Uncasville conducted the service and burial took place in Roger cemetery, friends acting as bearers. Undertakers Church and Allen had charge of the funeral arrangements.

John Merriman

The funeral of John Merriman of Oakdale, was held Saturday afternoon from the parlors of Undertaker C. A. Gager, No. 70 Franklin street, with a large attendance of relatives and friends. The service was conducted by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church, and Mrs. William Crowe, Jr., sang Nearer, My God to Thee and Asleep in Jesus.

A military burial service took place at the West Plain cemetery as Mr. Merriman was a member of Battery A., 192nd F. A. C. N. G., of New London. There was a firing squad at the grave and taps was sounded by Bugler George Taylor. The bearers were Sidney Well, Frank Remington, Levi Kenerson and Leander Gardner, all members of Battery A. There was a wealth of beautiful floral tributes. Mr. Merriman was fatally injured at the Robertson Paper mill in Oakdale early Thursday morning.

RALLY SUNDAY EXERCISES AT UNIVERSALIST CHURCH

Special rally Sunday exercises were held at noon on Sunday at the Church of the Good Shepherd (Universalist).

The several classes pledged anew their loyalty to the work of the church and school: Miss B. R. Green for the kindergarten, Miss Villa C. Bussey for the primary, Miss Grace Taft for the juniors, Mrs. Young's class for the intermediate girls, C. W. Parsons' class for the intermediate boys, Miss Fowler's class for the senior girls and W. A. Mussey for the men's class. Reports from the Ferry Beach delegates were given by Miss Beatrice R. Green, Larry N. Foster and Mrs. A. N. Foster.

A soprano solo "Forever With the Lord" was sung by Mrs. Elizabeth H. Laird and a piano solo Nocturne, Opus 48 No. 2, by Chopin was rendered by Mr. William S. Huber.

A hymn "Father, in Thy Mysterious Presence" was dramatized by Betty Pike, Helen Hanigan, Dorothy Parsons, Dorothy Alquist and Alice N. Parsons and there was music by the school choir.

DEMOLISHED SIGNAL AT YANTIC R. R. CROSSING

An automobile belonging to a Hartford man, whose name was not learned, skidded at the Yantic crossing of the Central Vermont railroad Sunday afternoon about 3 o'clock, crossed the trolley tracks and demolished the Stop, Look and Listen sign.

Mrs. Mary Karpin of Hartford, one of the seven passengers in the machine was removed to the Backus hospital for treatment for her injuries which were reported as not serious.

Held Sunday School Session.

The church school of the United Congregational church held its first session since the summer recess at noon Sunday. As the addition to the Sunday school room has not been quite completed no formal exercises were held but later it is planned to have a formal opening when the additions and repairs are completed.

REPORTED HIS CAR STOLEN AFTER MACHINE HAD HIT ANOTHER

The Norwich police had a new one Saturday night in an apparent attempt to cover up participation in an automobile accident. Along about midnight Gustave Marnett of New London appeared at police headquarters, reporting to Capt. Thomas Murphy that his Hudson machine had been stolen while he was attending the dance at Hilltop. Then he left saying that he was going to see an automobile accident on North Main street.

Officers Mc Avoy, Dewire and P. Murphy were also dispatched to look up the accident where a Hudson machine had made a bad wreck of a Ford belonging to Walter F. Sternberg of Westerly, which it hit about opposite the Bogue Ford agency on North Main street. The driver of the Hudson could not be found, but the officers located two men in the crowd around the wreck who admitted they had been riding in the Hudson. These were Joseph Lenihan and James Murphy, who eventually told the police that Marnett had been driving the car and admitted that the party had included two girls, but would not tell who they were.

Marnett was arrested Sunday morning in New London by the police of that city at the request of the Norwich police and was brought back here by Officers Charles Smith and Daniel O'Neil who went after him in the motor patrol wagon. He gave bail for his appearance in the city court to answer a charge of reckless driving.

Lenihan and Murphy were released by Chief Linton at the direction of City Attorney Lee Roy Robbins.

SHORE LINE RECEIVER WILL SELL SOME LAND

Several judgments were entered by Judge Newell Jennings at the short calendar session of the superior court in New London Friday while other motions were either continued or went off the list.

A motion that the decree of foreclosure be by public sale, was granted in the case of Pendleton, Jr., et al., against the Alexander Shipping Co., Inc., et al., and Attorney Thomas E. Troland was appointed a committee of sale. This motion was made by Attorney Max Boyer for the defendant Levinson, who, he said, wished to bid on the property, he being the original mortgator.

A statutory continuance of one month as to defendants, Uretski and Halpin was ordered in the case of Levine & Levine Co., Inc., against King, et al. A motion in the same case for order of notice as to these defendants went off.

An order opening default for non-appearance was granted in the case of Annie Coffey against Starkweather.

The judge took the papers in the case of John F. Murphy against Isadore Opper in which arguments on a motion for more specific statement were made.

The application of Robert W. Perkins, receiver, for authority to sell six or seven tracts of land in the towns of Essex, Norwich and Preston was granted in the cases of the U. S. Trust Co., of New York, et al., executors against the Shore Line Electric Railway Co., et al., and the Old Colony Trust Co., against the same defendants.

Disclosure of defense within 10 days or judgment was ordered in the case of Ray against Mills and the same procedure was ordered in the case of Seiln against Takmon.

Judgment of foreclosure in the amount of $3,333 was entered in the case of the L. A. W. Acceptance Corporation against Nathan Manchuk. The land involved is in Colchester and Attorney Morris Lubchansky was named a committee of sale. The sale will occur on Nov 12.

Judge Jennings took the papers in the motions in the case of Ross, et al., against the Third Baptist society of Stonington. The motions were (1) Hearing on the receiver's motion that the court approve of his final account filed pursuant to Section 59 of the rules of the court; (2) Hearing on the receiver's motion that the court approve his statement filed persuant to Section 6084 of the general statutes.

The case of the City of New London against the Pequot Point Beach Co., et al.; in which Attorney Troland for the city had made a motion for disclosure of defense or judgment went off when Attorney Frank L. McGuire for the defendant said that there was a defense.

TAFTVILLE PASTOR SPEAKS AT SERVICE AT Y. M. C. A.

A large audience assembled in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium Sunday afternoon when the last half of the impressive moving picture feature "Man Came In Over the Hill" was shown. The meeting opened with the singing of "I Love to Tell the Story", scripture was read by Secretary Hill. Hugh Kinder rendered vocal solos in a pleasing manner.

The picture showed the contrast in the spirit of the children of Mary Carr, all save one and no room for her in her old age, while the most unpromising son came splendidly to her rescue, and made her last days very happy; a deep impression was made by the picture, and also by the heart to heart address given between the reels by Rev. Edwin C. Crowdis of Taftville. Mr. Crowdis emphasized the great influence of a good mother like the one pictured on the screen; he told a deeply interesting story of a boy who felt that he must be paid for all the things he did for his mother; the mother reminded him of all that she had done for him without a cent to pay and the boy became ashamed of himself and thereafter was a dutiful son and in many ways showed his love for mother.

The service doubtless will be remembered as one of impressiveness and the lessons suggested both by the picture and by the speaker will in all probability remain in the memory of those who were present for some time to come. Next Sunday another interesting picture will be shown.

NORWICH LUTHERAN CHURCH BELONGS TO MINISTERUIM

Commenting upon the report from the convention fo the New York Lutheran synod last week where charges were made that some of the churches had diverted the income from trust funds to uses other than what the money was intended to be used, Rev. H. Hunzinger, pastor of the First Evangelical Lutheran church of this city, stated that he regretted very much that such charges had not been made first in committee meetings where they could be investigated, and he added that he would like to have it understood that the church in this city belongs to the New York ministerium, which is different body from the synod. Among the churches of the ministerium, he said, there has never been any criticism of the way in which the churches have used their money, but it has all been accounted for without question.

STIRRING ADDRESSES HEARD AT SPIRITUAL ACADEMY

Mrs. Mary B. Daniels of Boston was the speaker and medium at the Spiritual Academy Sunday, and by her personal charm and magnetism held the undivided attention of the large congregations at each service. She dealt with topics of a religious and political nature in a scholarly and convincing manner, and followed her discourses with very accurate messages much to the pleasure of every one present.

It was announced that Mrs. Conyers, the only psychometrist visiting this city, would serve the Spiritual Academy at both services on Sunday next.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE BY BOSTON SPEAKER

Before a large congregation at the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist, Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, under the auspices of the Christian Science society, a lecture on Christian Science was given by Andrew J. Graham, C. S. B., of Boston, a member of the lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston.

The lecturer was introduced by Miss Edith M. Abell, first reader of the local society.

Good always manifests itself. Inasmuch as God hath "left not Himself without witness" in any nation, and in every nation he that feareth Him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with Him, it follows that heathen and pagan lands are not entirely bereft of heavenly aspirations and tokens of good. In the Analects of Confucius, in the wise and noble statements of Socrates, and in the lofty and humane sayings of Marcus Aurelius are caught glimpses of eternal good. These representatives of pre-Christian times wage seekers after good—God; and Christian Science, which is the all-embracing truth, takes note of their endeavors to know God. Even the Jews say good in the Roman centurion and said of him: "He loveth our nation, and he hath built us a synagogue." And Jesus, by his act, acknowledged the truth of the statement. Under the influence of Christianity God's manifestation became clearer.

Deep down in the roots of human experience, underlying all superficial phenomena, is a tie that binds all men together. It is foreign to no peoples, no age. It is the unity—the oneness of good. And the pre-eminent work of Christian Science is to awaken this seemingly slumbering sense of good into loving activity and fuller recognition.

The awakening from the dream of self-righteousness and sickness and sin to the experience and appreciation of good, comes through Christian Science healing. It is God, working in one's thought, both giving one the desire for good and the ability to realize it. Because spiritual man is like his Father, God, it follows that he reflects the healing power of God. God's channels of activity are through His spiritual creation, including man. He has none other. He acted through Moses, Elijah, Elisha, Jesus, the 12, the 70. The book of the Acts, being a record of Christian work for nearly 70 years, is a long catalogue of God's healing activities through His obedient servants. Since the discovery of the lost element of healing, by Mrs. Eddy, in 1866, the sons of God have gone forth to war against sickness and sin with marvelous results. Great is the company of Christian Science practitioners, and according to the measure of their understanding and faithfulness and love they are bringing to multitudes the consciousness and the enjoyment of good.

On page 271 of Science and Health Mrs. Eddy writes: "Christ's Christianity is the chain of scientific being reappearing in all ages, maintaining its obvious correspondence with the Scriptures and uniting all periods in the design of God." This is not only a profound but also a radiant statement. It teaches what scholars are wont to call the philosophy of history. Like the pearl diver who plunges beneath the water and arises with a prize, so Mrs. Eddy, in lonely and consecrated endeavor, plunged beneath so-called material causation and brought up from the depths a clear apprehension and comprehension of the eternal kinship of all good. She alone of all who have written commentaries on the Bible has given us a key to the scriptures which makes the Jewish and Christian writings into a mosaic of harmony.

GUARDING THE OUTPOSTS FATHER REILLY'S THEME

"Watch over us, oh, Christ, that we may not sell Thee for even less than Judas did!" was the ejaculatory prayer which Rev. John J. Reilly recommended to his hearers in the great congregation assembled for the 9 o'clock low mass in St. Patrick's church Sunday. Father Reilly was preaching from the gospel for the day—the 20th Sunday after Pentecost—John IV, 46-53, which narrates the miraculous restoration to health of the son of the ruler of Capharnaum.

At the opening of the service the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May announced congregational singing of "Come, Holy Ghost" and for this Organist Henry J. LaFontaine accompanied, while leading the Junior chorus choir. At the conclusion of the mass Monsignor May announced congregational singing of "Holy God, We Praise Thy Name."

The preacher dwelt upon the importance of watching the senses, which are as the outposts of the citadel of the soul. When in the World War the German army advanced upon Belgium to capture Liege—their fifteen days to accomplish that feat—the city was saved only because there was a line of outposts to be taken first and in that critical interim the allied army had time to mobilize. The battle of Paris was fought virtually at Chateau-Thierry. So the soul must be kept safe by guarding the eyes, the ears, the touch. The preacher was answering the question, "Why do Catholics commit sin?" Replying to his own query by proofs that it is from blindness, from cowardice, or from ingratitude. The Catholic church in its greatness is after all, judged by its individual members; and as were the rents in Caesar's cloak so are the stabs which are dealt their mother by those unworthy Catholics who choose the trivial pleasures of a fleeting world while forfeiting the happiness of an eternity.

A warning was sounded against that self-sufficiency which leads so many to maintain that they can keep from sin by their own strength. Resistance is gained only through the aid of prayer and the sacraments. Lucifer was an archangel. Judas was an apostle. Henry VII was at first a model Christian; yet the archangel was lost through pride and his rebellious, "I will not serve!" Judas sold his Lord. Henry the Eighth became the patron of divorcees.

Father Reilly referred incidentally to the nearing opportunity of all the parishioners to return to the state of grace during the Novena in honor of St. Therese, which will be opened the coming Sunday by Fathers of the Order of the Holy Ghost. St. Therese has taught mankind how to please God by fidelity and fervor in doing well the little things of life. Men are anxious to gain the favor of political friends—better still to seek the favor of spiritual friends. "The Little Flower of Jesus" has been sainted because of her example in doing all things for the glorification of God. The coming nine days' devotion will offer every Catholic a chance to return to God's friendship.

Indicative of the practical character of the parish faith as a result of the Saturday confessions, was the great number receiving holy communion from Rev. Myles P. Galvin, who read the mass, and who had Father Reilly's assistance in administering communion. Equally large numbers received the Eucharist at 7:30. Father Reilly assisting Monsigner May. At this early mass the sanctuary railing was filled ten times by kneeling penitents.

ADMITTED 267 TO PRIVILEGE OF VOTING

The board of selectmen and the town clerk, in session Saturday at the town hall, admitted 267 men and women to the electors' vote and they will be privileged to vote in the coming state election. There are yet about 800 names on the list of "to be mades" and these applicants will have an opportunity to appear before the examining board next Saturday which will be the final day on which voters will be made this year.

For Illegal Operation of Auto.

Hormisdas Germain, 36, of Taftville was arrested there Sunday night by Constable Pequette on the charge of operating an automobile without permission of the owner. There is also an intoxication charge against him. The complainant was Joseph Riley of Versailles who had left his car parked while he was in the theatre. When he came out he found it is claimed that Germain had run it out into the street and left it there.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

A. B. Mitchell, of Bayamon, Porto Rico, is the guest of Dr. William Tyler Browne.

Thursday at 8 o'clock, at Wade Park Manor, Cleveland, Ohio, Willis Philippe Austin, son of Willis Austin, of Norwich, and Miss Marjorie Elizabeth Lloyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lloyd, of 2510 Kenilworth Road, Cleveland, were married in the presence of a few relatives and friends. The maid of honor was Miss Elizabeth Denison, of Cleveland and the best man was Malcolm Huntington Austin, brother of the bridegroom. Mr. Lloyd gave his daughter in marriage. Owing to the fact that Mr. Austin's family is in mourning, the ceremony was very simple, there being no ushers and only subdued piano music during the marriage. Both the bride and her maid of honor wore pale pink silk and carried roses of the same hue. A breakfast at the Manor followed. Mr. Austin and his bride are on a motor trip and on reaching Norwich will reside for a time at the home of the former's father, 248 Washington street. The evening preceding the wdding Miss Denison gave an informal dinner for the bridal party at the Union Club.

Norwich Produce Market

Furnished by the Connecticut Commissioner of Agriculture.

Apples continue to be the only native fruit offered very freely and poor grades move slowly. Limited supplies of New York state peaches are available at $1.50-$1.90 per bushel and a very few natives. Offerings of native grapes are moderate with a few New York state at $1.15 per 12 qt. basket and Californias still liberal at $1.50-$1.60 per box. Limited offerings of quinces $1.00-$1.25 per 14 qt. basket.

Very few string beans are being offered and only moderate amounts of shell beans and limas while cauliflower and celery are offered quite freely. The absence of killing frosts still allow late sweet corn, peppers and tomatoes on the market although the supply, especially of tomatoes, is greatly reduced. Potatoes both white and sweet continue steady. Paranips $2.00-$2.25 per bushel, turnips at $1.00-$1.25 and squash 3c-4c all sell slowly.

Poultry continues steady with eggs and butter firm while lard and most dressed meats appear slightly easier.

MANY RECORDS MADE IN SERIES JUST CLOSED

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The World's series that closed today with the spectacular triumph of Rogers Hornsby's Cardinals witnessed the shattering of more records than any other championship battle in baseball history. Nineteen records were smashed altogether, with three others tied.

All marks for attendance and gate receipts were shattered by the outpourings of 328,051 New York and St. Louis fans who paid a total of $1,207,564 to witness the seven games. The attendance of 63,600 and receipts of $301,828 in the second New York game shattered all single game marks while St. Louis crowds broke the sportsman's park attendance record three days in a row. Cold and rainy weather kept down attendance at the final two games here.

Babe Ruth's mighty bat was the chief record-breaker on the field, the Yankee slugger shattering ten records and equalling three others. Participating in his seventh series, itself a record, the Babe blasted three previous home runs marks off the books with three circuit clouts last Wednesday and a fourth today, bringing his record for all series competition up to eight.

Lester Bell was the only Cardinal to figure in the record work, equalling the mark of Elmer Smith, made in 1920, and Ruth, by driving in four runs in the sixth game.

HIGHER THAN THE WOOLWORTH TOWER

If all the bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound sold in 1925 could be placed end to end, they would make a column as high as the Woolworth Building. And there would be enough left over to extend from Lynn, Massachusetts, to Cleveland, Ohio.

In every little village as in every thriving city along the route, there are enthusiastic women who are glad to tell others how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped them.

In The City Court

Two local young men who got into a fight on Laurel Hill, near Walnut street, about 12:30 o'clock Saturday morning, were presented in the city court Saturday on charges of breach of the peace. They had been to a dance and were taking two young women home when an argument started, leading to blows. As they claimed it was simply a case of losing their tempers and that they are the best of friends the cases were nolled on payment of $5. A local man paid a fine of $5 and costs for being drunk.

ACADEMY WINS ROUGH GAME FROM EAST GREENWICH ACADEMY

The Free Academy football team opened its 1926 home season auspiciously at the campus on Saturday afternoon by defeating the East Greenwich Academy eleven by the score of 16 to 7. A small crowd was on hand to view the local gridsters but they made up for what was lacking in numbers by their enthusiasm.

The Rhode Island Academy team outweighed the locals but they were outplayed in practically all departments of the game with the difference in weight meaning very little to Coach Brigham's charges.

The Academy scored in the first, second and final periods while the visitors pushed over a touchdown in the second quarter.

East Greenwich won the toss and elected to defend the north goal. They kicked off with the wind and Labenski ran the ball back ten yards before being downed on his own 25 yard line. The Academy was unable to gain and kicked on fourth down past midfield, where Appleton signaled for a fair catch but was tackled by one of his teammates. The visitors kicked on first down but Cleavstrom's punt was blocked and recovered by the locals on the visitor's 30 yard line.

The Academy, with this break, seemed headed for a touchdown when McGlone tossed a neat forward to Marks on the first scrimmage for a 15 yard gain to the Greenwich 15 yard line. On the next play, however, the locals were penalized 15 yards for unnecessary roughness which set them back again to the 30 yard stripe. They then lost the ball on downs and Greenwich kicked on the first scrimmage with the ball again being blocked with Academy recovering on the visitor's 35 yard line.

On the first play Brewer made a nice 20 yard dash through left tackle, shaking off many would-be tacklers before being downed at the 15 yard line. Another first down was gained, running the pigskin to the 3 yard mark from whence it was put over after two downs, by Capt. Brewer for the Academy's first score of the year. The try for point after touchdown went wide of the posts.

Kahn kicked off for Norwich and Cleavstrom of the visitors contributed the feature play of the afternoon with a 50 yard runback to the Academy's 35 yard line. On the first play from scrimmage Doan, Greenwich right half back went 25 yards around end to the locals' 10 yard mark and the first quarter ended at this stage with the Academy ahead 6 to 0.

The visitors annexed their scores on fourth down in the beginning of the second period. Cleavstrom went over and Appleton kicked the goal, putting the visitors in the lead, 7 to 6, which they held for but a short time.

Greenwich kicked off and the ball was downed on the Academy's 30 yard line. The Academy then proceeded to reel off three first downs which, coupled with a 15 yard penalty for roughing administered to the visitors, placed the ball on Greenwich 10 yard line where the locals lost it on downs after unsuccessful forward passes. Greenwich kicked on first down to their own 35 yard line where Williams received and made a pretty 15 yard runback. Brewer next contributed another 15 yard dash to Greenwich 5 yard whence Brewer again went over, this time on the fourth down. Williams kicked the goal and put the locals into the lead where they remained. The score now was 13 to 7.

Greenwich then kicked off and the half ended after a few plays with the ball in Norwich possession in midfield.

To open the third quarter Greenwich kicked off and McGlone made a pretty 25 yard run-back to midfield. After the Academy had received a 15 yard penalty for unnecessary roughness they proceeded to reel off four first downs in succession which brought the ball down within the shadow of the enemy's goal-posts.

However, all this went for naught when Cleavstrom, visiting fullback intercepted a local forward on his own 8 yard mark and dashed 30 yards through a broken field, nearly breaking loose for a touchdown. The Academy again received a 15 yard penalty but were saved from further trouble when Shea recovered a Greenwich fumble which gave the locals the ball near mid-field. They then tore off three first downs in succession, bringing the ball again deep into the visitor's territory where the third quarter ended with Norwich ball on Greenwich 20 yard line and the score 13 to 7 in favor of the Academy.

Brewer contributed a neat 15 yard run off tackle to start the fourth period but this all went for naught when the locals received another 15 yard penalty.

Williams then stepped back to the 25 yard stripe and booted a pretty field goal to add the final three points to the locals' score.

The Academy then kicked off and Allen made five yards before being downed. Greenwich then gathered a first down which, coupled with a penalty of half the distance to the goal, brought the ball within striking distance of the Academy's goal line.

However, the Rhode Islanders were unequal to the situation and Greenwich kicked to mid-field. At this point several substitutes went in for the Academy. After a few plays the Academy fumbled and Greenwich recovered on their own 45 yard line. Greenwich then reeled off two first downs in succession, showing their first real offensive power of the day but the game ended with Greenwich in possession of the ball on the Academy's 30 yard line.

For the Academy Hussey, McCluggage and Fidell did the best work on the line while Capt. Brewer, Labenski and Williams did well in the backfield. Cleavstrom was by far the shining light for East Greenwich while Appleton also did good work.

The local squad will put in a hard week's work for the Westerly game at Westerly on Friday as Westerly is reported as having a fas grid-iron squad. The next home game is scheduled with Bridgeport high on Saturday, Oct. 23. The summary:

Academy		E. Greenwich

GRANGE AND TRYON ARE STARS OF FOOTBALL GAME

HARTFORD, Oct. 10—(AP)—Red Grange and his New York Yankees of the American Football league, defeated New Britain on a wet field here today, 19 to 0, scoring three touchdowns. Grange played through the first half, making one 30-yard run and a sensational catch of a forward pass which netted 25 yards. He scored the second touchdown in an off-tackle slo' from the three-yard mark.

Eddie Tryon, former Colgate flash, really featured the contest with a stirring exhibition of open field running. Tryon went 25 yards for the first score of the game. New Britain, a team of mostly semi-professional players, performed well defensively but could do little on the attack. About 3,000 attended the contests

Ouimet and Lapham Win

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Francis Ouimet and Ray W. Lapham defeated Roland MacKenzie and Paul Haviland, 4 and 3 in an exhibition foursome at the Yale golf course today. Ouimet and Lapham both turned in cards of 79 while MacKenzie shot 80 and Haviland an 81.

HORNSBY PRAISES HIS TEAM WHILE HUGGINS SAYS CARDS ARE BEST CLUB

NEW YORK, Oct. 10—(AP)—The club house of the winning St. Louis Cardinals after today's game was converted into a reception room. The players themselves held the first reception in honor of Grover Cleveland Alexander, who took up the pitching burden where Jesse Haines left off in the seventh inning and made the game safe for Missouri beyond peradventure.

"Have a heart," pleaded the veteran pitcher as his team mates pounded his ancient but still strong back. "I've got to pitch again. I haven't retired."

Second only to the demonstration of enthusiasm for Alexander was the tribute paid Tommy Thevenow, young shortstop who saved the day defensively for the Cards and drove in two of the needed runs.

"Let me say a piece for the paper," pleaded Manager Hornsby, whose talking is usually done only in response to questioning in his interviews.

"I want to tell everybody that Tommy Thevenow is the best shortstop in baseball," was his manager's unstinted praise.

"There are no 'ifs' or 'buts' on this. Thevenow has them all beat. He won the ball game. Of course Alex saved the game, but everybody knows what I think of Alex's pitching.

"I had to take Haines out on account of an injured finger. He threw so many knuckle balls he rubbed the skin off and it was hurting his control. When he passed Gehrig in the seventh we saw that he was going to have trouble getting the ball over with his bad finger, so I sent for Alex. He did the rest.

"I want to say something, too, about the Yankee club and the New York fans. Our victory means all the more to us because we know that we defeated a great ball club. We know how good the Yankees are because we played them.

"The New York fans treated us most generously. They could not have been kinder and, of course, we appreciate it. I do not think any visiting club ever was treated with more consideration by home fans."

Manager Hornsby left immediately after the game for Texas to bury his mother. He was to stop at St. Louis only an hour to change trains and then continue his journey to Austin. His mother died September 29, leaving a dying request that Rogers stay with his team and give his efforts to winning the world baseball championship for St. Louis. The young Cardinal manager carried out her last wishes to the letter. The body was not interred pending his return to Austin for the burial services, and now he is going home.

Manager Huggins was cheerful in defeat. "There is nothing to say except that the Cardinals played wonderful defensive ball today, better than we did—and on the basis of their play they deserved to win. We were beaten by a great ball club and I told Rogers Hornsby so when I congratulated him as soon as the game was over. Of course we did not need today's performance to know that Alexander is a great pitcher. I have said so twice before in this series and I say so again."

Huggins was asked if he had anything to say about the cracks appearing in his team's defensive play.

"I have not one word to say about errors my boys made," he said. "Those who would rather think about errors than anything else should give a thought to the errors they didn't make.

"After all is said and done, for this series, the Cardinals' defensive play enabled them to win the game and that's that. We have a fighting club, but so have they."

Baseball Commissioner Landis was one of the first to congratulate Hornsby. "It was a great series. You have a great club and I congratulate you also on your playing personally," the directing genius of major baseball told the manager of the world's champions.

"Was there ever a greater series?" the commissioner asked, as he invaded the shower baths to shake hands with the St. Louis players who had not finished their baths. He was then off to tell the Yankees that they were glorious in defeat.

Jacob Ruppert, president of the New York Yankees, was just behind Commissioner Landis in reaching Hornsby's locker.

"It was a great series and we feel honored in extending his congratulations.

By this time the Cardinal club house held a National league quorum in a dozen managers and presidents with President John ... Heydler in ... congratulating Hornsby on the Cardinal victory.

Alexander had fought his way through his admiring teammates and was permitting the trainer to rub liniment on his right arm, called to toss on two cold days in succession.

"That's nothing but wasting time," rubbing his arm," laughed John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Giants and much more of a veteran than Alexander. "This fellow can go out and pitch an exhibition game tomorrow, and without any liniment either."

"There's something in that, too," rejoiced Alexander; "I'm going to pitch one next Sunday in Omaha.

Alexander said he felt no fatigue in the two and one-third innings he pitched, following nine hard periods yesterday. "I tried to make Ruth hit a bad ball in the ninth," he said, "and I thought I would when I got two strikes on him but he wouldn't go after the last three. Of course it was better to take a chance on putting him on than to let him hit a good one at that stage."

The slugging Ruth was a bit disconsolate after the game but soon regained his cheerful view of things in general and baseball games in particular.

"They made one more run than we did and the team that makes the most runs win, so we had to lose," he said. "Of course, I would like to have 'busted' another one but I didn't have a very good chance."

When the suggestion was made that he had added another sensational catch to his world series fielding feats, Ruth remarked, "Oh, that," leaving an impression that making great catches means nothing in his life of glorious "busting."

WORLD'S SERIES NOTES

Ruth's catch of O'Farrell's liner in the second inning was one of the greatest plays of the series. The Babe took the ball with one hand over his shoulder while on the dead run, cutting off a certain triple and possibly a home run. It was equally as brilliant a catch as Ruth's spear of Hafey's clout in the fifth game at St. Louis.

Haines was greeted with resounding whacks at the start but snappy fielding saved him. Ruth was on third and Meusel on first in the opening inning when Hornsby stopped Gehrig's smash and nipped the runner at first for the third out. Dugan singled with one out in the second but was caught trying to steal so that Severeid's blow down the left field foul line was wasted.

In contrast to the ragged fielding of Koenig and Meusel in the fourth that contributed toward three Cardinal runs, the St. Louis team backed up Haines with sparkling work. Thevenow added to the collection of fielding gems with a jumping one-hand spear of Severeid's liner in the fourth with Gehrig on second and followed in the sixth with a fine stop and throw on Gehrig's drive over the middle bag.

When Ruth was passed in the ninth by Alexander for the fourth time in the game the Yankee star tied the world's series record for receiving bases on balls. Fred Clarke, of the Pirates, in 1909 and Dick Hoblitzel of the Red Sox in 1916 also were ticketed four times in a single game.

Koenig's error in the fourth inning was his fourth of the series but only half as many as the record number of miscues, eight, chalked up by Roger Peckinpaugh of the Senators last year.

TAFTVILLE CLOSES SEASON WITH WIN OVER FABER'S STARS

Taftville A. A. closed its 1926 season Saturday afternoon at the Providence street grounds with a 7 to 2 victory over Joe Faber's All-Star club. Lefty Dugas pitching for Taftville had things pretty much his own way holding the Stars to four hits while he fanned nine men. Duke Liberty pitched for Faber but was hit freely allowing 14 hits. The hitting attack was led by Jack Clabby and Dinty Moore, getting three doubles on four times at bat and Moore connecting for a triple and two singles. The score:

ST. LOUIS DELIRIOUS WITH JOY OVER CARDS' VICTORY

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—(AP)— The pent-up feelings of a city which had waited forty years for a world's baseball championship broke out late today in a wild demonstration when the Cardinals won the deciding game of the series in New York.

The celebration promised to last for into the night and to surpass the previous hectic demonstrations when Hornsby's men clinched the National league pennant and when they came home to the greatest welcome since the world war veterans retuned from France.

Only a few loud speakers in the downtown district were broadcasting the game today but these were surrounded by large crowds which blocked traffic. Virtually every radio in the city was tuned in, with small groups in homes listening with great satisfaction to the Cards' successful drive for the greatest honors in baseball.

As soon as the game was over, St. Louis deserted its radio sets to celebrate and soon the downtown streets, usually virtually deserted on Sunday, were jammed with automobiles filled with noise-making fans.

Office buildings as a rule, were closed but from the upper windows of the railway exchange and a few other buildings came showers of paper torn into confetti.

Whistles, cowbells, automobile horns and all other conceivable noise making devices were brought into play. Dishpans, washtubs and stove pipes were tied to the rear of cars and caused a terrific din as they bounced over the pavement.

Motors were backfired, adding to the deafening roar.

Many automobiles were decorated with Cardinal colors and with red bird pasters. One large poster called the Cardinal "Our National Bird" another proposed "Alexander For President."

Despite the chilly weather, a few exuberant men renewed riding around barefoot.

Old men and old women, joined in the celebration. Jubilant fans jumped up and down, dance in the streets and hugged each other.

Everybody was happy and everybody wanted everybody else to know it.

NOW DRIVE THE CAR/

Only those who have driven a Dodge Brothers Special Sedan—or any Dodge Brothers car BUILT RECENTLY—can fully appreciate all that Dodge Brothers have accomplished during the past few months.

So swiftly has improvement followed improvement, that today the car, to all intents and purposes, is a different and incomparably finer vehicle.

The announcement of smart new body lines and attractive color combinations first attracted general favor. But since then, improvements even more fundamental have been accomplished mechanically.

Drive the car NOW! Observe its impressive new silence, smoothness and elasticity of performance, and you will then begin to realize just how vital and varied these and other later improvements actually are.

NEW LONDON MAN DENIES CHARGE OF SENDING IN FALSE FIRE ALARM

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 10—A joker was the cause of the fire department being given a needless run about 12:30 o'clock this morning for some one turned in a false alarm from Box 41, corner of Bank and Colman streets. When the firemen reached the location of the box there was no signs of fire and no one of the few persons who were nearby could give any information as to the person who turned in the alarm, until Irving Snitkin, 14 Cutler street, was located. He stated that when he passed the corner of Bank and Colman streets, George Sullivan, 49 Water street, was standing beside the box and when Snitkin reached Cutler street he heard the alarm sounded and waited on the corner. While the alarm was sounding Sullivan appeared and Snitkin inquired of the former where the fire was located. Sullivan said that he did not know. Sergeant Patrick Murphy, accompanied by Deputy Fire Chief Calvin Edmunds, went to Sullivan's home and placed him under arrest, he was taken to police headquarters, where he was questioned by Acting Lieutenant James Gaffney and to whom Sullivan denied all knowledge of the ringing of the alarm. As there were no witnesses to Sullivan's alleged act and he steadily denied turning in the alarm, he was released.

LEWIS W. FELLOWS, GROTON FALLS INTO MANHOLE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 10—Lewis W. Fellows of Groton escaped a painful injury Saturday afternoon when walking on Connecticut avenue in crossing the avenue to Waller street he stepped on a manhole cover which swayed and followed Mr. Fellows to the hole. His chin struck on the edge of the hole, opening a gash which required medical treatment.

There appears to be some influence that controls autoists and creates a passion for speed at night. The majority of cases that get before the police court for failing to observe the rules of the road and reduce speed when passing interesting streets occur late at night. There were two such cases before the court Saturday but the offenders missed penalty because the arresting officer was not in court. The men accused are John H. Sweedale of Groton who had been in the rural district and was hurrying to keep an appointment to meet his wife. He admitted that he was hurrying but said he sounded his horn at the streets he passed by. He is a driver of experience so judgment was suspended as there was no one to deny what he said.

Henry W. Schwartz drove up Town hill and represented that he was obliged to get a good start to climb the hill. He reached his home and had turned into his driveway and to [illegible] when an officer appeared [illegible] of carelessness in passing intersecting streets. He, too, said he sounded his horn and read the [illegible] as he was ordered to [illegible] he did as requested. He drew suspended judgment also.

Oscar Hansen, a yachtman, was charged with the same offense as with it was a charge that he was racing in the highway. Mr. Hansen denied both charges and was certain that he did not see any other car the time he came along Bank street. He said his speed was reasonable and that he sounded his horn as a warning. He was told to keep under the hill when he operates his car speedily hereafter. Judgment was suspended in his case.

Frank Book was charged with intoxication. [illegible] street, and as he did not appear [illegible] called, it was also charged that he was operating his car while under the influence of liquor. Book was not present when his case was called and [illegible] was ordered to appear in court Monday morning. He will probably [illegible] and then explain.

Robert E. Lee has had a charge of intoxication [illegible] was arrested by Officer [illegible] Lee was [illegible] penalized.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Norwich within and for the District of Norwich, on the 9th day of Oct., A. D. 1926.

Present, NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

Estate of Joseph W. Woolley, late of Norwich, in said District, deceased.

The Administratrix appeared in Court and filed a written application alleging that said estate is now in settlement in said Court, and praying for an order to sell certain real estate belonging to said estate, fully described in said application, and that some person other than the Administratrix be appointed to make such sale.

Whereupon, it is Ordered, That said application be heard and determined at the Probate Court Room in the City of Norwich, in said District, on the 16th day of Oct., A. D. 1926, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and that notice of the pendency of said application, and of said hearing thereon, be given by the publication of this order once in some newspaper having a circulation in said District at least three days prior to the date of said hearing, and that return be made to the Court.

NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

The above and foregoing is a true copy of record.

Attest, HELEN M. DRESCHER, Clerk.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—(AP)—By the Associated Press—Sweeping declines in the prices of cotton and speculative stocks were the chief unsettling incidents in this week's financial markets. Trading in all securities and commodities was extremely nervous throughout the week, although bonds held fairly firm in the face of $100,000,000 in new offerings, and wheat prices ended the week with little change.

The government's forecast of the largest cotton crop on record demoralized the market for this staple, depressing the price to pre-war levels below 13 cents a pound, equivalent to a decline of $30 a bale in the past month. Fears that this situation would react unfavorable on general business conditions probably accounted for much of the selling pressure against the stock market, which also was forced to undergo a drastic correction of previous speculative excesses.

The relentless hammering of stocks brought about a sharp setback in U. S. Steel, despite an increase in the corporation's unfilled tonnage at the end of September and an optimistic business forecast by Chairman E. H. Gary. Other so-called market leaders, such as General Motors and Dupont were hard hit and a heavy selling movement struck the stocks of southern railroads and industrial enterprises.

TAFTVILLE

The opening of the hunting season shouldn't stop the sportsmen from trying to hook a big bass" said President Dugas of the Taftville Rod and Gun club, Friday. The base season is fast nearing the closing date, and there is still a great deal of interest and speculation as to who will be the winner of the prize offered by the Shakespear Fishing Co., to members of the local club for the largest bass caught this season. The prize is a level winderel with a split bamboo casting rod, the value being $15. The largest bass pulled in to date is five pounds and President Dugas feels that this is a small fish for a prize winner. There are just as big fish in the water as those that have been taken out and the members are being encouraged to put forth their efforts to break the record.

Jesse H. Chamberlain of Providence, R. I., has been a visitor this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Chamberlain of South A street.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bezinet of Providence street have moved to Golden street, Norwich.

M'COOK SUIT BROUGHT ATTORNEYS INTO CLASH

Another move in the much-discussed case of the state of Connecticut against John J. McCook, executor, and the McCook heirs, which involves condemnation proceedings on McCook property adjoining the Seaside sanitarium at Crescent Beach, was made Friday at the short calendar session of the superior court in New London before Judge Newell Jennings, when the plaintiff moved to strike out a number of paragraphs in the answer of the McCook attorneys, claiming that the contents of the paragraphs were "frivolous." The legal battle which ensued was a hot one and brought forth verbal shafts from two state attorneys, Arthur M. Brown of New London county, counsel for the state, and Hugh M. Alcorn of Hartford county, who with Attorney Gross, also of Hartford, represents the McCooks. Judge Jennings took the papers in the motion and reserved decision.

SUFFERS BROKEN COLLAR BONE WHEN STRUCK BY TROLLEY CAR

Charles Frederick Spalding, a retired baker, who is caretaker of the Steiner building, where he has a room, was struck by a trolley car Saturday night about 6 o'clock as he was crossing Main street near the corner of Ferry street, sustaining a fractured collar bone and a cut over his left eye.

He was also badly dazed and shaken up so that he could give little information about himself except his name at the Backus hospital to which he was taken in the ambulance immediately after the accident. At the hospital Sunday night it was stated that he was fairly comfortable, but his mind had not cleared yet.

Spalding, who is over 60 years old, was crossing Main street in the painted crosswalk from the Disco building sidewalk to the other side of the street when a one-man trolley from Greeneville, operated by Alfred Martin, was coming towards the square. According to a witness of the accident, the motorman rang his bell repeatedly, but Spalding apparently did not hear it and kept on walking across in front of the trolley car. He had just reached the farther rail when the car hit him in the shoulder, knocking him down and throwing him to one side. He fell with his feet across the rail, but Motorman Martin brought the car to a stop with a jerk, barely an inch from the man's legs.

The ambulance was summoned at once and Mr. Spalding was hurried to the hospital.

For many years he was a baker for the late Mrs. Maria D. Robinson who conducted a bakery on Franklin street.

ROLLED DOWN BANK ON JEWETT CITY ROAD

Struck by a Massachusetts car that was passing his on the Jewett City road Sunday afternoon, the new Hupmobile six sedan of Willis P. Hill of 134 Prospect street went through a fence to the right, rolled over three times down a 30-foot bank and landed on the tracks of the Worcester division of the New Haven road. The engine of the Hup was still running when the sedan came to a stop and Mr. Hill backed it off the railroad tracks and out of the way a few minutes before a freight train came along.

Mr. Hill sustained a cut on the face, but four children who were in the car with him were not injured.

The Massachusetts machine, which was reported to be a big car, did not stop and got away without its number being secured. Several drivers who arrived immediately after the accident reported that it had passed them further along the road, zigzagging from side to side in such a way that they believed the driver was drunk.

Mr. Hill was driving towards Jewett City on the river road and as he reached a point south of Round Hill, where there was a high bank on his right, strewn with rough boulders, the Massachusetts car started to pass him from the rear as four other cars were approaching from the opposite direction, it was reported. The big green machine struck the running board of Mr. Hill's car as it went by, sending the Hill machine through the fence and down over the boulders.

The Hill machine had the top completely crushed in and the body damaged. It also lost one wheel, but it was driven back to this city under its own power.

Late Sunday night C. V. Pendleton went, to the place of the accident with Henry D. Smith, the local frieght agent, who arranged for a clear track along the railroad.

The Hupmobile was driven up the railroad track to a crossing from which it could reach the river road to this city.

ROBBINS IS REPUBLICAN NOMINEE FOR SENATOR

Lee Roy Robbins was nominated for re-election as state senator from the 19th senatorial district at the republican senatorial convention of the district, comprising Ledyard, Preston and Norwich, held in this city Saturday noon. The convention was called to order by State Central Committeeman Albert J. Bailey in the absence of Wallace S. Allis, senatorial chairman for the district. William S. Murray was named chairman of the convention.

On motion of Weston C. Pullen, Albert J. Bailey and Judge Arthur F. Libby were named delegate-at-large. Chairman Murray then called for nominations for state senator from the district and on motion of Weston C. Pullen, the present incumbent, Lee Roy Robbins was nominated for re-election.

Mrs. Appleton Maine and Frank L. Royce were named a committee to escort Senator Robbins to the convention hall. After acknowledging the honor bestowed on him by the convention Senator Robbins invited the delegates to join him at dinner at the Wauregan hotel. Wallace S. Allis was re-elected chairman of the 19th senatorial district for a two-year term.

FOUR DIVORCES GRANTED ON UNCONTESTED LIST

Four uncontested divorces were granted by Judge Newell Jennings at the short calendar session of the superior court Friday in New London.

Charles H. Cooper, of New London, was given a decree of divorce from Theresa Hagan Cooper on the grounds of desertion alleged since September, 1921.

On the grounds of cruelty, Lillian A. Otis, of New London, was given a divorce from Leonard E. Otis formerly of that city. The couple were married Dec. 6, 1915.

Katie Allen Purcell, of Groton, was given a divorce from William H. Purcell on the grounds of desertion, alleged since April, 1923. The petitioner, was also granted the custody of a minor child.

On the grounds of desertion, Benjamin Stromer, of this city, was granted a divorce from Esther Stromer. They were married June 8, 1920 and desertion was alleged to have taken place three months after the ceremony was preformed.

The divorce action of Ada Riggs Bouchard against Augustin J. Bouchard, which was scheduled to have been heard was continued for a week.

TRAVELERS AUXILIARY HELD SOCIAL AFTER MEETING

The Ladies auxiliary of Norwich council, No. 309, United Commercial Travelers, held a regular meeting Saturday evening at Buckingham Memorial. There was a good sized attendance at the meeting which was presided over by Mrs. Everett Lyons in the absence of the president. Following the transaction of regular business a social hour was enjoyed. The next meeting will be held November 13 at Odd Fellows hall, New London.

Rochambeau Tablet To Be Unveiled

Members of the Society of Mayflower Descendants in the state of Connecticut have been invited by Col. Jeremiah Wadsworth Branch of the Connecticut Society Sons of the American Revolution to attend the ceremony of presentation to the town of Farmington of a tablet, commemorating the visit of Rochambeau to Farmington during the Revolutionary war.

Exercises are to be held at 2 o'clock p. m., on Oct. 13, followed by the unveiling of the tablet on the village green.

The average man hasn't enough courage to applaud until some other fellow starts it.

INVITED TO CONFERENCE ON GASOLINE TAX LAWS

The Connecticut state motor vehicle department has been asked to send a representative to a conference of states which have gasoline laws, which is to be held at St. Louis November 11, 12 and 13. The conference has been called by the department of oil inspection of the Missouri state government.

All but four of the states in the Union have now adopted the gasoline tax, which has been effective in Connecticut since September 1, 1921, first in the form of a one-cent levy for each gallon sold and since July 1, 1925, in the form of a two-cent levy per gallon. The states which do not have the tax on gasoline are Illinois, Massachusetts, New Jersey and New York. Only two of the forty-four states adhere to the one-cent rate, Texas and Rhode Island. The rate in Oregon, Idaho, Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Tennessee, Indiana and Maine is three cents it is three and one-half cents in Georgia, Utah and West Virginia; it is four cents in Arkansas, Florida, Mississippi, Nevada and North Carolina; it is four and one-half cents in Virginia; it is five cents in Kentucky and it is five and one eighth cents in South Carolina. Arkansas has in addition a tax of ten cents a gallon on oil.

The Connecticut department has notified the promoters of the St. Louis conference that the gasoline tax law is working out very satisfactorily in this state.

The states which have the gasoline tax, raised $146,028,940 by it last year. Connecticut's receipts from that tax aggregated about $1,900,000, which were by law, turned over to the state highway department for the construction, maintennance or reconstruction of state highways. It is an easy tax to administer, according to the Connecticut department, the cost to the state for the collection of the gasoline tax being approximately one per cent. of the receipts from the tax.

CONNECTICUT SOIL FOR STATE TREE AT SESQUI

Connecticut soil to be used in the planting of the Connecticut tree in Independence Square, in Philadelphia, on October 11th, has been sent by the Connecticut, D. A. R., according to the announcement of Mrs. Alexander Ennis Patton, chairman of the Thirteen-Original-Colony Tree Planting Committee.

In sending their native soil to nurture the young of the tree typifying the sturdy freedom of their forebears in the little Nutmeg State the "Daughters" confess to having much difficulty in deciding which historic spot would best serve the purpose.

"We finally selected Windsor, Conn., and our own Daughters of the American Revolution property there, which was once the home of Oliver Elsworth, Third Chief Justice of the United States," wrote Mrs. Charles Humphrey Bissell, the state regent.

Mrs. Bissell will arrive in Philadelphia on Monday to participate in the patriotic ceremony of planting Thirteen-Original-Colony Trees, as living monuments to the founders and patriots of the first states in the union.

In planting these trees the committee and its co-operating patriotic organizations, will follow the example of Washington, Jefferson and Alexander Hamilton, each of whom planted thirteen trees to commemorate the part taken by the Colonies for the cause of America's Independence and Liberty.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE CHOOSING FOUR DIRECTORS

Over 100 members of the chamber of commerce voted in the primary election for four new directors during the past week. The voting is done by mail and the ballots are received in sealed envelopes which are opened by the election committee. The full membership roster is mailed to each member so that selections can be made for nominees. The members were requested to choose four names and the eight members reciving the largest numbr of votes are the nominees for four directors. No director can be renominated to succeed himself in the same year. Six of the old board hold over for the coming year, who together with the four elected, select two other members to serve with them on the board. This makes a total of twelve members on the board of directors.

The eight nominees are mailed to the members for the final election. The following members were nominated: Frank G. Aubrey, Nelson J. Ayling, Herbert B. Cary, Edward W. Jewett, Archibald Mitchell, Jacob Munz, Shepard B. Palmer, Ernest O. Rodier. The balloting will close at 5 p. m., Thursday, October 14th.

The election committee is John A. Cunningham, Henry S. Lyon, Wesley S. Moon, John J. O'Rourke, Frank A. Powers, J. Henry Shannon.

"building for tomorrow"

—a story of reliability
—a promise for the future

By Reid & Hughes

IT is a common mistake to speak of successful people as people who have arrived. The only people who really arrive at their destination are the failures because they stop instead of going on. But successful people are always traveling. And it is so with institutions.

Reid & Hughes are still building, still striving, still traveling. The edifice of this business is still in course of construction, built far towards completion, but still far from the goal.

It is the proud record of this store that it has never been conducted exclusively for somebody, but inclusively for everybody, from the wage-earner to the well-to-do.

FOR 50 years its conception of service has been to serve everybody alike, catering to all classes and kowtowing to none.

Its patronage is drawn both from those who enjoy the luxuries of life and from those who bring the New England spirit of thrift to their limitations.

And it rejoices in "a carriage trade" that is not confined to limousines but includes perambulators!

It is an institution in the broad sense of catering to all ages, all wages and all stages of economic development.

Our salespeople sell goods that won't come back to customers who will. They constitute a highly specialized group of loyal workers, who are as interested in serving as in selling.

OUR aim is to have on hand the right goods at the right time and at the right prices.

We are never satisfied with a transaction here unless the customer is satisfied. A pleased customer is, indeed, the best advertisement we can have.

Associated as we are, with 77 other progressive stores in different cities, not the least benefits of this New York buying affiliation are the better values that result from the pooled purchasing and the lowered cost of manufacture and distribution.

SO, with these principles of service foremost in mind, Reid & Hughes will continue to serve the public of Eastern Connecticut, by . . .

Keeping ahead!
Keeping faith!
Keeping our word for quality!
KEEPING our reputation for economy!
Keeping old patrons satisfied!
And keeping new customers coming!

STATE'S STAR WITNESS IN THE M'PHERSON CASE

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Oct. 11.—(AP)—Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Steiaff, the state's star witness, detailed on the witness stand here today her charges that she was kidnapped by Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, to produce a woman to pose as the cottage companion of Kenneth G. Ormiston, radio operator at Carmel, Calif., in May.

A recent confession by Mrs. Wiseman led to the conspiracy charges of which Mrs. McPherson, her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, and others, including Mrs. Wiseman, are being given a preliminary hearing.

The state alleges Mrs. McPherson lived ten days at the Carmel cottage with Ormiston following her mysterious disappearance last May, and that she attempted to manufacture false evidence in an effort to support her story that she was kidnapped.

Mrs. Wiseman testified she entered Mrs. McPherson case in San Francisco, where she was employed as a stenographer, at the request of a "Mr. Martin, who is understood to be the man named in a "John Doe" warrant in the McPherson case. He has not been arrested.

Martin produced newspaper clippings about the McPherson case and said the evangelist must be cleared. Mrs. Steiaff testified. Martin then told her she said that "of course, it was Mrs. McPherson at Carmel; else I would not want you to help."

CHARGES HUSBAND SAS CHAIN OF SWEETHEARTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Alexander A. Goldenweiser, anthropologist and lecturer, in the new school for social research, was locked up in the Tombs today on the complaint of his wife who is suing for separation and charges that he was about to leave the jurisdiction of the court.

Mrs. Goldenweiser charges that her husband has a sweetheart in Seattle known as "Kempie." Mrs. Sawyer in Los Angeles and a stenographer known as Miss Cooper, somewhere near New York.

"Although he posed as a great moral teacher, writer and lecturer," Mrs. Goldenweiser avers, "in his spare moments he seeks the companionship of frivolous women, corresponds with them, sees with them and deserts me and our 11-year-old daughter for weeks."

The Goldenweisers were married in 1906.

TO CONTEST WILL OF RUDOLPH VALENTINO

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Oct. 11.—(AP)—Contest of the will of Rudolph Valentino has been ordered by Albert and Marie Guglielmi, brother and sister of the film sheik, their attorneys announced tonight, following the appointment in court today of George Ullman, Valentino's former business manager, as sole executor.

FORMER KAISER'S RE-ENTRY OF GERMANY IMPROBABLE

BERLIN, Oct. 11.—(AP)—"The former Kaiser is the only man in the world who seriously cherishes the hope that some day he will triumphantly re-enter Germany and re-establish himself on the throne from which he ruled for thirty years."

A high official of the Prussian government made this remark today to a correspondent of the Associated Press in connection with the Hohenzollern indemnity and property settlement agreement signed by the state and the former emperor's administrators and now before the diet.

The reading of the compromise bill relating to this settlement raised a great uproar in the Prussian diet today, the communists assuming a threatening attitude and denouncing the terms of the settlement, which provides for a payment to the Hohenzollern family of $3 600,000, the allotment of 167,000 acres of the former estates and a castle at Homburg for the Ex-Kaiser and his wife, Princess Hermine.

Continuing his comments on the former emperor's aspirations, the Prussian official said: "It was merely a grand gesture on the part of the state that in the agreement the $700,000 castle at Homburg was set aside for life for Wilhelm and Princess Hermine should they 'eventually' return."

THREE MEN KILLED IN FALL OF AIRPLANE

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Three men were killed instantly here late today when the wings of their airplane collapsed 1,500 feet above the ground and the plane crashed with the motor running.

The dead are: T. Wister Shallcross, a commercial pilot, and George W. Widdemer, a passenger, both of this city, and Clarence Markham, 22, a commercial pilot of Vineland, N. J.

The plane was returning to the field, on the Roosevelt boulevard where Shallcross had operated on short passenger flights for the past two years, when, according to witnesses, the wings suddenly folded up and the ship nosed over.

It fell like a plummet and ploughed deeply into the road. The three fliers were badly crushed. Hundreds of persons saw the plane crash and ran to the assistance of the occupants.

NOMINEES FOR SENATOR FROM THE 13TH DISTRICT

MERIDEN, Oct. 11.—(AP)—At the republican primary election, held here this evening, Roy C. Wilcox was nominated as candidate for senator from the 13th Connecticut district.

At the democratic caucus, also held this evening, Frederick L. Neehe was nominated for senator from the 13th district.

Rollin U. Tyler, the democratic candidate for United States senator, and James E. Doughan, candidate for congressman from the third Connecticut district, were the speakers at the democratic caucus.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

PARIS, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Benito [illegible]lini has taken offense at the [illegible]ture of an Italian tourist as [illegible] in a scene of the "Moulin [illegible]" latest review, and through diplomatic channels asked that the scene be withdrawn.

PARIS, Oct. 11.—(AP)—That he could not live except within sight of his beloved Eiffel tower was the reason given by Basile Teron, for 40 years elevator man at the tower, when he rented an apartment near the Champs de Mars upon retiring on a pension, instead of living in the country, as his friends advised.

LITTLE CHANGE IN PROSPECT OF PRODUCTION OF CROPS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Prospective crop production showed very little change during the past month, according to the October crop forecast today by the agriculture department.

Growing conditions during September for the country as a whole appear to have been favorable, notwithstanding frosts in the northwest and excessive rains in the central states. As a result, further improvement was shown and instead of the short crops that seemed probable during the drought of early summer it now appear that crop yields will approximately equal the average of the last ten years.

Corn lost about 18,000,000 bushels in prospective production during September with the crop now indicated at 2,679,989,000 bushels. This is 3 per cent smaller than last year.

Damage from frost and lossse to yield from excessively wet weather in the central states were largely offset by favorable weather during the first three weeks of September and also by lateness of frost in eastern states. Quality of the crop, however, has suffered somewhat from the wet weather.

Spring wheat improved slightly and a crop of 213,336,000 bushels is indicated. With a winter wheat crop of 626,482,000 bushels, already harvested, the total wheat crop now is placed at 839,818,000 bushels, as compared with 666,000,000 bushels last year. Wheat production this year will exceed the five-year average by 85,000,000bushels.

The white potato crop is larger than last year, but below the five-year average. Total apple production is the largest in a dozen years.

The Florida hurricane damaged the citrus fruit crop of that state to the extent of approximately 600,000 boxes of oranges and 1,400,000 boxes of grapefruit. Production now indicated is 9,000,000 boxes of oranges and 6,000,000 of grape fruit.

"FIGHTING FUNDAMENTALIST" EJECTED FROM HIGH SCHOOL

SOUTH DAKOTA, Oct. 11.—(AP)—The Rev. A. H. Crombie sprang into limelight again today as a militant fundamentalist when it became known that he was bodily ejected from the Lead high school by the principal for insisting on personally inspecting text books to determine whether evolution and other "modern heresies" were being taught. The principal, C. C. Curran, said Mr. Crombie created a "disturbance."

It also became known that the state synod of the Presbyterian church at Groton was considering his removal from the ministry. The preacher some time ago was ousted from his church here because of his attitude on fundamentalism, but has has not been unfrocked by the Presbyterian church.

Describing his conflict with Principal Curran, Mr. Crombie tonight said that when he demanded to visit classes and inspect text books, Mr. Curran "refused, and I refused to leave."

"We clinched and went down the stairs together in a heap, and if he had not called for help, I think religion would have triumphed over science for once," the preacher said.

"I am dubbed the fighting fundamentalist, but I am only an American who wants to keep this a government of, by, and for the people, and that includes the public schools."

ASKS SENATE INVESTIGATION OF KU KLUX KLAN IN INDIANA

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Senate investigation of the Ku Klux Klan in Indiana was requested today in a telegram sent to Senator Borah, republican, Ohio, by Thomas H. Adams, Vincennes, Ind., publisher.

Senator Borah requested information from Mr. Adams as to the operation of the Klan in Indiana. Replying to that request the Indiana editor said:

"I believe this is a matter of such grave importance that the senate should probe into the workings of the super-government of the invisible empire to show its marvelous scientific coordination, the basis of which was a super-government. The super oath of masked authority smacks of treason."

WEDDING CEREMONY WAS SHARED BY TWO TOWNS

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 11.—(AP)—Two townships today shared in the wedding ceremony which united Miss Gertrude Bennett of Windsor to James Henry of this city. The nuptials were commenced in the home of the bride's sister in Windsor. When the officiating clergyman came to the clause pronouncing the couple man and wife the service was halted. Bridal couple, minister and attendants took automobiles and crossed the town line into Hartford, where the ritual was completed. The bride wanted to be married at the home of her sister; the marriage license had been taken out in Hartford, so it was necessary for romance and the requirements of the law to compromise.

STRUCK BY TRAIN WHILE ASLEEP WITH HEAD ON RAIL

MERIDEN, Oct. 11.—(AP)—While lying on the side of the railroad tracks apparently asleep and with his head resting on one of the rails, Philip Lewis, 35, of this city, was struck late today by a frieght car preceding a switch engine on a spur track in the rear of the Connecticut school for boys. At the Meriden hospital, where it was found he had received a fracture of the skull, his condition was given as critical.

INJUNCTION AGAINST BIG FOUR AND N. Y. CENTRAL

CINCINNATI, Oct. 11.—(AP)—A temporary injunction was granted late today by United States District Judge Smith Hickenlooper restraining the majority stockholders of the big four and New York Central railway from entering in a 99 year lease of the big Four property to the New York Central railway.

13 Soldiers Pleaded Guilty Incendiarism

Have Caused More Than $2,000,000 Damage to Property at Fort Sill, Okla.

LAWTON, Okla., Oct. 11.—(AP)—Thirteen soldiers today pleaded guilty to being members of an arson ring that is alleged to have started fires which resulted in more than $2,000,000 damage at Fort Sill and were sentenced by Judge John M. Cotteral to serve terms in prison.

Roy Grassaway, who confessed to having participated in five fires was sentenced to 52 years. Sections of this sentence which are concurrent, however, reduce his total to 32 years.

Ollie Drake received sentences of 20 years each for two fires. The sentences will run concurrently.

The other sentences imposed ranged from three to twenty two years.

The fires occurred last June and July. The defendants said they set fire to the buildings "for a thrill."

13 SEAMEN HELD PRISONERS BY NICARAGUAN REBELS

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—(AP)—A tale of having been shanghaied, held prisoner aboard their own ship and forced under penalty of death to transport arms and ammunitions for Nicaraguan rebels was told by 13 seamen who arrived here aboard the Panama-Pacific Railway liner Cristobal today.

The seamen said they sailed from Brooklyn last July 30 on the trawler Foam for San Diego and first suspected all was not right about the trip when at Puerto, Mexico, on August 12, they returned from shore leave to find groups of dark-skinned men loading packing cases in the Foam's hold.

They questioned the capain, according to Second Assistant Engineer John Holland, and were persuaded to remain with the ship until it reached Bluefields, Nicaragua, where he promised them they would be paid off and given passage to New York, according to their story.

Rather than be stranded in Puerto, Mexico they accepted. Shortly before sailing, they said, about 20 "passengers" came aboard, and these shortly after the ship had cleared the port doffed their civilian clothing and appeared in the uniforms of Nicaraguan rebels.

Two were in the uniforms of generals, the seamen said, and swaggered about the deck brandishing pistols in the faces of the Foam's crew.

On the morning of August 16, the Foam anchored three miles off Progreso, Mexico, near the coast of Nicaragua, they said, and machine guns were mounted and the American flag taken down.

Then began a series of activities in gun running. The ship was ordered run alongside the dock at Bragman's Bluff, they said, while the town was being attacked by rebels from land and sea. Bullets whizzed over their heads, they asserted, and when the town finally was captured by the rebels their ship was ordered to Rio Grande and then to Bluefields where heavy fighting was in progress. After a few hours shelling, the Foam drew off and when ordered to return ran aground on the false Bluefield rocks, said the seamen.

No longer of use to the rebels, the seamen said, the vessel was abandoned and the crew left, virtually without food, shift for themselves.

TREES AS MEMORIALS TO 13 ORIGINAL COLONIES

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Living memorials to the 13 original colonies, 13 sturdy red oak trees, typifying the staunchness of American unity, were planted today in Independence square.

Native soil, redolent of association with history and tradition, transported from each of the pioneer states, was placed at the roots of the trees by the governors of the common wealths of their representatives.

A military parade, in which many Legionnaires here for the American Legion convention, participated, preceded the ceremonies at the historic square.

Marked with bronze plates, placed on their boughs by regents of the National society, Daughters of the American Revolution, in the name of their respective states, the young oaks were presented by Congressman Martin L. Lavey, Ohio, on behalf of the National Association of Gardeners. Congressman Davey donated the plates in memory of his father, John Davey, one of the first American tree surgeons. Mayor eKndrick accepted the trees for Philadelphia and Mrs. Alfred J. Brousseau, president general of the D. A. R., for the United States.

State regents of the D. A. R., who affixed the name plate of their respective commonwealths included Mrs. Charles Humphrey Bissell, Connecticut.

UNLICENSED AVIATOR FELL TRYING TAIL SPIN

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 11.—(AP)—Trying a tail spin 400 feet from the ground and with the motor running, Charles Teleska, 22, unlicensed pilot, crashed his airplane to the ground shortly after taking off at Britton Field late this afternoon during the exhibition here of the Byrd polar plane.

Accompanying Teleska as passengers, were Stanley Pierce, 26, and Phillip Barnes, 23, both of this city. Pierce received internal injuries in the crash and is reported to be in a critical condition at a local hospital. Barnes suffered fractured legs and severe body bruises. Teleska escaped with a possible fracture of the nose and slight bruises.

DEATH OF HENRY L. FUQUA, GOVERNOR OF LOUISIANA

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 11.—(AP)—Henry L. Fuqua, governor of Louisiana since May, 1924, died in the executive mansion here tonight. His death was a shock to his friends as his illness of a few days' duration had not been regarded as serious.

The governor made his last visit to the state house Friday and was able to conduct official business at his home Saturday. His illness became acute Sunday, however, when he suffered a slight hemorrhage at that time, his physicians revealed tonight.

Lieutenant Governor O. H. Simpson of New orleans, will automatically succeed Governor Fuqua.

Fully 3,000 are expected to march in the Columbus day parade in Hartford this afternoon.

Jury is Completed For the Morse Trial

Three Brothers and 14 Other Defendants Are Charged With Misusing the Mails.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—(AP)—The jury for the trial of Erwin A., Benjamin W., and Harry F. Morse and 14 other defendants charged with misusing the mails to promote sales of United States Steamship company securities, was completed late this afternoon. The jury includes James Lovegrove, a butler for W. K. Vanderbilt and Eugene P. Tully, a vice-president of the Postal Telegraph company.

Charles W. Morse, who also was indicted on the same charges, is too ill to go on trial. Two other of the original defendants, Nehemiah H. Campbell, an officer of the United States Steamship company and Richard O. White, according to Fletcher Dobyns, special assistant attorney general, have agreed to become witnesses for the government, and Judge Thatcher announced that a severance of trial had been granted in their cases.

James O'Brien, one of the defendants, has died since the indictment was returned. In the cases of three others, Marvin Gillen, Stuart G. Gibboney and William Barber, the indictments, it was announced are to be nolle prossed.

ACTION BY AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR

DETROIT, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Reaffirming its policy of non-partisan political activity, the American Federaition of Labor convention voted unanimously today to avoid entanglements in the 1928 presidential campaign, by withholding action on a resolution introduced by representatives of the New York State Federation of Labor proposing endorsement of Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York for the democratic presidential nomination.

The convention approved without debate the report of its committee on resolutions on the Smith proposal which pointed out the country is not now in a presidential campaign and that Governor Smith is not an avowed candidate for the presidency.

The report recalled that Gov. Smith is a candidate for re-election as chief executive of the Empre State, and that he had the endorsement of the New York Federation for that office.

A vigorous declaration of the Federation's intention to wage unrelenting warfare against the foes of the injunction system was voiced in a resolution endorsing an executive council report.

Two resolutions denouncing citizens military training camps as militaristic were rejected by the convention in favor of the expression contained in the executive council report that "it would be advantageous to all of the boys of our country to take advantage of the opportunity afforded them in these camps."

Reiterating the expression of previous conventions, the delegates unanimously approved a resolution urging re-trial in the case of Nicola Sacco and B. Vanzetti, convicted in Massachusetts for murder.

EDWARD W. BROWNING STILL LOVES "PEACHES"

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—(AP)—"You can't bring an action against any one you love."

This was the reply of Edward W. Browning, the wealthy real estate man, when asked today if he would sue his 16 year old wife Frances "Peaches" Browning because of a series of articles under his wife's name in a New York newspaper purporting to give the reasons for leaving him a week ago.

"I still love my wife," Browning reiterated. "In spite of all that she has said, I want her back. She was a wife to me in name only. I wanted a child. My life's ambition is to have a child and a home."

"Was it a case of too much mother-in-law?" Browning was asked.

"I don't want to discuss that," he replied. "Don't get me in bad with anyone You can use your own judgment."

When questioned concerning his wife's statements that he had given her only paste jewelry, Browning showed bills marked paid—one for $4,000 for a bracelet and another for $1,500 for a ring.

"She had more from me in the last five months than she ever had in all her life," he said. "But she was always finding fault."

RUSSELL SCOTT'S NEW HOPE TO AVERT EXECUTION

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Saved once from execution by a governor's reprieve and again by an order for a sanity hearing which averted his death by more than a year, Russell Scott, convicted slayer of Joseph Maurer, drug clerk, found his hope of life rekindled today four days before the third date set for his hanging.

The clerk of the supreme court at Springfield, Ills., issued a writ of error today which, if upheld by the court tomorrow, would re-open Scott's case for appeal or for a new sanity hearing. The writ was based on the sanity hearing by which Scott was found sane last summer. Previously he was found insane and sent to an asylum but after a year was found at a new hearing to have regained his reason. The writ was asked by Scott's attorney because the judge who heard the last sanity proceeding refused a change of venue after listening to court alienists who called Scott sane.

LOS ANGELES AWAITS FAVORABLE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—(AP)—The dirigible Los Angeles will not start on its flight from the Atlantic Seaboard to Detroit, Mich., before noon tomorrow, its skipper, Lieutenant Commander C. E. Rosendahl, advised the navy department late today.

Meanwhile weather forecasts along the route indicate the ship probably will not make her flight to the Michigan city before Thursday.

Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, now expects to make the trip, the unavoidable delay enabling him to catch up with official work here.

More residents of New York city are interested in voting on the state prohibition referendum and for governor, United States senator and state officers than were interested in the unusually bitter 1925 mayoralty election.

Joseph Boitue, an alien, appeared before Judge Edwin S. Thomas, in federal court in New Haven yesterday, charged with smuggling his second wife who has already been refused admittance into this country from Canada.

Stephen Ivan Miller, educational director of the American Bankers' association, is undecided whether to accept the presidency of the University of Washington to succeed Dr. Henry Suzzallo, ousted by vote of the board of regents.

W. A. Gordon, statistical accountant for the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, contended before the interstate commerce commission that New England carriers were entitled to higher rates on coal shipments than railroads in the eastern district as a whole.

Employes of the upholstering firm of B. Dworkin and Company of Hartford, who are now on strike, and members of the Upholsterers' International union, local No. 85, have been restrained from interfering with the company's work, in an injunction which has been issued by Judge Marvin of the superior court.

DAUGHERTY-MILLER JURY FAILED TO REACH VERDICT

Judge Mack Discharged the Jurymen After They Had Been Out More Than 65 Hours—Daugherty and Miller Both Seemed Jubilant Over the Disagreement—Marshal Says He Heard the Jurymen Say They Stood 6 to 6 on Daugherty and 10 to 2 for Conviction of Miller.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—(AP)—A "hung jury" today ended the five weeks' conspiracy trial of Harry M. Daugherty and Thomas W. Miller, government officials under President Warren G. Harding. The jurors had been out more than 65 hours, longer than any other jury in the history of the Federal building.

Former Attorney General Daugherty was the first cabinet officer in the history of this country to be brought to trial on a charge of conspiring to defraud the government based on action while he was a member of the cabinet.

Daugherty and Miller, former alien property custodian, were indicted for conspiring to defraud the government of the best services in permitting release in 1921 of $7,000,000 war impounded assets of the American Metal company.

The case was given to the jury at 9:43 o'clock Friday night. On saturday failure to agree was reported, but Judge Mack insisted on further deliberation. Again yesterday the jury was told that not yet would anything but a verdict be acceptable to the court.

At three o'clock today, however, the talesmen were called into the court room for the last time.

Judge Mack cleared his throat and the room was still as though populated only by shadows.

"Gentlemen of the jury," he said, "have you reached a verdict in regard to these two defendants at the bar?"

Alfred Weil, foreman of the jury raised his head. He drew a long breath, as though to shout his answer, but when he spoke his voice was a harsh whisper.

"We have not."

"Have you reached a verdict in regard to either of these defendants?"

Again the foreman's whisper—"We have not."

"I shall not hold you longer gentlemen," the judge said.

"You have deliberated long and earnestly, and I thank you for all that you have done."

After counsel on both sides had also thanked the jury the talesmen trooped back to the jury room for their suit cases. As they reentered the corridor a marshal said he heard them say that they had stood 6 to 6 on Daugherty and 10 to 2 for conviction of Miller. Besieged by reporters, however, the jurors stated that they had pledged themselves not to tell what the standing had been.

The jury deliberation was marked by the illness last night of one juror, a shell-shocked war veteran, and the statement to the court of another that duress was being brought to bear upon the minority. Murray White, the veteran, had improved sufficiently today to permit him to complete his task.

Daugherty and Miller both seemed quietly jubilant over the disagreement, and Mrs. Miller, who has attended almost every session of the trial, smiled happily as she left the building with her husband.

United States Attorney Buckner who prosecuted the case, said that he would not decide about a retrial for a month at the least.

The former government officials were charged with conspiring against the government under inducement of "hypodermic injections of graft" applied by the late John T. King, republican national committeeman from Connecticut.

Richard Merton, German copper magnate who came to this country to obtain release of the assests, testified at the trial that he paid King a fee of $441,000 to put his claim through government offices. It was alleged that King did this by passing part of his fee, paid in Liberty bonds, to Daugherty and Miller. "reaching" them through Jess W. Smith, Daugherty's political handyman. The Liberty bonds the government traced $50,000 to Miller's brokerage accounts and $174,000 to the Midland National bank, of Washington Courthouse, O., which was operated under the presidency of Mal S. Daugherty, the former attorney general's brother.

Mal Daugherty was one of the most sensational witnesses at the trial. He was called by the government to tell how his brother had burned bank records which the government contended would have comprised an important link in its chain of evidence.

Daugherty's counsel, in summation, asserted that the records were burned to keep political foes from discovering facts concerning the Harding campaign fund which Harry Daugherty had raised. Buckner replied in his summation by asking how such information would be in bank records of 1921 when the Harding campaign was in 1919 and 1920.

Neither defendant took the stand in his own defense.

SCHOONER COLUMBIA WON FIRST FISHERMEN'S RACE

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 11.—(AP)—In one of the greatest races sailed off this port in many years, Captain Ben Pine, today brought the schooner Columbia home over a 40 mile course, just one minute and four seconds ahead of Captain Clayton Morrissey's Henry Ford. Tonight in the series of three contests for the fishing fleet she has two silver cups and a purse of $3,000, the Columbia held a decided edge and Gloucester knew it had two fleet vessels and two cunning sailing masters.

It was a battle of skippers and today was Ben Pine's day. But the result was in doubt to the minute the leader crossed the finish line. So evenly matched were the vessels that Gloucester remained in doubt long as to their sailing qualities. There was no doubt whatever that in the contest of wits, "Doc" outfoxed "Clayton" and that is how Gloucestermen expressed it.

The race was won in the last six miles, after the vessels had contested four legs of the course with varying advantage but on fairly even terms.

The wind veered about, during the race, and dropped at times to seven or eight knots. The heavy breeze seemed to favor Columbia, while the Ford made faster footing in light airs. But in the main, their opposed perfectly matched and seamanship decided the issue. The course was patrolled by U. S. coast guard vessels, and Lieutenant Commander Stephen S. Nye, chief of the coast guard, directed operations from the destroyer Wainwright, which was used as the committee boat. The summaries:

Columbia: Captain Ben Pine; elapsed time 4:49:56.

Henry Ford: Captain Clayton H. Morrissey; elapsed time 4:51:00.

RALLIES IN STATE FOR REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN

HARTFORD, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Trubee Davison, of New York, assistant secretary of war for aviation will speak at the republican rally in Winsted, Wednesday night, in place of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, it was announced by the speakers' bureau of republican state headquarters today. Colonel Roosevelt's doctors have forbidden him to leave the hospital where he is being treated for carbuncles.

A meeting for republican workers of Litchfield county at which the entire state ticket will be present will be held in Litchfield, Oct. 20, according to plans announced today. The entire state ticket will also attend a rally to be held in Waterbury, Oct. 25. Governor Trumbull, Senator Alice Pattison Merritt of Hartford and Congressman Walter W. Magee of Syracuse, N. Y., will be the speakers at a rally to be held in Willimantic, Oct. 26. Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett has been added to the list of speakers for the rally to be held in Newtown, Oct. 28.

ACCIDENTALLY FATALLY SHOT BY FELLOW HUNTER

GREENWICH, Oct. 11.—(AP)—James Ferraro, 26, of 26 Bibb street, Cos Cob, Greenwich, accidentally shot by Harold Schwartz, 18, on a hunting trip this morning, died in the Greenwich hospital late today. Schwartz is being held by the police.

Ferraro was accidentally shot by his companion, Harold Schwartz, the bullet lodging at the base of Ferraro's spine. The men were climbing a fence at the time of the accident and it is believed that Ferraro's arm struck the gun, causing it to be discharged.

AMERICAN LEGION IN NATIONAL CONVENTION

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—(AP)—A plea to the millions of voters in the United States to exercise their right of franchise was the dominant note struck at the opening session of the American Legion national convention today.

"The duties of peace are as vital as those of war," said President Coolidge in a message of greeting to the Legionnaires. "In a sense they are more so," he added. "Shirkers in peace time are to be condemned as severely as slackers during a war."

"We cannot retain our liberties under our representative form of government if we do not keep it representative," he said. "To much stress cannot be laid on the necessity of 'getting-out-the-vote'."

Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania won a storm of applause when in welcoming the delegates, he urged not only a full vote at elections, but clean elections.

"There is a tendency seen, not only in Illinois and Pennsylvania, but in many other states, to buy elections, to steal elections," said the governor.

"We want clean elections and elections free from the taint of money; free from the control of the great corporations and the business interests that seek to dominate for the sake of profit the free institutions that were born of the blood of our forefathers and preserved by the blood of the men who are represented here."

The 2,000 delegates and alternates cheered National Commander John R. McQuigg when he announced in his annual report that the American Legion now had 673,229 members, a gain of 79,614 over 1925.

HARVARD FRESHMAN DIED ON TENNIS COURT

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 11.—(AP)—Monroe K. Nichols of Andover, a Harvard freshman, whose death on the college tennis courts this afternoon started a police investigation, was the victim of heart disease, Dr. M. H. Bailey, medical advisor at Harvard, said tonight.

The police believed that Nichols might have been assaulted because of several bruises on his face but Dr. Bailey stated that the marks were caused by Nichols' fall to the ground when he was stricken.

According to Dr. Bailey the youth's death occurred almost at the conclusion of a set of tennis. Nichols suddenly gasped for breath, staggering across the court and toppled to the ground. He was examined on the spot and declared dead by a doctor and a second examination at Cambridge City hospital was made but revealed only the probability of death by heart failure. The body was taken to an undertaking parlor to await examination by the medical examiner.

UNEXPECTED OPPOSITION, BUT LA FRANCE RE-NOMINATED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 11—A contest in the republican twenty-ninth senatorial district convention held at the Windham Center schoolhouse at noon Monday, developed from an unexpected quarter, when two additional nominations were made besides that of Urgele La France of Plainfield, the present incumbent. The other nominees were Albert L. Mills of Hampton and Dr. Elmer Bennett, of Plainfield. It was the first contest in the twenty-ninth republican senatorial convention since 1856, or thirty years ago. Attorney Harry S. Gaucher's motion that the voting for candidates be by roll call was carried. There was but one absentee of the twenty-six delegates eligible to vote, Paul F. Herr of Canterbury. Albert L. Mills, one of the nominees, who attended the convention as a delegate, did not vote. Clerk W. G. Gallup of Chaplin read

URGELE LA FRANCE
Renominated for Senator

the roll call of twenty-four names, fifteen votes being necessary for the choice. Senator LaFrance received sixteen votes, Mills five and Dr. Bennett three. On motion of Mr. Mills the nomination of Senator LaFrance was made unanimous.

A. Linn Weatherhead of Windham, called the convention to order, being chairman of the republican twenty-ninth senatorial committee. He was made permanent chairman. Winslow B. Gallup of Chaplin was chosen clerk. Chairman Weatherhead appointed the following committee on credentials: Max Henry Paine of Pomfret, Albert L. Mills, Hampton and Mrs. Ida Hutchin of Windham.

Thomas Hope of Plainfield, after lauding the work of Senator LaFrance for the people and the party, presented his name for candidate for reelection. Arthur Mather, also of Plainfield, presented the name of Dr. Bennett and that of Mr. Mills was presented by Henry Hopkins of Plainfield.

Delegates who voted for La France were: Brooklyn, Riley B. Witter, by proxy for H. J. Burbank. Frank M. Bedard, proxy for Maud M. Hargreaves; Canterbury, George Barstow, William J. Wright; Hampton, Raymond P. Fuller; Plainfield, Thomas Hope, Peter Chabot; Pomfret, Elinor B. Mathewson, A. Newton Searls, proxy for Mrs. John B. Campbell, Fitz-Henry Paine; C. E. Griggs; Scotland, Charles A. Brent, R. S. Tomlinson; Windham, A. Linn Weatherhead, Harry S. Gaucher, William F. Maine, and Ida C. Lutton.

Voting for Mills: Chaplin, W. B. Gallup, Rev. J. H. Knott; Plainfield, Henry Hopkins; Sterling, Fred C. Marriott, George I. Babcock.

Voting for Bennett: Canterbury, George Barstow, Levi N. Clark; Plainfield, A. H. Mathewson, proxy for Carl Gallup.

The resolutions committee appointed was Mrs. Elinor B. Mathewson of Pomfret, Harry S. Gaucher, Windham and Levi N. Clark of Canterbury. The resolution presented at the meeting reaffirmed the satisfaction of the delegates with the policies and administration of the republican party, of county, state and nation and commended to the electorate of the district irrespective of party the nominee, Hon. Urgele La France of Plainfield. The resolution pointed out that his renomination was in recognition of his unusual qualifications for the office and of his watchful care in the senate of 1925 for the interests of both the twenty-ninth senatorial district and the state of Connecticut.

The candidate was escorted to the platform by Thomas Hope of Plainfield, R. S. Tomlinson of Scotland and Raymond P. Fuller of Hampton. His acceptance address follows:

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:

The action of this convention in nominating me as republican candidate for senator from the 29th district, is an honor which I appreciate most deeply. In accepting, I want to thank you, delegates and representatives of the electorate of this district, for this honor and for endorsing my efforts as your senator during the last session of our legislature.

In my opinion, to share a place on the republican ticket of this state with the illustrious men whom the various conventions have already placed in nomination is a rare privilege; but to be designated as the nominee for senator from the 29th district is indeed the rarest of privileges.

"We have every reason to endorse and to be proud of the record of the republican administration, national as well as state. At this time we are concerned with returning the republican party to power in this state, so that it may add to its record of meritorious achievement and real service to everyone. Let us then from now on show our loyalty to our party by devoting our energies to the support of its ticket and its ultimate election to the end that our state may continue to enjoy republican principles of government.

"Again thanking you, I want to assure you that if elected, I shall continue to serve and represent your interests to the best of my ability."

It was voted to make the senatorial committee for the district the same as the past two years.

On invitation of Senator La France, the delegates and others were guests at a dinner served in Challenger's Inn. The convention closed at one o'clock. It had been in session fifty minute.

Each driver blamed the other for the accident. The Ford got the worst of the encounter.

GROUP MEETINGS HELD IN UNION REVIVAL CAMPAIGN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 11—Group meetings were held in the vestry of the First Methodist Episcopal church Monday evening followed by a preaching service by Dr. Milton S. Rees of Rochester, N. Y., who is conducting a big union religious service in this city for local and vicinity churches. A song service was under the direction of Mrs. Rees.

A mass meeting for women will be held at three o'clock Tuesday afternoon with a preaching service in the evening. Wednesday is designated as a day for fasting and prayer, beginning at 12 m. and lasting until 4 p. m. Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock will have charge of the service and Dr. Rees will preach in the evening as usual.

The funeral of Mrs. John Fahey was held from the family home, 10 Jackson street, Monday morning. Requiem high mass in St. Joseph's church at nine o'clock was sung by Rev. Paul Bartlewski. Mrs. Henry Mathieu and Miss L. Monica McKeon rendered Nearer My God to Thee as the body was borne into the church. Mrs. Mathieu sang, O Salutaris at the offertory, and at the elevation Miss McKeon rendered Ave Jesu. Arthur Roy sang Peace to Face as a waiting hymn. Miss Edmund R. Portelance was at the organ.

At the grave in St. Joseph's cemetery, Rev. Charles M. Kelly, with Rev. Father Bartlewski responding read the committal prayers. The bearers were William Kelly, William Flynn, Theodore Morissette, Michael Sullivan, Edward Moriarty and J. Francis Moriarty. There was a large attendance at the services and beautiful floral tributes. Present were relatives from Hartford, Bridgeport, New York, Norwich, Jewett City, New Britain and this city.

Adam Chanski, 18, of Kick Hill, Lebanon, whose Ford car collided with one driven by Joseph Marrotte of this city, Saturday night when Chanski is alleged to have tried to squeeze between Marrotte's car and the trolley, was charged with reckless driving when presented in police court Monday morning. He pleaded not guilty. Officer Lariviere testified to Chanski's act. Chanski has been driving an automobile less than two weeks. Mr. Marrotte said that both the trolley and his own car were at a standstill when Chanski squeezed in. The damage incurred was slight and at the suggestion of Prosecutor Gaucher, Judge Foss nolled the case on payment of costs of $10.15.

In police court Monday morning the case of John Connelly, charged with intoxication, was continued to Thursday and the case of Leroy Roberts charged with violation of the gasoline law, was once more continued, this time to Monday, October 25th.

Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink is investigating an accident which happened Saturday evening when a prize bull owned by John Lasky of Andover was struck and injured by one of the coaches of the Interstate Bus company of Providence, R. I. Lasky and his chore boy were driving a herd of cattle along the highway at the foot of Reilly Hill, to a pasture. The boy was leading the bull when one of the Interstate buses came along and struck the animal dragging it about fifty feet and badly breaking a left leg. The driver stopped but did not give his name. Lasky, however, took the registry number. He claims that he swung a lighted lantern to warn the bus driver, who said no heed and nearly knocked him over as well as the bull.

WESTERLY

COLUMBUS TO BE HONORED BY THE ITALIAN SOCIETIES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, Oct. 11.—Associated Italian American societies will join today in an afternoon programme in honor of Christopher Columbus, discoverer of America.

The observance will begin with a street parade at 2 o'clock, starting from the Westerly town hall on Broad street. The line will be headed by Capt. Joseph Benvenuto as marshal and an honorary committee, former Judge Michael J. Turano, Louis J. Ressi, Dr. John E. Ruisi, F. Samuel Nardone, Peter Nardone and Joseph Coduri. Next will come the Westrly band, Charles O. Gavitt, director, followed by a large framed picture of Columbus borne by eight girls in white. Then will follow these groups and organizations in the order named: Celebration committee, F. P. Barravechia, chairman; Loggio Ioland Margarito, No. 342; Loggio Operaio, American Citizens' Calabro society, Providence band; Local Union of Hod Carriers and Common Laborers, Court Gen. Enrico Cialdini, No. 50, Foresters of America.

The line of march will be over Broad, West Broad, Morgan and Liberty streets, back over West Broad, Dixon square, up High street and thence over Canal, Pleasant, Pierce and High streets to Grove avenue and Wilcox park. In the park the crowd will gather about the bandstand where there will be a programme including band selections. The principal speaker will be G. Scotti, a prominent Pawtucket business man of Italian parentage.

At 7 p. m. the celebration committee and a band from Providence will march from the post office to the High street playground, where there is to be a concert followed by an elaborate display of fireworks.

The general committee comprises E. P. Barravechia, chairman; Michael Papalia, treasurer; Joseph Mazzarella, secretary; George Montalto, Antonio Trovato, Joseph S. Grilla, Joseph Gervasini, Natale Emanuele, Pasquale Pellegrini, Giacomo Pucci, Gasparo Tudisco, Pasquale Pricida, Andrea Sammataro, Salvatore Faulise, Giuseppe DiMarco and Antonio Turco.

The honorary committee comprises ex-Judge Michael J. Turano, Louis J. Ressi, F. Samuel Nardone, Councilman Peter Nardone, Dr. John E. Ruisi and Joseph Coduri.

The retail merchants committee of the Westerly Chamber of Commerce has decided not to ask local stores to suspend business today. However, doubtless some stores will close for at least part of the day. The public and parochial schools in both Westerly and Pawcatuck will observe Columbus day by closing, and banks on both sides of the river will be closed also.

Associate Justice Arthur P. Sumner of Providence, opened the adjourned Westerly September term of superior court Monday morning shortly after 11 o'clock.

Deputy Sheriff Fred W. Bull of Kingston opened court. Third Assistant Attorney General Louis V. Jackvony of Providence, told the court that in the liquor nuisance case against James Salimeno, appealed from the third district court of Westerly, Attorney Roche, who was present in court was only associate counsel for Salimeno, as his counsel was former Judge Turano of the district court who was not present in court. Mr. Roche had declared that he knew nothing about the case and that it had been Judge Turano who had communicated with the attorney general's department. Mr. Jackvony said he did not want the case marked defaulted, as he did not want the state's case conducted that way.

Justice Sumner declared that it was no excuse for Mr. Turano that he was not in court an dthat this case had been set down.

Mr. Jackvony said his department could not do business that way and that he "tried to be decent and accommodating and this was the result." He asked that final disposition be passed until the civil docket was called, as it was well known that the docket was a continuous one. Mr. Jackvony declared that Tuesday, Columbus day was a holiday and he would ask that the Salimeno case be set down for trial on Thursday. As the court winds up on Friday he asked that all other criminal cases be continued to the November term of superior court.

When it was learned that the equity case, Mooney vs. Tuckerman, for trial without jury Wednesday would not require a full day, Justice Sumner fixed Thursday as the date of trial of the Salimeno case.

Judge Sumner gave consideration as follows to the trial calendar, Westerly session:

Frank W. Cow Real Estate company, Dunn, Waterman & Greenlaw vs. Town of Westerly. Continued to April term as first cast for trial at Westerly.

Raffael Juliano, Dunn, vs. Nunziato Renga, alias Turano. Attorney Dunn reported that the defendant had died and on the filing of certificate case will be discontinued.

Charles H. Holdredge, Ferguson and Davis, vs. Frank W. Coy, Dunn. Passed.

State, Oliver P. Crandall, director of public aid, Atty. General vs. William Carney, Ledwidge. Passed.

Natale Luppinazzo, Ferguson, vs. General Baking Powder Company, Curton, Matterson, Boss & Lette. Passed.

Thomas H. Barber, et al., Whitman, vs. Catherine A. Bates, Quinn, Kernan & Quinn. Passed.

J. G. Phelp Stokes, Roche, vs. Louis Tillinghast, et al., Dunn. Passed.

Flora C. Moonry, Flynn, vs. N. F. Tuckerman, Roche and Kingsley. Ready. Set down for Wednesday with trial to the court without jury.

Ray S. Lockwood, Ferguson, vs. Louis Deutsch, Ledwidge. Passed.

Ray S. Lockwood, p. a., Ferguson, vs. Louis Deutsch Ledwidge. Passed.

Judge Sumner then excused the 24 jurymen, to report Thursday morning at 10:30.

Court was adjourned to Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Westerly Girl Scouts, who meet in Girl Scout hall, High street, are in a prosperous condition from reports made at the annual meeting of the Westerly council. Officers were elected as follows: Commissioner, Mrs. Thomas N. Nichols; first deputy commissioner, Mrs. Arthur Trotman; second commissioner, Mrs. Harvey C. Perry; secretary, Mrs. William Chapman; treasurer, Miss Daisy Kenyon.

Miss Jane Puddington, a director from Camp Macy, New York, is soon to arrive and take charge of scout activities here for two months. In addition to her other work she will conduct a leaders' training course.

The adjourned September term of superior court for Washington county will come in this (Monday) morning at 10:30 o'clock at the county court house, Westerly at which time the jurymen under summons have been ordered to report. Associate Justice Arthur P. Sumner of Providence will be on the bench with Court Clerk W. Herbert Caswell and assistant, Mrs. Edna E. Houlihan Treat, both of Narragansett, R. I., present. High Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell of Westerly will be in charge of the court officers, who are Deputy Sheriff and Jailer Fred W. Bull of Kingston, Deputy Sheriff Thomas W. Peirce of North Kingston, and Deputy Sheriff Charles A. Fuller of Richmond.

The September term of Washington county superior court was begun at the county court house at West Kingston on Monday, Sept 20th when the grand jurors reported and returned open indictments against 18 persons together with three secret indictments. As much of the criminal docket was disposed of at Kingston and on Wednesday, the 22nd, the petit jurors reported and criminal matters and the Kingston trial calendar with nine cases was called, the final one set down for Kingston hearing being disposed of last Friday, when the Westerly adjournment was taken.

The following is the list of petit jurors under summons to report this (Monday) morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Westerly courthouse:

Keep Fit!

Good Health Requires Good Elimination.

THE rush, hurry, and worry of modern life throws a heavy strain on the vital organs. We are inclined to eat too much, drink too little water, and get too little fresh air and exercise. It is little wonder that our organs are apt to become sluggish.

Good health requires good elimination. If the kidneys fail to fully perform their functions, body poisons are left in the blood stream and one is apt to feel dull, languid, tired and achy. A dull, nagging backache is sometimes a symptom with drowsy headaches and dizzy spells. Evidence that the kidneys are not functioning perfectly is sometimes found in burning or scanty passage of the secretions.

While naturally, all backache does not come from the kidneys, if you have reason to suspect your kidneys are not properly filtering the blood, it is a good plan to take things easier, drink plenty of pure water, and assist your kidneys with a stimulant diuretic.

Doan's Pills have established a nation-wide reputation. They are endorsed by users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 10.—State Officer Arthur W. Williams of Danielson and William S. Hunter of Goodyear were named in the republican caucus here tonight as the candidates for representatives from the town of Killingly. Only about 50 voters were present and the nomination was unanimous. Judge Sabin S. Russell was renominated for judge of probate to succeed himself and the caucus named these candidates for justices of the peace: Harry E Back, W. Fenner Woodward, E. L. Darbie, Sabin S. Russell, L. A. Wellard George W Kent, Clarence H Soule Bernice S. Goggswell, Ray A. Whipple, Charles W Young.

Town Chairman E L. Darbie called the caucus to order and W. Fenner Woodward was named as chairman and Rev. Charles A. Downs as clerk.

MISS MARION HARRIET PIKE BRIDE OF ARNOLD P. BROWN

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 11.—At the home on Brooklyn Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock under a canopy of autumn leaves Miss Marion Harriet Pike, daughter of Mrs. Mary E. Pike, and Arnold P. Brown of Melrose, Mass., were united in marriage by Rev. Charles A. Downs of Goodyear. The bride was given in marriage by her brother Ernest H. Pike. The maid of honor was Miss Mildred Pike twin sister of the bride and the best man was Shepard Brown of Melrose, brother of the groom.

The bride's gown was of peach georgette. She wore a wreath of orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of bride roses. The maid of honor wore powder blue crepe and her bouquet was of Ophelia roses.

The home was decorated with autumn leaves and hydrangeas.

After a wedding trip that will take them into the White mountains and through the Adirondacks, Mr. and Mrs. Brown will occupy a new home awaiting their return in Melrose. Mr. Brown is assistant general manager of the Multiple Winding company.

BLOCKED ROAD WITH POLE— PAY $21.87 FOR LITTLE JOKE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 11.—The explanation by George Mason and William Lambert who live in the northern section of Killingly, that they blocked a highway not distant from Ballouville with a telegraph pole as a joke about dusk Sunday evening, did not receive great credence in the town court this morning when they were before Judge W Fenner Woodward to answer to a charge of placing an obstruction on the highway. Each received a fine of $20 and costs the total assessment against each being $21.87.

There unusual stunt was staged on a back road where there are four corners, not distant from Ballouville and at a point where one road leads to Putnam Heights. According to admissions that made later, Mason and Lambert exerted themselves very considerable to get the telegraph pole across the road blocking it completely.

Shortly thereafter Guy Zito, who lives in Putnam and is the operator of a public service car, came along and saw the obstruction, also noting the figures lurking in the nearby woods. Mr. Zito, who was once held up in this way himself remembrances of that experience, so put his car into reverse and backed it to Ballouville, going thence by another route on the state highway leading to Putnam. Returning back into the state road Mr. Zito observed Mason and Lambert meandering along and when he could reach a telephone got into communication with the state police here. Officer H. W. Urquhart made a hurried trip over and soon had Mason and Lambert in custody and admission of their guilt of obstructing the highway. Their explanation that their serious escapade was a joke was not well received.

Persons who saw the pole before it was removed from across the highway say that it would have been worthy to have caused a serious accident had a machine come upon it from the direction of Putnam Heights as there would be little chance for a driver to see it in time to stop his machine without getting into a jam.

Another case disposed of by the court Monday morning was that of Theodore Perreault charged with violation of rules of the road when "he was in a minor accident" He was fined $5.

A new phase has developed in the peculiar happening attendant upon the election of members of the Brooklyn school committee a week ago Monday. At that time the moderator of the meeting ruled that James C. Sloan democrat, who received more votes than either of the republican candidates Messrs J F Gardner and Sidney W. Bard, had not been legally elected because he was named on the ticket for a place that was not vacant. Dr. M Havens continuing to fill an unexpired term. However, Mr. Bard was declared elected. Now an attorney has ruled that Mr Bard is not a member of the committee because his name appeared on the ticket for a two-year term when there was no such term to be filled though there was one for one year. This leaves a vacancy on the committee which it may fill by vote of its members if it so desires to do.

At the undertaking rooms of L. E. Kennedy, funeral services for Mrs. Thomas Grady, who died in the Allen Hill section of the town of Brooklyn, were conducted by Rev. C. J. Armstrong of the Baptist church. Burial was in the Hulett cemetery, in the Mashentuck district of the town. The bearers were Alton Eldridge, Howard Eldridge, Arthur Barnard and Frederick Romier.

Chief A. P. Woodward of the fire department has been giving fire prevention talks in schools here and at the Orpheum theater. Chief Woodward has been stressing the fact that chimneys and, stove pipes should be kept clean and that they need attention at this time of year, when heating of buildings has begun. "Be careful about matches" is another thing that the chief advises. Chief Woodward used a fire alarm box during the course of his talk to illustrate in a practical way how alarms should be pulled in when there is need of doing so

Announcement that the town school committee is agreeable to establishing an evening school with a course of 20 weeks duration if a sufficient number of people will make application to attend stirred up very general interest Monday morning. It is hoped that such a school might attract attendance from various parts of the town. This is the week for getting in the applications. On the number of them will depend the decision as to whether the evening school will be opened.

Fall work of the state highway department in this area will be barely completed before the crews make ready for their winter battles with any storms that may come to choke the trunk lines with snow. It is indicated that the department is better prepared than ever to keep the main roads open during the winter. The constant use of the trunk lines through Danielson now by motor coaches running on regular schedules will be one consideration for keeping these roads open, though the general public counts very largely in the efforts to be made. These trunk lines now are about as essential an railroads to the traveling public Only the very worst of storms is apt to succeed in blocking them at all this winter.

PUTNAM

SEEK WOODSTOCK GIRL DRIVER WHOSE CAR KILLED BELANGER

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 11—The police are looking for Miss Frances Makovitch of Woodstock who is believed to have been driving the car which struck and killed Louis Belanger, 69, an employe of the town of Southbridge. It is thought that miss Makovitch was driving the car and that James Clarke, 35, superintendent of the Litchfield Shuttle company of Southbridge, by whom she was employed as secretary, was in the automobile with her. Officers want to question the two regarding the accident. The car was found in a garage at Woonsocket, but the occupants of the car were not located. A taxi driver was found who claimed to have driven the two about Woonsocket.

The garage owner became suspicious when the owner of the car claimed that he had been in collision with a truck while on the way from Woodstock to Woonsocket. He said the owner of the car was bleeding about the face. Belanger was killed instantly while at work near Southbridge by an automobile that was coming towhim. It struck Belanger and pinned him against the back of a truck near which he was working. The couple said that they were going to report to the police, but instead put on speed and disappeared.

Clarke has been apprehended and released on $2,000 bonds and search is being made for the girl, whom Clarke said he had left in Woonsocket.

POMFRET SCHOOL'S APPEAL BEFORE SUPREME COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 11—Arguments have been made before the supreme court of errors in the case of the Pomfret school, in its appeal from the board of assessors of the town of Pomfret. The case went to the supreme court after an adverse finding by the superior court, where it was decided by the court that Pomfret school was subject to taxation by the town.

It is claimed by the Pomfret school that it comes under the section of the statute exempting property owned by educational institutions in the state which is used for educational purposes. To entitle an educational institution such as Pomfret school to this exemption it is necessary to show that it comes within the meaning of the law as it construes academies. The Pomfret school claims to come within the purview of the statute in that it is a school of secondary learning, that is, a school betwen a grunded school and a college, and that its property is devoted to educational purposes and is not run for profit to any person, persons or organizations.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubes. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

JEWETT CITY

WIFE BEATER MISSES JAIL BECAUSE NEEDED ON FARM

JEWETT CITY, Oct. 11.—John Sunikewitz, who lives on the Colligan farm, was tried in the town court this morning, and was accused of wife beating. He pleaded not guilty, but was found guilty and fined $25 and costs, amounting to $35, and was sentenced to 30 days in jail, the sentence being suspended. His wife went out and collected the money to pay the fine, as he is needed to work on the farm. He had men at work filling a silo. The machine got broken, and the wife remonstrated, as they were intoxicated. The man went to bed and when she woke him to do the milking, he beat her in a horrible manner, threatening her with a gun, and prevented the children from calling a doctor, or going to the neighbors. About a year ago this same thing happened. He is an alien, and the shot gun is in the possession of Officer Dolan, who is going to get another gun which is on the farm, also

In a Letter to the People published Monday, the Jewett City correspondent was accused of making "false statements" and "losing sight" of certain phases of a mixup between an automobile and a horse. The owner and driver of the machine in question gave the facts to the correspondent, as they were printed. He so stated Monday morning, and added "the horse came galloping into my machine." If the two men do not agree on their version of the occurrence, that's not the reporter's fault.

The war office of Japan is considering the adoption of runsproof swords for all Japanese army officers. In Japan an officer is not regarded as fully dressed unless he wears his sword Damp weather is so prevalent is so prevalent that swords must be polished at all times and even then it is difficult to avoid rust. A swordmaker recently invented a rustproof weapon which he submitted to the war department.

NOANK

The Moving Pictures Co. from New Britain, was taking scenes at the shipyard Saturday, but had to quit on account of the sand fog shutting. The most of the work was done Monday. The launching of a ship was the scene and Noank's smallest fireman, who stands 40 inches high, Charles Ennis, took the part of fire chief in the picture, "Hope." A big fellow from the fire company was with him. The little fireman was some proud to be in the picture, also with the actress and to appear before the public with two pictures to shown.

Each day he goes where the actors or actresses go. Mr. Kelly, the man with the camera wanted to get the right man in the picture. Today (Tuesday) the company goes to New London to take scenes, as their work in the village will be all done. The men were a jolly crowd and made many friends during their stay in Noank.

Noank Junior football team played the Stonington Bulldogs in Noank Saturday and ran away from them, 40 to 0. At the end of the first half the score was 24 to 0. Eugene Burdick was the star for the Juniors, getting three touchdowns and a field goal, making 21 points. The field was wet and one could not tell the players on each side on account of the mud. A small crowd braved the storm to watch the boys in action. Referee Devaul, umpire, Mahoney.

Dan Chesbro, a farmer who lives outside the village was hunting Saturday at Candlewood hill when his dog chased a big animal up a tree. Mr. Chesbro shot once at the strange and it hit the ground, dead. It proved to be a 26 1-2 pound wild cat, the largest one seen in many years. A wild cat is a dangerous animal and will jump from a tree when a hunter is going by. The cat is on exhibition at a store in Mystic. Mr. Chesbro says it is a good animal to have out of the way.

Walter Wills has resigned at Page's market.

William Crowell spent the week end in Shannock with friends.

Boat Maybe Had a trial trip in the harbor and made good time. But the craft started to leak, so Capt. Walter Palmer got the pumps to work until he got into the dock and then the board was hauled out at Rogers' yard where the leak will be stopped.

A mystery auto that has stood on the lower end of Brook street for the last week, until everything was taken off the car that was good to use on another car, has been towed into the village and put away until some one claims it.

The Village Improvement society is to make a canvass of Noank this week to collect money for the street lights, as is done each year. That's the way the town has to do to help keep the lights up. The committee will go to each house in the village to raise the money.

Robert Maynard of Staten Island, N. Y., is spending a few days with his family.

Mrs. Albert Harring of Old Mystic is visiting friends in the village.

NIGHT SCHOOLS

[illegible] night school on [illegible] for all those who desire such instruction as is [illegible] therein to respond to [illegible] opportunity provided. Never [illegible] pioneer for these [illegible] with the expectation that they will be appreciated. They are intended for those who have failed to take advantage of educational chances in the days of their youth, and [illegible] town, and [illegible] over-[illegible] age.

In this [illegible] Americanization [illegible] will be found [illegible] who cannot read and write and yet [illegible] are those who are forced to admit that they are desirable [illegible] people.

Because [illegible] been obliged to go to work [illegible] education [illegible] are those who have denied themselves the education which they should have had in order to be able to read and write. Many [illegible] recognized the [illegible] that they [illegible] to [illegible] except in the [illegible] of night [illegible] and are taking [illegible] opportunity [illegible] a boon. For many [illegible] more [illegible] to [illegible] study as [illegible]

[illegible] who [illegible] of [illegible] Norwich [illegible] to [illegible] Each and every one should have a warning signal. [illegible] fireman [illegible] whenever any of them are [illegible] and the presence of a fire is known it is time to be careful. Time to spend the necessary few seconds to make sure a crossing can be made in safety and time to think about the lives of others even if the driver is willing to take a chance with his own.

The crossing fatalities could be greatly reduced if only those using them would give a little thought to it that will require speed. And the real work of prevention is done before actually getting onto the track.

CAR LOADINGS TELL

There's no little talk about prosperity throughout the country this year but it is by no means all talk if we stop to look at the tonnage that is being done by the railroads, which serves as a good barometer.

Last year was looked upon as a fine year, and it was, but this is going ahead of it. Car loads as well as [illegible] goods are being [illegible] and it is only when conditions are good that the railroads are called upon for such service. Thus far in 1926 with the exception of January every month has seen the car loading figures of 1925 exceeded and during September a new car loading record was established. During the week of September 18, there were 1,187,011 cars loaded, a total never previously reached while in the following week, that of September 25, there was a falling off of only 4,071.

Thus far during the year there is a gain over last year of 1,359,000 cars loaded. This cannot fail to be convincing evidence of business activity in this country. Coal, grain, livestock and general merchandise shipments have gone to new high levels and there has been a heavy movement of building materials, automobiles and automobile supplies. Coal is of course moving where it was stagnant last year and there is an additional activity this year because of the demand here of fuel to meet the situation in England during the coal strike. The gain for 1926 over 1925 has not been quite as large up to this time as 1925 was in excess of car loadings in 1924 but it is a healthy gain and there is no mistaking its significance. Car loadings do not make such steady gains during hard times.

This goes to show that the car loadings are telling the same story as other business barometers. Goods are not being shipped unless there is a demand for them and the increased activity of the railroads shows that they are equal to the requirements. Better business is doing much to help put the railroads back on their feet, compared as it is with the efforts put forth by the roads themselves for greater efficiency and reduced expenditures.

TOWN REPRESENTATIVES

The republican caucus did what was expected of it. In view of the record of faithful service that was established by Representatives Engler and Cassell at the last session of the general assembly it was a time to give endorsement to it and the republicans of Bozrah saw their opportunity and seized it right. They have nominated men who are not only well known and men of ability but they have selected men of experience who were able to get good results in the last legislature and whose reelected will insure a continuance of that excellent service.

[illegible] wishing to serve for two more years the citizens should be eager to [illegible] them for their experience not [illegible] includes familiarity with legislative procedure but regularity of attendance and the prestige which goes with membership in what is certain to be the majority party.

Norwich needs at all times to insist upon strong representation at Hartford. That doesn't mean part time service but faithful and efficient attendance at the sessions, active participation in the work and the persistent support of matters which concern this town and vicinity. The nominees are men who give assurance of such if elected. They have been tried out and found not wanting.

No one has chosen well and now it remains for the voters to back up the choice on November 2.

THE SUMMER WHITE HOUSE

There are [illegible] our doubts whether Congressman Dickinson of Iowa really means what he says when he says that anything will come of his suggestion that a law be passed establishing a summer white house "somewhere west of the Mississippi, to permit the presidents to come into closer contact with western sentiment." He has a chance to give expression to his thoughts, however.

Should such a proposition come up for serious consideration we can picture Pacific coast representatives, interior representatives, southern representatives jumping to their feet and asking for a white house in their backyard for the same purpose until it would result in every state, territorial and insular possession putting forth the same kind of a plea.

It doesn't appear that the president has picked his place for a vacation for the purpose of getting closer to the sentiment of that particular locality. It wouldn't be argued that he needed it when he went to the north shore in Massachusetts last year or point to that as the reason for his selecting the Adirondacks during the past summer.

The summer white house is bound to follow the president goes for a rest. A vacation is impossible he stays in Washington. When he can [illegible] is entitled to a change and a right to say where he will take it instead of being tied down by such a proposition as the Iowa representative suggests. He might as well insist that congressmen stick to their own back yards each vacation in order to get the sentiment of their constituents, instead of doing about as they please, whether it is fence building or [illegible]

EDITORIAL NOTES

The law has found the Daugherty case more of a tangle than some of the [illegible] have.

The man on the corner says: There are [illegible] who are constantly offering [illegible] as good as the truth.

[illegible] pleasing afternoon entertainments are going to be missed now that the series is over.

A state park is known by the good impression it creates. Go down to Fort Trumbull park and help sing its praises.

It is well to bear in mind that there are only three weeks to election day when you are going to the polls to vote.

If Queen Marie wants to make a good impression she will save some of her shopping till she gets on this side of the Atlantic.

That auto party which was so calamitously mangled in New York state shows what can be expected when crossing dangers are ignored.

There's a time when "Peaches" come and when they go. Ask Mr. Browning.

There was enough happened in the world's series to keep baseball gossip going around the stove during the coldest of winters.

It is easy to see by the sheets on the calendar pad that there isn't much left to 1926.

And yet in spite of all we have [illegible] to look for sure to [illegible]

It doesn't take much to start an argument over Wrangel Island.

BREAKING DOWN WALLS

In the outer office nobody dreamed that Bike Freeman sitting at the junior partner's desk in such a self-possessed manner was merely making odd marks on a paper pad when he frowned as though in deep concentration on some problem.

In fact, they tried hard not to notice him at all. Because since his return from college and entrance into his father's firm some of those who had been there when Bike was merely a boy had decided that he had the bighead. The truth of the matter, however, was that Bike, big, good-looking and blond, suffered from an overweening skyness and would have given his head to be able to breeze into the office mornings as Smith and Arnold did, for instance.

He would watch enviously their jaunty entrance and the resulting welcoming grin of the office boy, he would see them call a greeting to some other man and maybe stop for a chaffing word at the desk of one of the girls. The idea of walking up to a girl and presenting her with a bouquet under the eyes of a whole room as he saw Arnold do one morning chilled Bike to the very marrow with consternation.

Not that this particular act had entered into his calculations until Edith became a member of the staff. When he tried to figure out why she was so different from all other girls he found so many reasons that it was bewildering. When she smiled young Mr. Freeman would find himself staring at nothing and himself smiling most foolishly.

Whenever he came in and she was at her desk he swallowed hard getting ready to saw good morning casually, followed by something chatty—what did one say after good-morning to a girl one wanted exceedingly to talk to? When he approached her and she looked up politely his throat tied into a hard knot and after he had stammered a greting that sounded muffled and curt his feet carried him relentlessly by.

He turned his back and looked out of the window when he chanced to dictate letters to her because only in that way could he keep his mind on the subject at hand. He had found that when she looked up at him inquiringly and he looked back there were dozens of things he wanted to say to her, to ask her. And when the letters done all he could manage was a civil, "That's all, I believe." Almost humbly Bike wished that he were not so dumb and that he knew how to make a girl like him.

Once in a while Edith went out to luncheon with Smith or Arnold. Those were days that Bike's afternoons were wasted so far as business accomplishments were concerned. He was jealous and he knew it. Day by day it grew harder for him to make any effort sufficient to break down the wall between him and the rest of the office force, who had definitely allowed him his high place in the sun and were absorbed in their own affairs. There were times when Bike suffered a real heartache for human understanding and friendship. He was growing unhappy.

That was up to the time when, opening his door, he saw the outer office filled with heavy smoke and consternation in the air as the girls and men rose from their chairs. At once he forgot himself and took charge of the emergency. Edith was his first thought.

"Get the girls safely out, Smith!" he shouted as he ran to the desk where Edith still sat, apparently stunned by terror. Without a word he picked her up and boosted her to his athletic shoulder.

He made his hasty way out of the densely filled room, not waiting to see that Smith and Arnold carried out his orders. He knew he could depend on them. He was part way down the corridor when he became conscious that the girl in his arms was shaking. In consternation he stopped and looked down at her face, so close to his. She was laughing!

In his instant wrath he shook her a little as he set her down on her feet. But she clung to his arm and laughed the harder. "It wasn't s-s-smoke!" she gasped out. "There's no fire. A st-steam pipe had burst."

Her eyes were friendly and soothed his confusion. He, too, began to laugh. They hung on to one another and went back into the amazed office and presently everybody was laughing. In the center of the crowd was Bike Freeman, a human being people liked because he had just done something foolish and was big enough to enjoy the joke on himself. The wall was down.

"I save your life, you know," he reminded Edith before them all. "You owe me something—you're to let me take you out to dinner tonight," he remembered.

She smiled at him and when he at last went back to his own room he felt strangely content with this world. A great deal had happened in 20 minutes.—Exchange.

Stories That Recall Others

Not So Dumb Himself

Jack, aged six, had been in school three days and was charmed with everything. On the fourth day his grandfather asked him who was the smartest in the class. Although he repeated the question he received no answer.

Finally, mother said sharply: "Jack, answer your grandfather. Who is the smartest in your class?"

At that Jack who had been studying over the matter replied, "Well, I believe the teacher."

Forehanded

A small boy went to the library with a list of books and asked the assistant to find certain books for him. Book after book was brought forth and a short review of it was given by the obliging assistant. After almost an hour had been spent in this manner the boy prepared to leave without taking any books.

The boy was asked what grade he was in and why he was not taking any of the books. "Well," said the boy shyly, after declaring that he was in the eighth grade, "my brother who goes to high school says they have a lot of dull books to read in his school so I though: I would look them over, see if they were hard and perhaps I wouldn't go."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The Hon. John Oliver, whose intention to retire from public life is rumored, has been a premier of British Columbia and the leader of the Liberal party in that Province for nearly a decade. Mr. Oliver is a native of England. He was brought to Canada when 14 years of age, and has grown up in the west, steadily gaining in wealth as a farmer of extensive holdings, and at the same time entering into political life with a zest. From 1909 to 1909 he sat in the provincial legislature as member from a constituency in the Fraser river delta region. Then he retired to private life for a season, coming back to the legislature in 1916. Soon afterward he entered the ministry and in 1915 was called to the premiership. Mr. Oliver has a reputation for intense industry, bold criticism of rivals, and associates, and ardent partisan loyalty.

INGROWN NAIL

Turns Right Out Itself

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

YOUR HEALTH

TAKE CARE OF YOUR CARBURETOR

By William A. Kriger, M. D., Poughkeepsie, N. Y.
Member Gorgas Memorial Institute

The nose—the carburetor of the body!

Like the heart, the nose has ni "time off," no relaxation during sleeping, but must function properly from birth to death—"every second" during life.

The mechanism of the nose is more wonderful than the carburetor on your automobile to which it corresponds. It must, first of all, filter the air intake and change it to proper density for entrance to the lungs. The air is cleaned of dust, germs and foreign material by coming in contact with hairlike "processes" which can be seen only under a microscope. They are located inside of cavities, called sinuses, back in the head and face.

After filtering, comes temperature adjustment, the work of blood vessels. This is accomplished on the same principle as the hot spot on the intake manifold on a motor or the coils of a hot water heating system in a house.

In the nose the adjustment is automatic. No screws to turn in the case of the automobile carburetor! Instead the control is automatic—and actually is the nervous system, which governs the amount of blood sent to the membrane of the nose. The amount of blood regulates the temperature.

Density is also regulated automatically. It has been estimated that the inside covering of the nose normally produces about on quart of moisture in every twenty four hours. But the circulation and nervous system which control this production of moisture vary the quantity according to the requirements of the air itake. Proper temperature and proper density are, therefore, inevitably affected by faulty circulation.

The waste products of exhaust must also be taken care of. Taking all these facts into consideration, what a highly important organ the nose is, and what a complete and complex mechanism it contains! But after all it simmers down to this one fact that a properly ventilated nose means a properly ventilated individual.

You realize the need of proper ventilation in your home and in public buildings. The importance for your body is just as great. So take care of your nose and your nose will take care of you!

NEW BOOKS

Coming Through the Rye. By Grace Livingston Hill. Cloth, 348 pages, published by J. B. Lippincott company, Philadelphia. Price $2.

Grace Livingston Hill has written another of her charming and wholesome romances and Coming Through the Rye is sure to receive the same hearty reception that has been accorded the others.

It is pretty hard for a girl to discover without warning that her father has been selling forbidden goods, that her brother is wanted by the police. To see her father crumple and go down before the charge and her brother defiant even in prison. And if the girl is as lovely as Romayne Ransom, it's equally hard for a young inspector to do his duty. How can she do anything but hate him and connect him always with her disgrace? "Keep out of my sight," is the plea Romayne makes to Evan Sherwood and the more consideration he shows her, the more bitter becomes her obligation. It takes an injury to Sherwood and a great danger to Romayne to show her what her real feeling is—and to bring them both "through the rye" to happiness.

It is just the kind of love story Mrs Hill tells best—the king that gives a catch in the throat and restores faith in human nature.

It is a characteristic Hill book and that means much to those who know her pen.

Little Abe Lincoln. By Bernie Babcock, author of a series of Lincoln books. Cloth, illustrated, 272 pages. Published by J. B. Lippincott company, Philadelphia. Price $2.

Mrs. Babcock has given much study to Lincoln's life and has presented the result in delightful story form. Her latest is a wildwood story of childish joy and sorrow, adventure and achievement bringing to life and light the obscure childhood of Abraham Lincoln and his sister, Sarah. The main incidents have a sound and accurate historical basis.

It is a story for boys and girls of all ages. Stories that are true have always an irresistible fascination. "Little Abe Lincoln" will become a classic of backwoods childhood for young Americans of today who will be as interested in the deer and bear and possum, in the old Thanksgiving celebration, the potato dolls, the old fun of candy pulling, as were Sarah and Little Abe himself.

There is a good deal of humor in the book-humor of the simple, spontaneous sort that children understand—and a great deal of life action, for Sarah and Abe knew adventurous games strange to children nowadays and had the great wideness to play in.

Mrs. Babcock has dealt tenderly with Abe's mother and step-mother, with the thoughts that perplexed the boy. It is a volume all American mothers will want their sons and daughters to read.

AS OTHERS SEE IT

Unsafe Cars

(Bristol Press)

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Stoeckel says the policy of his department will hereafter be directed against unsafe cars. Just what that means is hard to say. Our experience covering the whole period of automobiles is that the "unsafe cars" are apt to be the big, expensive and speedy one with perfect equipment. The decrepit ones are not to be feared as are the powerful ones in the hands of arrogant speedsters. If the commissioner is starting out to make the roads safer he might well pay attention to a class of conspicuous offenders that does not come under the equipment specifications.

RHEUMATIC PAINS GO SWOLLEN JOINTS VANISH

Thousands of sufferers have freed themselves from the bondage of rheumatism; rid themselves of the torturing pain; reduced the swollen joints; thrown away canes and crutches, and from helpless beings became able to work and be of use to themselves and families.

They took Rheuma; the modern enemy of rheumatism and gout.

Don't be skeptical about Rheuma. You will know in a few hours after beginning the treatment that the dangerous poisons are leaving your system through the natural channels. Rheuma should please you in a day and make you hopeful of quick recovery in a week or money refunded.

Rheuma acts on the blood, stomach and liver, and must quickly bring long prayed for comfort to distressed sufferers or money back. Lee & Osgood and druggists everywhere sell it with this guarantee.

CORNS

Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation

WHEN YOU WANT to put your business before the public, there is no medium better than through the advertising columns of The Bulletin.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Danny Holds His Breath

I wonder if for every rat
'Tis true there is a waiting cat.
—Danny Meadow Mouse.

Danny Meadow Mouse, like most other members of the mouse family, and like many other furred and feathered folk of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows, hates cats. Yes, sir, Danny hates cats. He doesn't mind Yowler the Bobcat so much, because Yowler isn't given to hunting on the Green Meadows for one thing, and for another Yowler really is one of the wild people. The cats that Danny and the other little people hate are the so-called "house cats."

"It wouldn't be so bad," says Danny, "if they belonged here; but they don't belong here. They don't belong here any more than Bully the English Sparrow. And it wouldn't be so bad if they really needed to hunt us for food. I haven't anything against anybody who is hungry and tries to catch me for food. But these cats hunt us just for the fun of hunting, and I hate them. Yes, sir, I do so; I hate them."

But Danny wasn't thinking of cats. You see, he had been so long on the marsh at the seashore that he had quite forgotten there could be such a thing as a cat. Down there were hawks and owls and foxes to look out for, but no cats. So Danny wasn't thinking of cats as he traveled on his way home to the Green Meadows. Perhaps if he had been, he wouldn't have been taken by surprise as he was.

Danny had just run out from under some sticks and grass which had been left on the shore of the Big River, up which he was now journeying. It was the Big River which flows through the Green Meadows, though Danny didn't know it at the time. As he ran out, he caught just a glimpse of a gray form crouching back to him. There was something about that gray form which warned Danny that he would be better off somewhere else. He turned to run back, and as he did so that gray form came to life. It was a cat down hunting along the bank of the Big River. Now Danny has to think quickly sometimes. All little people who live on the Green Meadows and in the Green Forest have to think quickly sometimes. If they didn't think quickly, they wouldn't live long. Danny saw that those sticks and the grass toward which he was heading would not make a very good hiding place, for there were not enough of them. A cat could pull them over. So Danny's sharp little eyes looked both ways to either side as he ran, in the hope of finding something else that would make a better hiding place.

Danny had almost reached the little pile of sticks and grass when just to one side he saw an old can. Danny knew all about old cans. He had escaped from enemies by means of an old can before now. If the opening to that can wasn't too big, he would be safe in there. Danny darted to one side just as the big gray cat brought both paws down on the very spot Danny had just left. The opening in the can wasn't very big. In fact, Danny thought it would be a tight squeeze for him to get through. He didn't hesitate. In he went. Then Danny held his breath.

Why did he hold his breath? Well,

It was a cat hunting down along the bank of the Big River

you see, it was a very exciting moment. He wasn't sure whether that cat had seen him go into that can. He wasn't sure but that that cat could get her paw in and get hold of him. It was a time to hold one's breath. It certainly was. So Danny held his breath, and waited, and listened and wondered what would happen now.

Sadusky, daughter of Mrs. Catherine Sadusky of No. 31 Spring Garden avenue, were united in marriage by Rev. S. A. Icick, pastor of the church. Solos were rendered by Miss Sophie Tylencia and Mr. Hancsion. The church was very prettily decorated for the occasion. Upon leaving the church the couple were surprised by a delegation from the Mooseheart Legion, who in full regalia, formed an archway for them.

The best man was Thomas J. Leahy and the bridesmaid was Miss Eugene Rouleau, sister of the groom. The ushers were James Mcsheffrey and Rene R. Rouleau. The bride was charming in a gown of white georgette, with a veil of tulle. She carried a shower bouquet of roses. The bridesmaid was gowned in orchid georgette and chenelle and carried a bouquet of pink gladioli.

There was a wedding breakfast at the Wauregan hotel with about 30 guests present. There were solos by Edward T. Connelly and Miss Edith Rouleau. A reception followed at the home of the bride, No. 31 Spring Garden avenue. Mrs. Catherine Sadusky and Miss Eugene Rouleau welcomed the guests. The bride received many useful and pretty gifts. She is a graduate of the Sacred Heart school and the Norwich Commercial school. The groom is a graduate of Broadway grammar school. Mr. and Mrs. Rouleau left later in the day on a wedding trip to New York. The bride's traveling costume was of black satin trimmed with tan georgette.

Lacourse-Richard

At St. Mary's Memorial church Monday morning at 9 o'clock Miss Lucy Mary Richard, daughter of Victor and Annie Richard of No. 27 Division street, was united in marriage with Wilfrid Lacourse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maxime Lacourse of Plainfield, by the Rev. William A. Keefe. Over 50 relatives and friends of the couple were present. The bridesmaid was Miss Irene Richard, a sister of the bride, and Joseph O'Neil was best man.

The bride was charming in a gown of beaded white georgette and carried a shower bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid was gowned in colonial style dress of flesh colored georgette and carried pink roses and pink carnations.

The groom's gift to the bride was a leather handbag and the bride's gift to the groom was a pair of gold cuff links. The groom's gift to the best man was a set of military hair brushes and the bride's gift to the bridesmaid was a leather handbag.

After a wedding breakfast served at the home of the bride's parents at No. 7 Dayton street the couple left for Plainfield where a wedding supper was served at the home of the groom's parents. After a wedding trip to Boston, Springfield and New York they will make their home at No. 27 Division street. The bride received numerous and beautiful gifts.

MERCIER ASSEMBLY HEARS STATE CONVENTION REPORT

A very active meeting of Mercier Assembly, No. 12, Catholic Ladies of Columbus, was held Monday night in the rooms in Broadway with Miss Elinor Donovan presiding. Mrs. James J. Dutton, state president, offered for the first time the prayer which was recently adopted by the state assembly. An interesting and complete report of the 12th annual state convention held at Shelton was read by Miss Elizabeth Portelance, alternate for Miss Mae Riley, recording secretary. All the delegates who attended the convention were enthusiastic in their reports of the cordial reception tendered them by the Shelton assembly. Mercier assembly is quite honored by the fact that Mrs. Dutton, the state president, was unanimously reelected to that office for the ensuing year.

Plans were perfected for the society's participation in the Armistice day parade. Miss Myrtle Buteau was elected chairman of this committee. The committee on All-Nation bazaar reported progress. Mercier Assembly will represent Italy. Miss Loretta Godle was chosen chairman of a Hallowe'en party which will be held in Hibernian hall during the last week of this month. Through the efforts of Miss Mary Maloney and Mrs. Louis Combes and committee one of the pleasantest social evenings of the season was enjoyed.

OBITUARY

John Francis Corcoran, M. D.

The many friends of John Francis Corcoran, formerly of Norwich but now of Braddock, Pa., will be grieved to learn that his young and promising life came to a peaceful close in the Atlantic hospital Sunday evening at six o'clock.

He was born in this city Aug. 23, 1892 the son of Jeremiah H. and Della Ryan Corcoran of 26 Claremont ave. His early education was received in the grammar schools of this city and the Norwich Free Academy from which he graduated in 1911. After graduating from the Academy he entered Bates college, remaining there for three years. Later he attended medical school, University of Vermont, from which he was graduated with high honors in 1920. For a year after graduation he served as interne in St. Mary's hospital, Newark, N. J., and then entered private practice at Braddock.

As a physician he was very successful and was ever ready to give the best that was in him. His efforts to alleviate the sufferings of humanity were untiring and he never flinched when duty called him. Besides his wife, formerly Miss May Carnes of Pittsburgh, he is survived by his father and mother, one brother, Edward Corcoran, M. D., of New York city, and one sister, Mary D. Corcoran of this city. As a son he was loving and obedient and he was loyal and firm in his friendship. A life that had been full of promise has been called and those left in sore affliction have the sympathy of all who have known the grief of parting forever with a loved one life's young manhood.

The Baptist ministers' wives' association of Connecticut, held its annual conference in the afternoon and elected these officers: President, Mrs. Ivan Benedict, Hartford; secretary, Mrs. Lester Mallory, South Norwalk; chairman of program committee, Mrs. Ellis Gilbert, West Hartford.

The young people banquet was held in Odd Fellows hall in the evening at 6.15 with a large attendance.

Rev. Dr. Milton G. Evans, president of Crozier seminary, in his address in the evening spoke on "Youth, the Wealth of the Church." He urged the churches to rely more on their young people rather than spending so much time on the adults of the church.

Miss Edna Umstot, life work secretary of the B. Y. P. U. speaking on "A World Tour," urged the younger members of the church to live, give and to work and to aid in carrying the gospel around the world.

The anniversary meeting continues two days more, opening this (Tuesday) morning with the 103rd annual meeting of the Connecticut Baptist convention of which Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt, pastor of the Central Baptist of this city, is president.

SECURE 61 APPLICATIONS FOR CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

In the effort to increase the membership of the Norwich Chamber of commerce in one day effort, 30 team workers reported a total of 61 new members who sign d applications for membership. Many team workers were not able to report the results of their efforts at the meeting which was held Monday night. Some of these were known to have applications in their possession. Prospects numbering 474 were listed and the lists were practically exhausted by the workers. The result of this one day effort was most pleasing to President James L. Case as it is an indication of the faith in the work of the chamber and a spirit of loyalty to the home town. The team workers will endeavor to see all the remaining prospects in the next few days when it is confidently expected that the number of new applications will be materially increased. An appeal is made to all who are not members to support the chamber on the ground that here is an organization whose every effort is an endeavor to promote the reputation, the prosperity, and the growth of Norwich. Every city in the country has its chamber of commerce. Every city is in competition with Norwich for the same reason that this organization stands for. Norwich needs a strong chamber, and the chamber needs the moral and financial support of as many citizens as it is possible to secure. The stronger the chamber, the greater the activities it can accomplish, and the best results are obtained. Some men and women join the lodge or a church for what they can get out of it in a business way. The chamber of commerce is not a selfish proposition. It does not appeal to the man or woman who wants to use everything for selfish ends. The person who supports the chamber does so because of the belief that a town worth living in is worth working for. The chamber is an altruistic organization conducted on purely democratic lines. Its services are an invaluable asset to the community.

SHANTOK PARK OPENING PROGRAMME TODAY

The formal opening of FortShantok park is scheduled for 2 o'clock this (Tuesday) afternoon. An interesting program has been arranged and a goodly gathering of the people of eastern Connecticut is expected to be at the exercises. President James L. Case of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce will preside at the exercises. The Coast Guard band from New London will render a concert. Hon. Ernest E. Rogers will deliver the principal address. James G. Hammond will give a royal welcome, and the mayors of Norwich, New London and the first selectman of Montville will respond. Arthur L. Peale, the father of this state park and chairman of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce committee will make a brief address. The Boy Scouts will have a part in the program as will also the school children of Montville. The chamber has posted direction signs to the park, which is located on the western shore of the Thames river and its nearest approach from a state highway is just the other side of the hill past Trading Cove at what is known as the Sussman farm. Signs will be at this entrance. Coming from New London the public should use the road turning right at the witch hazel mill. Signs are posted at this entrance also. The selectmen of Montville have put the dirt road to the park proper in good condition.

Y. M. C. A. HAS RECEPTION FOR SEASON OPENING

A large and enthusiastic company greatly enjoyed the opening reception of the season at the Young Men's Christian association Monday evening from 8 to 10 o'clock. Swahns orchestra, including John Swahn, cornetist, Frederick Gear, pianist, Richard Saunders clarinet and John Dougherty violinist delighted everybody with their usual fine and appropriate selections. General Secretary Edwin Hill in the absence of President James C. Macpherson welcomed the people in behalf of the directors and the social committee, and introduced William McKean, the new physical director, who responded pleasantly stating that already he felt at home in our beautiful city, and that he felt confident that the season in the gym would be successful; he emphasized the fact that he had come to take up the work with a sincere desire to be of real service to the men and boys, and he urged them to call on him for any service he can render. Mr. McKean was heartily applauded.

Next on the program was an interesting volley ball game between two teams of business men, and it proved most interest to all. Two teams of young men played a lively game of basketball to the pleasure of the audience. A very interesting feature of the evening was the exhibition in the swimming pool, first by a group of eight young ladies of the women's physical department, under the supervision of Mrs. Arthur Wirth the swimming instructor. The Red Cross life saving corps of the Y. M. C. A. under the leadership of William M. Ryan, the examiner of the group gave a most interesting demonstration of life saving and other feats. After this feature the entire company proceeded to the large lobby where the orchestra again delighted the folks with popular selections while ice cream and cakes were served. The following members of the Camp Fire girls of the United Congregational church served the refreshments: Alice Backus, Ruth Brown, Edith Pulsifer, Dorothy Miller, Evelyn Strong and Madeline Spaulding; Miss Dorothy Holden was in charge of the girls.

During the evening Mrs. Phillips Streeter and Mrs. Arthur Wirth, the instructors of the ladies department, were introduced to the audience.

This affair formally opened the activities of the "Y" for the season. The following classes in the gymnasium are scheduled for this Tuesday afternoon and evening: Juniors at 4 o'clock and the senior class at 5 o'clock. The first business men's class will be held on Thursday at 5 P. M.

Mr. Eugene Smith and Arthur F. Wyman of the social committee assisted greatly in making it pleasant for the visitors.

SUSIE DISCUSSES PITCHING IN THE RECENT WORLD'S SERIES CONFLICTS

Susie although not attending the World's Series games followed them closely and in her letter this week comments freely upon them and the outcome of the series. Her letter follows:

Dear Sports Ed.:—

Now that I've had my say about teh merchants and their customers in the last coupla letters, I'm going to lay off this week and discuss the series. Them series was the best what I ever saw and according to the way I look at it the best team won. Maybe there's a lotta folks what bet a $1.50 on them Yanks what is pulling the old alibi that the series was fixed and that them Cardinals was lucky. Since them White Stockings got nailed trying to throw in with the get-rich quick guys they ain't no ball club what's taking any chances of getting in dutch.

I picked them Cardinals to win and now believe me Ed., I gotta almost new outfit of wearing apparel. The boy friend bets me a lotta silk longeray and I won. Pa bet a new hat and I won that and Willie bets a box of candy and I cops that too, although Willie et most of it up. Still, there's a lotta guys that won't take their licking and shut up like good sports They always gotta have some "ifs" and "ands" why they lost. The main "if" what they is pullin' now is that if they had only pitched to "Babe" Ruth it would have been a different story. Then they says if Mueser hadn't dropped the ball they would have won. Well, let me tell them birds that that's all in the game Didn't that kid Thevenow drop a ball that meant a run and yet the Cards won the series. Now as for not pitching to Ruth that's all bunk. Didn't Willie Sherdel fan the champeen slugger? Didn't Alex the Great pitch to him? They say he was passed more times than anybody else which he was but wasn't he up 20 times and got only six hits.

Now there ain't no pitcher that's sap enough to groove the old pill and let the Babe whack it outa the lot. They ain't pitching no good balls to that baby and I don't blame them. Them pitchers is always trying to get the big boy to swing at them bad ones and when he don't it ain't no sign he was intentionally passed. Old Alex showed his good judgment when he passed the slugger after getting two strikes on him.. Haines also showed he was there when he give him a walk. Everybody knows that Ruth can maul the old apple and the Cards knew it better than anybody else. Believe me, Ed., they weren't taking no chances that that baby would slam that ball in among the cash customers for a home run. 'Cause if he did he would knock about 2,000 bucks out of their pockets quicken'n it takes to tell it. Them 2,000 berries don't grow on bushes like huckleberries and them St. Louis fellers were not going to take no chances on losing them shekels. I bet there ain't one of them croackers but what would have done the same if they had been on the Cards team.

Speaking of baseball, ain't them Twilight league fellers ever going to hand out them prizes? The league closed up shop better'n a month ago and there ain't been nothing done yet about awarding the watch to the most valuable player nor nothing. Some of the boys is getting anxious, being afraid they ain't going to get no money for Christmas.

Well, Ed., I see the Academy football team has started to make things intresting for the visiting teams what come to Norwich. I saw part of that game and them kids look like they was a bunch of winners. It's just about a year since I saw them Harvard and Yale fellers tear each other apart and it give me quite a kick to see them Academy kids wallop them corn-fed babies from E. Greenwich. Them fellers what come up from down in Rhode Island want no pigmies, but they didn't know much about footballs. Gosh, I had to laugh when one feller caught the ball for a put-out and another feller on the same team tackled him.

Well, Ed., I ain't got much to write about, so I guess I better quit. You wants go up and see them Academy team play, they sure is good. Hope they beat them Bulkeley fellers this year.

Yours as ever

SUSIE

YALE-DARTMOUTH WILL BE FEATURE THIS WEEK

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—(AP)—Dartmouth, unbeaten championship team of 1925, moves upon Yale bowl Saturday to engage Tad Jones' blue-jerseyed gladiators with a double objective.

Not only will the powerful Hanover eleven have before it the task of successfully defending its eastern supremacy and of extending an unblemished record of fifteen straight victories, but there also will be possible to Hawley's husky warriors their first triumph over a Yale team. In the 42 years' history of their rivalry, Dartmouth has never been able to do better than hold Yale even.

In eight previous clashes between the two universities, Dartmouth was decisively defeated seven times. Two years ago, in the last meeting of the rivals, the big green machine held its Eli opposition to a tie at 14-14 after which Dartmouth set out upon the impressive winning streak which swept the team to the pinnacle last year.

The battle of 1924 not only saw Yale's march of victories over Dartmouth checked, but witnessed the crossing of the Yale goal line for the first time by Hanover backs. Never before had Dartmouth been able to score on a Yale team.

The Dartmouth-Yale conflict Saturday shares the center of the gridiron stage with an outstanding inter-sectional battle between Pennsylvania and Chicago at Philadelphia, but at least six other games will claim the major interest of football followers.

Princeton and Navy will lock at Princeton in their annual tussle, Columbia will face Ohio state in a local game which will bring a western conference team here for the first time in many years, Syracuse will battle army at West Point and Penn State will swing into the west to sample Knute Rockne's 1926 output at Notre Dame.

Other battles will send William and Mary against Harvard, Michigan state against Cornell, Tulane against N. Y. U., West Virginia against Georgetown, Colgate against Pittsburgh and Holy Cross against Rutgers.

NURMI TO BE BROUGHT BACK TO THIS COUNTRY

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—(AP)—Negotiations have been completed to bring to the United States this winter Paavo Nurmi, the famous Finnish runner, and his two foremost rivals, Dr. Otto Peltzer of Germany and Edwin Wide, the Swedish schoolmaster, for a series of indoor meets.

The three foreign sters, according to reliable information reaching The Associated Press, will appear in a country-wide tour that promises to stir up the most spectacular indoor track competition America has ever seen.

It will be a return invasion for Nurmi, who swept nearly all before him on a conquering tour of America in the winter of 1924-25 but this time he will have as opponents two men who not only have given him his closest races, but also have beaten him recently.

The runners will appear under amateur colors and under the auspices of a group of prominent athletic clubs, understood to be led by the New York Athletic club of including organizations in Chicago, St. Louis, San Francisco and other big cities.

All three have rejected big offers to turn professional in preference to remaining among the simon-pures and competing in the 1928 Olympic games. Dr. Peltzer, the German sensation who broke Ted Meredith's half-mile record several months ago and later defeated Nurmi at the Finn's favorite distance 1,500 metres, in world's record time, is understood to have refused an offer of $25,000 to turn professional Nurmi and Wide likewise rejected flattering offers to forsake the amateur talent, at least one of which was said to have been made by Charles C. Pyle, manager of Suzanne Lenglen and Red Grange.

Nurmi, Wide and Peltzer met a month ago in Berlin in two special races in each of which the Finn was victorious. Besides losing to Peltzer and Wide at 1,500 meters, Nurmi also dipped his colors to Wide over a two-mile route which the Swede covered in record-breaking time.

All three runners are expected to arrive in the United States in November to train for indoor competition which probably will start early in January at Madison Square Garden.

CROWD OF 40,000 ON HAND TO WELCOME CARDS

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Travel-worn but triumphant, Manager Rogers Hornsby led 15 members of his world champion Cardinals baseball club back to home grounds late today to a welcoming crowd of about a thousand hoisterous fans.

Most of the players, however, managed to slip away from the admiring welcomers and were escorted to their homes or hotels by motorcycle policemen, where they hoped to get a little rest before a formal celebration staged tonight at Sportsmans Park in their honor. Alexander the Great and Bottomley were about the only members of the club that were recognized as they were smuggled out of the Union station midway and to waiting automobiles by members of the reception committee.

Hornsby, however, did not fare so well. Remaining on the train until he thought most of the crowd had gone, he ventured into the train shed, escorted by two policemen and a few friends, as the party moved toward the tracks in the rear of the station. The crowd increased until Hornsby, visibly irritated and nervous, doubled back and went to the waiting train which will take him to Austin, Texas, for the funera of his mother.

There he was joined by Mrs. Hornsby and their son, Billy. After half an hour, the party went to a restaurant in the waiting room, later returning to the Frisco "Texas Special," which left the station at 6.50.

Only eight of the players appeared at Sportsman's Park for the homecoming party, however, the remainder of the crew evidently believing that enough was enough. These were Alexander, Thevenow, O'Farrell, Blades, Daniels, Southworth, Keen and Bottomley, with Coach Williams representing the board of strategy.

A capacity crowd of nearly 40,000 raising the attendance at last week's series games, was jammed into the park.

SISLER IS NOTIFIED OF HIS RELEASE AS MANAGER

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 11.—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns, who finished in seventh place this year, will have a new manager next year.

President Phil Ball today notified George Sisler, first baseman and manager for three years, that he will not be retained as manager next year. Sisler's contract as head of the club expired this season.

"The complete failure of the team this year is all the explanation that is necessary to make, I think," Ball said in declaring that he has not selected a manager, although he has five applications. Bill Killifer, coach of the Cardinals, is not being considered for the place Ball said.

Sisler came to the Browns in 1915 as a pitcher, but was used at first base and in the outfield. He pitched his last game in 1916 and since that time has played at the first sack. In 1922 he batted .420 and stole 51 bases and was awarded the "Most Valuable Player" trophy. This year, however, his batting slumped to .291 after he had hit .305 in 1923. Sinus trouble kept him out of play in 1923, but he resumed work in 1924 under Lee Fohl, who was released in September of that year. Austin finishing out the campaign. Sisler was named manager that fall.

Local predictions last spring when the Browns trained in Florida was that the American League club wou'd win the flag or run close to first place. The complaint has been made that Sisler was lenient in the handling of his men and that this was mainly responsible for the cracking of his pitching staff.

"I will not be prepared to make a statement until I find out definitely what the Brown club will do," Sisler said tonight when asked about his plans for the future. "My contract has run out with the club, but I am still their property, and the question eventually will resolve itself into one between the club and me."

MARULLO GETS VERDICT OVER MATT ADGIE

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 11.—(AP)—Tony Marullo, of New Orleans, won the judges' decision in a ten-round bout over Matt Adgie, of Philadelphia, here tonight. Both weighed 130 pounds.

It was a slugging match from the first bell and though neither was knocked down both were badly mauled at the close of the battle.

Other bouts resulted as follows: Murray Gitlitz, New Haven, 174, stopped George Gemas, Manoyunk, Pa., 186, in three rounds.

George Smith, Newark, N. J., 175, knocked out Ray Fay, Charleroi, Pa., 173, in the fourth round.

George E. Lamson, California, 183, won the decision over Frankie Carpenter, New York, 173, in six rounds.

Nutmegs Practice

The Nutmegs will hold nightly sessions during the week at which times signal practice will be on the program along with a rehearsal of the various formations.

The Nutmegs still have a few open dates and would like to book fast gridiron outfits. For arrangements call 1707-13.

MANY BALL PLAYERS TO HUNT IN NORTHERN WOODS

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—(AP)—As baseball Commissioner Landis takes his pen in hand to sign checks for world series players, many of the victorious Cardinals and the Yankee runners up are planning to spend some of their money on gunpowder.

Both New York and St. Louis players have heard the call of the wild and even pitchers with good control are numbered in the hunting parties about to start for the woods.

Canadian Moose and Caribou formed the objective of an expedition personally conducted by Bob Shawkey. The Yankee pitcher will lead his party to St. Felicien, 200 miles north of Quebec. Shawkey, "Sad Sam" Jones, Mark Koenig and Benny Bengough of the Yankees, Eddie Collins, manager of the Chicago White Sox and Joe Bush of the Pittsburgh Pirates are leaving tonight on the Montreaier Babe Ruth, Herb Pennock, Hollis Thurston and Fred Hoffman may also join the Shawkey invasion of Canada.

If the handshaking they meet in St Louis does not incapacitate then from lifting guns to their shoulders, Jess Haines and Arthur Reinhart will accompany Grover Cleveland Alexander, to Grand Island, Neb., for a hunting trip.

Babe Ruth spent a portion of today telling Johnny Sylvester, on a hospital bed in New Jersey, that in the role of the "sick kid," the youngster inspired him to hit three home runs in one game at St. Louis.

FAST BOXING BOUTS ARE SCHEDULED FOR NEW LONDON

Billy Tracy, well known boxing promoter of New London, will attempt to revive the boxing game in the whaling town on the night of Oct. 19th when he will put on what looks to be a real bang-up good card. Boxing in New London has not gone over so big during the last few years but it is hoped that this winter will see the game boom as it did in the days of Austin Rice and other eastern Connecticut pugilistic celebrities. If this card goes over it is Tracy's intention of putting on a card twice a month.

For the headliner on the first card Tracy has signed up Young Al Conly of the Coast Guard with Mickey Travers of New Haven over the ten-round route. His second choice brings together Pinky Burns and K. O. Billy Ryan of Providence college. Local interest will center on one of the preliminaries in which Kid Wagner, the Taftville flash will swap punches with Young DePalma of New Haven. The Kid showed his stuff at the Taftville bouts a month ago when he kayoed his man in the first round. The other preliminary brings Young Trixie of New London and Battling Eurk of Westerly together. Practically all the boys on this card are known to Norwich fans and many have fought here. There is a semi-final yet to be arranged.

BABE RUTH PAYS VISIT TO JOHNNY SYLVESTER

ESSEX FALLS, N. J., Oct. 11—(AP)—Babe Ruth today paid a visit to Johnny Sylvester, the 10 year old youth, whose sick-bed appeal was credited by the Yankee slugger with being the inspiration for his outburst of home run hitting in the fourth game of the world's series.

"Gee, ain't he big?" muttered Johnny, who is suffering from sinus trouble, as Ruth came into the room. The slugger told the boy to "cheer up," and handed him an autographed baseball, the last one used in the first series game, signed by the opposing pitchers, Pennock and Sherdel. Ruth and Rogers Hornsby had sent Johnny several autographed balls from St. Louis when they heard of his plight.

HAINES TO BE WELCOMED IN ROYAL FASHION

DAYTON, Ohio, Oct. 11—(AP)—Wearing the Cardinal roses of victory, Jess Haines, pitcher hero of the world's champion St. Louis Nationals, arrived here today on his way to his home in Phillipsburg, Ohio.

But he can't go home until morning. He was met at Union station by a small delegation which informed him the gates of his home town were barred against him until tomorrow.

Phillipsburg is going to do the thing up right and tomorrow morning Haines will make a triumphant entry into Phillipsburg. Jesse, already enthroned as the king of Phillipsburg, will be given the keys to the city and there will be speech making and rejoicing.

IDAHO AND YONKERS WIN OPENING GAMES

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Pocatello, Idaho, and Yonkers, N. Y., won the opening games today in the final American Legion Junior baseball championship at the sesqui-centennial stadium.

The Idaho team defeated Eldorado, Kas., 7 to 5, and the Yonkers, N. Y., nine won from Springfield, Ohio, 2 to 0.

These four teams are the survivors of the tournament that has been conducted all over the United States last summer by the American Legion and in which 2,600 junior teams participated.

Columbia Cross-Country Slate

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—(AP)—Columbia university's cross country schedule, announced tonight, provides for five appearances for the team, beginning October 23 with a triangular meet against Rutgers and New York university and closing November 22 with the intercollegiates at Van Cortland park.

Three dual meets are scheduled, as follows: October 30 Syracuse; November 6 Yale; November 13 Pennsylvania.

HARRY WILLS MEETS JACK SHARKEY TONIGHT IN HEAVYWEIGHT BOUT

NEW YORK, Oct. 11—(AP)—Harry Wills, whose gloved fists rapped in vain on the heavyweight title door during the seven-year reign of Jack Dempsey, fares forth on the challenging trial once more tomorrow night.

The big negro faces young and confident Jack Sharkey of Boston in a fifteen-round contest at Ebbets field.

Now 36 years old, the husky, stevedore has not been in the ring for almost a year. His last match in October 1925, resulted in a technical one-round knockout over Floyd Johnson of Des Moines. Five months prior to that bout he knocked out Charley Weinert of Newark at the Polo grounds.

Since then Wills has centered his efforts upon gaining his long-desired fling at the championship. Encouraged in his drive by the New York state athletic commission, which ranked him as leading challenger, Wills frequently appeared at the threshold, only to be turned aside each time.

Sharkey, a boxer of the defensive type has come to the front rapidly in the last year, winning decisions over Eddie Huffman of California, George Godfrey, the giant negro, Jim Maloney of Boston and King Solomon of Panama.

The supporting card includes the following: George Courtney, Oklahoma middleweight and Jimmy Darrah, California, ten rounds; Jack Townsend, Boston heavyweight, and Jake Warrenz, Chicago, 6 rounds; Black Bill, Cuban flyweight, and Happy Atherton, Indianapolis, six rounds.

AGGIES GETTING INTO SHAPE FOR UNIV. OF MAINE GAME

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Oct. 11—Although winning over Massachusetts last Saturday, Coach Dole did not give his Connecticut Aggie squad their customary being held instead. The Aggies leave for the Pine Tree state Thursday night, where on Saturday the University of Maine eleven will be played at Orono in what shapes up as one of the most important New England conference games of the year.

The Aggies will practice here tomorrow and Wednesday night, and also Friday at Orono. No scrimmage or other heavy work will be attempted, the drill for the last part will consist of correcting such defects in play as cropped out in the Massachusetts game and light work.

Schofield, regular Aggie quarterback, received a leg injury last Saturday, the seriousness of which has yet to be determined. Coach Dole fears that the Waterbury star will be unable to play in the Maine game, which means the Aggies will be seriously handicapped at the start. If Dole's fears are realized, Kennedy will be brought from end to halfback on offense, in which capacity he will be used largely as an interferer. On defense, he will play end, with Callahan moving back from offensive end to defensive back. Wilson will probably be used on the end vacated by Kennedy, and Noonan will move from half to quarterback.

Except for the injury to Schofield, the entire Aggie team came through Saturday's game in excellent shape, and as no heavy work is to be done this week, practically the same team should face Maine. The Pine Tree staters beat Middlebury 24-0 on Saturday, their third victory in as many starts, all of which means Connecticut faces a real test at Orono on Saturday.

Coach Alexander's freshman team is fast rounding into shape for their first game of the season with the Massachusetts Two-Year school at Amherst this Friday. A scrimmage was held this afternoon with the varsity seconds, and the freshmen showed enough to indicate that Alexander has another good yearling team in the making at Storrs.

ST. PAUL PREPARING WELCOME FOR ALEX THE GREATER

ST. PAUL, NEB., Oct. 11—This town of 1,600 persons is preparing for a home-town invasion, not by Alexander the Great, but by "Alexander the Greater," who yesterday pitched the Cardinals to the world's baseball championship.

Today the name of Grover Cleveland Alexander was all that was necessary to start conversation whether in the depot, lunch rooms, barber shops or in the county court. In the interim of the continual buzz of praise of St. Paul's idol, we left here as a telephone lineman many years ago, to try his luck in the major league, citizens made plans for the homecoming of Alexander. He is expected home next Monday.

The town is decorated and those who know Alexanders favorite dishes were checking lists and getting ready for a whale of a banquet.

The celebration started Sunday afternoon after Alex had stopped the Yankees in the seventh inning and had sailed along to victory. The town went wild. The band was called out and marched to the home of Mrs. William Alexander, mother of the series hero, and serenaded her. She responded only with tears.

KELLY SCORES TECHNICAL KNOCKOUT OVER BEAUREGARD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

HOLYOKE, Mass., Oct. 11.—Billy Kelly, of Scranton, Pa., was awarded a technical knockout over Young Al Beauregard of Taftville, Conn., here tonight in the third round of the scheduled eight round main bout. The fight for three rounds was fast and furious but as the third round drew to a close, the boys crashed in a clinch and Beauregard received a deep gash over his eye. The blood flowed freely into Beauregard's eyes but he battled blindly on until his seconds seeing that it was impossible for him to continue the fight tossed in the towel. Beauregard was given a tremendous hand as he left the ring after the fight.

NORTH PROVES EQUAL TO INVASION FROM THE SOUTH

NEW YORK, Oct. 10—(AP)—Six powerful southern invasions, their might shattered against the bulk of eastern defenses, are retreating into Dixieland today without a single gridiron conquest to mark a gallant weekend sortie. But in their wake is left the impression of a rugged strength that has sprung up in college elevens of the southland to offset climatic benefits and early season advantages of northern cleated warriors.

A daring band of generals from Washington and Lee failed to whip Princeton in the huge Tiger stadium, but a 7-7 tie bore all the elements of victory.

The Virginians outrushed, outpassed and outsmarted the Negals throughout and only the twisting, squirming drive of the William for 65 yards and a touchdown on the first play of the second period averted disaster for champions of the Big Three. The end of the game found the Virginians on the Princeton 20-yards line smashing goal-ward in a drive that resulted from an intercepted pass.

The most brilliant forward passing attack Yale has shown this season could get nowhere against the clever defense of Georgia. The flood of aerials that smothered Boston university last week swept the Eli toward one touchdown, but a wide open running attack and all the strength at the Yale command was necessary to clinch the 19 to 0 victory when the crafty Georgian defense suddenly smothered the Bulldog overhead thrusts.

Up in the Hanover hills, the Dartmouth Indians, masters of a goodly section of the football universe last year, suddenly found themselves battling to the utmost against the stonewall defense of Virginia. Poly that held them in check through much of the contest, only erratic handling of the ball keeping the southerners in check as the aces of the Dartmouth backfield, picked to fill the shoes of the mighty Swede Oberlander after overwhelming conquests of Norwich and Hobart, found themselves held to small yardage and a 21 to 0 win.

Army could not escape Davis and Elkins without being scored upon. The West Virginians put over seven points against the Cadets while the future generals scored twenty-one. Subs weakened the Army defense somewhat but a tricky forward pass turned in the southern touchdown in the first period. A breeze overhead onslaught after the West Virginia Wesleyan line had been found impregnable showed New York university the way to a 24 to 7 victory. William and Mary brought a fighting clan to the Syracuse nest, but the crushing attack of the New Yorkers, led by the dazzling "Whippet" Carr, smashed over them 35 to 0.

Defeat again perched on the Harvard banner but a bit of sun is beginning to break through the gloom clouds that have surrounded Crimson rooters since Little Geneva walked off with the first victory an invader has ever scored in the opening contest of the season. This time it was a fleet set of Holy Cross backs behind a battering-ram line, combined with perfect execution of long and short passes to both ends of the barrier that sank the Crimson 19 to 14. The ray of hope for Harvard, however, is seen in the inspired play of a green team, weakened by injuries and scholastic deficiencies, that hammered the enemy for two touchdowns in the first half.

The Pony backs, led by Burly Al Miller smashed off tackles in clean co-ordinated drives and the Harvard football rebirth seemed at hand. But the shrapnel fire of passes finally swept the Crimson team off its feet in the last quarters.

Gil Gobdie's Cornell machine, functioned perfectly against William in piling up a 47 to 0 score, for the third successive year Lafayette rose to heights to conquer the Pittsburgh Panthers 17 to 7. The middie craft at the Naval academy had little trouble whipping two opponents in the same day, defeating Richmond in a practice session after the varsity had trimmed Drake 24 to 7, the second intersectional rival from the west to face disaster at the hands of the sailors in two weeks. Brown kept up a winning surge that swept over Lehigh 32 to 0.

WILLS-SHARKEY BOUT WILL BE ANNOUNCED TONIGHT

The returns of the Wills-Sharkey heavyweight bout at Ebbets field in Brooklyn will be announced by megaphone this evening at the Bulletin office. The bout is scheduled for 15 rounds and will probably go on about 10 o'clock or shortly before.

SPORTING NOTES

The first football club in the United States was organized in Boston in 1862.

Attendance figures indicate that professional football will have a long way to go before it will rival the college game in popularity.

Senorita d'Alvarez, Spain's famous woman tennis player, is reported to have refused the offer of an enormous sum to turn professional.

The first regularly organized football team at the West Point military academy was captained by Denis Michie, who was killed in the battle of San Juan.

A game between Harvard and McGill universities at Boston, May 16, 1874, is believed to have been the first Rugby football ever played in the United States.

Bo McMillin's Geneva college gridiron squad was evidently the strongest team that ever opened a Harvard football schedule, since their defeat of the Crimson this season was the first occasion in which the latter over failed of victory in their opening game.

The first real football championship among American colleges was won by Yale just 50 years ago, when the Elis scored gridiron victories over Harvard, Princeton and Columbia.

John L. Sullivan, who later was to become the king-pin among the world's pugilists, was an enthusiastic football player during a term spent as a student at Boston college.

Missouri and Tulane universities have now played two football games and in each case the result has been a tie. Last year the score was 6 to 6, while this season neither team could score a point.

Dwight F. Davis, Jr., son of the U. S. secretary of war and donor of the famous Davis cup in tennis, is one of the promising candidates for the freshman baseball team at Harvard this year.

This season's game between Johns Hopkins university and the University of Pennsylvania was the first time that that teams of these institutions had met on the gridiron in almost 40 years.

A great angling record is possessed by Robert Butter, a veteran sportsman of Perth, Scotland, who (now in his 80th year) has caught 19,000 trout with his rod, besides a thousand or more fish of other varieties.

The Maharajah of Jodhpur has placed the pick of his polo ponies at the disposal of the Indian army polo team, which is to visit America next year to compete in the Westchester cup and other tournaments.

Borg Sets Three Records.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Arne Borg, the Swedish champion swimmer, has set up new swimming records at three distances. He covered 500 yards in 5 minutes 35 1-2 seconds; 300 yards in 3 minutes 16.7 seconds and 300 metres in 3 minutes 33 4 seconds.

The previous records were made by Johnny Weismuller, the American star, 5.07 2-5, 3.16 2-5, and 3.35 1-5, respectively.

WILL OPEN NEW HOSPITAL BUILDING AT MANSFIELD

The new hospital building at Mansfield state training school and hospital is to be opened on Monday, Oct. 19, with exercises that will be held at 2:30 in the afternoon. The new building will be called the Knight hospital in honor of the disinguished services rendered to the feeble-minded of the state by Dr. Henry M. Knight and his son, Dr. George B. Knight.

Portraits of the two physicians will be presented to the state of Connecticut by United States Senator George M. McLean as spokesman for Mrs. George B. Knight.

Tomboy skirts is the latest fad of fashion among the North High school girls, Worcester, Mass. Accompanying the tomboy skirt is a sport belt, a mannish white shirt, open at the neck and a swagger hip pocket into which is tucked a gaudy handkerchief.

AUTO STOLEN ON FISHERS ISLAND FORWARDED ON BOAT TO NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 11—An automobile owned by a man named Harrison was stolen from Fishers Island this morning. The auto carried New York registration, IZ-4029. The car was stolen in daylight, but Harrison did not discover the theft until several hours after the thief drove away in the machine. When the theft was discovered Harrison ascertained that the thief had driven the auto to the Fishers Island wharf and had caused it to be forwarded to New London on the steamer Restless, which arrived here at 3.15 o'clock. The boat had already docked here when Harrison discovered his loss and the thief had driven away. The New London police were notified of the theft, but no trace of the car was found.

An automobile owned by William Bunting, of 107 Connecticut avenue, was stolen from in front of his residence last night. The automobile was parked there late Sunday night and when the owner went to drive it about 7 o'clock this morning, he discovered that it was missing. The state police at Groton and Centerbrook and the police at Norwich, Westerly, Hartford and New Haven were requested to be on the lookout for the auto.

MRS. RUFUS W. SNOW IS FOUND DEAD IN BED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 11—Mrs. Abbie P. Snow, 82, widow of Rufus W. Snow, died suddenly at her home, Cape Ann court, this morning, being found dead in bed by a member of the family. Mrs. Snow was awake during the morning, but did not rise and some time after she had talked with members of her family, one of the household went to the bed-chamber and found Mrs. Snow dead. Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman was notified of the sudden death and conducted an investigation, determining that death was caused by a weakened condition of the heart, aggravated by infirmities attending Mrs. Snow's advanced years.

More than a dozen cases were before the police court this morning Most of the cases alleged intoxication, but there were other offenses composed of that varied the docket. A young woman who gave the name of Josephine Steward and who said she came from Norwich, was charged with being a person of lascivious carriage She reached the railway station Sunday afternoon when she made so free with sailors that she attracted attention from the police. Josephine was taken into custody and a story was related to the prosecutor that led him to make the complaint for prosecution against the young woman. It was clearly a case in which both the accused and this city would be benefitted if she left town, so the case was continued that Josephine might shake the dust of New London from her shoes. She said she would gladly do that.

Three drunks who were on a spree in an automobile last week were before the court. The men were punished with fines and a woman who was the wife of one of the men in the car was ordered to be in court a month from the morning to answer for intoxication.

Arthur C. Andrews was found not guilty of operating an automobile recklessly. He was defended by counsel.

A three cornered fight on Main St., at 2:30 p. m. yesterday, in which two women were concerned, brought fines to them this morning.

Henry Sallow was fined $50 for transporting booze. He was on the way to a party but his driving attracted the police and his arrest and prosecution followed.

Peon McGuire, a sailor, was fined $25 for reckless operation of an auto. He drove from Howard street to the Crystal avenue bridge through traffic before he was apprehended.

Alexander Nelson Morris was so badly intoxicated that he fell down a flight of stairs, but escaped serious injury. He admitted that he "must have been drunk," but said he did not remember anything about it. Alexander was punished enough, so he was allowed to go to his work.

Other drunks were of a varied degree of intoxication. They were disciplined, according to the seriousness of the offenses they committed.

Mrs. Louise Hott of Waterford; Mrs. Martin Sonach, 21 Linden street; Francis Savage, 62 Cott street; Frederick Carlin, Niantic; Mrs. Everett Kern and infant daughter, 254 Ocean avenue; Mrs. Charles Kaufman, 276 Montauk avenue; Miss Mabel Carpenter, Mystic; Mrs. Alvin Avers and infant son, 690 Main street; Mrs. Owen Miner, Groton; Miss Marie Gallagher, Waterford; Herbert Hayden, Groton; Mrs. Mary Coles, 106 Whittlesey street; Alexander Leitkowsky, 26 New street; Mrs. Manuel Wheeler and infant son, Niantic; Mrs. Lena Mayfield 47 Church street, patients at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged over the week end.

Mrs. Gertrude L. Macomber, 45, wife of Henry F. Macomber died last night at her apartment, Ye Faire Harbour, 121 Broad street. Besides her husband, Mrs. Macomber is survived by a son, Francis Macomber and her mother, Mrs. Annie Maud Jordan of 32 Blackhall street. Mrs. Macomber was stricken about two weeks ago and her condition immediately became grave. A few days ago pneumonia developed. Mrs. Macomber was born in New London and had resided here her entire life.

Charles Welsh is one of the lucky fellows of this town. He drove from State street to Bank street this noon and went head-on into an auto truck that was loaded with auto wrecksage. Welsh was operating a touring car that smashed into the truck with force to wreck the front right wheel of the machine, but did not damage the Welsh car more than to bend the front mud guard on the left side of the car. The Welsh car, when it had been freed from the truck was driven away under its own power. A dozen automobiles carrying a wedding party followed the Welsh car thru Bank street and they were held up for a time.

Nameaug engine company passed resolutions on the death of Warren E. Rogers this evening and named a delegation to attend the funeral. Mr. Rogers was a member of the executive committee of the company for several years.

BIG RECEPTION FOLLOWS TRIONE-DONISI WEDDING

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 11 — Miss Rose Donisi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Genaro Donisi of 537 Bank street and Andrew Trione held a reception this evening at Odd Fellows' hall in celebration of their marriage this morning at St. Mary's church. There was a very large attendance for there is no more popular son of Italy in New London than Mr. Trione, a business man on Bank street. Dancing, singing and vocal and instrumental music were provided for the guests with great liberality. A dozen automobiles took the bridal party to St. Mary church where the marriage was solemnized. Last evening Mr. Trione and his bride received many felicitations in the name of the bride's parents and were entertained at a late hour. Many handsome gifts were bestowed upon the bride.

COUNCIL IS TO SPEND OVER $71,000 IN FT. NECK ZONE

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 11.—The city council this evening took up the matter of improving the approaches to the Fort Neck section, in which the coast guard academy is located. The matter came up after the report of the city manager and city engineer, on a survey that had been made of the section after the representation that the coast guard heads desired to remove the academy to New Bedford. A detailed report was made by the city manager which contemplates the expenditure of some $25,500 on Tuttle avenue, $22,500 on Smith street and $1800 on Hamilton street. The matter was discussed at some length by the council, and then the entire subject was referred to the committee on public works. The entire outlay is estimated to be $71,900.

Street improvement in general came in for consideration by the council. The city manager reported on proposed improvements on Denison avenue from Montauk avenue to Shaw street. It was represented that it was too late in the season to make the improvements now, so a suggestion was made that the matter should go to committee to be included in the streets that would receive attention next year. Councilor Streeter objected and said that the improvement of the street had been before the council two years and that when it was last considered, the understanding was that Denison avenue should be provided for in this years' budget. The city manager told the council that if the street was to be improved, provision must be made for the work by an additional appropriation. The matter then went to committee. The matter of improving Grove street and Terrace avenue was also referred to a committee.

The council voted to accept Beckwith street as such and to accept land deeded to the city for the purpose by Walter T. Beckwith. The Planning Board reported a plan for the layout of streets on the Brandegee estate, on Bristol and Walker street. The plan was accepted as was a plan for improvements and layout of Ledyard street and Fitch avenue, when such streets are put in condition.

Councilor Streeter called attention to defective sidewalks Montauk avenue, next south of Perry street and on Blinman street on the south side near the corner of Bank street. The recommendation for improvements was referred to the city manager, for report.

The matter of putting a zoning law into operation was suggested by Mayor Fox who reported the satisfactory working of the zoning ordinances in Hartford. Councilor Whiton reported that the purpose was to get the planning board and the council together and then to decide on a plan of procedure.

George H. Potter, Jr., 114 Shaw street, who was a long police record was arrested this evening on three charges, intoxication, breach of the peace and resisting an officer. He was locked up, being unable to procure a surety on his bond of $100, and will be presented in the police court tomorrow morning. Potter was on Shaw street near his home and creating such a disturbance that the police were complained to. Patrolmen Clarence Martin and Ernest Opperman were sent to Shaw street and finding Potter, arrested him. He then started to give battle to the officers, but was quickly subdued.

An automobile driven by Dr. Hugh J. Lenn, 154 Broad street, in passing through Ocean avenue, near School street, this afternoon struck and killed a dog. The owner of the dog was not discovered.

Herbert Hirsche, of Belmar, N. J. and Miss Adelaide Morgan, Hempstead street, were married at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Second Congregational church, the ceremony being performed by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the church. Hubert W. Fisher, a classmate of the groom at Yale was best man. The maid of honor was Miss Patricia Brown. Miss Frances Bowman of Flemington, N. J., and Miss Helen Weightman were bridesmaids. The ushers were Edward E. Rice, Cleveland; John E. Robbins, New York C. Pomeroy Robinson and William Reeves, of this city.

Max Droner and Miss Emma Walker both of this city were married this afternoon at the parsonage of the First Church of Christ by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth.

Avoid Ugly Pimples

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The cure should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel, heals no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do the work calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

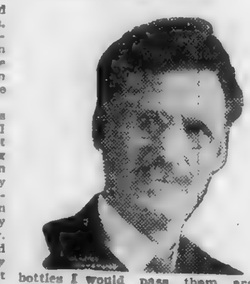
Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Justice of Peace McArthur Recovers From Illness

Threatened With Loss of Health Due to Operation and Blood Poisoning, Cambridge Man Finds Relief. Regains Strength. Praises Tanlac



If you are nearing time when good health slips from you; if indigestion, nervousness, kidney disorders and ailments caused by run-down condition torture you, benefit by the experience of Cornelius McArthur, well known Cambridge, Mass., Justice of Peace and building contractor.

Sitting in his home at 35 Williams Street, Mr. McArthur recently said: "I am glad to be able to tell you what Tanlac did for me. In 1913, following an operation, blood poisoning set in and afterwards I could not regain my strength. My stomach gave out completely. Gas caused a sharp pain around my heart and the lump in my stomach made me think I had cancer.

"Whenever I walked on crowded streets I would get dizzy and my nerves were in such a sad state that everything bothered me. My condition became so deplorable that I had to give up work entirely. I had grave doubts that anything could give me relief from suffering when I began taking Tanlac. Imagine my surprise when this wonderful tonic began to make me feel better.

"Tanlac relieved me and in a short time I was back to business. Nervousness, gastritis and dizziness disappeared. I am really so enthusiastic about Tanlac that if I had a dozen bottles I would pass them around among my friends and give them—perfect health."

Thousands of fortunate men and women now enjoying good health and vital strength thank Tanlac, the safe, effective remedy made from roots, barks and herbs.

Learn from their experience and never suffer another pain or ailment. Take Tanlac. The first bottle will show amazing results. At all druggists. Over 40 million bottles sold.

RELIABLE PRESCRIPTION FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

When your stomach is upset from Gas, Acid, Indigestion or Nervousness Professional Men have found that Pepsinic Seltzer is a most capable and pleasing corrective and if taken in the morning before breakfast and when a person is distressed it has a very remarkable effect. It is absolutely safe for everybody, including children. Pepsinic Seltzer can be obtained at Drug Stores. Take no substitutes.

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy and called his prescription HEM-ROID. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1000 cases with the marvelous record of success in 98 per cent. and then decided it should be sold by druggists everywhere under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID from Lee & Osgood today. It has given safe and lasting relief to thousands and will do the same for you.

This sale makes the third piece of real estate sold by this agency within a week.

Palace Theater

Today the Palace will offer a program of unusual interest and excellence including two features of outstanding merit. Owing to the wide public appeal for the works of Rudolph Valentino the management has secured the picture of the famous star considered his masterpiece, the one in which he felt he did the finest acting of his entire screen career and the one he loved to witness himself, over and over again, Blood and Sand, without question one of the greatest pictures the screen has ever seen and Bebe Daniels in her latest success, Miss Brewster's Millions, a comedy drama in which the star is ably supported by the inimitable comedian Ford Sterling and Warner Baxter popular leading man. Miss Brewster's Millions will provide plenty of joy and laughter in contrast to the powerful dramatic action of Blood and Sand and the combination of these two splendid photoplays each one a headliner in its specific field of entertainment makes a program that cannot fail to please the most critical theater goer. The double feature policy at the Palace has met with popular favor as proven by the largest audiences this favorite theater has had since the opening of the season. The pictures shown are so selected as to have appeal that a majority of the audience will be delighted with each feature offerings but any others who may not find in one of the pictures just the sort of story they are fond of will surely enjoy the other the result being that each patron will find plenty of entertainment to their liking in every change of bill.

Motor Coach to Sesqui

The four day motor coach tour to Philadelphia and the Sesqui which started with the first trip on Sept. 11th from Norwich has proven more popular to the travelers of this locality than was even dreamed of. The first being more or less a venture has now developed into requests for other tours and we now have requests from 15 people for tickets on proposed tour to leave Norwich Sat. Oct. 16th.

Our big Pierce Arrow coach seats 20 passengers and as cost per passenger is based on full load we respectfully urge those who have thought of going to jump in and pick these six remaining seats and lets go.

This tour should be the best of all coming as it does in the middle of the fall months with cooler weather and nature dressed in its finest. This tour will cover the heights of the colorful season for the entire trip as the season from one to two weeks later in New Jersey and Pennsylvania than in this part of Connecticut. As on other trips this one includes transportation a good dinner on the road going and coming, rooms with baths at Philadelphia. Motor coach service to and from Sesqui grounds with admission and a $2.00 sightseeing tour of Philadelphia points of interest. This is positively your last opportunity to leave your car and worries that go with it in driving in strange cities at home. Yet travel via the state highways where the best scenery is to be found and let someone else worry about parking, one way streets, etc., and all your troubles are taken care of. Call Main street Bus Terminal. Phone 650 for tickets.

Broadway Theater

The main reason for the tremendous pleasure which Douglas Fairbanks' pictures have given in the past is that they appeals strongly to that part of man's mind that never grows up. In each of his stories he has been just what every small boys dreams of being, and these dreams never quite fade away as the small boys reach manhood.

His latest picture The Black Pirate which is now playing at the Broadway theater catches this spirit to a degree never reached by him before. Pirates!—here's a word that takes you back to your boyhood days. Buried treasure! who wouldn't like to chuck all the petty things of life's daily grind to go in search of it? Small wonder, then, that Doug's new picture will act as a magnet for all the small boys from 7 to 70, that it will thrill them and send them away with a feeling that for two hours they have been living the kind of life they've always wanted to live.

There is much that is beautiful, much that is brave and thrilling and spectacular in The Black Pirate. The picture is entirely in natural colors (incidentally, it is the best color job, from a mechanical standpoint that we have ever seen) and you can easily imagine how lovely are the scenes showing the moon rippling over the water, the pirates thronging the decks and clambering up into the rigging and burying their treasure in the golden sands of the tropical island. As for bravery and thrills, the very thought of a man contending single-handed against 200 cutthroats suggests them.

Billie Dove is the heroine, and is the only woman in the picture except Tempe Pigott, who plays a minor role. Miss Dove seems well worth battling for in a spectacular adventure.

Capacity crowds have been the rule the past two days and the management advises early attendance. An augumented orchestra under the leadership of Frank Benson sends this picture off with flying colors. Interesting short features are also shown.

Breed Theater

A mirthquake in the form of a double feature picture program is on its way to the Breed theater for Wednesday and Thursday. It is composed of Johnny Hines' biggest comedy feature, Rainbow Riley, and Marshall Neilan's latest screen production The Great Love.

An interesting fact in connection in this picture is that, as a play under the title, The Cub, it served as the last legitimate stage piece of Douglas Fairbanks prior to his entering pictures.

Those who have already seen Rainbow Riley state that Johnny is at his best in this tale of a cub reporter who is sent to the Kentucky mountains to report a feud. Arriving there, he is immediately immersed into a barrel of trouble, and it takes all his ingenuity to get out with his skin whole. This vehicle is reported to be made to order for the likable Hines and to those who enjoy speed, laughs and thrills in their motion picture fare, Rainbow Riley comes to the Breed theater highly recommended.

Marshall Neilan, famous screen director, is called The Mark Twain of the Screen, since the completion of his latest production, The Great Love. It is a hilarious story of a love-sick elephant turned loose on a village green. Viola Dana and Robert Agnew head a large cast in this new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature, which is coming tomorrow to the Breed theater, as the second feature.

Labor Picture With Addresses

The Norwich Central Labor union will hold a mass meeting open to everybody next Firday night in the Straud theatre at 8 o'clock. The feature of this meeting will be the showing of "Labor's Reward", a six reel motion picture drama of the wage earner. This picture has been shown all over the United States and Canada by the American Federation of Labor as a part of an education and organizing campaign conducted during the past year. It has been shown to large audiences and met with great favor, in many instances a return showing being necessary. It is a good clean drama, educational and historical with a pretty love story woven in and should please every picture fan in Norwich. In addition to the big free picture, the meeting will be addressed by Patrick F. O'Meara of New Haven, president of the Connecticut Federation of Labor, and Edward F. McGrady of Washington, D. C., representing the American Federation of Labor, who will make short talks on the labor movement in general. Otto Nicols of the Connecticut Federation of Labor who has been in the city for the past week assisting the local committee will make a brief lecture with the picture.

WESTMINSTER

The talk at morning worship was on the theme, Citizenship taught in the Bible by Christ and by others. Text Ps. 127:1 and St. Luke 7:5.

Deacon and Mrs. Charles Barstow, Mrs. Jessie A. Meade and Deacon Edmond were the delegates appointed to represent Westminster at the special meeting of Windham association of churches and ministers at Danielson in Westfield church, Rev. Harding W. Gaylord, pastor. Wednesday Oct. 6th today, (Monday) Buell Union, Canterbury's W. C. T. U. is to meet at Westminster parsonage with Mrs. Davis for an all day social time with dinner at noon and a program in the afternoon. A feature in connection with the afternoon is the expected presence of a man who has spent years in India and another just from Colorado who will tell of conditions as they know them in these very far apart portions of the world. It is expected that Rev. Mr. English of Putnam will accompany them, but that they cannot arrive in time for the dinner.

Mrs. Ida Dedera who motored from New York is spending some weeks in the home of Mrs. Ida M. Shorter.

Mrs. Shorter is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Harold George of Brooklyn, N. Y., for several weeks.

Mrs. J. Murray Meade and family are guests of Mrs. Jessie A. Meade at the home of Mr. Meade's aunt, Mrs. Ida M. Shorter.

Henry Graff has gone to New York to bring home his little daughter who has been visiting an aunt in Astoria.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Austin of Springfield spent the week end with Mrs. Austin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Perkins.

Mrs. Austin's daughter, Caroline who lived for a time with her grandparents here, in now employed in Waban, Mass.

Early in August while cutting a tree Joseph Perkins received a blow that broke bones in his hand. When apparently doing well, festering began and lately two or more bits of broken gope were removed. Now the mending of the bone seems to be progressing in satisfactory fashion.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Nash of Darien, Conn., spent a short vacation with the latter's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Davies of Elm Arch farm.

Town meeting Monday the 4th; after the voting hours, as usual, the gathering proved a very spicy one in connection, with roads schoolmatters, etc. Christian Kerr was reelected first selectman; Arthur Bennett, second; William Newton, third. The town election as a whole was republican as it has a record of being.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Koon and members of their family were at their summer home there of the week end.

Alex Helstrom has gone to join his family on Long Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Moody invited friends to help observe the 50th birthday of Mrs. Charles Robbins at Rest-awhile, Oct. 2nd, providing a delightful evening for all present. Mrs. Robbins was well remembered and received many good wishes.

Westminster hill school, Mrs. Arthur Tracy, teacher was in session Saturday to make up for the day it was closed on account of Brooklyn fair.

The funeral of Mrs. Annie E. Dawson was conducted by Rev. Walter Stone of Canterbury Green, and not by the Episcopalian rector, of Plainfield as stated in a former Westminster item. The day before her death James Dawson had inquired the name of the rector, stating that his mother desired the Episcopalian service at her funeral. Hence the mistake.

In the recent visit of Mrs. Davies to a pastorate held by him over 20 years ago in Unionville, he was the honored guest in the family of a former parishioner and received calls from a number of others, one of these a woman in her 97th year.

Says Dangerous Varicose Veins Can Be Reduced at Home

Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way.

If you or any relative or friend is worried because of varicose veins, or bunches, the best advice that anyone in this world can give you is to ask your druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. So penetrating and powerful is Emerald Oil that even Piles are quickly absorbed. Lee & Osgood sells lots of it.

POETRY

Out of the star-bespangled east he sailed
Into the fading, golden-tinted west,
Following the sun in his elusive quest
That setting sank their hope. The captains railed
And plotted open mutiny. The mailed
Scepter of state held grim sentence. Conquest,
Unmoved by threats he faltered not nor quailed.
What of the land that on the morrow beamed?
What of the songs of triumph that were heard
From Spanish throats? Twain winds over beset,
The voyager, to leeward and to windward.
Before his eyes prophetic vistas gleamed.
The symbol of the course of empire set.

'Twas not that this great soul adventuring
His shallops upon strange, uncharted seas,
As frail as dust before the shifting breese;
'Twas not that he was serving queen or king.
But, patient with his fruitless wandering,
Steadfast remained,—nor yet his will to please,
His loyal liege. But his great zeal to seize
A biding hope to which in faith to cling.
'Tis not in truth the golden shores we reach
Or by what chart we sail or by what star,
What mystic isles our eager visions sight
Or what white sails we distant glimpses afar,
Upon what opal strands our barques we beach;
But who our Pilot—through the tottsome night.

—Benjamin Collins Woodbury.

At the Gates of a Seed Farm

Have you ever seen a field, unending,
Of onions only, out in bloom,
The balls of broken snow and stems of silver
Thick above black-muck loam
In the perfect field of a garden-seed farmer
Where not a weed finds room?

A field is as beautiful as an oat-field ever:
More even its heads than a formal garden grows;
Less fanciful than mustard showering
With its yellow-petaled snows;
And more orderly the endless matched-up furrows
Of undeviating rows
Than any other farm shows.

In August I have seen a mile of onion
Blossom out and stand
Like a bleaching mesh of broken snow and silver
That a weaver has planned.

—Martha Webster Merriebew in The Christian Science Monitor.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Harold—So you went swimming. Get wet, eh?

Mae—Yes, it rained.—Detroit News.

Kind sir, would you give me a nickel for a cup of coffee?

Sorry, old man. I don't drink coffee.—Outlook.

I can't bear to have my children kissed by strangers.

Neither can I but it can't be helped. They are all over 18.—Meggendorfer Blaetter, Munich.

Wife—Don't you dare to speak to me for a month.

Husband—D'you think you'll have finished all you want to say by then?—Answers, London.

Critic (to sweet Young thing)—How did you like the barcarolle at the musicale last night?

Sweet Young Thing—I didn't stay for the refreshments, Mr. Cleff.—Life.

Mother—You were very naughty to disobey me. I have punished you to impress it you your mind.

Son—Boo! Boo! Wh-where do you—snif! think my mind is? —Exchange.

Irate Parent—Young man, have you ever kissed my daughter?

Young Man—I really couldn't say, sir.

Irate Parent—What! You can't say?

Young Man—No, sir, you see, sir, I promised her I wouldn't tell.—Penn State Froth.

KALEIDOSCOPE

The world's most effective fire fighting system is claimed by Paris.

Iron carbonyl is used in Germany as an anti-knock compound in motor fuels.

In 1925, Sweden supplied 40,000 tons of raw material for the artificial silk industry.

Maoris, of New Zealand weave fibers of New Zealand flax to make cloaks and girdles.

The wheat crop of the northern hemisphere is expected to be larger this year than in 1925.

The maharajah of Navanagar crossed a tiger and a lion and produced a tigon, which was sent to the London zoo.

The water at the summer White House at White Pine camp was carefully analyzed by the New York health department.

The "sea flea," which moves in a series of hops, has been known to attain a speed in the water of 80 miles an hour.

Chemists have discovered a new and quick method of preserving eggs. The eggs are dipped in an oil bath maintained at a temperature of 235 degrees Fahrenheit. This fills the pores of the shells, thereby preventing air from entering through them.

A peculiar mixup has occurred over the copy of the first edition of "Pilgrim's Progress for which £6,500 was recently paid in a London auction room. Examination of the volume by the purchasers, a firm of antiquarian book dealers, revealed the fact, hitherto unknown, that there were two different issues if the first edition and that this copy was one of the second issue which has a five-line errata at the end of the last page of the stext. This discovery, caused the cancellation of the sale, but the work was resold almost immediately to the original purchaser by private arrangement with the auctioneers.

Roasts run through with skewers made of copper are not only juicier, tenderer and more appetizing than those baked in the ordinary way, but they require 30 per cent less time for cooking. Such are the findings of experts of the home economics department of the University of California. This culinary discovery is explained on the ground that the copper serves to carry heat into the interior of the roast evenly and rapidly, while meat fiber alone has a very low heat conductivity. The experimenters assert in their report to the Journal of Home Economics that the more copper they used the less the meat lost weight during taking, thus giving an obvious economy of meat shrinkage as well as time and fuel.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

New York

Stocks irregular; U. S. Steel sells at lowest in ten weeks before rallying.

Bonds steady; award of big Chilean loan arouses interest.

Foreign exchanges mixed; Italian lira rally to 1926 high.

Cotton firm; heavy rain southwest.

Sugar steadier; trade buying.

Coffee barely steady; European covering.

Chicago

Wheat firm; eastern buying.

Corn higher; expectations bullish government report.

Cattle steady.

Hogs easy.

BREAK IN STOCKS CONTINUES

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Another aggressive selling movement shook the stock market today and prices crumbled away in all sections of the list. Efforts to stem the wave of liquidation by extending support to the usual market leaders were partially successful for a time, but the drive for lower prices was vigorously renewed toward the close and net declines of 1 to 4 1-2 points predominated.

Although the sweeping declines of the past week had been expected to improve the market's technical position, fears that the slump in cotton prices would depress general trade and that credit conditions might become uncomfortably tight continued to cast their shadows over trading activities. A relatively stiff rate of 5 per cent prevailed for call money despite a large surplus in reserves of the New York banks at the end of last week.

In the face of an increase in unfilled tonnage reported by the U. S. Steel corporation as of September 30, selling orders against the steel shares accumulated in heavy volume over the week-end. U. S. Steel was hammered down to 140 1-2, the lowest level in ten weeks, and after a temporary rally it closed 1 3-4 points net lower at 141. Sloss-Sheffield broke 4 1-2 points and Bethlehem and Otis issues were down.

Unloading of General Motors on a large scale sent that stock plunging downward to 148 1-8, more than 25 points below its recent peak. Strong support and short covering brought about a short-lived rally but it sagged again as the close to 148 3-4, which represented a net decline of 4 1-2 points for the day. Additional automobile price cuts chilled speculative enthusiasm for other motor issues, with Hudson, Studebaker and Chrysler all easing off.

The erratic character of trading was reflected in the temporary recoveries of 4 to 8 points from the day's lowest which took place under the impetus of short covering in Coca-Cola, Woolworth, Case Threshing Machine and Commercial Solvents "B". The subsequent relapse carried all with the exception of Woolworth under last week's closing figures. Losses of 2 to 4 points were recorded by Adams Express, Atlantic Refining, Allied Chemical, General Asphalt preferred, International Harvester and Remington Harvester and Remington Typewriter.

Railroad shares withstood the selling movement relatively better than other stocks but closed irregularly lower. The Van Sweringen issues were heavy for a time, Chesapeake & Ohio taking part in the downward movement along with Delaware & Hudson, Louisville & Nashville, Lackawanna and Atchison.

The commodity markets displayed a better tone. Cotton rallied $7 to 39 points as buying was influenced by the plans of the special Coolidge committee to aid the marketing of the crop. Wheat futures advanced about a cent a bushel on weather news and coffee held steady, sugar prices were a shade lower.

A brisk rally of about 12 points in Italian lira to the highest price of the year around 4.12 cents was attributed in some quarters to the trapping of a short interest in the exchange and in others to financial reforms instituted in Italy. Trading in other foreign exchanges was quiet. Sterling held around $4.84 11-16 and French francs around 3.86 cents.

Call money held at 5 per cent all day and time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

TAFTVILLE

A whist party in honor of the thirteenth birthday of Miss Jeanette Dupont was held Sunday evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Telesphore Dupont of Merchants avenue. Fourteen guests attended. Music for the evening was furnished by Clement Proulx and Arthur St. Marie, violinists. The rooms and tables were most attractively decorated and a delicious lunch was served by Mrs Dupont after cards. The first prize for girls went to Miss Evelyn Phansuf, and the consolation to Miss Anita Savageau. The boys first prize was won by Andrew St. Germain and the consolation was awarded to George Labarre.

Reverend Fathers J. A. Troie of Piercefield, N. Y., Hervieux of Tupper Lake, N. Y., and Desrosiers of Tupper Lake Junction, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alexis Troie and family of Providence street over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Proulx of Hunters avenue have returned from motoring for several days in Canada.

A representative of the Chelsea Savings bank will be at the Peoples Store on Wednesday evening rather than on Tuesday evening, Tuesday being Columbus day, a legal holiday.—adv.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Authier of the Old Canterbury turnpike have returned from a vacation of several weeks spent with relatives and friends in Canada.

Officer and Mrs. Hormidas Disco and family spent Sunday with relatives in Glasgo.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Belval have returned to their home at Riverside grove after spending several days with relatives in Brockton, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wunderlich and family have taken the house at 40 Norwich avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. George Adams and family have moved from South Fourth avenue to a house on North B street.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Belval, and the latters mother, Mrs. Mathilda Caron of North B street are occupying their newly erected home at Riverside grove.

Stephen Patrylo who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Whitehead of Boswell avenue, has returned to his home in Voluntown.

The programme committee in charge of the activities of the Men's class of the Taftville Congregational church have announced that the opening meeting of the season will be held on Thursday evening in the church vestry, when Rev. William J. Reynolds pastor of the Newent Congregational church is to be the speaker.

Mrs. Stanley Pora and family of Norwich avenue have moved to a house on South B street.

Bearl Donnelly of Norwich avenue has resigned his position with the weaving department of the Ponemah mills.

Joseph D. Aiken of Charleston, S. C., has been a recent visitor in the village.

Laying Cement on Montville Road

The first cement has been laid on the new highway between Uncasville and Jerome's corner on the Norwich-New London highway. A stretch of several hundred feet has been laid southerly from the home of Dr. John J. Donohue where the highway follows a new layout.

CASSIDY AND ENGLER RE-NOMINATED

REPRESENTATIVES BY REPUBLICAN

Attorney Charles W. Cassidy and George G. Engler, who represented the town of Norwich in the last legislature, were unanimously re-nominated by the republican caucus in the town hall Monday night, which had an attendance of about 40.

George M. Charbonneau, chairman of the republican town committee, called the caucus to order and Ex-congressman Edwin W. Higgins was chosen chairman on motion of Mr. Engler, with John R. Bowman, Jr., chosen clerk on motion of Josiah Greenstein.

After the call for the caucus had been read by Clerk Bowman, the nomination for the first representative was made by Andrew B. Davies. He put in nomination the name of Charles W. Cassidy, saying that two years ago he had had the pleasure to nominate Mr. Cassidy and had predicted then that Mr. Cassidy would be elected and would be a most satisfactory representative for the town in the general assembly. Both predictions had come true, Mr. Davies said, and he would make the same predictions again regarding Mr. Cassidy.

There was no other nomination and the vote was unanimous and was greeted with applause.

Chairman Higgins remarked that it was incumbent for all to work from now on to November 2 and there would be no doubt that the predictions of election would come true.

Judge John H. Barnes nominated Mr. Engler saying that he had nominated him two years ago and everything that had been said about Mr. Cassidy applied also to his candidate plus. Chairman Higgins also endorsed Mr. Engler and the election was unanimous.

The following seventeen justices of the peace whose names were presented by Mr. Cassidy, were nominated:

Wallace S. Allis, Telley E. Babcock, Albert J. Bailey, John H. Barnes, Charles W. Cassidy, J. Frank Corey, Andrew B. Davies, Frank N. Gardner, John D. Hall, Edwin W. Higgins, Josiah Greenstein, Arthur F. Libby, Edmund W. Perkins, Henry H. Pettis, Lee R. Robbins, Charles L. Stewart, George W. Weller.

Chairman Higgins added a brief but vigorous comment when he said that he felt sure that harmony will prevail on election day, as it had in the caucus, and all the republican candidates would be elected. They were deserving of it, he said, for the record of the state administration and of the national administration is one that will appeal to any clear-thinking man. He urged that everyone support the leaders in their attempt to get out the vote.

After the town committee had been empowered to fill any vacancies occurring on the ticket the caucus adjourned.

FORECLOSURE FOR $737 ON MONTVILLE PROPERTY

Judge Charles B. Waller, in the court of common pleas, at its motion list in this city Monday, handed down several judgments, while other cases on the list either went off or were continued.

Judgment in the amount of $737 was entered in the foreclosure case of County Commissioner George H. Bradford, of Montville, against William Clifford, an inmate of the Norwich State hospital, and others. The plaintiff moved for the appointment of guardian ad litem and Judge Waller appointed the defendant's son, Paul Clifford. The property which secured a note given the plaintiff, is situated on Noble Hill, about six miles from Uncasville. Nov. 22 was set for the date of sale and Deputy Sheriff Oscar H. Main was appointed a committee of sale, while Town Clerk Dan D. Heath and Selectmen Jerome W. House and George A. Chapman, all of Montville, were named appraisers. The real consists of about 75 acres and a house. About $800 is owing to other creditors while the Bankers Trust Co. of Norwich holds a mortgage for $750.

Judgment by default in the amount of $1,000 was entered in the case of the Baton-Chase Co. against John A. Mullens, both of this city.

Judgment as per sworn bill of particulars in the amount of $246.5 was entered in the case of Raymond V. Slater of Preston against Alfred J. Ladd of this city.

Disclosure of defense within 10 days or judgment was ordered in the case of William Winckowski against Daniel J. O'Connell.

Disclosure of defense within one week or judgment was ordered in the case of the Merchants' Protective association against Rockwell & Co., Inc., of New London.

Disclosure of defense within 10 days or judgment was also ordered in the case of the L. A. W. Acceptance Corp. against John Kowalski.

BEAM IS UNDER ARREST AGAIN IN TORRINGTON

The case of Harry Beam, alias Harry Osborn of New Haven, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses was continued until today (Tuesday) when presented in the Torrington court Monday morning. Beam is accused of having obtained $230.50 from a Catholic clergyman at Torrington as payment for the painting the roof of a church. He failed to carry out the terms of the agreement, it is alleged.

Beam was arrested in New London on July 12 at request of the Norwich police to answer a charge of embezzlement here. At that time the case was nolled upon the payment of $25 Last week Beam was presented in the Bridgeport court and a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses was nolled. He is also wanted by the East Hartford police on a charge of cashing two alleged worthless checks and also is wanted in Williamstown, Mass., on fraud charges, according to the Torrington police.

FINED ON TWO COUNTS; JAIL SENTENCE SUSPENDED

Hormisdas Germain, 36, of Taftville, found himself in all sorts of trouble when he appeared before Judge Arthur F. Libby in the city court Monday morning. Germain was presented on a charge of operating an automobile without the permission of the owner. Before his case had been disposed of the intoxication charge was nolled, but an additional charge, operating a machine while under the influence of the owner, was placed against his name.

Germain after imbibing from a bottle handed him by a friend in Taftville Sunday afternoon, climbed into a Ford machine owned by Joseph Riley of Versailles, and which was parked near the Hillcrest theatre, Taftville. Somehow or other Germain managed to move the machine down the hill as far as the Sacred Heart church.
